OBJECTS OF PRESENT ALLIED OFFENSIVE ARE NOT DISCLOSED

Italian Operations in Albania Are Puzzling for the Moment.

THE GREEK ARMY

(Special to The Examiner.)

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, July 11.—Italian operations in Albania are puzzling at the moment as to the objectives which are being sought. The new offensive has come without any warning, and it is difficult to determine what the Italian General Staff has in mind.

There are four possible reasons for the drive. First to supply the demands for new victories which have been stimulated in Italy by the recent successes against the Austro-Hungarians. Second, to create a diversion that will prevent the Austro-Hungarians from concentrating all their forces for a new attack along the Piave. Third, to encourage the spirit of revolt among the Slav nationalities in Austria - Hungary. Fourth, to prepare the way for an Allied offensive in the Balkans.

The Three Reasons.

Very likely, the first three reasons are acting co-operatively, whether the final and by far the most important possibility, is being seriously considered, must be regarded doubtfully until there is more evidence. For the Allies to attempt a major advance in the Balkans at this time would be a serious drain on their strength. Greek aid would be necessary to a very large extent, and it is not probable that the Greek army is as yet supplied with the munitions of war on a sufficient scale to give reasonable surety of success. If, however, at a later time, it is the intention of the Allies to attempt to overthrow the Bulgarians, valuable shipping space could be saved by moving supplies into Greece over land across Albania. An advance of but a short distance by the Italians beyond their present front would liberate excellent roadways for the purpose.

"B" MEN MAY BE CALLED UP

The immunity from service which men who are in Category "B" under the Military Service Act have been enjoying will shortly be set at an end in number two district if present indications are found to be true. The 2nd Battalion, Canadian Garrison Regiment, which is now camped at Exhibition Camp, is said to be very busy with the routine work of enrolling men. As a result a detachment of experienced clerks from the 2nd Depot Battalion, 2nd C.O.R., at Niagara Camp, is coming to relieve the battalion of the routine work. As this battalion is composed entirely of men in categories lower than "A," it is likely that more "B" men will be called to its ranks. This Garrison Battalion's work includes the guarding of canals and other duties throughout the district, and with the arrival of the clerical assistance from Niagara the battalion will devote itself exclusively to guard work.

Call is Expected Soon

Military authorities state that they were not asking for any "B" men at present, but thought it not improbable that a call would be made shortly. Men are needed for the Forestry and Railway Construction units, and the District Headquarters has taken up with Ottawa the needs of these branches of the service. Further, a number of men who are taken on the strength of the Garrison Battalion as "B" men have their categories raised to "A," with the result that they will go to the trenches instead of doing guard duty. Any more calls for "B" men will be made by the Registrar at the instigation of the military authorities when the men are required. All the "A" men at Niagara Camp will be cleared out next month, and as yet no hint has leaked out of other calls, so it is not improbable that the "B" call will not come till the others have moved east.

BOLSHEVIKI WILL RESIST LANDING OF ALLIED TROOPS

STOCKHOLM, July 11.—The Bolsheviki war commissariat of the northern region of Russia following the landing of allied troops on the Murman coast ordered hurried war preparations it was learned here today. NEW YORK PAYS HOMAGE TO MAJOR JOHN PURROY MITCHELL

Funeral of Former Mayor of New York Took Place To-day—Aviators Dropped Flowers on Roadway.

Canadian Press:

NEW YORK, July 11.—The body of John Purroy Mitchel, former Mayor, in a flag-draped casket, on which rested the cap which he wore as Major of Aviation, was borne through the streets of New York today, while tens of thousands watched in silent tribute. New York has seen other military funerals for heroes of the nation, but those who witnessed the solemn procession which escorted the former Mayor's body from the City Hall to St. Patrick's Cathedral to-day felt that none could have been more impressive. All along the route for a distance of approximately four miles the people stood with bared and bowed heads.

The bell in the City Hall tolled as the casket was borne from the rotunda, where it had lain in state throughout the night, and placed on an artillery caisson, drawn by four horses, which conveyed it to the Cathedral and thence to Woodlawn Cemetery.

The pall-bearers included Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Col. P. M. House, Mayor Hylan of New York. President Wilson was represented by Secretary Tumulty, Lord Reading, British Ambassador, by General C. T. M. Bridges, and French and other Embassies and Legations by Attaches.

An airplane circled overhead as the march began, later to be joined by six others, which flew back and forth over the road, dropping flowers. The hum of the aerial motors carried to the crowds below the sorrowful significance, for it was as an aviator that Mitchel died. Meantime much of the mourning city's business was suspended.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

GETTING ACQUAINTED.

In times of great strain, music has the centre of the recreation stage. It has in the soldiers life. It has in the civilian's life. Yet the maximum of enjoyment and helpfulness is not secured until one makes music himself. It is all very well to be an Old King Cole and call for your fiddlers three. It is all very well to be on the getting side of the musical fence instead of the giving side. The extreme desire of listening to good music is greatly intensified when one produces music himself. The principle being a fundamental one, working out in music as it does in other spheres. No matter how much one admires a game of tennis, the most interested spectators at the championship matches are tennis players themselves. The layman who watches a yacht race sees only a small fraction of the points that a man does who has his own dingy. The High School pupils who take up Shakespeare's plays are among the most enthusiastic in the audience at the theatre when a good company arives for a Shakespeare week. To enjoy music more you must know music more. To know music more you must make more of it yourself.

AVOIDING DAMAGE TO THE CLARINET BY MOISTURE.

Not an uncommon complaint at all is that from a clarinet player who said the other day "I have trouble with the cork joints of my clarinet. They stick and are so tight that I am afraid of bending the keys when disjointing the instrument. Have been advised to wet the cork but it seems to make it stick harder." He also asked if the clarinet should be wiped dry after it has been played upon. A fellow musician had had a good $65 clarinet crack and naturally he wanted to know if there is anything to prevent this. Both these difficulties are thus answered by an experienced instructor: "Never wet the cork joints on a clarinet.

"Moisture causes the joints to stick and while wetting it temporarily swells the cork, eventually it dries, shrinks and loosens it. You should grease the cork joints often enough to keep the moisture out and this will depend upon the amount of playing done. In my own case I grease the joints with mutton tallow about two or three times a week, especially the upper barrel joint. If it is used too freely on the middle joints, however, the clarinet is apt to fall apart. The instrument should be thoroughly dried each time after playing, including the bore and the joint sockets. The barrel joint should be loose or entirely off when the instrument is not in use. If the barrel is allowed to become set and immovable, it frequently results in the upper joint cracking.

"Sudden changes in temperature should also be avoided. Never leave the swab or wiper in the bore of an instrument as it naturally is quite damp after use and will cause the pores of the wood to expand which often results in splitting. If these suggestions are carefully considered and the necessary care taken to follow them, there will be little or no danger of your clarinet cracking."

DOTTED NOTES.

Now-a-days music knows no seasons.

Hearty congregational singing is not necessarily loud.

A ballet is a dance illustrating some story or myth.

A piano in the army camp is a "touch" of home.

Classical pieces are not all antiques, though some may think so.

As in speech, so in music, certain words should be emphasized.

Sir Frederick Bridge has been the organist at Westminster Abbey since 1882.

An organ was built in Westminster Abbey expressly for the coronation of King James II.

Handel's Largo now largely considered a "church piece" was originally a purely secular work.

Someone has said that a group of voices singing pp. is the most beautiful effect in music.

On the continent, violin pupils usually receive two or three lessons a week the year around.

There is nothing which either appeals to or expresses the sentiment of the people as does a song.

The recognition of a composer in this world seems to depend some on his entrance into the next.

Chopin wrote for the piano only. One or two of his attempts at orchestral and vocal compositions failed.

Allowing a child to practice away on a piano that is out of tune comes pretty near to being a musical crime.

The average number of hairs in a violin bow to-day is from 150 to 200. In Tourte's day a smaller number were used.

Too many singers unfortunately believe that a song's success lies in the tongue of the singer and not the ear of the hearer.

The conviction is growing that when the war is over we will be far less willing to be sung to in a foreign language than we were formerly.

Someone asked what is "chamber music?" It is music written for small combinations of instruments generally that suitable for rendering in a small room rather than in a concert hall.

Army officers are making practical use of music. If the drill lags a bit, or the men seem to have lost their "pep" or interest, the officer will order a rest and a sing-song of ten minutes and it is surprising the different spirit that prevails. And on the march the men are never too tired to welcome the singing order.

Mr. Howson of the Manning Garage Closes Eight Car Sales in One Day.

It is seldom that any one of our local motor car salesmen has accomplished the big day's business that Mr. W. S. Howson, of the Manning Garage succeeded in doing last Saturday. Before the close of the day he had completed eight separate individual car sales, as follows: One Baby Grand Chevrolet, five 6-passenger Chevrolets, one Chevrolet Roadster, and one used Ford. It will be admitted that this was a pretty good stroke of business for one modest salesman to pull off in one day. The money value of these sales represent between five and six thousand dollars. And these were not the only sales at the Manning Garage on this particular day. Chevrolets got a good boost as well as other machines.

Military News

An important change is being made by the Pensions Board in connection with medical examinations, which will greatly facilitate the work, and which will prevent all unnecessary delays. The Pensions Board is establishing its own medical service, which will do all its own examining.

One Month's Leave.

Brig.-Gen. T. D. R. Hemming, C.M.G., G.O.C., MD. No. 3, has been granted one month's leave of absence and he will leave the city on the 10th inst for a well-earned holiday. Gen. Hemming's duties have been very strenuous and exacting.

Soldiers Leaving.

The recent draft of soldiers from the Depot Battalion has depleted the population of Barrefield Camp. There are now only about 250 soldiers in tents. There are 200 soldiers left in the Depot Battalion and about fifty in the Army Medical Corps. Several merchants, who have been conducting shops in the camp, are closing out because of lack of business.

IS THERE ANY outsider taking business away from your local merchant who is not an advertiser? Department stores spend from 3 to 5 per cent. and mail order houses from 7 to 10 per cent. on advertising.

Havelock Boy Victim of Recent German Atrocity

Pte. Carmen Kelly, a Former Member of 93rd Battalion Lost His Life on the Ill-fated Llandovery Castle.

Pte. Carman Kelly, of Havelock, was one of the victims of German atrocity in the recent sinking of the hospital ship, Llandovery Castle, his name appearing in the published list of those who went to a watery grave.

Pte. Kelly was but a mere youth, and enlisted in the 93rd Battalion, transferring afterward to the Queen's Ambulance Corps at Kingston, with whom he has remained ever since. For months past he has been on the staff of the torpedoed boat, in attendance on the wounded soldiers returning from the front.

His youngest brother, Pte. Garnet Kelly, who is now but fourteen years old, is overseas, at present in a hospital through illness. He is a son of Mr. Dan. Kelly, of Havelock. His mother died some years ago and he is survived here by his eldest brother, Bruce, of Havelock, and a sister, Mrs. Fred. Post, of Havelock, whose husband is also at the front.

The Llandovery Castle was sent to the bottom on the night of June 27th, 70 miles from the Irish coast. It was a 11,000-ton hospital ship which had been chartered by the Canadian Government to convey the sick and wounded to Canada. She had on board 258 persons, including 80 men of the Canadian Army Medical Corps and 14 Canadian nurses. Latest reports give only 24 saved of those on board. One of the officers was Capt. G. S. Sills, of Tweed.

Chairman of the Junior Chatauqua—Mrs. W. R. Morris.

Vice-Chairman—Mrs. A. Mowat.

The following were also nominated as members of the Advertising Committee to work in conjunction with Mr. Wearing: Walter Stocker, R. M. Glover, J. F. Smith, Stanley Thompson, U. B. Cowan, and James Lynch.

The chairmen of the other committees were given power to name the members of their respective committees.

The Chatauqua meetings will be held from the 16th to the 22nd of August, inclusive. There will be meetings morning, afternoon and evening, and the finest musical and speaking talent in America has been procured for these meetings, which are both entertaining and educational. A tent will be erected capable of holding 3,000 people, and it is expected that large crowds will attend from all over the surrounding country. Senior tickets for every meeting throughout the week will be $2 and juvenile tickets for all the meetings $1.

The Chatauqua meetings have been highly popular in the United States for many years, and Peterborough is to be congratulated on being able to get into the Chatauqua circuit this year, which is the first time that the Chatauqua people have come to Ontario.

CHILDREN'S ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION IS PROPOSED FOR PETERBOROUGH

Correspondence Received by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Dealing With the Subject.

Sir,—Some little time ago I enclosed the following correspondence of Mr. Kelso's to the C.A.S. here for them to deal with if they saw fit, as I thought the society here would anything to help the movement. I expected that if it had the chance to see the correspondence it would adopt Mr. Kelso's suggestion or deal with it to the best of its ability. Mr. E. A. Peck, however, the president, took the extraordinary step of refusing to allow the correspondence to be placed before the society. Therefore I am taking this means of reaching that body. If there is anything we can do I am sure the society would be glad to know about it, and it is only courteous to Mr. Kelso.

J. H. BURNHAM.

The correspondence is as follows:

153 University Ave.,
Toronto, June 21.

Dear Mr. Burnham,—As you were so closely identified with the early days of child-saving work I hoped you would be able to come to the anniversary celebration at the Parliament Buildings.

I wish it were possible to have a celebration this summer at Peterborough and I intend dropping a line to Mr. Peck suggesting that it would be a nice thing to arrange something of that kind.

Yours sincerely,
J. J. KELSO.

Toronto, June 27.

Dear Mr. Burnham,—I would suggest some day in the last week of July for a children's anniversary celebration, as I have to be in Fort William during 24th. Say the 29th or 30th. The society could invite Mrs. Kelso and myself to be guests and arrange for some family to entertain us—then a garden party or something of that sort would be fitting. Mr. Quartermaine of Renfrew, might also be asked.

Yours,
J. J. KELSO.

Mr. Baker, an expert piano tuner from the Heintzman & Co. head staff, Toronto, was in the city this week for several days, in the interests of their local patrons. Mr. Baker was busily engaged during his visit chiefly in retuning and examining Heintzman & Co. instruments in the city, of which there are now nearly two thousand. His services were greatly appreciated, being thoroughly expert in all things pertaining to piano mechanism. Mr. Baker acted in co-operation with Mr. H. B. Britton, the manager of Peterborough's Heintzman Hall.

FIRST WEEK'S OPERATIONS OF THE SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS

Playgrounds at the King Edward and Central Schools Are Well Patronized.

The Supervised Playgrounds at the King Edward school and at the Central school opened on Wednesday, July 3rd. The attendance at the King Edward has averaged over 200 a day, and at the Central school over 100 a day.

The supervisors at the King Edward are Miss Lily Davidson, daughter of Mr. J. I. Davidson of Peterborough, who has had extensive experience on Supervised Playgrounds in Montreal, Toronto and Port Arthur, and Miss Grace Crompton, Directress of Kindergarten work in Guelph Public schools. Miss Davidson is in charge of the playground, Miss Crompton giving most of her time to the very little ones, though both supervisors make the small children their special care. Some of the smallest children who come regularly to the playground this year are there for their third season though still under six years of age, smaller ones are now enjoying the grounds for the second season. No better testimony to the care given to the smallest children could be found.

The Central school playground is in charge of Miss Gladys Collinson, a bright sunny local girl who has instructions to specialize on the younger children, though finding time to direct the energies of the older ones.

At both playgrounds mothers are welcomed, and it is no unusual sight to see several of them there with their knitting.

SPECIAL SERVICE AT GEORGE STREET METHODIST CHURCH

Unique Plan Was Inaugurated Last Sunday Morning.

A new and unique plan was inaugurated at the George Street Methodist Church, last Sunday morning. It is a combination of the Sunday School and regular morning service for the months of July and August. It is held at eleven o'clock, and all the Sunday School scholars, with the exception of the Primary Department, which meets at the same time in their own room, assemble with the congregation in the church auditorium. Places have been assigned to the Senior and Adult classes; while the remainder of the school are expected to sit with their parents. The service proceeds in the usual order, until after the singing of the second hymn, when the boys and girls quietly go to the school room and gather in their classes for the study of the Sunday School lesson. The pastor then proceeds to take up the same lesson with the rest of the congregation, not by questions and answers, but in the form of a general exposition. Careful consideration was given to the plan before it was decided upon, and it was with great gratification the workers heard the many expressions of approval and satisfaction, which were voiced after the service last Sunday. It is a method which, while it is not altogether new in this country, is by no means common, but wherever it has been used, it has been pronounced a splendid success.

A Chance For Peterboro Anglers

Dr. Holderoft of Havelock, is doing as much for the restocking of our trout streams in this district as Jack Miner used to do for the county of Essex in protecting wild game. On Thursday last eight large cans of trout fingerlings were deposited in Plateau and other creeks in this vicinity through the energetic efforts of the Doctor and the assistance of Mr. Jas. Thompson, M. P. P. The speckled beauties were in exceedingly good shape and will no doubt go far to improving the fishing in Plateau, which by the way, is becoming noted for producing some of the largest trout caught in the province.—Havelock Standard.

FARMERS HAVE HAD ENOUGH RAIN NOW

"Not a bit too much rain," said a farmer this morning in Drummond's harness and implement shop. "We have had enough, but not too much, and if the sun comes out to stay for a while, everything will be fine. Some of the farmers were cutting hay, and have been held up, but generally speaking, the rain has been entirely beneficial."

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Issued by the Canada Food Board in collaboration with experts on the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm.

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

STORAGE OF VEGETABLES.

As a war-time measure no form of food conservation is more important than the home storage of vegetables for winter use. The war gardener should not put off making his storage preparations. Included in the list of vegetables to be stored are potatoes, beets, carrots, parsnips, onions, celery, cabbage, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, winter squash, turnips and beans.

Good results depend largely upon ventilation, the regulation of temperature, sufficient moisture, and the quality of the vegetables stored. For some vegetables, the pantry shelf or the attic are satisfactory places of storage. For others outdoor storage is preferable.

In some places several neighboring families form community clubs to provide storage facilities. In this way complete provision is made for handling winter supplies at slight trouble and expense to the individual household. Several families might club together and construct outdoor cellars, or they might share in the use of an available building conveniently located in which large quantities of vegetables might be stored.

"FRIEND IN LONDON" SAYS THERE IS PLENTY OF FOOD

The appended communication is addressed to the Examiner. It speaks for itself:

There was a statement made in your paper some time ago in regard to the scarcity of food in England, and saying that the soldiers were sending back their parcels to their friends in England. Let me quote from a letter received from a friend in London:

"We have all the nourishing food we can possibly eat. Our rations in both meat and butter have been raised, and we have more coupons for bacon than we can use. We have plenty of bread, rice flour, etc., fish and vegetables. The fresh vegetables are expensive, like tomatoes, etc., but spinach, beans, etc., are not, and so we have quite a variety. There is also plenty of milk. We can have all that we want. Everything of course is dear. Eggs are plentiful but 4|6 a dozen; chickens are 3| a lb."

Kindly insert this in your valuable paper it would seem a pity to let the Germans have the satisfaction of thinking that they had been successful in starving the British.

A nurse who came to London from Paris thinks they live luxuriously in England compared with what they had in Paris.

Yours very truly,
"A Well Wisher."

C.P.R. INSTALLS A TIE-BREAKING MACHINE

The C. P. R. Company has inaugurated a campaign to conserve coal and has installed a tie-breaking machine at all their power plants. The machine is built somewhat similar to the old time guillotine, a heavy weight breaking the wooden ties in two, and it is operated by compressed air. One of these machines is now in use at the Havelock round house and is doing its best to help the fuel shortage situation out.

KEENE SOLDIERS WELCOMED HOME

Were Presented With a Gold Locket.

The Town Hall at Keene was the scene of a very happy gathering on Tuesday evening, when a large number of the residents were present to extend a hearty welcome home to Corporal McIntyre, of the 93rd Regiment, and Private Bishop, of the 21st Regiment.

Deputy Reeve Esson, on behalf of the committee, presented each of the soldiers with a gold locket, suitably engraved, and at the same time expressed the strong admiration that the public felt for their devotion and sacrifice.

A splendid programme of vocal and instrumental music was a pleasant feature of the evening.

Rev. Mr. McEachren, Presbyterian Minister at Keene, occupied the chair, and addresses were delivered by Judge Huycke, Lieutenant-Colonel Johnston and F. D. Kerr.

THE SOLDIERS' WIVES AND NOTHERS' CLUB

Mrs. George Barrell, 171 River Road, of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club, has received the following letter from an overseas soldier who appreciates the work that the club is doing for the soldier:

In the Trenches,
June 18, 1918.

Mrs. Geo. Barrell, Peterborough:

Dear Friend,—Just received a pair of socks from our platoon sergeant, which I understand was sent to him by the kind ladies of Peterborough. We appreciate this gift very much, and we are very grateful for the way our kind friends at home look after us who are so far away. Our thoughts are always of home, and we look forward to the day when we shall return to see the people who have cared for us all these months, or rather years, of war. Most of the other boys are writing the ladies who sent the socks so that they will know that the boys appreciated their gifts.

Wishing you all kinds of success in your club work, and thanking you for remembering us, I am, one of the boys,

MAY PUT PRESSURE ON RETIRED FARMERS TO MAKE THEM HELP

Farm Labour Question Being Taken Up With Ottawa Authorities.

GUELPH, July 11.—According to the names handed in at the recent registration of those who are willnig to work on the farm in South Wellington, farmers can rely on 2,350 men who have had farming experience, and have stated on their cards they are willing to help when called upon.

These men are not now engaged in farming, but are living at Guelph, Rockwood, Erin village, Fergus and Elora. By an agreement with the authorities at Ottawa, these names have been copied out by the Ontario Government working through the national resources committee, and if they are called upon to do farm work, will be placed in South Wellington.

Another list containing the names of retired farmers who refuse to assist on the farms has also been copied, and this matter is being taken up at Ottawa, and pressure will be made to get their assistance.

PAPER STRIPS FAIL TO SAVE WINDOWS IN BOMBING RAIDS

PARIS, July 11.—The idea that paper stuck on glass windows prevented them from being shattered by the explosion of bombs nearby has been exposed as valueless by a Government scientist who has just completed exhaustive tests.

Parisians, in the belief that the paper protected the glass, had decorated their windows with miles of paper strips, many more or less artistic designs being evolved.

FOOD BOARD WILL NOT PROSECUTE HAVELOCK I.O.D.E.

In a letter to Mrs. J. A. Sexsmith, the Canada Food Board disclaims any idea of instituting a prosecution against the I.O.D.E. of Havelock for selling candy to obtain funds for comforts for soldiers overseas, and states that any such prosecution would not have the concurrence of the Board, and asks her to inform the member of that fact on its behalf, in order to correct the impression that the Board wanted to institute such a prosecution.

AT REST.

Day by day we saw her fade,
And gently sink away;
Yet in our hearts we prayed
That she might longer stay.

Affliction sore she with patience bore,
Physicians were in vain;
Till God above in His great love,
Released her from her pain.

The cup is bitter, the sting severe,
To part from her we loved so dear;
The trial is hard, we'll not complain,
But hope in Christ to meet again.

In loving memory of our dear sister, Nellie Crouter, who departed this life, 11th July, 1914. Inserted by her two sisters, Pearl and Rose.

WALTER CLARKE AUSTIN.

There passed away at his family residence this morning, Mr. W. C. Austin, a well known resident of the city. For three years Mr. Austin has been in failing health, but in the last four months has gone down rapidly. The late Mr. Austin is the youngest of a family of four sons and two daughters. He was born about sixty-one years ago near Codrington, in Brighton township, county of Northumberland, and was the son of Benjamin F. Austin and Mary Ann McGuire. His mother predeceased him five years.

He spent the early part of his life near Codrington and later graduated in Arts from Albert College of Belleville, then Albert University. For many years he followed the teaching profession, occupying the position of principal of Brockville Business College for a number of years. Since then he has been engaged in insurance and real estate.

In 1884 he married Alice M. Hicks, the youngest of the family of Philip Dulmage Hicks, one of the pioneer families of the Bay of Quinte district. After spending over thirteen years in Brockville, the family moved to Montreal, and two years later to Peterborough, where they have resided for more than nineteen years.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing widow, two brothers, Rev. Dr. B. F. Austin, of Los Angeles, Cal., Manley Austin, of Theodore, Sask., one sister, Phoebe of Theodore, and four children, Corp. Frank Douglas Austin, B.A., Sc., now in France with the Canadian Engineers. Hazel at home, Alfred, a member of the audit staff of the Imperial Munitions Board, Ottawa, and Hugh, now employed at Campbellford.

Government Has Decided to Disregard the Alberta Decision So Far as Draftees Are Concerned

Meanwhile the Individuals on Whose Behalf Habeas Corpus Writs Have Been Issued Are Being Transported Overseas as Though No Such Writs Existed.

CONFIDENT OF LEGALITY OF ORDER

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 11.—There remains no doubt this morning as to the attitude of the Government regarding the Alberta judgment in the Lewis case. The order-in-Council of July 5, unearthed in Calgary, makes plain that the Government's view is that military necessity and expediency warrants desregarding of the ruling of the court, not only insofar as it affects the general situation, but insofar as it affects individual cases. Not only are the Act and regulations to be enforced as though there had been no judgment, but orders for writs by the courts are to be disregarded by the military authorities. No effort is made here to deny the fact that the civil law in this matter has been superseded by the military law, that there will be a clash appears inevitable from the fact that Lieutenant-Colonel Moore is to be arrested for disobeying the writs. At the instructions of the authorities here, the Justice Department will see to it that Colonel Moore is represented by counsel, and it is hoped that the court will be induced to see the matter from the Ottawa viewpoint, but should Colonel Moore be imprisoned, it is not stated what action the Federal authorities will take for his release.

Sent Overseas.

Meanwhile the individuals on whose behalf habeas corpus writs had been issued by virtue of the Alberta Supreme Court judgements, are being taken and transported overseas as though no such writs existed. In short the Government takes the attitude—and shows no indication of deviating from that attitude — that military necessity in the present case at least, must have precedence over court rulings. The ruling in question is held by the Government to be a pure technicality. The Government is very confident of the legality of the order-in-Council assailed, and bases its contention upon the War Measures Act, which it declares gives power to the executive of a very wide and far-reaching character. That act, it contends, was passed without demur by Parliament, though the Minister of Justice himself pointed out at the time the width of the powers granted the Governor-in-Council under its provisions.

The Government, it is claimed, did not covet such powers for the sake of glory, but because without them they could not have carried on. There is further ground that to draw distinction between an act of parliament which has passed through various readings provided for by parliamentary procedure, and a resolution approved by the parliament in one stage, is to invoke a technicality which in times like these should have no weight.

Will Disregard Decision.

The fact remains that the Government has decided to disregard absolutely the Alberta decision so far as draftees are concerned, and that such are the instructions to various military authorities. That such a course will lead to a clash of some sort between the military authorities and the provincial and judicial authorities is probably fully recognized. In spite of that fact, the Government will pursue its course pending a hearing of the appeal which has been sent to the Supreme Court of Canada.

If Lieutenant-Colonel Moore is apprehended and imprisoned for contempt of court, it will not be in the power of the Federal or Military authorities to liberate him excepting under procedure used in cases of clemency.

No doubt the Minister of Justice will recommend his release, and the recommendation will go to the Governor-General for sanction.

Such action cannot, however, be taken until after he is tried and convicted. He cannot be released excepting on bail while awaiting trial.

CAPT. FRED HUBBS, A NEWSPAPER MAN WITH SOLDIERING HOBBY

Was In South African War And Had A Volume Of Experiences In Europe—Was Captured In Bitter Fight at Zillebeke In June 1916—Was Treated Well by Wurttembergers.

INTERNED IN SWITZERLAND

Captain Fred Hubbs of Hastings, who recently returned from Switzerland, where he was interned for seventeen months, returns to-morrow to Hastings after a few days' visit here with his father, Mr. C. E. Hubbs, Concession street. A printer by trade, his life amply proves that he is a soldier by nature. He learned his trade at the Examiner in 1893, and when the war broke out he was proprietor of the Hastings Star. His first soldiering was gained with the 3rd Dragoons in this district, and when the South African war broke out he enlisted in the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles and got all the action and excitement he could out of that campaign.

When the Mounted Regiments commenced recruiting for the present war, he sold his paper and went over with the 4th C.M.R. as lieutenant, and into action dismounted, with the C.M.R. battalion. To-day he related to some of his friends stories of life at the front that afford the friends at home little glimpses of the ordeal the men have to pass through.

The battle of Zillibeke in June, 1916, needs no review. The Patricias, C.M.R., and 1st battalion were badly cut up.

"Our battalion went in 900 strong," Capt. Hubbs told the Examiner this afternoon at the White House, "and we came through with only 62. I was in charge of the machine gun section and only one man escaped. He was Reg. Runnells, of Hastings. I understand he has since got a commission, but I believe he is almost through from wounds he received since that time. I want to see the parents of some of the Peterborough boys who were with me. Young Ira Bradley worked a machine gun as long as he could, and while he was trying to destroy it the Bosches got him."

Capt. Hubbs said he saw Lieut. Vivian Fessenden at Stuttgart. He also saw Lance Corporal Charlton Drummond and Private William Larkman, Peterborough boys with the 8th C.M.R. who were captured.

"We were captured by the Wurttembergers and sent to Stuttgart, the capital of Wurttemberg. I was treated very well, and have no cause for complaint, although it could have been much better in the hospital. In fact I was discharged before I had fully recovered and sent to the officers' camp at Bischofswerda, and when the Swiss commission found me there I was recommended for exchange because of my condition."

Capt. Hubbs stated that there was no question of the dislike for the Prussians that most of the other German national groups openly declare. The Bavarians, Saxons and Wurttembergers voice their animosity, but it apparently does not prevent them from uniting against the Allies.

Capt. Hubbs is home for a rest and while he feels that he has earned it, he expressed the opinion that he would soon want some work to keep him busy. He published a newspaper in Switzerland for the interned, but since his departure it "has died a natural death."

PETERBORO IS WELL REPRESENTED ON THE CANADIAN BENCH

The reported appointment of Col. R. M. Dennistoun to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Manitoba, is not only a gratifying announcement to his many Peterboro friends, but there is also a prideful recollection that this city has produced a considerable proportion of judges. Sir Frederick W. Haultain, Chief Justice of Saskatchewan, is a graduate of Peterboro's schools. He was born here but did not practice law in this city. Mr. Justice Nicholas Du Boie Beck of the Supreme Court of Alberta, studied law in the office of the late D. G. Hatton, and afterwards became a member of the legal firm of Hatton, Hatton & Beck, which is now represented by Mr. W. G. Hatton, Crown Attorney for Peterboro County. Col. Dennistoun was the senior member of the former partnership of Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, and a citizen who was held in the highest esteem.

Other recent provincial appointments from the local bar were G. M. Roger, of Roger, Bennett & Goodwill, the present judge of Northumberland and Durham, Louis M. Hayes, of Hall & Hayes, now the Judge of Wellington County, and Robert Ruddy, of Ruddy & Burnham, who is judge in Ontario County.

Approximately 50 Per Cent. of Returns in—Cities Yet to Hear From.

OTTAWA, July 11.—With approximately fifty per cent. of the constituencies of the Dominion heard Board, of which Hon. G. D. Robertson is the chairman, reports to-day that returns received show that 2,349,015 Canadians registered on June 22. The number of males who registered in 122 constituencies from which complete return have been received was 1,136,116, while female registrants numbered 1,212,899. These figures are considered as satisfactory by the Registration Board, more particularly in view of the fact that returns have not yet been received from many of the city constituencies having a large population.

MAKE $2,500,000 BUT CAN'T PAY A DIVIDEND.

$1,000,000 OF FORD'S PROFITS GO INTO TAXES—$1,500,000 INTO RESERVE.

Windsor, Ont., July 10. — With the closing of the Ford plant at Ford City, the statement is given out by the officials of the company that the shareholders have only been paid a five per cent. dividend since 1915, and that under the present circumstances there is no likelihood of paying any dividend for a considerable time. The officials of the company admit that during the past year a profit of two and a half million dollars was made.

They claim that almost a million of this was devoted to the payment of government taxes and the other million and a half remained in reserve for the extra cost of materials and extra stock which they claim is necessary to keep the company going.

The officials will make no statement as to when the factory will reopen, and the employees are of the opinion that it will remain closed indefinitely.

The closing of the Ford plant throws hundreds of employees in other plants out of work. Among these is the Fisher body works and the Kelsey Wheel Co, both of which were making parts for the Ford cars

Failure of Roumanian Army Changed Whole Course of War

Von Mackensen States That His Whole Army Could Have Been Pocketed and Made to Surrender—The Failure Was Due to Politicians at Home

NEGLECTED TO CUT THE WIRES

London, July 12 — How the Roumanian armies lost an opportunity of annihilating the German and Bulgarian armies in the Dobrudja in 1916 is revealed in a confidential document which has just reached the Associated Press from an authoritative source in Roumania.

The document contains an account of a conversation between Field Marshal von Mackensen and the Roumanian military leaders, which occurred shortly after the Roumanian peace treaties were signed. Von Mackensen declares that the failure of the Roumanians to press their advantage in 1916 changed the whole course of the war. He said that his entire army could easily have been pocketed and compelled to surrender, and this might have been followed by a separate peace with Bulgaria, which would have separated Turkey from her allies and changed the whole balance of power in the east.

SHORTSIGHTEDNESS.

The Roumanian failure, the memorandum states, was due not to the military leaders, but to shortsightedness of the politicians at Bucharest.

In September, 1916, General Averescu, commander in chief of the Roumanian army, and by far the ablest of all the Roumanian generals, had taken an army of four divisions, and had crossed the Danube into the heart of the enemy's country. He had found a clear path into the heart of the German-Bulgarian Dobrudja army, and had penetrated fifteen miles, with a view to cutting off all their communications and striking them from the rear. General Averescu's own position was safe, for behind him he had eight divisions of support and reinforcements, including Serbian and Roumanian troops of the first quality.

NEGLECTED TO CUT WIRES.

But Averescu had neglected to cut the wires which connected him with the politicians in the Roumanian capital, and he had only got fifteen miles beyond the Danube when there came a peremptory order to withdraw his forces. It was an absolute command from the War Cabinet. Averscu tried to reason with his political chieftains over a long distance telephone wire and even threatened to resign, but the politicians had decided and refused to change their mind. The Cabinet, it appears, felt that there was danger of the German armies on the other side of Roumania—the Carpathian front—breaking through, and doing a great deal of harm at a time when Averescu's army was far afield. The politicians' timidity preferred a defensive policy to a daring offensive, and after a day or two of delay Averescu and his army withdrew from their commanding position in von Mackensen's rear, and retired back across the Danube.

PUZZLED BY MANOEUVRE.

The Germans were much puzzled by this manoeuvre and never were able to secure a satisfactory explanation of this withdrawal of their enemy at the very moment when his cause seemed won. Von Mackensen was an old pre-war friend of Averescu and knew the latter's abilities too well to underestimate them.

That was why von Mackensen sought out Averescu during the peace parleys a few weeks ago in Bucharest.

"Why did you withdraw?" asked von Mackensen. "If you had gone forward you most certainly would have bagged the whole of the Bulgarian and German armies in the Dobrudja."

HINDENBURG NEEDS ANOTHER 1,000,000 MEN

Paris, July 10.—Despatches from The Hague say Field Marshal von Hindenburg has just called for an additional 1,000,000 troops, and that recruits are being taken from factories, the vacancies being filled by allied war prisoners and exchanged war captives, contrary to all agreements, but in line with the usual German custom of disregarding sacred conventions.

Many crippled Germans recently released by the British, are employed in the Krupp works. The Krupp mansion, near Bredney, is strongly guarded against aerial attacks.

It is reported Germany is calling up to the colours for intensive training boys of 16, 17 and 18, who will be sent into action on the western front.

It is known that forty-four German shock divisions (660,000 men) have been brought up to war strength from replacement depots and are back of the fighting line in France, rehearsing the new attack. There are many indications that the opening of the offensive is at hand; a few hours may see it begin.

RUSSIAN GENERAL CREMATED IN FIREBOX OF BATTLESHIP

New Yorker Tells of Excesses of the People Led by Thugs—Mob Spent One Whole Day in Killing Army and Navy Officers.

A mob of Bolsheviki in Odessa, Russia, spent one whole day in drowning as many army and navy officers as they could lay hands upon, according to Simeon Gest, a brother of Morris Gest, the musical producer, who has recently arrived in New York from that city.

"General Tcmashgevitz," says Gest, "one of the leading men of the city, was hurled into the furnace of a battleship and burned alive while the mob sang on the water front. That same day a fine was imposed on the bourgeoise of 20 million dollars, and 96 of the wealthiest citizens placed in jail until it should be paid. By nightfall drunken men lay so thick in the streets you couldn't step for walking on them.

"The wife of a physician, who had been drowned by the Bolsheviki, hired a driver to recover the body of her husband, and the sight of the drowned men as he descended drove him mad."

The Mob in Power.

Gest recalls the last week of January as the worst he experienced.

"In Odessa we were defenceless against a drunken mob who reveled through the nights. Not only did the wealthy class suffer, but the homes of doctors, lawyers and the professional class were plundered and demolished and the inmates killed if they offered the slightest resistance or interference. At the point of a gun or bayonet we had to obey the thugs' command. The mob had gone crazy with the sight and smell of blood. The people finally became so desperate they were willing to accept any protection.

"The young Russian officers and military cadets joined the Ukrainians and resisted the Bolsheviki until the latter seized a battleship in the harbour, and under the protection of its powerful guns the Red Guards worked more havoc upon the city.

"To wear a collar and tie before a crowd of Bolsheviki," Gest continued, "is like waving a red rag in the face of an infuriated bull. You may pay the penalty for wearing them with your life. They damn you irrevocably as belonging to the bouregoise or the counter-revolutionists, for the new autocrat of Russia is the thug, and his sceptre is the gun. Great nordes of those thugs make days and nights hideous, as they rob and pillage and burn. Their dealers are released prisoners from Siberia, drunken sailors and soldiers, the idle who will not work. Armed with rifles and machine guns, they wage destruction of life and property.

SLIGHTED WAITERS DRUG PATRONS?

CHICAGO, July 11.— Ten waiters and officials of the Waiters' Union were indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday as a result of investigation that patrons of hotel dining-rooms and restaurants who had slighted waiters in giving "tips" had been drugged wih "Mickey Finn," powders. The powders are a concoction, colourless and tasteless, which produce nausea.

Conspiracy to do bodily harm and conspiracy to injure the public health by administering the powders, which are commonly known to the medical profession as tartar emetic, is charged. W. S. Wood, alleged manufacturer of the powders, was among those indicted.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday were 44 cars, with 213 cattle, 188 calves, 1,906 hogs and 352 sheep.

The cattle trade was distinctly dull to-day and the commission men found it hard to clean up a lot of held-over stuff at the lower prices prevailing this week. The tendency of the market in fact is for still further declines on the common class of cattle; anything of decent quality is readily picked up but the common and the medium find a slow demand. One small bunch of choice butcher steers sold at $14.60, but these were an exception to the general run of the market, both in quality and price. Real choice quality is now very scarce.

The demand for calves has suddenly fallen very flat, fair to good quality calves selling yesterday 75c to $1 lower than earlier in the week. There has been a rather heavy offering of calves this week and the packers appear to be well supplied.

Sheep inclined a little easier.

Lambs very firm and in good demand.

Hogs steady at the 25c advance to $18.25 fed and watered.

GRAIN MARKET

The advance in corn yesterday on the Chicago market was of the sensational order. July closed 4 3-8c higher, August 3 3-8c, and September 2 7-8c higher than Wednesday's close. The oats markets were also strong, July oats at Winnipeg closing 7-8c higher and October 1 1-8c. The disquieting reports from the west as to the condition of he crops probably accounts for the strengh of the Winnipeg market. One of the reasons given for the sudden flurry in he corn market was a rumour that President Wilson had signed the bill raising the price of wheat on the 1918 crop to $2.40. The report was subsequently denied. There is evidently a widespread belief that the corn prices will go higher in any event, regardless of the abundant crop.

LONDON, July 11.—"With a million men, of whom 300,000 only need be allied troops, it would be possible to reconstruct the Eastern front on a line running through the Ural Mountains," is a statement made by Lieut.-Gen. Horvath, vice-president and general manager of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

General Horvath, as chief director of the Chinese Eastern Railway in 1904, was responsible for transporting Russian armies over the Siberian Railway to the battlefields of the Russo-Japanese war.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

AN EMBARRASSING SITUATION

CHAPTER CXV.

On my way home from Evelyn's I stumbled and fell. It was carelessness on my part, I was so engaged thinking of Evelyn's baby, so pleased that she had named it for me, that I didn't see a stone on the crossing; and tripped over it. As I was scrambling to my feet hoping no one had seen my undignified performance I heard voices say:

"Let me help you! Are you hurt?" and Merton Gray assisted me to rise. He held my arm a moment to steady me, and in that moment Madge Loring came along.

I never felt so embarrassed in my life. It was bad enough to have Merton see me stretched full length on the ground, but to have Madge Loring came along just then was too awful. My clothes were covered with dust, my hat was awry. I knew I looked a sight.

"What is it? A rescue of some sort?" she asked as I jerked away from Merton.

Her tone made me angry and I answered icily:

"It was a most fortunate one," then I turned to Merton. 'Thank you Mr. Gray, now if you are ready we'll hurry on and get that cup of tea I promised you.' All the time I was talking I tried to make myself more presentable. First I tried to straighten my hat, then to brush the dust from my skirt. Merton also helped brush me.

Mrs. Loring Thinks Falls Ludicrous.

"It makes one feel so silly, and small to fall in the street, doesn't it?" Madge Loring asked, then without waiting for a reply, "It—always strikes the onlooker as so ludicrous, even to the person who fell may be hurt. I always feel like laughing when I see anyone fall."

"I suppose you would enjoy seeing others laugh if you fell," I remarked sarcastically.

"Oh, I never fall, but some people are naturally clumsy," she returned, then said "good-bye," and hoped I would feel no bad effects of my fall, and rather maliciously added: "I trust you will enjoy your tea."

"Cat!" Merton said as soon as she was out of hearing. "Did you really mean that you were going to be kind and give me a cup of tea?"

"Certainly I will if you care for it. But to be honest I said it on the spur of the moment. I was so embarrassed to have her see me. I suppose I was clumsy, but—oh, well it is over now. I will try and look where I am going after this. But I was thinking of my little namesake."

"Your what?"

"Evelyn Reeves has a little daughter and she has named her for me. I am delighted to think she did so, and was thinking what I should give the baby for a christening gift when I stumbled over that stone."

"You are sure you aren't hurt?"

"Only my pride! That is terribly bruised."

"Don't mind her! She may fall some day."

I wasn't thinking entirely of Mrs. Loring. I had been terribly mortified to have Merton see me. But I answered:

"I hope she does, and that I will be there where I see her," at which Merton laughed heartily, then added:

"Me too!"

A Serious Talk.

When we reached the house I excused myself and left Merton in the library while I went upstairs and changed my soiled dress and rearranged my hair. When I looked in the glass and saw how blowsy I was I blushed again to think that Madge Loring had seen me. But I soon forgot the encounter when Merton and I began to talk.

I had ordered the tea things when I went up, and everything was ready for me. I made the tea and then we chatted. Merton touched very lightly upon his feeling for me; said he had been thinking things over, and that he wanted me to forgive him for presuming. He had perhaps thought me more unhappy than I was, and had acted accordingly. Then he stopped talking of our affairs and told me of places he had visited, stories of people he knew; and finally he told me of many things he had experienced, things which seriously affected him, and which were intensely interesting. We talked until nearly time for George to come in. An intimate, serious talk that made me feel I knew Merton Gray, the real Merton Gray for the first time.

When George came in I told him of my day. Of the baby, how cute it was, at which he smiled rather indulgently, but said nothing. Then I told him of my fall, of Merton Gray happening along, of his assistance of Madge Loring and her catty remarks, then of my tea with Merton, and some of the things he had told me, the serious things.

To my surprise George said nothing about my clumsiness. His only remark anent my fall being:

"You are sure you weren't hurt?" I gave him the same answer I had given Merton. That "my pride only was bruised," at which he laughed.

To-morrow—Making Over Oneself A Thankless Task.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Rainer, Ashton Farm, Percy, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble as the cough passed off in two or three days".

Germany As It Is To-day.

The German empire, better known as the German vampire, embraces 208,830 square miles, but not a single square meal, says the Brooklyn Eagle. It comprises four kingdoms, six grand duchies and 3,876,531 grand goosesteps. In outline and inclination it is highly irregular. On the east it bounds Lenine. On the north it is bounded by the Allied fleets and on the west by Gen. Foch.

The principal waterways of Germany are the seize and the Kiel Canal. The high C's now under its control are confined to the opera house. The Kiel Canal is used for exercise by the battled ships on pleasant Sundays. The sea board, greatly restricted like all other kinds of board, is known as the high cost of living. The country is not entirely on the level. It has, in the interior, a large table land, entirely empty. There are also deep depressions in all parts of the nation.

Berlin, the capital, was established in the thirteenth century, on the Spree river. It has not yet recovered. The inhabitants are divided into two main classes—junkers and junked. The present fooler is Kaiser Billions II. His principal occupation is looking for a place in the sun. There is something warmer than that in store for him. It sounds something like Heligoland. The crown prince is the barely-apparent. The national motto is "Spurlos versenkt."

Wisdom Teeth.

The so called wisdom teeth are the two last molars to grow and they have no real connection with the possesson of wisdom. They take their name from the time of their arrival, from twenty to twenty-five years, at which age the average person is supposed to have reached years of discretion. Cutting one's wisdom teeth means simply arriving at the point of completeness in physical equipment and has no direct relation to mental equipment. The possession of these teeth is no guarantee of wisdom. They grow at about the same age in people whether they are wise or not.

The Prussian Versailles.

Potsdam is the Prussian Versailles and contains four palaces. It was founded by the grent elector of Brandenburg, but owes most of its splendor to Frederick the Great, whose apartments, which are shown to visitors, remain almost exactly as they were when he was alive. Among the most interesting treasures is a copy of Frederick's works annotated in the hand writing of Voltaire.

A Prudent Provision.

"Jones is nothing if not thorough. No matter how he starts out he always gets to the very bottom of things."

"Then it is very lucky for him that he didn't start out as a sea captain."—Baltimore American.

The Coward.

"Has that young man given you any encouragement, daughter?"

"Oh, yes, mother."

"What did he say?"

"He asked me to tell him what sort of a disposition father had."—Yonkers Statesman.

CONSTANTINOPLE.

The Siege and Sacking of the Famous City by Mohammed II.

Mohammed II. moved to begin his great siege of Constantinople in February, 1453, but the ponderous character of his artillery made it impossible to get his weapons in place for three months longer, and the real siege began in April. It lasted fifty-three days, and Mohammed entered the city and extinguished the last remains of the Roman empire on May 29.

Cannon were still in the experimental stage, and there was a belief that the bigger the gun the more destructive it would be, so Mohammed had a cannon made, the diameter of whose mouth is said to have been two feet and a half. Stone balls were still in use in those days. Mohammed had 70,000 men, while the force of the Christians did not exceed 9,000. The Turkish fleet consisted of 320 vessels. The Christians were inadequately supplied with gunpowder, and every repulse they inflicted on the Turks brought nearer the day of their own downfall.

Battering rams, cannon and liquid fire were used constantly in the attack upon the half ruined forts of Constantinople, and at one time the Turks sent forward a wooden turret on rollers, which was destroyed by the Greeks and their allies. A Christian squadron of only five ships repulsed the Turks in a desperate naval engagement, though Mohammed himself, sitting on horseback on the beach, yelled reproaches at his sailors and even spurred his horse into the sea.

Mohammed conceived the desperate operation of carrying his ships overland from the Bosphorus into the higher part of the harbor. In one night the Turkish fleet climbed a hill and was launched, and the upper harbor was occupied. The Ottoman cannon demolished the Greek forts in forty days, and the final assault began in the morning of May 29. The Emperor Constantine fought to the last and died like a hero, and a pitiless sack of the city began the moment it fell, under the explicit permission and even order of Mohammed himself.

An invasion of Serbia began within a few days, and the Turk was placed firmly on his European throne.

A Beggar's Pride.

A wretched beggar, whose "I am blind" sign was a lie, was arrested with several companions who made a specialty of preying on churchgoers. He explained that he only practiced fraud on week days and begged honestly on the Sabbath.

A great deal of moralizing and of cynicism might be expended on this old man's singular ethics. Yet each person has his standard of conduct, and includes in its reservations no less inconsistent than the beggar's delicate attitude toward Sunday. We are prone to be proud of things we do not do, rather than of our positive goodness. Not stopping at that, we judge those whose code permits them wider latitude than that we enjoy.

The faking beggar clings to a negative virtue, founds his sole claim to a self-respect on that. Many another, dwelling on planes far above the beggar, yields to the same naive tendency.

Some Famous Doctors.

Morgagni, the founder of modern pathology, was an Italian. Auenbrugger, inventor of physical diagnosis, was an Austrian. Jenner, the discoverer of vaccination, and Lister, father of modern surgery, were Englishmen. Schwann, originator of the cell doctrine, and Koch, who isolated the bacillus of tuberculosis, are credited to Germany; O'Dwyer, inventor of intubation, and Wright, who worked out the theory of opsonins, which teaches how the blood fights disease, to Ireland. Pasteur, father of preventive medicine, who taught the world the causes of sickness and demonstrated that no one need die of parasite diseases, was born in France.

The Dog In War.

An officers recently home from France, has given an account of the work done by one of the sentry dogs which the major supplied to the second battalion of a regiment at the front.

"One dark night," the officer states, "I took out the sentry dog on patrol duty. We moved along for some time and saw nothing. Suddenly the dog stopped dead, pointed, and gave a low growl. We immediately lay motionless on the ground. Two Germans rose up as if out of the ground in front of us, and they were immediately bayoneted by our men."

NAVAL TORPEDOES.

Intricate Mechanism of These Awful Engines of Destruction.

At the torpedo's head is an explosive chamber which holds damp guncotton. This is fired by means of a rod which, on contact with the walls of a ship, is driven in upon a detonator. This fires a primer, which in turn explodes the guncotton.

The next chamber stores compressed air to the pressure of 2,000 pounds to the square inch. This is practically the boiler room of the torpedo, for it supplies the motive power to the four cylinder engine which drives it through the water on its errand of destruction.

Next comes the wonderful gyroscopic control of the air motor by which the rudders are adjusted. This is where the intricate mechanism of the torpedo is so clearly demonstrated. Should it rise or dip in the water this gyroscope actuates a motor which in turn operates rods related with the rudders and at once readjusts any deflection from the course originally set.

The motor mentioned is but a few inches in length, yet the power it exerts by means of compressed air is such that the pressure of half an ounce operated by the steering gear produces a pull of 160 pounds on the rudders.

This terrible fish's tail holds wheel gearing for the driving of two propellers and the manipulation of the rudders. The propellers revolve in opposite directions, thereby preventing the torpedo describing a circle.—London Answers.

Women and the Old Olympic Games.

One rule of the original Olympic games could not be followed nowadays without provoking serious troubles. Women were not allowed to be present or even to be anywhere in the district when the games were being celebrated on pain of being hurled from a precipitous rock. This rule is believed to have been defied only once, when the offender was pardoned in consideration of the fact that her father, brothers and son had been victors in the games. One particular priestess, however, was not only exempt from this law, but was accommodated with a special front seat on an altar of white marble, and women were allowed to enter chariots for the races, though they might not be present to see them win.

DRAFTEES IN ENGLAND

MEN TRAINED QUICKLY AND RUSHED TO FRANCE.

Soldiers Stationed In Old Land Are Careful Not to Taunt New Comers, Who Are a Fine Body of Fighters—Every Effort Is Being Made to Give Them a Square Deal.

GOLDEN gorse glows on the sandy hillsides, a touch of color among the dark olive green of the heather not yet in bloom. Hard by a big pond of clear water, whose sandy bottom makes it a delectable place for bathers, reflects the almost cloudless blue of an English springtime sky. While from the woodlands, which, clad in new verdure, stretch away from the lakelet's edge, the voices of myriad birds fill the air.

When Canada's young draftees, fresh from across the seas, tumble out of their tents at reveille after their first night in an English camp, such is the scene that confronts them. Such are the surroundings of the Canadian segregation camp amid the Surrey moorlands. Disembarking at the port of entry, the newly arrived on these shores are brought straight here. They reach camp at night, have a hot meal, and at once seek repose until summoned by the matutinal bugle, when their training as soldiers in the Canadian army has its official commencement.

Grouped in clumps which will accommodate one thousand men each, the snow-white bell tents dot the moor, the name of the encampment being picked out by the roadside in white-washed stones. When your correspondent arrived the flaps of all the tents were up to permit the air to circulate. In front of each, in faultless accuracy, were piled the folded blankets and the burnished tin plates and cooking accoutrements of their occupants. Out on a neighboring exercise ground the boys were going through their preliminary training.

All troops on arrival in England from Canada must spend 28 days in this segregation camp before being drafted off to the other camps to complete their training. Disease sometimes breaks out on shipboard, though generally nothing more serious than a few cases of mumps or measles. However, quarantine is a needful precaution, and, outside certain boundaries, no man is allowed to stir until the time is up. Shore leave is not granted until the draftee has been five weeks in England. On his first day at the segregation camp there is a muster and roll-call. The second day is devoted to medical and dental inspection, the third to ordnance and kit inspection. On the fourth morning his web equipment is scrutinized, and immediately after his regular training starts. Though the Imperial authorities allow longer, the Canadians have cut the course of training to 10 weeks to meet the demand for men. In 10 weeks' time, which includes the 28 days in segregation, the draftee has become a finished soldier, ready for the trenches.

That hateful word "conscript" is absolutely forbidden in the segregation camp and in all other camps to which draftees presently proceed to be absorbed by their respective units. Punishment swift and sharp awaits anyone who taunts the new-comers. But announcement of this penalty has been seemingly superfluous. The general attitude of the veterans and volunteers towards the draftees has from the outset been kindly. Not a few of the newcomers have naturally had some apprehensions as to the reception they would meet, but their fears have been groundless. A pleasant surprise has awaited them — a comfortable camp in beautiful surroundings and a friendly staff, keen on discipline, but anxious to make soldiers out of new arrivals with as little severity as possible.

Canadian officers and non-coms. on the staff are loud in their praise of the fine physique and intelligence of the draftees. Not even the volunteers of the First Division showed a greater adaptability to learn soldiering. And the men who told me this meant what they said.

Each clump of tents has its own kitchen, and the men are fed on the new self-help system. Everyone gets enough, but woe befide the man who takes more than he requires. Punishment awaits anyone who leaves food on his plate. It is thus that the local pig-keepers pay much less per pail for Canadian swill than they do for leavings from the mess tables of the Imperials. Waste has been eliminated. That the food provided is good was demonstrated by the viands preparing for the pot. Good beef, fat bacon, lay ready for the knife, and here I tasted the first white bread I had eaten for months.

Lieut.-Col. Colquhoun, of Brantford, who commanded the 4th Ontario Battalion at the front in the early days, is the commandant.

A roar of rifle fire betokened that we were nearing the School of Musketry, which is some miles from the quarantine encampment. Here, lying on their tummies, hundreds of draftees, who had, until a few weeks prior, never held a rifle in their hands, were blazing scientifically at a line of targets. Rapid fire was in progress and when the markers pulled down the figures of the German dummies a most remarkable array of bulls and inners was signalled back as a result of the shoot. Col. Primsoll, the Imperial expert in charge of Canadian musketry training, and Major Huggins, of Ottawa, the musketry camp commandant, are very proud of the record being made. The men presently did rapid fire with gas masks on. The celerity with which these novices in soldiering adjusted their masks and fired ten well-directed shots, is illustrated by the facts that these Canadian beginners have cut down the regulation time

All men that are ruined are ruined on the side of their natural propensities.—Burke.

OUR CALENDAR IMPERFECT.

Under the Present System a Day Is Lost Every 2,500 Years.

Many people are dissatisfied with the calendar. They propose to take it back and change it. They would have to go back to an act of the British parliament in 1751—that is, English speaking folk would—and then still farther into the recesses of time. It was that statute which later led American schoolboys into doubt as to whether George Washington was born on Feb. 22 or Feb. 11. Eleven days were lost between Julius Caesar and George Washington, but that hardly seems appalling enough after all to justify so many preachments on the subject of lost time, does it? The way things are arranged now it will be 2,500 years or more before we lose another day.

The scientist, however, is never satisfied with anything less than accuracy, and he wants a perfect calendar. He has taken his ideas of reform into the legislatures of several nations, but nothing has happened yet. Reform is sure to get into trouble, anyway, when it gets into politics. But truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again, and maybe the dream of the scientist will come true. The first day of every month will fall on the first day of the week, and so forth. The printed calendar which comes from the insurance company or the grocery store will be just as good one year as another, and the months will be all alike. Probably a more durable form will be invented, so that it will last a lifetime, be moved from house to house with the rest of the furniture and be handed down to future generations as an heirloom. Time, with such a calendar, wouldn't seem so flighty.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Another Topsy.

Little Mary had heard it said that sister Kate "belonged to her mother's people," that baby brother was "his father over again" and that "Albert was a Brown."

"Little Mary," the relatives all said, "doesn't look like anybody."

She followed her mother about the house one day with an anxious look.

"Mamma," she finally burst forth, "ain't me people?"—Indianapolis News.

ECZEMA ON BABY'S EAR

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes: "My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her very much good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend its preparation too highly."

PERSISTENT BEAVERS.

A Battle of Wits Between the Animals and the Engineers.

When the Grand Trunk railway ran its line across a swamp in a game preserve on the line of the Alberta Rockies there was a wonderfully constructed beaver dam holding the water back to flood the swamp

This in the eyes of the game warden was pure waste, and he ordered the engineers to prevent it without harming the beavers. Of course the dam could have been blown up with dynamite, but that would have meant the death of most of the little animals and death very likely in great pain at that.

So the engineers cut an opening in the dam. The mud had become almost as hard as concrete, and it took the men three days to get the water running out steadily. Then, thinking their troubles with the industrious little fellows over, they started work on the railway through the swamp.

Soon the water began to rise, and the work was stopped in a few hours. The engineers made all haste to the dam and found the animals had repaired the cut and made it tight again.

A fresh cut was made, but after the men had gone the beavers busied themselves and made it stronger than ever. Work was again stopped on the railroad within a few hours.

Then a deep hole was made in the earth far under the dam. The beavers were much puzzled. Never before had they seen water go down into the ground and come up far away. But they lent their whole attention to the problem, and the work on the railroad was again stopped as a consequence and the foundations soaked with water.

Then followed an engagement of wits between the beavers and the engineers. But every time the men found a way to cut the dam in a new place the beavers found a way to stop it.

The road was finally constructed by working a few hours at a time, and the loss to the contractors amounted to more than $5,000.—Detroit Free Press.

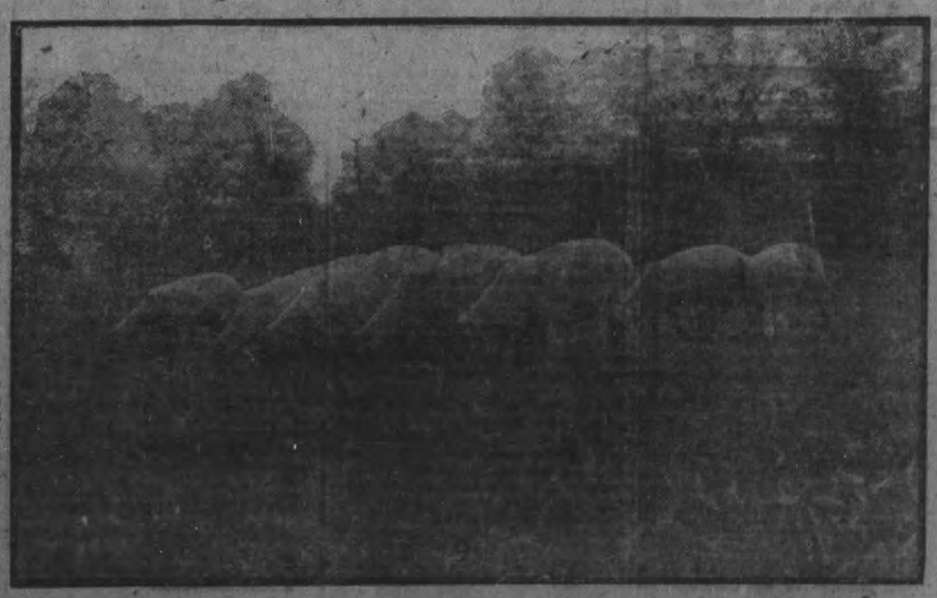
RECORD WOOL CLIP FOR WESTERN CANADA



EARLIER estimates of this year's wool clip of Western Canada seem to have been much too conservative. It now looks as if the increase over last year's clip will be as high as fifty per cent. This is the estimate of the clip of the Southern Alberta Wool Growers' Association—the largest association of sheepmen in Western Canada. Last year the members of this association had 158,000 sheep sheared; this year the number sheared is about 225,000, or 70,000 more than last year. It it expected that the Southern Alberta Association will have about 1,575,000 pounds of wool for sale, and that the members will realize a total amount of more than a million dollars on the clip.

Most of the wool of Alberta sheep is marketed through the various growers associations in different parts of the province. The Pincher Creek Association—also in Southern Alberta—will have about 85,000 pounds of wool for disposal, which represents a fairly substantial increase over the quantity marketed by this association last year. Increases of from twenty-five to fifty per cent over last year's clips are also looked for at Calgary, Brooks, Lacombe and Edmonton.

In Saskatchewan the grading and selling of the wool is undertaken by the Co-operative Branch of the Department of Agriculture. A large quantity is also handled independently. Last year the Co-operative Branch marketed for Saskatchewan farmers 223,000 pounds of wool; this year it expects to handle at least 400,000 pounds, or almost double the quantity. These figures are evidence of the growing interest taken in sheep by the farmers of the wheat province.

Manitoba also has a co-operative scheme for the handling of wool which is taken advantage of by the majority of farmers there. The wool is sent to a central point for grading and sorting, and the farmers receive an advance of between twenty and thirty cents a pound on their wool, which is sold at the best opportunity. Present indications are that at least 250,000 pounds will be handled by the Department of Agriculture in this manner this year. This quantity is about twenty-five per cent. more than was sold last year.

Shearers are busy throughout the Prairie Provinces and large quantities of wool have begun to arrive at the collecting stations at Calgary, Lethbridge and Edmonton, Alberta, Regina, Saskatchewan, Winnipeg, Manitoba, and other places. In Alberta there are several large shearing camps, at one of which two thousand sheep are now being sheared daily. Most of the smaller flocks, however, are being sheared on the home farms. At the sorting warehouses good progress is being made, and large arrays of bags of wool, already sorted and graded ready for the sale, are to be seen there.

When all the wool has been sorted and graded it will be consigned to the Canadian Cooperative Wool Growers' Association at Toronto, Ontario. This is an association formed by sheep breeders from all parts of the Dominion for the purpose of marketing the wool of its members and others, and looking after the interests of sheep owners in every way.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Two Widowers

By CHARLES POWERS BANNON

David Wells and Mark Wells were distinctive features of village life in Brocton. At forty they found themselves widowers. This naturally brought them together in a sort of brotherly companionship. Each hired a man to run his farm. In a measure, having enough to keep them, both "retired." There was a small hotel in the town, rates were cheap for regular guests, and they managed to live comfortably.

"I've worked hard for twenty years, and now I'm going to take a rest and enjoy myself," declared Mark.

"That's the ticket! We'll show the town how to have a good time," echoed David.

But elegant leisure soon ceased to appeal to the two cronies. Plain, regular meals, an early-to-bed system, corn-cob pipes and attire easy to don and doff had placed them in a rut.

"Luxury don't pay, and there's nothing to it," voiced Mark.

"No more riotous living for me," added David. All day long they sat about the office room of the little old hotel, lolling in arm chairs, incessantly smoking their pipes and chatting and gossiping with the idle ones of the town.

At the other end of the village lived two twin old maid sisters, Miss Dorcas and Miss Ruth Jennison. They were true ladies in the best sense of the word, neither whimsical nor fidgety, and good looking and still unfaded, for all their thirty years. At one time the widowers made it a point to call about once a month on these ladies, with alleged matrimonial intent. Mark was all but engaged to Miss Ruth, and David was seriously thinking of popping the question to Miss Dorcas.

Gradually the cronies drifted away from their customary call. Then the first really presentable suits of clothes they had ever invested in began to wear out. No marvel was this, for they wore them all of the time and they never had them patched or pressed, and they gave a slovenly, seedy appearance to their wearers.

"Why don't you tog up new, and look like something?" a friend challenged Mark one day.

"We don't have to—fellows like us, who could buy out half the town if we wanted to," and there was an independent tinge of pride in tone and mien.

Then came a change. There arrived at Brocton a lady who announced that she might possibly settle down in the town. She was Mrs. Aurelia Vanderbilt, a widow. Now, this newcomer, plump, really pretty, fashionably attired and with witching eyes and charming manner, instantly became an object of general interest to all. Mark Wells had an eye for beauty and David as well, and they mutually voted Mrs. Vanderbilt a stunner. Imagine their satisfaction, when one day the hotel proprietor informed them that Mrs. Vanderbilt desired to see them in the hotel parlor.

Mrs. Vanderbilt greeted them with smiles and condescension. She assumed the timidity and embarrassment of a friendless young being seeking advice and aid.

"They tell me you gentlemen are fully familiar with the value of every piece of real estate in the county," she said. "I want your assistance, if you will grant it. You can be of great help to me, for I wish to find a site for a summer hotel in which I have decided to invest some of my capital."

And now began a brilliant career for the two dazzled cronies. They became her devoted slaves. One day Mark drove her by wagon 50 miles to look over prospective sites. David, to outdo him, hired an automobile and had her sole company for a whole day. At once each went to the village tailor and ordered the best suit of clothes available. Even to silk hats and kid gloves they did the thing complete.

Two weeks went by, and then one morning the hotel proprietor came hurriedly to the room of the two widowers. "She's slopped!" he burst forth. "She managed to smuggle out everything but an empty trunk. There's an unpaid bill of one hundred dollars and—"

"You don't mean Mrs. Vanderbilt?" gasped Mark.

"I do, and a detective was here looking for her."

"My five hundred dollars," groaned David, collapsing.

"Is that all?" quavered Mark. "She borrowed a thousand from me."

It took a full week for the two deluded investors to realize that they had been mercilessly swindled. Mrs. Vanderbilt had excited their cupidity by detailing how rich their share in the summer hotel was to make them.

"See here, Mark," observed David one day, "it's a shame to think that we've wasted our money on those expensive suits of clothes and all that."

"Let's use 'em," suggested Mark, a trifle sheepishly.

"Well," we look prim and spruce, and since our experience with Mrs. Vanderbilt, Dorcas and Ruth Jennison seem the real, genuine women to tie to."

So, all dolled up, as the saying goes, the wife hunting duo made a hopeful impression on the ladies in question. They reformed as to indolence and old clothes, there was a happy double wedding, and the advent of the fascinating Mrs. Vanderbilt had been a fortunate means to an end, after all.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

Among the Pueblos.

A wheatless meal does not bother the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico in the least. Wheatless days are to them no serious deprivation. Though wheatless weeks were to be prescribed, they would be entirely content.

Fact is, they don't care much about wheat. They do not grow much of it, and could get along very well without it. Corn is good enough for them, as it was for their ancestors.

Long before the first white man arrived in New Mexico the Pueblo Indians, living in mud-built towns that were the most primitive of apartment houses—a whole village residing under the roof—subsisted by planting corn, beans, melons and a few other vegetables. Such agriculture meets all their needs to-day.

The climate of the region is very arid. Thus, without much trouble, they can dry their summer-grown vegetables for winter use by simply exposing them to the sun. In this way they preserve their corn and beans, likewise peppers—on the roof-tops, or hung in strings.

The flat roofs of the houses in autumn are covered with trays of sliced peaches, apples and plums, drying in the sunshine. It is a sight really quite remarkable. Melons and pumpkins are stacked against the walls.

Harvest time (as everywhere in the world) is an occasion for ceremonial thanksgiving. It is celebrated by formal dances, with much beating of raw-hide covered drums.

The cornbread of the Pueblos is baked in primitive ovens built of mud and rudely dome-shaped, in the open. They have baked it in that way for thousands of years, and it is mighty good.

Nature as a Builder.

In Los Angeles, California, there is a wall which rises up on one side of a high building that has an artistic value never intended by the builder. He had moved his bags of cement on to the ground to be ready for work and was then called away for a day or two. In the meantime one of the very infrequent torrential rains came, and each sack turned into stone under the action of the water, and the fabric of the sacks themselves were absorbed into the cement so that it was impossible to remove it. Consequently each sack was wrought into the wall as if it had been a boulder on the line of an old stone wall. They were then chinked and bound together with worked cement, and after a time the weather disposed of the sacking, but left the blocks marked with the impress of the weave. The result is a highly ornamental cement wall, resembling at a little distance a wall of some woven material.—Family Herald.

No Sausage; No Reichstag.

Further light on one phase of the crisis is thrown by the Leipzig Volkszeitung:

The ultimatum which the representatives of the nation have presented to the central food authorities is "No sausage, no Reichstag."

The building in which those who presume to decide the fate of the people indulge in their everlasting twaddle is being deserted by large numbers of deputies, who are returning to their country homes as fast as the few available trains are able to convey them.

Why this parliamentary exodus? Because the sausage that was packed in their travelling trunks, when they left their native haunts for the capital is consumed, and, as the authorities are unable to furnish them with fresh supplies, the worthy deputies, accustomed as they are to good living, are hurrying home to the fleshpots of the provinces.

Painless Surgery.

THE HUN HAND IN FRANCE.

"Defeatist" Handbills Call on French Workmen to Demand Peace.

Details of the "defeatist" campaign carried on by German spies at France are found in recent copies of l'Humanite, the leading French Socialist newspaper. In publishing two of the handbills sent out by the "pacifist" organization at St. Etienne, an important munition centre near Lyons, l'Humanite points out that the typographical errors and the mistakes in construction indicate they were printed in a German establishment.

The distribution of these pamphlets calling upon the French workers to rise against their Government and cease making munitions was effected but a short time before the beginning of the German offensive in the west. One of the circulars, after asserting that a revolutionary uprising would bring about a speedy peace, continued:

"Frenchmen, enough blood! There is not a family but that mourns some loss. This war must cease. It will last for twenty years if we do not put an end to it ourselves. We must accept the peace offered by Germany two years ago. Germany has always said that it will restore her old boundaries to France."

The other circular was decorated with the French colors and stated that an inquiry instituted by a secret committee had shown that 91 of every 100 of the inhabitants of all France were in favor of the immediate conclusion of peace.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

ARE CONSERVING FOOD.

LONDON, July 11.—Sir William A. M. Goode, laison officer of the Food Ministry, in an address yesterday before the Consumers Council, gave striking figures showing how the people of the U. S., by self-imposed food restrictions, have added greatly in maintaining the food supplies of the European Allies.

From July, 1917, to April, 1918, the United States exported to the Allies 80,000,000 bushels of wheat products, said Sir William. It was calculated by Herbert Hoover, the U. S. Food Administrator, that 50,000,000 of this represented the voluntary sacrifice of the American people. American exports of pork products to the Allies in March, 1918, were 308,000,000 pounds. This was accomplished by porkless days and ceaseless hog production in the U. S.

In January, he continued, the Allies asked, Mr. Hoover for seventy million pounds of frozen beef monthly for three months. In March 86,000,000 pounds of frozen beef were shipped. This was due almost wholly to meatless days in the U. S.

Reading God's Word. Acts 8:26-39; Ps. 19:7-11.

Golden Text: Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. John 8:32.

1. Verse 26. When God directs us by circumstances or by a friend or by an angel, why would you say or not, that it is just as much from God as though he spake personally?

2. I do not know whether this angel was a devout Christian, or a mental picture, or a dream, or a spirit; but he, she, or it, convinced Philip that God wanted him to go south; how did Philip know that the impression to go south was of God?

3. Verses 27, 28. Philip found that he had not come on a fool's errand; why would you say or not, that the results of to-morrow, always justify the faith of to-day?

4. Verses 27, 28. Seeing this Ethiopian was a man of exalted position, in a foreign country, what was the significance of Philip being sent to him?

5. Verse 29. With what sort of a voice did the Holy Spirit speak to Philip?

6. If we should learn that the Holy Spirit used the circumstances Philip's reasoning processes, his hopes and his fears, as God's voice, would that be as much the voice of God as if words were spoken from the clouds?

7. Verse 30. If a man in these days devoutly searches the Scriptures what will he be likely to find?

7. Verses 31, 34. Why or why not, is it essential in these days to the proper understanding of the Scriptures, that some person must explain them to us?

9. Why could not the Holy Spirit have explained this Scripture to the Ethiopian direct?

10. Would you say or not and why, that when Isaiah wrote these words, he was conscious that they applied to Jesus, or did he think he was describing some other person? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

11. Verses 35-38. Did this Ethiopian need "converting" or was he already a child of God? Give your reasons.

12. Verse 39. Was Philip, so to speak, "spirited" away, or did he at the command of the Holy Spirit leave the Ethiopian in a natural manner? Why?

13. Psalm 19:7. What are the invariable results of a devout study of the Bible?

14. Psalm 19:7. What do you understand by the word "converting" as used here?

15. What is the nature of the "wisdom" that we receive in the study of the Scriptures?

16. Verse 8. Why is it that the study of the "statutes" of God makes us rejoice?

17. Verse 8. How does the keeping of God's commandments, give us a clearer vision of life, and its duties, than we could otherwise have?

18. Verse 9. Why is it that a man who "fears" God "clean" in his thoughts and his habits?

19. What is the relation between God's "judgments" and righteous living?

20. Verses 10-11. Why is obedience to God more profitable to us than gold?

Lesson for Sunday, July 21, 1918.—Praying to God. Luke 11:1-13; Ps. 145:18-19.

Sun Burned Skin

You want a healthy summer tan. But sometimes you get it too quickly and then there is a few days of suffering.

The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment takes out the stinging and burning and leaves the skin delightfully soft and smooth.

Because it is equally effective in relieving stings of insects and ivy poisoning as well as chafing and skin irritations it is invaluable in the summer camp.

A LADY AND A BABY

And Uncle Sam's Polite Consul In a City In France.

HOW THEY MET AND PARTED.

And How Light Was Thrown on the Problem That the Woman, Who Was French and Voluble, and the Infant, Who Was American, Presented.

Not very long after having taken charge of one of the consulates in France I was one morning seated at my desk busily engaged in figuring over my quarterly accounts, when suddenly a woman carrying a bundle in her arms appeared before me. I had not resided in France sufficiently long to imbibe the unadulterated French politeness, but I had progressed sufficiently to ask:

"Madame, what can I have the pleasure of doing for you this morning?"

"Mousieur," she exclaimed, walking toward me, holding out the bundle as if to deposit it on my desk, "this is an American baby. What shall I do with it?"

Abashed at the prospect of so suddenly becoming a father with the orange blossoms and rice omitted and knowing that the American government had established no precedent of maintaining orphan asylums either at home or abroad, I hesitated a moment and replied:

"Will the madame please be seated over there by the door and tell me why, being a Frenchwoman, she has become possessed of an American baby?"

It never occurred to me to examine the little bundle of humanity. I had in previous times rather prided myself on my ability to distinguish the nationality of people, had even boasted I could tell them by their shoes, but I had never tried my perceptive powers on infant physiognomies.

"Voila!" she said, seating herself.

I shall never forget that word voila. It was one of the first French words I ever learned. You know it means—oh, so many things when used exclamatorily, as it generally is. Usually, however, to the beginner in the French language it conveys the meaning of "Here it is." That was about as far as I had progressed in my French education at that time in regard to the many varied meanings of voila, and I determined that if it meant the baby then it would retain its geographical location indefinitely—that is, in the woman's lap over by the door, or preferably outside. But her voila referred not so much to the infant as to the story of how it came to be in her possession.

She talked volubly while I tried to assume the defensive power of silence. But to a Frenchwoman—well, silence simply means what the jockey gives the horse in the last heat—encouragement.

From the verbal French cyclone she hurled at me I gathered a few fragments that enabled me to understand.

For three months she had been employed as nurse by an American woman who had paid her good wages. Four weeks previously, however, the mother had returned to New York, saying she was going over for only two or three days on an urgent business matter and would return at once. She had not seen or heard of her since. Being a woman who had to work for her own living, the baby was a burden on her hands. She could hardly support herself, much less provide for the infant, and as the child was of American parentage she thought the representative of the American government ought to take care of it.

I suggested that I would write to the city authorities in New York asking as to the genuineness of the address that the woman said the mother had left with her.

"And what shall I do during all the time you are waiting for an answer—starve?"

My answer finally was a twenty franc gold piece, with which she departed, saying she would try to take care of the baby until I could hear from the New York authorities.

Now, the reasonable and the unreasonable part of the story is that since her departure, though the sun has risen hundreds of times, she has never returned. It had not risen more than seven times, however, before I learned the reason.

It was just one week later at an informal dinner of the sixteen consuls who resided in the city that in the course of a conversation with my Italian colleague I told him the story of the woman and the baby. What do you suppose he answered?

"Well, well," he laughed, "why, that same woman came to my office, only she had an Italian baby. And I thought I was fortunate to get rid of her for 50 francs."

In the general conversation that followed I discovered that the woman had visited every one of the sixteen consulates in the city, and by her ability to change the baby's nationality from English to German and from Haitian to Japanese and all the other colors of the rainbow she had extracted from the consular corps of that particular French city the sum of 775 francs.

This incident is just one of a series of similar experiences with frauds and fakers a consul has to face in the performance of his duties.—Thornwell Haynes in New York Tribune.

Who hangs himself in the chimney should not complain of smoke.—German Proverb.

KILLED IN BATTLE.

Methods of Different Nations For Identifying the Dead.

When a German soldier falls in battle he is identified by a little metal disk which he carries. This disk bears a number, and this number is telegraphed to Berlin. There the soldier's name is determined. This system is as effective as everything else connected with the German army.

The British use an aluminium disk that contains, besides marks of identification, the soldier's church affiliation. The Japanese system is similar, each soldier wearing three disks, one around his neck, another on his belt and the third in his boot. The Russians wear a numbered badge.

The United States army uses a cloth tab woven into the shoulder strap of the tunic. The French use identification cards stitched inside the tunic. The French once made use of metal identification badges, but these proved an irresistible attraction to the savages whom the French faced in Africa, so the cards were substituted. Austria still uses a badge of gun metal in the form of a locket with parchment leaves inside.

Turkey has no identification badges for her soldiers. Edhem Pasha once explained this omission as follows: "A dead man is of no use to the sultan. Why, therefore, trouble with him?"—Baltimore American.

MOVING PICTURES IN JAPAN.

Shoes Are Doffed at the Door, and Spectators Sit on the Floor.

Many of the motion picture theaters in Japan, particularly in Tokyo, where there are over 100, are quite as elegant as some to be found in any American city. You can secure admission for as low as 5 cents up to as high as 50 cents. In the cheaper portions of most theaters the natives sit crosslegged on the floor in characteristic Japanese fashion. They remove their shoes before entering, and an attendant takes charge of these.

Both American and European pictures are shown, but the principal attraction is a long Japanese play, which is presented in a very unique fashion. In fact, it may be said that the Japanese have real talking pictures. The film is produced in the same manner as a stage play, with every portion of dialogue spoken.

When the picture is projected an actor and actress stand on each side of the screen and repeat the dialogue in full view of the spectators. The two reciters share the parts played by the different characters. As their spoken words keep strict time with the lip movements of the silent artists, the result, as may be imagined, is very effective.—Popular Electricity.

Shelley Was a Queer Boy.

The poet Percy Bysshe Shelley as a small boy was an eccentric little being. He used to dress his four sisters to represent fiends, and, filling a fire stove with some inflammable fluid and setting it aflame, he would marshal the diabolical procession to the back door. As a boy at Eton he would watch the livelong night for ghosts and consulted his books how to raise one. His diet in after years was meager enough to bring him weird fancies. Bread became his chief sustenance, and his pockets were well stored with it.

A circle upon the carpet, clearly defined by an ample verge of crumbs, often marked the place where he had long sat at his studies, his face nearly in contact with his book, devouring bread at intervals amid his profound abstractions. Sometimes he ate raisins with it, and his sweet tooth was immense.

Absolute Zero.

In the absence of all heat the temperature is zero, not the zero of the thermometers, but what is called "absolute zero." In other words, where there is no heat there is no temperature. Absolute zero is supposed to be about 274 degrees below the thermometric zero of the Centigrade scale and about 461 degrees below the thermometric zero of the Fahrenheit scale. Absolute zero might, imaginatively, be defined as molecular death, because a substance which has lost all temperature has necessarily lost all molecular, or internal, energy and has become entirely inert.—New York Journal.

Wood In Flying Machine.

Flying machines are made almost entirely of wood. The propellers of the aeroplanes are in most instances made of selected ash, which, in addition to being strong and light, will not split under vibration or shock. Built up layers of spruce with mahogany centers are also in use. Spruce is used in the construction of the frame because of its markedly straight grain and freedom from hidden defects.—Washington Star.

Investigating His Credit.

"Why-er-yes, I suppose so." How much do you want?"

"None at all, dear boy. I only wanted to satisfy myself that my credit was good."—London Standard.

COAL MINERS' CLOCKS.

Telling the Time of Day by a Lamp or an Oil Flask.

Do you know that every miner when descending into the pit to work takes with him a couple of clocks? These are not ordinary timepieces, for they have neither wheels, springs, dials nor any of the usual appurtenances. The "clocks" are simply his lamp and oil flask. By noting the quantity of oil consumed—or that left—the miner can tell to within a few minutes any hour of the day or night.

When a miner's lamp goes out, as it not infrequently does, in almost any circumstances he must not relight it himself. Instead, though he may be left in pitch darkness, he must grope his way to the lamp cabin or to some other point where he can obtain the proper assistance. He does the "groping" with his hands, stooping down until he touches the train lines along which the coal is taken, and sliding his hands along the metal until he reaches his destination or meets some one going in the same direction.

A coal hewer's earnings depend on the weight of coal he gets and also on the number of fathoms cut. A cubic yard of coal weighs about eighteen hundredweight, and the outstretched arms of an average man extend to about one fathom. By these measurements, independent of the official ones, each man can roughly calculate his earnings for any particular "shift."—London Tit-Bits.

What Is Dissipation?

I think sometimes that our common definition of dissipation is far too narrow. We confine it to crude excesses in the use of intoxicating liquor or the crude gratification of the passions, but often these are only the outward symbols of a more subtle inward disorder. The things of the world—a thousand clamoring interests, desires, possessions—have got the better of us. Men become drunken with the inordinate desire for owning things and dissolute with ambition for political office. I knew a man once, a farmer, who debauched himself upon land; fed his appetite upon the happiness of his home, cheated his children of education, and himself went shabby, bookless, joyless, comfortless, that he might buy more land. I call that dissipation too.—David Grayson in American Magazine.

The Greatest Geologist.

The royal name in geology is undoubtedly that of Charles Lyell. It was Lyell who did for geology what Copernicus did for the heavens and Darwin for the realm of biology—gave it true rendering by finding out and stating its true laws. Before Lyell's time geology was largely romance, but in "The Principles of Geology," published in 1830, the old catastrophic view of the formation of the earth heard its deathknell, and from the publication of that great work we are to date the birth of real geology.—Exchange.

Aluminium Bronze.

Aluminium bronze was invented by the French chemist Deville in 1859 and was used experimentally for the manufacture of domestic utensils and articles of jewelry. It has the color of gold and retains its brilliancy, not being attacked by salt water or the atmosphere. It consists of 10 per cent of aluminium to 90 of copper. It has tenacity of Bessemer steel and when heated is easily forged and rolled.

Bad Taste as Seen In Japan.

Dr. Aston, the scholarly Japanese secretary to the British legation in Tokyo, summarized what Kenko, the fourteenth century writer of "Tsurezure Gusa," considered to be "bad taste," thus:

Too much furniture in one's living room.

Too many pens in a stand.

Too many Buddhas in a private shrine.

Too many rocks, trees and herbs in a garden.

Too many words when men meet.

Too many books in a bookcase there can never be, nor can there be too much litter in a dust heap.—London Saturday Review.

A Rothschild Arsenal.

The Austrian Rothschilds are the only members of the family to manufacture armaments. As proprietor of the Wittkowitz iron works in Moravia, Baron Louis de Rothschild, the head of the Austrian branch, furnishes the army with metal for its guns and the navy with armor plates. These huge works, the technical organization of which is perfect in every detail, have grown out of a small foundry purchased by the late Baron Albert de Rothschild. The development of the Austrian railway system is also closely connected with the Rothschilds. They financed the two largest lines in the empire—the north and south lines—and still hold a good portion of the shares.

Albinos.

Albino is a term first applied by the Portuguese to the white negroes of West Africa and is now applied to any individual in whom there is congenital deficiency of pigment in skin, hair, iris and choroid of the eye. The skin is abnormally pale, the hair is white or pale flaxen, and the iris is pink. The absence of pigment in the iris renders an albino's eyes sensitive and partially blind in the sunlight. The chief predisposing cause is heredity. It may also be due to congenital arrest of development and is sometimes associated with other malformations, but it often occurs in persons who are otherwise normal. White mice, white rabbits, white elephants, etc., are albinos.

Mount Sangay.

The most active volcano in the world is Mount Sangay, 17,190 feet, situated on the eastern chain of the Andes, South America. It has been in constant eruption, more or less violent, since 1728.

DEFIED THE BRAHMANS.

An East Indian Prince Who Did Not Fear Losing Caste.

Mr. Coningsby Dawson, the well known English writer, tells the following anecdote of the East Indian prince Sir Pertab Singh:

A young English lieutenant had died of cholera in his palace. The boy was the son of an English friend. When the body had to be carried out to be placed on a gun carriage Sir Pertab Singh went forward to lift it up. Before he touched it he was stopped by some English officers. They reminded him that, by his religion, were he to touch the dead he would lose all his caste and perhaps, despite his wealth, never be able to buy it back. They advised him to send for the sweepers, who are outcasts. In spite of their protests he picked up the body and carried it down the palace steps to the gun carriage.

A gasp went up at the sight. Every one of his subjects knew what he had done. The next morning, when he rose, 500 Brahman priests were waiting in the courtyard. He came out, a proud figure, to face them. He knew what they had come for—to make him the lowest thing in India, a man without caste. He asked them what was their errand, and they told him. They had come to make him of as little account as the humblest sweeper in his palace.

Sir Pertab Singh laughed. "I belong," he said, "to a higher caste than any of you have ever dreamed of, and you can't take it from me; you're welcome to all the rest. I belong to the same caste as the dead son of my friend—the caste of a soldier."

With that he walked back into his palace, and the Brahman priests went away, one by one, ashamed and puzzled.

Pure Logic.

Liberty commands the highest price of all known things. Its price is so high that nobody can pay it.

Proof. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Eternal vigilance is to be ever on the job. To be ever on the job is to have no leisure or vacation. To have no leisure or vacation is to be a slave. To be a slave is not to have liberty. Therefore in order to be free we must enslave ourselves, which is absurd. Q. E. D.—Judge.

Quill Pens.

The quill pen is not quite extinct in London. The legal profession, which is very conservative, clings to it tenaciously, and none of the courts would be completely equipped without a plentiful supply of good goose quills. Have you noticed what an indispensable accessory the quill is to counsel, whether in ostentatiously taking a note, making a speech or in helping to point a warning finger at a hostile witness?—London Standard.

By Internal Evidence.

"Where do you suppose we got the saying, 'He laughs best who laughs last?'" asked Mrs. Binks of her husband.

"Probably some Englishman first said it," replied Mr. Binks. "He was doubtless trying to set a national failing in a favorable light."—Youth's Companion.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, JULY 12, 1918

ACTIVITY IS DEVELOPING ALONG WHOLE BALKAN FRONT

Serious Mutiny Among Austrian Troops in Serbia

THE RIGHT WING OF AUSTRIA'S ARMY IS RETREATING ON 60 MILE FRONT IN ALBANIA

Large Quantities of Material Falling Into the Hands of Italians and Albanians—The Fighting is Spreading on a Wide Front.

BOMBING RAIDS

(By Ed. L. Keen.)

Special to The Examiner: :

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Berat has fallen before the advancing Italian troops in Albania, an official cable to the Italian Embassy reports. Berat is the strategic centre on the road to Serbia, and was the immediate objective of the Allied offensive in Albania. A great quantity of war booty and numerous prisoners were taken.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 12.—Activity is developing along the whole Balkan front and there are increasing indications that the Albanian fighting may spread to the entire three hundred mile line from the Adriatic Sea to the Gulf of Rendina.

The Italians have crossed the Semini River at one or more points, according to latest reports from the battle front and are nearing the new Austrian defence line along the Skumbi River. Infantry has progressed at least 25 miles north of the orizinal line on the Vojutsa, while cavalary detachments are reported to have advanced even further. This would bring the Italians into the region of Lushno, about midway between Semeni and the Skhumbi. In Macedonia, Bulgarian artillery is heavily bombarding French and Greek positions, especially north of Monastir and west of the Varda River. British airmen made bombing raids on enemy depots in the Struma Valley. The Struma represents the extreme right wing of the Allied front. The Vardar flows into the Gulf of Salonika at the city of tha name.

The Right Wing.

The right wing of the Austrians, retreating on a sixty mile front from the sea eastward, is said to be falling back so rapidly that the retirement in some places borders on a rout. Great quantities of material are falling into the hands of the Italians and Albanians, while the enemy is destroying other quantities.

Effective resistance by the enemy is becoming less frequent and whenever a temporary stand is made the Italians succeed in inflicting heavy casualties.

DECORATIONS OF KAISER SPURNED

Norwegian Pilot, Furious at Sea Murders, Sends Back Medals.

CHRISTIANIA, July 11.—Hans Olson, one of Norway's best-known pilots, who for years piloted the German Emperor's yacht on its summer cruises in Norwegian waters, has returned to the German Legation the numerous decorations given him by the Emperor.

He wrote the German Minister that the decorations were returned as a protest against the shameful murder and cruel massacre of Norwegian sailors, many of them his friends, by German submarines. While he had appreciated the decorations, their possession now gave him no feeling but disguest.

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE ARE DYING DAILY OF CHOLERA IN PETROGRAD

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, July 12.—Hundreds of people are dying daily of cholera in Petrograd, a wireless despatch received here to-day declared. It is impossible to check the epidemic, which is said to be the result of grave food shortage. The bread ration averages less than a quarter of a pound a person a day.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, July 12.—Owing to grave shortage in food, cholera is on the increase in Petrograd, and hundreds of persons are daily falling victims to it, says a Russian wireless.

German Attack Is Repulsed

Artillery Active on Various Parts of the American Front—New Units Identified.

(United Press.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE MARNE, July 11. —A large German patrol which attempted to raid the American lines near Chateau Thierry was repulsed sanguinarily yesterday afternoon. The presence of new enemy units in this sector was revealed through the identification of the German dead.

There was a harassing artillery fire on various parts of the front, but aside from the raid no infantry action was reported.

Another Bicycle Boom Coming

Charley Banks Into It "Heels Over Head."

A mid-summer bicycle drive is on the way; date fixed for the event is July 27th to August 3rd. In the old days, dealers considered no bicycles could be sold after May 24th. Then July 1st was regarded as the end of the season, while now a very large number of bicycles are sold by many dealers right up to October 1st and even into November and December, and December.

The dealer who makes up his mind to sell bicycles during the fall months and really goes after the business will make a surprising number of sales during that period. September, is usually one of the finest cycling months of the whole year, with cool pleasant weather and roads in splendid condition. Even during October and November there are many days when riding is a pleasure, Most bicycles are now sold for riding to work and other utility purposes, and can be used until the steady cold weather sets in.

Another strong argument which applies now with special force is that it is well for intending purchasers to secure a bicycle this fall as they may be hard to get and more expensive next spring.

HEAVY RAINS ON WEST FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, July 12. — Heavy rains throughout the British front seem to assure a further delay in the resumption of the German offensive There have been intermittent showers during the past two days which increased to a steady downpour last night and to-day.

Canadian Press:

BRANTFORD, July 12.—As a test case, Wesley Martin, a member of the Six Nations Indians, was to-day fined $100 and costs for refusing to register. His counsel claimed that under the Treaty of Paris the Indians need not register. The case will be appealed.

Surplus of Farm Labour in Ontario

More Signed for It Than Can Be Used in Province.

REGISTRATION GOOD

OTTAWA, July 11.—There should be no dearth of farm labour for harvesting the crop in Ontario this fall. Senator Gideon Robertson, head of the Canada Registration Board, this morning said that the number of men signifying their willingness to work on farms during the harvesting season was much larger than could possibly be utilized in the province. A large percentage of these men had experience in agricultural work. In Eastern Ontario alone, including the city of Ottawa and such towns as Pembroke, Renfrew, etc., 26,000 men had signed as being willing to do farm work for a certain period if necessary.

Senator Robertson expressed himself as being very well satisfied with the returns to date. A registration of approximately two million and a quarter from 120 constituencies, he said, was satisfactory, especially when it was remembered that returns from the large cities were far from complete. The total registration, he said, would probably be at least four and a half millions, which was about what was anticipated. In the Quebec constituencies, where trouble had occurred at the time the registration was taken, Senator Robertson said that the work was proceeding through the medium of the post offices. Thousands of cards had been filled out and signed in these constituencies.

The value of the registration has already been demonstrated through the detection, in one registrar's district, of 20 alien enemies, who had previously been at liberty. There have been a number of arrests of people disobeying regulations in connection with the registration.

THREE YEARS WAS THE SENTENCE IMPOSED

Case of Former Paymaster of Welland Canal Disposed Of.

Canadian Press:

ST. CATHARINES, July 12. — Three years' imprisonment was the sentence imposed by Magistrate Campbell this morning on J. E. Lawrence, former paymaster of the Welland Canal, on a charge of stealing about $16,000 from the Department of Railways and Canals. M. J. McCarron, counsel for the prisoner, pointed to his client's long years of service and previously good record, and asked for leniency. The Magistrate, in passing sentence, said that the thefts had been systematic, and it was out of consideration for the service and age of the prisoner that the punishment was made as light as possible.

The ballot authorizes a strike if the demands are not met in full.

PROPOSALS FOR PEACE

German Chancellor Claims Germany is in the Market for a Righteous Peace—Both Parties United.

WILL NOT CHANGE

Canadian Press:

LONDON, July 12.— There is the closest union between the political leaders of Germany and army headquarters regarding their readiness to receive peace proposals from the Allies if they are offered in the spirit of sincerity. His statement was made in the Reichstag by the Imperial Chancellor, Von Hertling.

The programme of Germany's foreign policy, the Chancellor added, was laid down in Germany's reply to the Papal peace note, and it would be adhered to. That would be righteous peace, and Germany has not and will not change her policy, however strong the idea of destruction was expressed in speeches in Allied countries. The recent utterances of President Wilson and Foreign Secretary Balfour, he continued, forced Germany to continue the struggle.

ASSAULTED POLICEMAN

J. B. Chevrier Committed Suicide Following an Assault on Federal Officer.

WAS MAKING ARREST

Canadian Press:

MONTREAL, July 12.—After a fight near Vaudreuil, over the administration of the Military Service Act, J. B. Chevrier committed suicide, following an assault by him on James O'Neill Farrell, a Federal policeman, whom he injured seriously with a rifle.

Military authorities here gave out the information about the shooting. They stated that Farrell was engaged in making an arrest when he was assaulted by Chevrier, who resides at St. Lazare, near Vaudreuil.

SERIOUS MUTINY AMONG AUSTRIAN TROOPS IN SERBIA

Canadian Press:

CORFU, July 12.—Serious mutiny among Austrian troops in Serbia is announced. The garrison at Kraguyevatz broke into rebellion because of bad food. Many officers killed. Mutiny was suppressed after a veritable battle in which machine guns and artillery were freely used.

Change in the C.P.R. Time Table

A Number of Minor Changes Affecting Peterboro.

Commencing Monday morning, there will be a slight variation in the train schedule of the C. P. R. The Port McNicholl will leave at nine-fifteen in the morning instead of nine-thirty and will arrive in the city at six-fifteen instead of five minutes after six. The afternoon train leaving Peterboro at three-twenty-six will arrive in Toronto at six-twenty-five instead of six-fifteen each evening.

THE WEATHER

The weather handed out to the followers of King William to-day was cool and pleasant, and in marked contrast to the excessive heat that characterized the "walk" in this city, some three years ago. On that occasion the processionists perspired in 98 degrees in the shade. A few showers have occurred in some districts, but generally the weather has been fine from one end of the Dominion to the other, with temperatures of 90 degrees in the shade in the west.—W. P.

OVER EIGHTY THOUSAND MEN HAVE BEEN ENROLLED

Quebec Case Raises Question of Number of Men Placed on Duty Under the Military Service Act

KINGSTON FIGURES

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, July 12.—The case of Eugene Montplaisir, granted a writ of habeas corpus by Judge Dorion in Quebec on the ground that he was illegally detained by the military authorities for the reason that the hundred thousand men provided for by the Military Service Act had already been obtained, and that no more could be taken without the consent of Parliament has caused the question as to how many men have actually been raised under the Act. Official figures compiled up to the 8th of July show that 82,758 men have actually been placed on duty under the Act. Of that number 17,769 joined in advance of the call, and these are classed as volunteers. Though secured under the Act, 55,259 are men called and enrolled, 1,799 are defaulters registered enrolled, 7,931 are defaulters not registered and enrolled. The total of Class 1 actually placed on duty is therefore 82,758; of the total 74,960 are category A men, 2,428 category B, and 5,270 other lower categories. In addition to the above, there are 30,747 men immediately available, of whom 11,581 are category A men, 4,392 category B, and 14,774 other categories.

Volunteers Not Counted.

Other men to be made available total 33,416, of whom 22,140 are defaulters registered but not yet apprehended and 11,276 have reported for service but have been granted leave of absence without pay.

It would appear, therefore, that even if the total called for by the Act has not actually been obtained it has almost been obtained and will be in a very short time. But the Militia Department refuses to include volunteers in the total. There has actually been a total registration of 403,135. The heaviest registration was in Montreal, where the total was 67,329, Toronto next with 62,416, Saskatchewan with 46,904, Kingston with 37,998, Halifax with 32,183, Quebec with 39,351, London with 29,602, Winnipeg with 29,948, Alberta with 29,091 and British Columbia with 16,422.

SWIFT CAREER, EARLY FINISH

Motorist Took One Drive in New Car and it Cost $1,086.

Everett H. McBade, of Dover, N. H., has been making top notch wages in a shipyard, and a week ago purchased a 1918 runabout for $1,086. After receiving an intensive course in driving, McBade's first act at the wheel without his tutor was an attempt to climb a telegraph pole after a zig-zag course along the Newburyport turnpike. Failing to negotiate the telegraph pole, McBade backed off and tried again, and still contends he would have finally succeeded if a policeman had not halted the quest for altitude.

Judge Bruce fined McBade $100 and added $5 on a charge of drunkenness. The ship worker then announced that he was tired of motoring, and offered to sell his car, which was undamaged, for the amount of the fines. William T. Barrett, driver of the Malden police patrol, quickly snapped up the bargain, paying McBade's fines and taking over the car.

Instead, the band will play a programme of sacred music on Sunday night, after church, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

Civilians Are Being Evacuated From Zebrugge to Act as Labourers

Special to the Examiner:

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—Reports received from the Belgian frontier today declared that civilians are being evacuated from Zebrugge and are being moved eastward.

No reason can be assigned for the removal of the civilian population of Zebrugge, other than that the Germans may have decided that Belgian spies co-operated with the British in the recent naval raid on that port, or that the Belgians are being removed to act as labourers.

Raiding Activity on the Western Front—Important Positions Taken by the French.

WAR OFFICE REPORTS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, July 12.—Further raiding operations were carried out by British troops last night, notably in the Flanders area, near Merris and Meteren. Prisoners were taken in a patrol encounter in the Kemmel sector on this front. Another British party raided the German lines near Hamel, south of the Somme. A patrol clash in the neighbourhood of Gavrelle, north-east of Arras, also resulted in the taking of prisoners.

In a raid north of Montdidier and in the Champagne region the French captured fifteen prisoners.

The official text reads:

"Our troops continued their progress north of Chevigny Farm and east of Faverolles. Last night our troops occupied the village of Longpont and Javage Farm. Two raids, one north of Montdidier and the other in the Champagne, resulted in the capture of fifteen prisoners. During the night Welsh troops raided the German trenches in the vicinity of Hamel and captured sixteen prisoners and a machine gun, in addition to destroying many dugouts and inflicting casualties on the enemy. Successful raids were carried out by us also near Meteren. "Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, JULY 12TH, 1918.

A HOUSING POLICY.

The City of Guelph seems to be possessed of municipal rulers of an unusually enterprising and public-spirited nature. The bold stroke of arranging a system of coal rationing, although negatived by the ruling of the Ontario Fuel Commissioner, showed that the Guelph Council possessed the courage to take prompt action in dealing with matters that vitally concern the public, and the Royal City's latest enterprise of embarking upon the municipal building of houses, is another evidence of the calibre of the men who are at the head of affairs. The Guelph experiment in dealing with the housing problem will be closely followed by the public. The plan decided upon is to have the municipality erect houses ranging in value from $1500 to $2500. A citizen who wants to buy a $1500 house, has to pay $100 down, and for the next ten years, pays $15 a month. In other words for the payment of what is an average rental at present he comes into full possession of the building after ten years. The advantage of such a system can readily be grasped, and the Guelph plan starts out under most encouraging auspices. The citizens of Peterboro will join in the following commendation of the enterprise as voiced by the Mail and Empire:

"We hope that Guelph will be able to say that it set an example to the towns and cities of Ontario and all Canada gladly followed. For its own sake it must desire to get the very best value for the money it is laying out. Its architects ought, for the good of their profession, to draw the most pleasing designs, for if the Guelph experiment is a success, architects throughout Canada will have plenty to do in planning homes of municipal building. The Labour Unions that have to do with the building trade must feel that they are specially put upon their honour in this class of construction, and it should be their study to do the best work they are capable of doing upon all the houses that municipalities are putting up for workers."

A WORTHY CAUSE.

Peterborough citizens are once more reminded that to-morrow is the Italian Tag Day, when a campaign will be held in the interests of the Allied Red Cross work in Italy. The object is a magnificent one, and the splendid contribution that Italy has made to the success of the cause of democracy and liberty should be sufficient reason to justify an offering to-morrow that will be adequate to the merit of the enterprise and to the gallant work of the Italian fighters. Appreciation of what our allies have been doing to bring victory to the cause for which our own soldiers are fighting seems to be lacking among British people, and therefore to-morrow's tag day should be welcomed as an opportunity for Peterborough people to testify to their gratitude for what has been done and is being done by the Italians.

An admirable summary of Italy's great work in the war is given by the New York Herald in the following words:

"Italy did a wise and courageous thing in guaranteeing the future independence of Albania and in clearing that country of the Austrian Huns who had overrun it by way of Serbia. She is now preventing the Dual Monarchy from obtaining and maintaining any harbourage or point of maritime approach on the Dalmatian and Albanian coasts, and is confining what is left of Kaiser Karl's fleet to Pola and a few adjacent anchorages.

At the present time Italy has not less than 4,000,000 men under arms and is straining her resources to the utmost in order to contribute a full share to the ultimate victory of the Allies. Her recovery after the bitter betrayal and reverses toward the close of last year was as marvellous as it was heroic, and she continues to contribute fighting men and machines, ships of war and a gallant seamen, and every resource which is hers in fullest measure.

Resolutely Italy threw off the Teutonic bonds and artfully designed entanglements which beset her path when she cast her fortunes with the Allies and the cause of freedom. No country has done more proportionately in contributing to the total sum of victory.

Remember these things to-morrow when you are asked to buy a tag.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

The situation in Calgary, following the judgment of the Supreme Court of the Province of Alberta in the case of a draftee who appealed for a writ of habeas corpus, is a serious one. The order-in-Council passed by the Government, instructing military officers to pay no heed to the Alberta ruling, practically means that civil law has been replaced by military law. This was clearly shown when an attempt to arrest Lieut.-Col. Moore for contempt of court in not obeying a judicial ruling that he should produce Lewis, the draftee in question was resisted, armed guards refusing to admit the officers of the law. In the meantime men who had secured writs of habeas corpus or had begun proceedings for that purpose, are being taken overseas, without any regard for the ruling of the Court that they are being illegally held. The situation should be cleared up at once or the results may be serious.

BEATING THE SUBS.

In spite of the occasional cowardly sinking of an hospital ship or an unprotected merchantman by submarine, evidences from all quarters point to the fact that the German undersea craft are more and more losing their power to injure the cause of the allies. In this connection the statement of Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, that mines were gradually hemming in the submarines, is of great importance. Sir Eric made the interesting announcement that the British have laid great mine fields stretching from Norway to the north coast of Scotland, with a barrage across the Straits of Dover, while daring ships had penetrated Heligoland Bight and laid mines there. Coincident with this optimistic report from the First Lord of the Admiralty comes the wail from the German newspaper, the Volks Zeitung, of Cologne, that "we hear it said all around us that the results of the submarine warfare are becoming less satisfactory every week. Or else that more submarines are being sunk than we can construct. This submarine warfare is even cursed, doubtless because it has contributed to bringing into action the redoubtable American intervention."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With the labour conditions in Canada in their present troubled condition and with judicial decisions and court cases compleating the working out of the Military Service Act, Premier Borden and the members of the cabinet who are making speeches in England should lose no time in returning to Canada Their place under the present critical conditions is at Ottawa, not at London.

Although the Canadians have not been engaged in any big action recently, the fact that they have made forty-eight raids in ninety days on the German lines, has not left the impression on the troops opposite them that Canada has dropped out of the war.

Won High Honours In Exams of McGill Conservatory of Music

In the examination results of the McGill Conservatory of Music, Montreal, Mr. E. Humpage passed first in the senior grade of Theory, leading the entire Dominion in this department. He is a pupil of Mr. George Kenyon, Lic. Mus. of McGill, a soloist in the Knox church choir, and a singer who has won a high place in the favour of Peterborough audiences. This is the second successive year in which Mr. Humpage has led the Dominion in his examination work. His success reflects credit upon his teacher and upon this city, it also reveals his musical talents afresh, and brings the greatest satisfaction to his many friends.

The pupils of Mr. Kenyon are represented in the examination results as follows:

Theory—Senior Grade—E. Humpage, honours; Miss Ethel Buckham.

Practical Piano.—Senior Grade.—Ethel Buckham, honours, 3rd in the Dominion.

Primary Grade Piano—Irma Sanders, Vera Foster, Margaret Tewsley.

PLACE CONDEMNED PLACARD REMOVED WITHOUT PERMISSION

The dwelling place at 460 George Street, occupied by E. Middleton, was condemned by Dr. Amys, M.O.H., and on his order, Sanitary Inspector Stapleton placarded the place, the conspicuous red card bearing the words, "Being unfit for human habitation." It is understood that on June 6th Mr. Middleton was given three months to find new living quarters. At the expiry of that term, he asked for an extension, which was granted him, but on July 10th the card was posted, and to-day it has disappeared. The notice includes the warning that removal of the placard without the consent of the authorities may be visited by a fine of not less than $20.

It is understood that the family were given a list of some houses that were available for rent, and that any excuse in that direction is not well founded.

The placard did not entail the closing of the "Sugar Bowl" candy shop on the ground floor. It happens that entrance to the living quarters is only through the candy store, except by a rear door. Hence the Inspector had no alternative but to post the card on the store front. The next step in this matter has not been announced, but the officials will scarcely accept the position in which they have been placed by the removal of the placard without their consent.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I like your writer, "A Stitch in Time," was also interested in the meeting in the city regarding the fuel question. From my way of thinking a more idiotic comparison it was impossible to make, comparing the city controlling the fuel or a dry goods stores. It only makes me wonder in a city like Peterborough how the working classes tolerate such conditions. There are plenty of people in the city who have anywhere from 20 to 30 tons of coal in their cellars. The other day my wife told me that the man who kindly delivered a half ton of coal, after my wife nearly going down on her hands and knees to the lady clerk at the coal office for it, that he could take her to plenty of houses in this city where there is over 30 tons of coal in the cellars. I was told of a house the other day with only two people living in it with over 40 tons in the cellar. I say it's a disgrace. I call it fool controlling. No, we shall not see the Fuel Controller lining up for his bag of coal this winter, nor his good lady, nor any other of the city officials for that matter.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your paper.—Yours, etc.,

A Working Man.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Issued by the Canada Food Board in collaboration with experts on the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm.

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

USE YOUR FRESH VEGETABLES

Now is the time to use the fresh vegetables which the war gardeners have been so assiduously striving to cultivate. We must never forget that the use of these short-lived greens results in the liberation of the more concentrated and staple foods for overseas.

Usually there is great waste where garden truck is concerned. It seems so abundant that we do not value it sufficiently. As a matter of fact, by the judicious use of vegetables many meatless meals can be prepared, and the housewife should regard them as her chief standby during the hot weather, when appetites are jaded.

The French people are now reduced to three meatless days a week of necessity. We in Canada might get down to that by choice, at least for as long as our war gardens flourish. It will mean al the more meat for the people of France, who need it so badly.

The use of canned goods at the present time is anything but patriotic. Most families have a garden of their own. For those who have not, the stores are selling plenty of fresh vegetables and they are about as cheap as anything we can buy.

Flight-Lieut. W. H. Comstock Stops Break in Pipe—Brockville Boy Decorated.

BROCKVILLE, July 12.—The presence of mind of Flight-Lieut. W. H. Comstock, Jr., in climbing on the wing of his seaplane, and holding for an hour a break in his petrol feeding pipe, in order that land might safely be reached, is to be rewarded by the bestowal upon him of a decoration, according to word which has reached his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Comstock. Lieut. Comstock enlisted in 1916, and spent eight weeks in training at Long Branch Flying School, Toronto, before going overseas in December of that year. He was attending St. Andrew's College, Toronto, before enlisting. He is twenty years of age.

GERMANS CONTINUE DEPORTATION OF BELGIAN WORKERS

Helpless Civilians Forced to do Military Work—Mistreated in Camps.

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 12 — The Minister of Belgium in Washington has prepared the following from material received from the Belgian government regarding the deportation and forced labor inflicted on Belgian civilians, by order of the German government:—

"The last information which has reached the Belgian government at Le Havre, France, from occupied Belgium shows that deportation and forced labor are still being carried on especially in the military zone which comprises the two Flanders and a great part of the Provinces of Hainaut, Hamur and Luxemburg.

"But deportations and forced labor have at present assumed a new character. The Belgians, instead of being sent to Germany as formerly, are now being sent to work in the regions behind the German front in France and Belgium. Besides, the Germans who formerly deported the Belgians under the pretext of giving work to the unemployed, now send them to the north of France and compel them to work, pretending that, in virtue of article 2 of the order issued by the German General Headquarters on October 3, 1916, every inhabitant of the country may be compelled to give his help 'in case of public calamity, even outside his residence.

Order Is Misconstrued.

"This modification in the policy of deportations took place in 1917. Then as it consequence of the universal protests raised against this policy, the German Emperor issued instructions to the effect that deportations of unemployed Belgians to Germany be stopped until further order. But these instructions were carried out only partly and very slowly. Moreover, they did not apply to the thousands of civilians who have been sent behind the German front in France.

"The chiefs of several German armies intentionally misconstrued the instructions of the German Emperor. They pretended to understand that these instructions only forbade the sending of Belgian citizens to Germany, but not to other regions and thus they continued sending them to the regions behind the German front in France and Belgium.

"At the same time, after the German authorities had pretended to listen to the protests of the neutrals and had stated they would stop the deportations, they ceased to take any more men under the pretext of unemployment. But they had recourse to article 2 of the above decree of October 3, 1916, which reads as follows:—

"Every inhabitant of the country is bound to give his help in case of accidents and general danger, and also to bring relief in case of public calamity with all his power, even outside his residence, if he refuses he may be compelled by force to do so.

Forced to Do Military Work.

"It has thus been sufficient for the German authorities to decide that the regions occupied by their armies are 'in a state of public calamity' to take away from their homes, in many regions of Belgium, men, women and even children fourteen years old and compel them to work.

"The authorities have thus continued, principally in the territories in the zone of the armies, to tear the Belgians away from their homes in order to thansport them into the region immediately behind the German front in France or Belgium. There they are horded like cattle in special camps, compelled to do work of a military character or interest. Many are sent into the zone of operations and exposed to the fire of the Belgian or allied batteries. Besides they are subjected to bad treatment and brutality. Their complaints do not reach the outside world, for the military zone, where they are sent, is strictly closed and no delegate of a neutral Power is ever allowed to enter this territory. Not only men of all walks of life, but even boys from fourteen to seventeen years of age, women and young girls, are compelled to do hard work of military interest.

Mistreated in Camps.

"In the camps where the Belgian deported persons are kept the worst conditions prevail; they are exposed to all the inclemencies of the weather, badly equipped, without clothing to change, poorly housed, devoured by vermin, insufficiently and badly nourished; compelled to do excessive labor. As punishment for their refusal these persons are subjected to blows from rifle butts; they are tied for long hours to a post, with nothing to eat the whole day except some soup and a piece of bread in the evening; sometimes they are confined to a cell and then their daily ration is reduced to a piece of bread and water a day and soup only every fourth day.

"Illness especially tuberculosis, depletes the ranks of these workers, already demoralized and weakened and whose capacity for resistance is greatly reduced. Many die, others are sent to hospitals, where they arrive only as living skeletons.

"Such is the gravity of the situation that in the opinion of physicians, it will make its devastating effects felt for several generations."

WALKER TELLS OF WIFE'S TROUBLE

Health Was Failing Fast—Takes Tanlac and Troubles Overcome

"I actually believe that Tanlac saved my wife from a serious illness, for when I started her on it she was so weak and rundown that her energy was just about all gone," said John W. Walker, the well-known proprietor of the grocery and meat market at 518 Carlaw Avenue, Toronto, the other day.

"For several months," he continued, "my wife's health had been failing fast, and she suffered so dreadfully with her nerves that her whole system was in a wretched condition. She lost her appetite and when she went to the table nothing appealed to her, and she could hardly force down a thing. Every morning on getting up she complained of feeling tired and worn out, and she didn't appear to have a bit of life or ambition at all. Her strength was all gone and she was so weak that she was barely able to get around. . . . I was very much worried about the condition she was in, for I knew that if she kept going down at that rate it wouldn't be long before she would be laid up in bed.

"I had read so much about Tanlac and heard so many people praising it that I got a bottle for her, and I'm here to say that it was worth many times what it cost in the good it has done her. In fact, she began to improve right away, and I never saw anybody pick up like she did right from the start. She has taken four bottles now and is much stronger and better in every way than she was before. That old, tired, worn-out feeling is entirely gone, she looks better and says that she feels better than she has for a long time. Her appetite is just fine, and she eats big, hearty meals and relishes them, too. All that nervousness has been overcome, and she never complains of a thing being wrong with her now. I do not usually recommend medicines, but Tanlac has done my wife so much good that I am glad to endorse it, and only hope that what I can say will help some one else to try this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

KNIFE AND FORK SPORT

"Certain hotel proprietors from the Atlantic states, market hunters from Louisiana and other devotees of sport with knife and fork, are advocating, as a food conservation measure, letting down the bars on the sale get away with his spoils, and not inbeing bombarded with patriotic telegrams from these gentry, telling him how to win the war by restoring Bob-white-on-toast and broiled mallard-with-wild-rice to the bill of fare of the poor starved gourmands who frequent their respective hostelries.

"A broiled mallard at $3.00 per portion is truly a deadly weapon. It takes five shells at 5c each to kill him in the first place, together with the labour of the market hunter who ought to be sniping Germans or raising beans. Then it takes ten pounds of ice and a snug corner in a freight car, a chef on a princely salary, and a half dozen flunkies to deliver his carcass f.o.b. the starving jaws of said gourmand for consumption. Finally, a pint of wine is necessary to make the poor fellow realize he is eating, a dollar exit fee to enable him to get away fith his spoils, and not infrequently a doctor to tinker him into shape to starve along until the next meal. There is no denying the fact that this said $3.00 mallard might save a mess of terripin or sweatbreads, or a lobster, or a fillett of beef for the French, and at the some time give highly profitable employment to many otherwise useful persons.

"It seems to us, however, that these double chinned gentlemen who wish to avert starvation by marketing our slender stock of game have overlooked several other bets quite as good.

"Perhaps they have heard of cornmeal, or even partaken thereof. Well, if we are to eat our seedstock of game birds, how about the seed corn our farmers are so unpatriotically hoarding against the spring? And, for that matter, why not tear the lead roofs off of our public buildings and melt them into bullets? It might be possible for conservationists who have spent years of labour in saving for future Americans a little of our wild life to persuade these destructive patriots that their proposition is wrong, but it might be hard to convince them that it is also funny."

THERE IS REAL MONEY IN ROOT OF DANDELION

New York Drug Firm in Market for Despised Plants.

HELENA.—Great Falls, Helena, Lewistown, Kalispell and other cities in Montana where the idea is prevalent that the dandelion is a nuisance will probably be pleased to know that there is real money in the root of that much despised plant. Chas. D. Greenfield, commissioner of agriculture and publicity, has received a letter from a large importing and exporting house in New York which deals in botanical drugs, to the effect that it will pay $23 a hundred for dandelion roots and take any amount collected at that rate. Gatherers of the root will dig them, spread them out to dry and then ship them.

But the dandelion root is not the only weed plant which is worth money these days. The same firm writes that they will pay 13 cents a pound for common Jimson weed leaves. On account of the scarcity, the prices paid to gatherers of crude drugs are the highest known. Incidentally, it might be said that according to statistics the prices of these crude drugs are proportionately higher than general commodity prices.

Germany was an important source of supply, while other European countries also furnished a considerable quantity. Of course, the German supply has been cut off altogether, while that from other countries has been very greatly reduced. Many of these drugs extracted from the dandelion and other weeds, as well as from barks and berries, are required by the army and navy departments. Contracts for large quantities have been placed by the Washington authorities and the call has been made to country residents to furnish the raw material.

Common roots like the dandelion are dug, spread out in the sun and when dry are packed in boxes and shipped to the drug dealers. Three hundred other drug plants, many of them the commonest of weeds, have a marked value of from five to 65 cents a pound, and there is a demand for all the average collector can gather. No capital is required and all sales represent profit.

35 COACHES CARRIED DISTRICT ORANGEMEN TO LINDSAY TO-DAY

G.T.R. Trains Have 26 Coaches and and C.P.R. 9, and Great Majority of Them Were Extras—Local Orange Lodges Were Well Represented in Exodus.

RETURN AT 9 TO-NIGHT

All the trains leading to Lindsay this morning were crowded and the highways dusty with the Orangemen from this district who were bound for the central celebration of the 12th. The G. T. R. counted twenty-six coaches, most of them packed to the steps. The regular train from Port Hope arrived in two sections, one with eleven coaches, and the other with five; and the Peterboro crowd filled another string of ten coaches.

Special trains are unknown in these times, but camouflaged as sections they serve holiday crowds just as satisfactorily as under the old fashioned name of excursion specials. The more prosperous members scorned the railways as they filled their automobiles with friends, their tanks with gas, and suited their own whims in their going and home coming.

The Nassau men sent down for their tickets last night, thereby avoiding the rush this morning when they drove in.

Some of the Lakefield representatives motored to Lindsay, others drove in to Peterboro. The second section of the Port Hope train had four coaches that were picked up at Millbrook.

The C.P.R. contributed its share to the transportation facilities for the district crowds. The Port McNicholl train carried seven extra coaches, providing accommodation for the Burketon and Bethany lodges.

The G. T. R. trains will return in sections of the regular, which leaves Lindsay at 8.13 p.m.

CUT OFF COAL FOR BEER.

Washington, July 12. — While the Senate was debating the question of nation-wide prohibition, the Fuel Administration announced the adoption of a conservation plan that would stop the supply of fuel to brewers, probably within another six or eight months, and thus end the roduction of beer after that period.

GUELPH COAL MAN MUST CO-OPERATE IN COAL DISTRIBUTION

Guelph, July 12.—The refusal of one of the local coal dealers to work in harmony with the other distributors of coal is not going to be allowed to interfere with the city's plans, and tomorrow morning the city will open an office at the City Hall. This action follows a conference with Fuel Controller Harris of Toronto, and a letter from him to the obstinate coal dealer, notifying the latter that if he did not work in harmony with the civic plan of distribution his license would be cancelled. His letter reached the dealer in question today. In the mean time the city is going ahead with its future coal supplies to those making application on a percentage basis.

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Turkish regulars were responsible for the outrages against American property at Tabriz, according to information furnished the State Department by the Spanish government.

This tends to aggravate the situation between the United States and Turkey, and if corroborated, it probably will cause a casus belli.

"Raffles" Drew A Large Crowd

Performance Will Be Repeated To-morrow—A Good Show.

The free exhibition given last evening in front of the Grand Opera House by "Raffles" drew a large crowd. Hanging by the feet from a rope stretched across two buildings, "Raffles" succeeded in releasing himself from the straight jacket into which he was placed by Police Constables Blade and Bromley. It was a good performance and was thoroughly appreciated by the spectators. It will be repeated to-morrow at 1.45 p.m.

The vaudeville and motion picture performance which followed last night's open air exhibition was one of the best of the season. "Raffles" was a whole show in himself, while "The Little Girl with the Big Voice" and "A Small Town Girl" were features of the film end of the performance. Mrs. Foster contributed a violin solo, which was much appreciated. The performance will be repeated this evening. On Saturday there will be a matinee, commencing at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, and the regular show in the evening.

Meal in Vienna Now Costs $3.50

Meat $7, Flour $5 a Pound—Total Daily Rations Seven Ounces.

AMSTERDAM, July 11.—The alarming state of the food situation in Vienna is described in a despatch to the Berlin Tageblatt from its Vienna correspondent, who says:

"The daily rations per head are fixed at approximately three ounces of bread and flour substitutes, one ounce of meat, less than a quarter ounce of fat, two and a half ounces of potatoes, three-quarters of an ounce of jam, and a quarter of an ounce of war coffee, making the total daily allowance seven and three-quarter ounces."

These rations may be supplemented by recourse to secret channels and by the payment of exorbitant prices, the correspondent declares. For example, flour can be secured by paying the equivalent of from $4.50 to $5 a pound; meat at from $5.75 to $7, and horseflesh at $3.50 a pound. Meals at the middle-class restaurants cost $3.50.

Present Situation in Dominion Calls For Speedy Return of Prime Minister and His Colleagues

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, July 12.—The feeling is steadily growing at the capital that the present situation in the Dominion calls for the speedy return from Great Britain of the Prime Minister. In fact it is believed here that he and his colleagues will not linger much longer overseas, and that quite soon after their return a session of Parliament will be called. It is generally felt that with the present labour unrest and its turmoil and uncertainty created by court judgments in connection with the Military Service Act and the regulations amending it, the best and strongest elements of the Cabinet should be here.

NEXT ENEMY OFFENSIVE MAY BE DIRECTED AGAINST PARIS

General Foch Has Improved His Positions at Several Points In Anticipation of Attack.

SUCCESSFUL ASSAULTS

Special to The Examiner:
(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, July 12.—Persistent French attacks between the Aisne and the Marne, strongly suggest that General Foch believes Von Hindenburg's next offensive, if it materializes at all, will be directed against Paris. The Aisne-Marne front is the best jumping off place for an advance on Paris. This is especially true of the northern sector. It is here, east of the Villers Cotterets Forest, that General Foch has lately concentrated his efforts to improve his local positions. To-day's official French report announces still another victory in this district, which may well be regarded as the outer defences of Paris. The Villers Cotterets Forest is the most valuable defensive area in General Foch's possession between the Aisne and the Marne.

SHOVED BACK.

The Germans have advanced to the eastern fringe of the forest, but are now being shoved back at important local points These successful assaults by General Foch are adding to the defensive security of the French positions, but they also greatly interfere with such preparations as Von Hindenburg may be making for a drive in that area. The Villers Cotterets Forest splendidly protects the principal railway running from the Aisne-Marne front to Paris. There is an admirable path for a quick dash toward Paris some twelve miles wide, between this railway and Ourcqu and Marne Rivers, which form a continuous stream.

CHIEF OBSTACLE.

If Von Hindenburg could penetrate through the forest he would have overcome the chief obstacle to seizing this runway to Paris. Thereafter the French would have no natural defences to assist in the frontal defence of their capital. They would have to rely largely on threatening the two German flanks near Compiegne and Chateau Thierry. These threats certainly would develop new complications for Von Hindenburg. But with the Villers Cotterets Forest in the enemy's possession the Allies' task would be seriously increased General Foch therefore intends to make sure that Von Hindenburg's line remains to the east of the Forest, and such is the purpose of his present activities.

Lawn Social Was A Big Success

Grounds of Rev. C. A. G. Spence Were Prettily Decorated For the Occasion.

Ideal weather, a good crowd, a splendid programme, and prettily decated grounds, were the factors in making the lawn social yesterday at the Rev. C. A. G. Spence's residence, at Auburn, a decided success.

There was not a dull moment from the time when the Mark street Methodist church orchestra, conducted by Mr. Iredale, opened the programme with a spirited march, to the last tableau at 10.30 depicting "The Man who did Great Things for the City, and was little appreciated"—Jimmy Gates, O.D.C., (Official Dog Catcher.)

The outstanding features in a very entertaining programme were of course the exercises given by St. Alban's Girl Guides, under the direction of Captain Miss Watson, consisting of well executed flag drill and marching, and tableaux very effectively presented; and St. Alban's Boy Scouts, under the management of the Hon. Secretary Mrs. E. J. Whiteside, consisting of signalling, physical drill, first aid and other features.

Further attractions were the Ostend Dance by the Misses McCutcheon and Watson, Spanish Dance by Barbara Massey-Cooke, songs by Messrs. Ketcheson, Charles Coleman, Mrs. Todd, the Loader children, Betty Massey-Cook, all of which were enthusiastically received by a delighted audience, while the fortune telling booth of Mrs. Poole was besieged all evening by a credulous crowd willing to brave the spectre of Futurity and its veiled mysteries.

THE TABLEAU.

The tableau depicting the allies arranged and costumes made by Mrs. Mrs. Spence, received a great ovation and was a fitting climax to one of the most pleasant functions of the kind this season.

Mr. Spence desires to convey his sincere thanks to all those who so kindly helped to make the evening a success, and is deeply touched by the interest shown in his work at St. Alban's, as evidenced by the untiring work of the Girl Guides Committee, the attendance, and assistance of the neighbours, and the donations of refreshments, amongst whom may be mentioned Miss Dawson, Mrs. J. Scott and Mr. Byers. It is hoped that sufficient funds will be raised to purchase equipment for the Guides and Scouts, and start the furnishing of a club room for their use.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

ORIENTALS WIN FINE GAME FROM MATTHEWS IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

THE LEAGUE STANDING.

	Won.	Lost.
Thistles	3	0
Riversides	3	1
Orientals	2	2
DeLaval	0	3

Any time a ball team hammers out thirteen hits to three, and makes only four errors as against their opponents' five, and then loses the battle, the outfit cannot be said to be carrying an over load of luck. That is what happened to the Matthews'-Blackwell team in the Twilight League fixture, with the Orientals at the Riverside Park last night, which the youngsters won by 3 to 2 after the best game of the season.

The Pork Packers threw away their chances by stupid baserunning, and the inability to produce a hit when it was needed. As a matter of fact they had no fewer than fourteen men left on the bases, and five more who reached first were cut down before they could complete the circuit. It was a tough game for Close, the tall box artist of the Matthews' team, to lose, as he allowed the winners only three singles, and would not have been scored upon had it not been for two costly errors in the third. McNeely, who twirled for the wipners, was hit hard in spots, allowing thirteen hits but he was steady as a rock in the pinches, and his team mates pulled off some sparkling plays when they were needed the most. Foley threw out two men at the plate at critical moments and Bergoine made a beautiful play on a roller in front of the plate, and nailed a base runner at third that helped to break up a dangerous rally. It was a fine little game of ball and the crowd enjoyed every moment of the struggle. Neither team made an earned run.

Matthews' threw away a chance in the first innings when with one down Rahmel singled to centre and Pilling drove one over second, sending Rahmel to third, and going to second on the throw. McCaughey hit to Foley and Rahmel was run off third by Pilling and was an easy out. Cunningham's roller retired the side.

The third was the big innings of both teams. Long first up for the Orientals, was safe when Matthews dropped McCaughey's throw, but was forced at second on Webb's tap to Close. Webb stole second, but was run down between second and third, when Foley hit to Close. Johnston drew a walk. The runners moved up by the theft route. Bergoine lifted a fly to centre which Pilling dropped after a run and Foley and Johnston scored, Bergoine reaching second, Thorndyke and McNeely singled to score Bergoine, and Collins drew a walk, filling the bases, but Lefave caught Thorndyke off third by a quick throw to McCaughey.

Lefave opened the losers' half with a single and stole second. Montgomery died on a roller to McNeely and Rahmel fanned. Pilling did otherwise but Bergoine dropped the third strike and threw low to first, giving the runner a life. McCaughey's single to centre and Webb's wild throw to third sent Lefave and Pilling home. Cunningham singled through the box but Matthews ended the innings by striking out.

The Orientals did not have another chance to score until the eighth, going out in order for four innings. Foley was safe on McCaughey's bad throw to first. Johnston popped to Close and Bergoine fanned but Thorndyke, was safe, when Close missed his bunt. McNeely, however, retired the side with a fly to Lefave.

In the ninth the winners had another opening when Collins walked to start with, and Tudhope beat out a hit to Rahmel. Long, however, bunted a fly to McCaughey in trying to sacrifice and Webb popped to Cunningham, who doubled Collins at second.

The Matthews outfit had several golden opportunities, but could not drive a run over. In the fourth, Coursey opened with a clean single to right and after Close had fanned, Lefave hit to Collins, whose throw to Thorndyke pulled the latter off the bag and everybody was safe. Montgomery singled between short and third, and the bases were full. Foley, however, made a nice stop of Rahmel's grounder and threw Coursey out at the plate, Bergoine handling the low throw in good style. With the bases still crowded Pilling fanned.

In the fifth the losers got two runners on the sacks but failed to score.

In the sixth an error by Foley gave Lefave a life, and Montgomery pasted a double to right centre, With men on second and third, however, Matthews failed to score. Rahmel grounded to short, the runners being held, and then Pilling hit to Collins who tried to catch Lefave off third, and failed, filling the bases. McCaughey flew out to Webb, who made a high throw to third. Lefave had left the base before the ball was caught, and Collins recovered the horsehide and threw to McNeely at third in time to retire the losers' catcher before he could get back.

Matthews got on Tudhope's miss of Collins' throw in the seventh, but was caught off first, and then Coursey drew a pass and was out stealing.

More chances to score in the eighth were thrown away. Close opened with a single but was forced at second by Lefave. Montgomery singled, his third hit of the night. On Rahmel's roller in front of the plate, Bergoine threw Lefave out at third, and Pilling went out on a fly to the catcher.

In the ninth with one gone Cunningham singled and stole second and third but Downer batting for Matthews fanned, and Coursey lifted a fly to McNeely, and it was all over.

It was a funny game. Outside of the innings in which they scored, the Orientals only got three men to first base, while the losers had men on the sacks in every innings but the second, and three times filled bases without scoring.

The box score was as follows:

MORE GERMAN DIVORCES.

28 Times as Many Applications in Leipsic as Before the War.

"How the war has ruined family life is shown by the report of an investigation made at a meeting of the Kuremburg Committee on Charities," remarks the Leipzeiger Volkszeitung, the leading organ of the Independent German Socialists and continues:

"Attorney Fleischmann declared that of 100 cases brought before the court for the adjudication of claims for public assistance thirty-four had to do with divorces. It was further reported that of 163 new requests received for help from the Charities Department no fewer than eighty concerned cases involving divorces The Chairman called these statements 'really dreadful facts.' In the City of Leipsic 840 divorce proceedings were begun in the last four months. The maximum number for the same period before the war was thirty. The spheres in which the 'purifying effect' of the war making itself noticeable in Germany are extending constantly."

PERCY TOWNSHIP FARMER MAULED.

Was Attacked By a Yearling Bull Calf

On Sunday morning Mr. Fred. Broadworth, of Percy Township, went to the field to water the stock when he was attacked by a yearling bull calf. The animal knocked him down and rolled him on the ground, breaking three of his ribs and finally throwing him over a fence—which possibly was the means of saving his life. Mr. Broadworth is a brother of Mrs. Ira Cummings of Norwood. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings motored over to Percy Tuesday evening to see him and report that he is getting along nicely.

A NEST OF EAGLES IN ASPHODEL TOWNSHIP.

A nest of young birds, which from their appearance look like eagles, was found the other day by Mr. Daniel Buck on his farm near Wildman's School-house in Asphodel Township. There were five birds, all of different sizes, in the nest when first discovered, but next morning when he went to try and capture them he found that the largest of the five had left the nest. The remaining four were secured and are now in the possession of Mr. J. A. Bouck, Queen Street, Norwood. The birds have the characteristic hooked, curved beak, and are peculiarly marked. They are very fond of fresh meat.

"WHAT'S THAT YOU'RE SMOKING?"

THE GRAIN IS LOOKING FINE.

Will Be Some Days Before Haying Becomes General.

Haying has not yet commenced in Peterborough East, and it will be several days before cutting will be general. Judging from reports from different sections of the surrounding country the crop will be light this year, but there is no reason to fear a shortage. Grain is looking fine and the recent rains have wonderfully improved it. Corn is backward and will require most suitable weather in future if it amounts to much.

Jesse James' Days Again Recalled

Three Persons Shot and Cars Looted On Western Express Train.

PAOLA, Kan., July 11.—Three persons were shot and the mail and express cars were looted by a dozen bandits who held up a fast Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train early to-day at Koch, a siding three miles east of this city. They compelled the engine crew to detach the mail and express cars and ran them away, and then fled north in motor cars.

Details of the robbery in which two of the train crew and a woman passenger were wounded by bullets from the bandits' guns, as related by railroad employees, seem to indicate the robbers "shot up" the train to terrorize the passengers and crew. No attempt was made to rob the passengers. The train was flagged as it was backing from Koch siding, and the bandits swarmed aboard the engine, forcing the engineer and fireman at the point of revolvers back into the smoking car. The doors of the smoking and day coaches were locked, and several of the robbers ran up and down the aisles shooting into the floor and into the room, stray bullets from their guns striking Fireman R. E. Carter in the ankle and C. T. Wilcher, the train auditor, in the thigh.

Others of the bandits boarded the mail and express cars, uncoupled them from the rest of the train, and with their own men at the engine throttle ran out on the main line and backed north.

As they passed the standing coaches they fired into the windows, and it was then that Mrs. L. D. Williams of Achille, Okla., was wounded.

A mile north of the siding the mail and express cars were stopped and the robbers proceeded to rifle them, throwing the express safe from the car and breaking it open. The sum of money taken from the mail bags is stated to be small.

NEW PARTICULARS OF EVENTS AT TIME OF RUSSIAN CZAR'S FALL

Both Czar and Czarina Warned of Impending Revolution But Were Blind—Claim Czar Was Drugged When He Signed Abdication.

DESERTED THE FALLEN RULERS

NEW YORK, July 13.—The New York World's Rome correspondent cables:

From a Russian of high birth who was Lady in Waiting to the Czarina of Russia, the World learns some particulars of the events which immediately preceded and followed the Czar's abdication which are not generally known. The World's informer lost all she possessed in the upheaval of Russia, and is now connected with the American Red Cross. The Czarina banished her from court before the revolution, because her husband, who was in the diplomatic service, had incurred the Imperial displeasure.

The lady in question says that the Czar and Czarina were warned of their danger some weeks before the revolution started. In particular did Princess Vasiltchikoff, a member of the Imperial court, and wife of a prominent member of the Council of the Empire, warn her. The Princess is a good Russian patriot, and, like many others, was appalled at the signs of coming anarchy.

So much alarmed was she that she wrote a personal letter to the Czarina, telling her that if she wished to save Russia and her own family she must dismiss Rasputin and the Germans at court, and see that the army had ammunition. She wrote this in Russian, which was against Russian court etiquette (which admitted only French), and on single sheets torn from a writing block instead of double paper—another crime against etiquette.

Two more crimes were that she addressed the letter to "Her Majesty," instead of to "Her Imperial Highness," and posted it in Petrograd in the ordinary way, instead of sending it through Baron Fredericks, the Court Minister, a sort of high priest for the observance of etiquette, an old man of recent German extraction, but a very decent kind of person all the same. In due time the Czarina received the letter. She was furious—furious because so many rules of etiquette had been broken and still more furious because the writer dared tell her that she and her husband were unpopular and were losing Russia.

Czarina's Delusions.

"I shall never have any of the Russian aristocracy to court again," she cried angrily. "I always hated them. I love only the poor people and the soldiers. At my next ball I shall have none but poor people and soldiers. The soldiers adore me." She had this entirely false idea of the soldiers' devotion, because people about the court used to "fake" grateful letters to her from imaginary soldiers. Thus, while the troops were already cursing the Imperial pair and vowing revenge for all their sufferings, for all the shortage of ammunitions and for often being sent to be butchered just because a general needed a decoration, but had no artillery to cover his attack, the Czarina was saying she "adored soldiers" and would fill her ball room with them.

She not only banished the Princess from court, but ordered that she and her husband be exiled to Siberia. And the Prince and Princess Vasiltchikoff would have gone to Siberia on foot in the depth of winter but for Baron Fredricks, who managed to get the sentence softened to exile to the Prince's estate in the heart of Russia. They were kept prisoners on their estate till the revolution started a couple of months later.

The incident shows how blind the Imperial family were till the last minute, and how the Czarina, a German by birth, had imbibed the autocrat traditions of Catherine the Great and Ivan the Terrible.

Says Czar Was Drugged.

The same informant assured the World that the Czar was suffering from the effects of a terrible Thibetan drug when he signed his abdication. "Everybody at the court knew it," the Princess said, and we all knew him for an obstinate man. For days afterwards he was still in a state of stupour. Only when he came to himself did he realize what he had done. Then it was too late. But his despair was terrible."

"Who drugged him?" the World asked. "A quack from Thibet, who had risen to be the most influential person at court after Rasputin's death," she answered. "He was a friend of Rasputin and of Mlle. Veroubha, who had unbounded influence over the Czarina. And the quack was paid by the Kaiser to drug the Czar.

"Everybody in Petrograd knows very well that the Czar would never have signed a separate peace with Germany. He was not a clever man, and had allowed all kinds of abuses to arise in the Government, but he was a man of honour. The Kaiser knew he had to get rid of him. And the Kaiser fostered the revolution and had the Czar drugged to hasten the anarchy that has ruined Russia."

One reason why the soldiers ended by hating the Czarina was the behaviour of those court officials who staffed the hospital trains which took wounded from the front to Tsarskoe Selo. The trains would arrive and the officials would go around the battlefields and pick and choose their wounded, saying: "Oh, no, that's a disagreable wound. Their Imperial Highnesses don't want to dress such wounds." or: "A hand wound? Oh Her Imperial Majesty is tired of dressing hand wounds."

And so they went on, and the poor soldiers, who had got their wounds fighting for Her Imperial Highness, heard it all, while they lay in agonies. This engendered cancour in the hearts of these poor fellows, who had often, with nothing better than sticks, thrown themselves against German positions fortified according to the last word of modern war science, and sank deep into the hearts of thousands of peasants. And when "the day" came they had their revenge.

Deserted Fallen Rulers.

Another feature of the revolution was the way in which the entire household deserted the Imperial family, even though all the children were down with measles. The Czarina was left alone with them. Even Drivlenko, the sailor who has been with the Prince since his babyhood and was supposed to be so attached to him, left him without even saying good bye. Only when Kerensky ordered the servants to go back did they do so.

The household was the same. When the Czar was asked by the provisional government whom he desired to go with him into exile, he answered: "Prince Narishkine." This man had been his companion and personal friend ever since they were boys, and the Prince was the Czar's personal aide de camp.

But Prince Uarishkine sent back word that he could not go into Siberia because he did not think it right to leave his wife and children.

Those who finally went — that is, Dr. Bodkine, Countess Demidoff and Prince Dolgorouki — were not among the most intimate of the family's courtiers. Those who had had most honours, jewels and presents showered on them, for the imperial pair were indulgently kind to their immediate household, deserted them at once. This hurt the Czar more than anything else.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer. In most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets cure these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the newborn babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Jeremiah O'Leary Only Wanted U.S. to Free Ireland—Declares He Is Loyal.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Jeremiah O'Leary, indicted for conspiracy to commit treason, took the stand yesterday as a witness for his brother, John, at the retrial of John O'Leary on the charge of aiding Jerry to flee from justice.

The witness was questioned by the prosecutor as to his alleged anti-British and pro-Irish sympathies, for which he is charged with having conspired with Germans and Sinn Fein sympathizers to destroy British ships. He said that as editor of Bull he had devoted his time and talent to the Irish question because he wished the United States to assist in freeing Ireland. He insisted he was a loyal American and had no hatred for Englishmen.

CATTLE MARKET

Cattle trade has been on the dull side all through the week, going off to a bad start in Monday's market with a decline of a full dollar per cwt. on all grades. For the balance of the week trade continued dull and draggy, with a tendency to still lower prices for common thin cattle. There was a fair demand, at the earlier decline, for the few good butcher cattle offering, but these were very few in comparison with the bulk of common and poor cattle which constituted the whole of this week's offering. And prospects are not looking any too bright for the future of cattle prices. Complaints from the West as to the drought conditions begin to warrant the belief that there will be a serious shortage of feed fodder, and that for this reason farmers will be forced to get rid of much of their live stock sooner than they otherwise would have done, with the consequence that there may be a congestion of poorly finished Western cattle in the Eastern markets, against which the Ontario fed cattle may have to compete in the early fall. This, of course, is but conjecture along the lit. of possibilities, but it is a condition against which some of the holders of cattle now feeding in Ontario pastures are already counting as among the possibilities of the season. Should conditions improve in the West the danger of early congested markets will to a large extent disappear. In the meantime, and for the present, the market is dull, and prices are anything but firm even at the latest declines.

There have been heavy receipts of calves of late, the market weakening under the steady pressure towards the end of the week. Fair to good medium quality calves were a dollar lower on Thursday's market.

Sheep are also weaker, while lambs continue in good demand in a strong market.

The hog market stiffened during the week, gaining a 25c. advance over the previous week, closing steady at $18.25, fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

Norwegian, Who Formerly Piloted Kaiser's Yacht, Returns Decorations as Protest.

CHRISTIANA, July 12.—Hans Olsen, one of Norway's best known pilots, who for years piloted the German Emperor's yacht on its summer cruises in Norwegian waters, has returned to the German Legation the numerous decorations given him by the Emperor. He wrote the German Minister that the decorations were returned as a protest against the shameful murder and cruel massacre of Norwegian sailors, many of them his friends, by German submarines. While he had appreciated the decorations, their possession now gave him no feeling but disgust.

CALCULATOR AROUSES CAMP.

Draft Man at Upton Wins Promotion by Expertness at Figures.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., July 9.—Private Jacob Shapiro, who came here as a draft man less than two months ago, has earned himself an assignment as statistician at cantonment headquarters through his remarkable aptitude at the rapid manipulation of figures. In the presence of Lieut.-Col. T. J. Powers, cantonment chief of staff, and several of his officers, Shapiro totaled three columns of figures fifteen rows deep in less than four seconds, called off with a snap of his fingers the number of books on a large shelf, and instantly announced the number of matches which were tossed from a box to Colonel Power's desk. He was introduced to a gathering of a dozen officers and within a few moments repeated the rank and full name of each. He worked out many arithmetic problems given him by the officers with startling rapidity and accuracy.

Shapiro is 23 years old, was born in Russia, and has been a citizen of this country for two years. His home is at 1,314 North Claremont Avenue, Chicago, but he was drafted from 1,270 Amsterdam Avenue, New York City. He is an efficiency expert by profession, and says he has never given any public demonstration of his power of rapid calculation. He declares it is the result of his ability to rapidly photograph figures in his mind and not the result of practice or tuelage.

Making Over Oneself A Thankless Task

CHAPTER CXVI.

We all know how hard it is to get good results when we try to make over an old gament. I found it infinitely harder to get good results in my attempt to make myself over according to the pattern I thought by husband approved. I had days when it seemed that I surely had made progress, other days when I felt that not only had I made no progress, but that I had slipped backward.

Sometimes I used to think that if I could make George over a little too it would make things easier. It was all very well for me to try to make myself over to suit his ideas, or what I thought to be his ideas; but how infinitely easier it would be if he too could have been altered in some way. His quiet taking for granted that I did the wrong thing before he even knew my version often angered me as well as discouraged me. For days I would not try to please him particularly, then I would pull myself together and begin again.

Marriage is difficult always I believe. But marriage with a handicap such as mine was nearly impossible. It was such an up and down affair—my hopes up one day, depressed the next. It wore upon me too. I was not as strong as I was. I worried too much I suppose.

Once when George had corrected me abruptly and I thought unnecessarily, I said:

"You knew that I was like this before you married me."

I trusted your common sense as you grew older would teach you something," he had replied. It was such little speeches as that, nothing really in them, that hurt, and rankled constantly.

Dignity Can Be Acquired.

I talked often to Mrs. Sexton. Since I had confided in her she had seemed very near to me. One day I had done something to displease George, something he called undignified. I told Mrs. Sexton, and she agreed with him.

"Dignity can be acquired, my dear," she said when I declared I hadn't any.

"But is it worth while? All I seem to do is to try to acquire something I hadn't when he married me" I said half humourously, half tearfulyy.

"Dear, anything that makes life between husband and wife the happy thing it should be is worth while. Nothing should be too small, nothing too hard or too big to attempt if by so doing your lives can be made to run happily and smoothly. You must be more patient dear. You are vastly improved in many ways. Rome wasn't built in a day, you know. Then, too, dear Mrs. Howard, you must not in building up your character to please your husband make the mistake of tearing down what was sweet and noble in it before you attempted this reconstructing process. I am beginning to be afraid that will result if you are not careful."

"I don't think there ever was anything in me worth saving," I replied, "At least I haven't heard George mention any single attribute he admired. Yet he must or he wouldn't have asked me to marry him," I finished, more to myself than to her.

"You have many lovable traits, many I should hate to see you lose. That you still lack dignity is not to be perhaps wondered at. But there are certain things that you must break yourself of doing. Do not gossip with your servants. Be kind but firm with them. They will respect you far more. Speak of your husband, his affairs, to no one, not even to Evelyn Reeves no matter how intimate you are with her. It is so easy to give a strong impression, so hard to correct it. Come to me whenever you will; talk as freely as you like. I will help you all I can. But with everyone else remember not to tell either your own or your husband's affairs. This has been a real lecture, hasn't it? Now tell of your music, how you are getting on."

Helen Is Enthusiastic Over Her Music.

"Oh, wonderfully! And I liked your lecture. George spares no expense, nothing that will help me. The professor says I am equal to many professionals in my technique, and in my understanding of the soul of music. I love it so that it is no credit to me; always have loved music ever since I was old enough to know what the word meant, perhaps before. Mother says that when I was a tiny little girl I would practise until she lifted me off the piano stool, and forbade me to do any more that day; and it was the one thing in which I never obeyed. That most of the punishments I had when small were due to my disobedience on that score. She said her back would ache on the stool, using the soft pedal so on the stool, using the sofe pedal so she wouldn't hear me."

"No wonder you play so delightfully if you were as keen as that."

"I used to sing too until I think the neighbours must have been annoyed. I sang as easily as a bird sings when I was little, before I became self-conscious. Sometimes I think it is wrong to train a child's singing voice. I know now I am often thinking of how I am singing. Then I just sang."

"You are a rarity in that you sense the soul of your music. Few do. It adds to your own pleasure, as well as to that of others."

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

"I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

BARRIE'S LITTLE JOKE.

He Was a Failure as a Presiding Officer and He Knew It.

There is only one recorded instance of Sir J. M. Barrie's acting as chairman of a public meeting. In the Century Magazine Mr. John D. Williams told the story to the American public. It was on the occasion of a Burns celebration.

Barrie took the chair as presiding officer and then kept to it firmly. Throughout the entire proceedings he did not utter a single word, but remained as if glued to the horribly conspicuous chair, loathing his predicament, but inwardly amused at the expressions on the faces of all about him, which made dismally clear the fact that he was a failure as a presiding officer.

When the meeting was almost half finished Barrie took advantage of a talkative group in front of him and quietly stole away before any one had a chance to miss him. But the next week a well known Saturday review printed a satirical article called "Mr. Barrie In the Chair." The thing was simply withering in its ironical account of the dumb presiding officer who eventually fled, leaving a meeting to preside over itself. The greatest regret was naturally expressed by those who had persuaded Barrie to come to the Burns celebration, and among his friends tremendous indignation was felt and vented. But some day they will know, if they have not already found out, that the article was written by Barrie himself!

To Save Wool Fat.

The recovery of valuable fat remaining in water used in washing wool is now being accomplished by means of a new machine resembling a cream separator. In the past various attempts to do this have not proven satisfactory. The wash water runs directly into a bowl making 6,000 revolutions per minute, and the fat is separated almost instantly, a particularly pure product being obtained. It is discharged through one spout while out of another dirt and water are sludged. The machine handles 800 gallons of wash water per hour and can be operated for long runs with little attention.—Popular Mechanics.

Turkish Rhubarb.

Possessing a savor all its own, we come on scores of large cases full of big, irregular blocks of a bright yellow colored root. "Rhubarb," says our guide, indicating it. "Ah! Then it comes from Turkey?" we cry joyfully, glad to display our learning for once, but our friend smiles contemptuously. "There is no such thing as Turkey rhubarb," he says, "and, what is more, there never has been." All the rhubarb of commerce hails from China, reaching us through Russia for the most part, but because in olden days it made its journey by way of Turkey it became known as Turkey rhubarb, and Turkey rhubarb it will remain.—London Telegraph.

Just For a Minute.

Dr. Winnington Ingram, the Bishop of London, England, is possessed of a somewhat cynical wit. He was once engaged in conversation with a very bumptious man, who was boring him terribly.

"What a fine life a bishop's must be!" exclaimed the bore, enthusiastically. "I would give anything to change places with your lordship for just one hour to experience what it must be like."

"Ah," replied Dr. Ingram, fervently, "I wish you could this very moment."

You pay the same war tax on a pound of cheap, poor tea that you pay on Red Rose. In other words you pay 10¢ war tax on a cheap tea which will make perhaps 150 cups to the pound and you pay the same 10¢ tax on a pound of Red Rose which easily makes about 250 cups.

You will find today more value, more economy, more real satisfaction in Red Rose Tea than ever before.

FROGS AND TOADS.

They Are Arrayed as Never Was Solomon In All His Glory.

Solomon called on slothful humans to consider the ways of the ant and be wise. He might well have added a suggestion to consider the frog and the toad. If they toil and spin not, they are arrayed as never was Solomon in all his glory. Studied with a friendly and intent eye they are clothed in colors so ideally delicate that no painter has ever brushed their counterpart on canvas.

The evolution of the frog is wonderful. The eggs before leaving the ovary are mere dots. After being deposited in their congenial watery sphere they yearn, as all atomic nature yearns, for the birth of new things. The microscope tells of the presence in a lovely translucent sac of the little wriggler unmusically named a tadpole. The eggs are held in leash by a microscopic filament and look like an endless chain of pearl gray beads. Soon come the tadpoles of enormous activity, myriads of them from each single maternity. They have tails which serve for steering a wonderful propulsion. They begin to develop legs. Almost they show evidence of wings, as if they had an ambition to fly, and it is possible that if they had pursued that ambition they would have had the power of flight, as the flying fish had the genius to use its fins as wings and its wings as fins.

Yet a little and the tail is discarded, legs being decided on as preferable, for the common sense reason that they could be used for both swimming and hopping. No one element could satisfy Monsieur Frog. Earth, water and air were to be his, though his first cousin the toad, somewhat similar in development, life and action, and acquiring as rare a variety of coloring, is a creature of the land.

And of incalculable use to farming people, to householders of all degrees, are frogs and toads. They are the most industrious destroyers of insects which prey on food and other plants.

The cunning of the spider in catching flies is crude compared to the artistic manner of the toad in flashing out its wonderful, glutined tongue to which the fly or other insect is forced to adhere. Both the frogs and the toads are the best of destroyers of destructive insects, and of themselves do no harm whatever, and, though not handsome in figure or in action, let it be repeated that their coloring always reminds the lover of nature of the saying in The Tempest: "Nothing of him doth fade but doth suffer a sea change into something rich and strange."

The song of the frogs is as wonderful as their clothing. The gentle trill of the little tree toad is not quite the note of the nightingale, but it is more soothing than that of the whippoorwill or the cuckoo, and the chorus of the little froggies which is now one of the orchestras of spring, has a charm in the rural silences which hardly has a parallel in any of the songs without words.

Wonderful Stones.

The brain of the tortoise was once supposed to contain a wonderful stone which was efficacious in extinguishing fire and when placed under the tongue would produce prophetic inspiration. Another stone possessing the latter property was, so it was said, to be found in the eye of the hyena.

The head of the cat, however, in those ancient days was thought to contain what would undoubtedly have been the most wonderful and most desirable treasure of all could it have only had a real instead of an imaginary existence, for that man who was so fortunate as to possess this precious stone would have all his wishes granted.—Chambers' Journal.

"I remember one picture that brought tears to my eyes."

"A pathetic subject, I presume?"

"No, sir; it was a painting of fruit. I was sitting just under it, and it dropped on my head."

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots, How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine — double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

STOP HEADACHES BEFOREHAND

You never had a headache when you were well.

To keep well is to keep clean, inside.

To relieve headache, and to prevent it, keep the liver active and industrious and the bowels as regular as a clock.

Two generations of healthy, vigorous people have done this by taking one pill at bedtime, regularly—a larger dose when nature gives the warning.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Story of a Tramp

By ETHEL HOLMES

Jimmie Horgan at nineteen was a tramp. If I tell you how Jimmie became a tramp I doubt if you will blame him. From the time he was seven years old he was followed by misfortune. His father and mother died within a month of each other and there was not a person in the world who would take care of him; all his relations turned a cold shoulder to him.

I will not recount his sufferings till he was tramping one day on a road, in rags, tired, hungry. He was begging his way to the city to make another attempt to find employment, though in his rags he had but little chance. Coming to a grass plot before a house he sank, through weariness, rested his head on the root of a tree and fell asleep.

While he was sleeping, Lena Harris came along and saw him. Lena was a servant in the home of Mrs. Singleton, before which the boy had gone to sleep. The girl was a farmer's daughter who expected to make her own living and began an apprenticeship as hired help in the Singleton family. Lena looked down upon Jimmie, and his rags, his pale face, troubled even in sleep, filled her with pity.

Suddenly Jimmie opened his eyes and saw the sympathetic look in the girl's face. Lena asked about himself and he told her his sad story. She wished to give him something to eat, and, service beside for him, but

Mrs. Singleton was a stingy woman and Lena knew anything she gave out of the larder would anger her.

Fortunately the woman was not at home at the time, so Lena took the boy into the house and gave him some cold meat, plenty of bread and butter and a cup of hot coffee. While Jimmie was satisfying his hunger Lena went upstairs and in a closet found some castoff clothes of one of the Singleton boys and brought them down to him. They fitted him quite well and were far better than his rags.

Jimmie was about to depart when Mrs. Singleton came home. She scolded Lena for the food she had given Jimmie and ordered him out of the house. As good luck would have it she did not recognize the clothes he had on, so he walked away without being deprived of them. After he had gone the woman espied the rags he had left and when Lena admitted what she had done she was discharged. This was not long after Jimmie had left the house, and he had not gone far on his journey. Lena saw him walking ahead of her and called to him.

She told him that she had been discharged and must find another place. Jimmie was much touched to have brought this upon her, but he could do nothing to repair the trouble. Before they parted he asked for her name and he fixed it indelibly in his memory.

Lena Harris remained in the country and never rose above the position of a servant. She was advised to go to the city and learn something to fit her for business, but the sad stories of country girls who had gone to the city deterred her and she reached middle life as poor as when she was turned out of her position for befriending Jimmie Horgan.

One day a letter came to her from a lawyers' firm stating that it would be to her interest to call at their office in the city. Lena had not enough money for the journey, but she borrowed the amount and appeared one morning at the lawyer's office. She was informed that James Horgan, a wealthy citizen, had been missing so long that he had been declared legally dead. He had left a will naming Lena Harris the heir to all his property. If she could prove that she was Lena Harris she would receive the legacy. But certain blood relations of the testator laid claims to the property and were expected to try to break the will.

The lawyers offered to take the case for Lena, to be paid their fee only if they won it, and she placed it in their hands. Those who sued took the ground that Lena was an impostor. Lena went back to her work and the case dragged through the courts. At last she received word from her attorneys that a verdict had been found in her favor. She went at once to the city and an estate producing a handsome income was turned over to her. Lena settled herself in a house that had been occupied by the one who had accumulated the property.

One day there was a ring at her bell. She went to the door and found a man prematurely gray. He looked ill and was very shabbily dressed. He stood looking at Lena as though he were trying to recall something.

"What can I do for you, sir?" asked Lena.

"I don't know. I'm kind o' dazed. I'm not Thomas Simpson, I know that. Who are you?"

"I am Lena Harris."

"Lena Harris!" The man started.

"Yes, I'm Lena Harris."

"How did you come here?"

"The owner of the house, James Horgan, died and left it to me."

"James Horgan! I'm James Horgan."

Horgan had some years before suffered from amnesia, or loss of memory, and had wandered away. His memory had come back to him and he sought his home. Lena gave him back his property, but as she gave herself with it neither suffered loss.

Pie Was She.

In a college for women where the faculty consists chiefly of the gentler sex a meeting of the academic council was in progress. Here and there a lone man sat surrounded by learned ladies. An amendment had just been proposed.

"Where is the person who offers this amendment?" inquired the president. "Who is she?"

Whereupon Mr. Skeets, the popular young professor of a favorite subject, rose and replied deprecatingly, "I am she."—New York Post.

Promotion.

"And what," asked the cannibal chieftain, in his kindest tones, "was your business before you were captured by my men?"

"I was a newspaper man," answered the captive.

"An editor?"

"No; merely a subeditor."

"Cheer up, young man! Shortly after my chef has finished his perusal of the cookery book you will be editor in chef."—London Answers.

Shopworn Goods Barred.

"That's a very handsome painting," said the visitor to the home of opulence. "Is it by one of the old masters?"

"I should say not," responded Mrs. Newrich indignantly. "Why, that picture is in the very latest style."—Richmond Times Dispatch.

The Scientific Way to End Corns

THE Blue-jay plaster is a scientist's invention. It is made by the makers of B&B surgical dressings, used by physicians and hospitals everywhere.

So you may be sure that this is the right way to treat a corn.

The corn is ended by a bit of wax, which is centered on the corn. It cannot spread.

While the wax is acting, a pad protects the corn. So all pain ceases when the plaster is applied.

A band wraps the toe snugly and fastens itself. With this comfortable dressing one forgets the corn, and the plaster can't become displaced.

The pain stops instantly. Then the bit of wax gently undermines the corn. In two days it lifts out. Only rare corns need a second application. Let Blue-jay prove itself tonight. You will never again merely pare a corn, or treat it in the old crude ways.

The same old COMFORT—but all right!

HAUGHTY SEMINOLES.

They Don't Like White Men and Wish Only to Be Let Alone.

Many people in the northern states are unaware that there dwells in the fastness of the Florida Everglades one of the most interesting and picturesque bands of American aborigines in the United States, known as the Seminole Indians, who are now as separate and distinct from the white race as when Columbus first held mass on the shores of Cuba. These are the remnants of the one time mighty nation of the Seminoles, who defied the United States government for more than half a century and persistently refused colonization.

While the numerous wars and forced emigration have reduced their numbers to a few hundred, their mode of living, dispositions and customs are in many respects the same as when the haughty De Soto sailed into Tampa bay in 1539.

The Seminoles live to themselves, avoiding contact with the white race as much as possible and seldom if ever taking whites into their confidence, and on account of the almost inaccessible nature of the country in which they live little is known of their intimate home life. Unlike the Indians of the west, they persistently decline any assistance from the government, saying in response to offers for their support, "We only wish to be let alone."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mr. Maxwell Suffered Years With Pimples Healed by Cuticura

"I suffered for years with pimples and blackheads on my face. The latter one could hardly get a pin point between, and the former itched and burned so that I could tear my flesh to pieces. I could not sleep at night, and my face was just a mass of eruptions.

"I decided to give Cuticura Soap and Ointment a trial, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) R. B. Maxwell, Upper Sackville, N. S., August 10, 1917.

You may think that because Cuticura does such wonderful work in soothing and healing severe itching and burning eczemas it is not adapted to the gentle uses of the toilet. On the contrary, that is just where it is most effective in preventing these serious skin troubles.

For Free Sample Each by Mail address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. A, Boston, U. S. A." Sold everywhere.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S BLOOMERS.

Every up to date mother approves of bloomers for her young daughter in preference to petticoats, for they are neater and give much better service. The style shown in No. 8782 is very practical to wear under wash dresses, for the underwaist may be made of this lawn, with the bloomers of the same material as the dress. The bloomers are cut full to give plenty of freedom, but they are not at all bulky. The straight underwaist buttons at centre back and a choice of three neck outlines is given—high or low round and square.

The girl's bloomers pattern No. 8782 is cut in seven sizes—2 to 14 years. In the 8 year size the separate bloomers require 1⅛ yards of 36 inch, or 2⅝ yards of 44 inch material. The separate underwaist requires ½ yard of 36 inch material.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction. This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents

QUINTE SUMMER SCHOOL.

BELLEVILLE, July 11.—The Bay of Quinte Summer School is now in session at Albert College. The delegates were welcomed by Rev. J. N. Clarry, B.A., and Mr. F. E. O'Flynn. Miss Tillie Wood, of Ivanhoe, and Rev. S. F. Dixon, of Stirling, replied to the addresses of welcome. Rev. Dr. McLaughlin, of Victoria College, Toronto, is present to lead in Bible study, and Rev. Dr. F. C. Stephenson, Toronto, and Prof. Greaves, of Victoria College, are also on the staff. The attendance at the school is larger than last year.

HOW IS YOUR APPETITE?

Loss of appetite during the summer months is a common trouble, and indicates that the digestive system is out of order. Lacking a healthy appetite many people — especially women — go too long without food, or eat sparingly because food seems to distress them, and it is no wonder that they complain that they are constantly tired and unable to stand the hot weather. This simply means that the digestive system is not doing its proper work, and that the nutriment that should come from the food is not being distributed to the various organs of the body. In other words the blood is growing thin and watery.

You need a summer tonic, and in all the realm of medicine there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Take a short treatment with these pills now and notice how promptly your appetite returns and your power to digest food improves. Your food will then do you good, your strength will return and you will no longer complain that the hot weather tires you out.

The best time to begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the moment you feel the least bit out of sorts. The sooner you do so the sooner you will regain your old time energy. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Simple Homemade Apparatus by Which They May Be Produced.

The ordinary person either does not understand or is afraid of electricity and could scarcely be persuaded to manufacture it himself, and yet after all a little electrical experiment at home is both amusing and instructive. All that you have to do is to take a glass, expose it to the fire so that it shall be perfectly dry and place it upside down upon the table.

Afterward take a tray, also perfectly dry, and place it upon the glass in such a way that it shall preserve its equilibrium. Finally take a sheet of paper slightly smaller than the tray, heat it and rub it rapidly with a brush, and it will become quickly electrified. Then place it upon the tray.

An electrical machine will thus have been constructed without any expense. If the finger be brought near the tray a spark will appear. This spark will be so much the brighter and the series of sparks will be so much the longer in proportion as the glass and tray are drier.

If, when the sparks are being drawn from the tray, the room in which the experiment is performed be darkened these sparks will appear extremely brilliant.—Pearson's Weekly.

Here's a Tangle.

How easy it is to mix up the average business man was demonstrated the other day when the son of a local merchant leaned against his father's knee and innocently asked:

"Daddy, is today tomorrow?"

"No, my son, of course today isn't tomorrow," answered the father.

"But you said it was," continued the son.

"When did I ever say today was tomorrow?"

"Yesterday," answered the son.

"Well, it was; today was tomorrow yesterday, but today is today, just as yesterday was today yesterday, but is yesterday today, and tomorrow will be today tomorrow, which makes today yesterday and tomorrow all at once. Now run along and play," and the father collapsed into his chair with a sigh of relief.—Louisville Times.

Origin of "Hip, Hip, Hurrah!"

"Hip, hip, hurrah!" our modern yell of delight, is said to have an ancient origin. The word "hip" is supposed to be composed of the initial letters of the Latin phrase, "Hierosolyma est perdita," meaning "Jerusalem is destroyed," the "i" in "hip" being substituted for the "e" in "est." When the German knights were persecuting Jews in the middle ages they are said to have run, shouting, "Hip, hip!" as much as to say Jerusalem is destroyed. "Hurrah" is said to be from the Slavonic "hu-raj," meaning "to paradise;" hence "hip, hip, hurrah!" would mean "Jerusalem is lost: we are on our way to paradise."—Indianapolis News.

Tom—Don't get enough nourishment, that's all. You see, I arranged with my wife a month ago to give her a certain amount each week, out of which she was to pay household expenses and buy her clothes.

Declares He Wanted to Fight for Austria.

WINNIPEG, July 11.—"I wanted to go to Austria to fight, but could not get away," was the bland statement made to Magistrate Noble in the Provincial Police Court by Alex. Husar. He was charged with being a draft evader. He admitted that he was a naturalized Canadian, but declared he wanted to fight for Austria, his mother country, only he was handed over to the military authorities.

TUCKETT'S FACTORY IN LONDON CLOSES.

LONDON, July 11.—The local branch of the Tuckett cigar factory closed down to-night. It will be closed indefinitely. Nothing definitely is known by the men here of the trouble in the Hamilton factory. There was no strike here. The London factory was closed some time ago, and has been open only three weeks.

"We do not average as much as the garbage men do. Most of our men make less than $18 per week, and the average wage is not more than $14 a week."

That there are some who make more than $18 weekly was admitted by the cigarmakers, but their number is small.

The cigarmakers have had only two increases in wages since 1910, according to their report.

About seventy-five men will be thrown out of work by the closing of the factory.

GERMAN DEMANDS

(By Joseph Shaplen—United Press).

STOCKHOLM, July 13.—M. Alexandrevitch, one of the assassins of German Ambassador Mirbach, has been executed, according to despatches received to-day from Moscow. The other assassin, M. Bloomkin, has not been captured.

It is reported that Germany will also demand the execution of M. Kamkamoff and Mme. Spiridonova, two of the Social Revolutionaries arrested in the Moscow revolt, which followed Mirbach's death.

Passengers arriving here on a boat from Petrograd brought the news of riots in that city. They said that several hundred soldiers and workmen, led by Lefters, seized the Parshoky Arsenal and fought the Red Guards for hours. They were subdued only after an attillery bombardment of the Arsenal.

Cholera is reported to be sweeping Petrograd. It is said there are more than 400 cases daily and many deaths.

WAR SUMMARY

Canadian Press:

NEW YORK, July 13.—The Associated Press war summary says to-day: Success has crowned further Allied smashes into the German lines between Ypres and Rheims. For more than two weeks the Allies have been jamming into the German defences here and there, and results now are just as favourable as at the beginning. For the first time since attrition campaign was undertaken the French have struck with force in the Picardy battlefield.

AN IMPORTANT MOVE.

In capturing Castel and the strong fortified position, the French have advanced almost to the western bank of the Avre. Further gains southward toward Mailly Raineval will endanger seriously the German positions west of Avre to below Montdidier. The Germans have made no serious efforts to retake the positions, and are slowly being forced off the high ground.

Bad weather continues on the British front, especially hindering bombing activities of the British airmen. The German artillery fire is strong on the Lys salient. The continuation of rain here may hamper the German plans as the battle grounds of Flanders and Picardy are likely to turn into seas of mud.

CONNECTED LINE.

The Franco-Italian success in Albania has enabled the Allies to establish a connected battle line over a stretch of 200 miles, from Salonika to the Adriatic.

New Potatoes Are 80 Cents a Peck.

To-day's Need For Ford Cars

Prices Most Likely to Soar—Shortage of Stock Becoming Visible

It is safe to say that only a small percentage of people fully realize the certainty of still further increases in the price of Ford and other cars. Conditions are growing more and more acute every day. Speaking to Ex-Mayor Duffus, the local Ford dealer, who has just returned from a business trip, he remarked that "if people are wise they will buy their Ford cars soon."

"Why?" was asked.

"Well," the development of military works has become a matter of greater importance now than the making of motor cars. Patriotic manufacturers are bound to assist in this work for the Allies to the limit of their power; and so car manufacture is going to be limited," and you know what the result will be in trying to get cars."

To-day's need of Ford cars is even greater than yesterday's. It saves time, labour, and in a wide variety of ways helps to put industrial and personal efficiency on a war-time basis.

Sacred Band Concert To-morrow

The postponement of the usual Friday concert by the 57th Regt. The programme Sunday night will be comprised entirely of sacred numbers, which will include the "War March of the Priests," "The Rosary" and other well-known sacred selections.

The killed for the most part consisted of moulders. When the upper floor gave way its tremendous weight of shells crashed through the floors underneath and fell three storeys to the cellar.

The eight men killed were tangled up in the debris. Burst pipes filled the cellar with water, drowning any who may have lived through the fall.

Famous British Airman Killed

MAJOR JAMES BYFORD McCUDDEN "CRASHED" IN FRANCE.

London, July 12. — Major James Byford McCudden was accidentally killed in France on Monday. He shared with Major Bishop the honours of being the most distinguished British flying men. McCudden had won the Victoria Cross, Distinguished Service Order, Military Cross, and Military Medal. Up to April last he had accounted for fifty-four enemy machines, whereof forty-two were definitely destroyed, nineteen being within the British lines.

He fell near his own aerodrome in France.

He was a private in the British regular army when the war broke out.

The Times reporting McCudden's death, says that his machine fell into a downward spin wherefrom he was unable to straighten it out. The accident happened on the first day on his return to France. Indeed it is stated he flew back to France, but crashed when landing after crossing the Channel.

LETTER FROM A PETERBORO SOLDIER

Lieut. J. L. Keneally Met Hastings Nurse in Hospital.

Miss Margaret Kenneally of 269 Thomas street, has received the following letter from her brother, who is convalescing in England:

Royal Hotel,
Matlock Bath
Derbyshire,
June 8, 1918.

Dear Maragret,— I just returned from Aldershot when I got a rather severe attack of appendicitis. It developed Saturday night about midnight. I went to the hospital at 8 p.m. Sunday and was on the operating table at 9.30 the same evening. I am feeling fine now and staying at the most wonderful place imaginable. It is a convalescent hotel for Canadian officers. There are about 125 of us here. We have a big tennis court, mineral baths, etc. Altogether it is quite a wonderful place. I shall be here three weeks or a month, then I get a week's leave, then back to Witley, and get two or three months' home service, so you can see I have concluded a separate peace. If the war were not so strenuous just now I would be able to egt leave to Canada. A funny thing happened here yesterday morning. One of the Sisters was sewing a blue band on my arm when she suddenly asked me what my name was. I told her and she then asked me if I were a cousin of Margaret's. I said yes, I was her little brother. She seemed quite surprised. Her name is Miss Fowlds, of Hastings, and she sends the best regards. Lloyd Stewart is here also. Well, I haven't any more news now. I'll tell you more about this place when I see more of it. My address is Lieut. J. S. Keneally, Can. Res. Artillery, Witley Camp.

Your loving brother,
LAUGHLIN.

Passing of Well Known Distillery

The Town of Perth Will Have a Park In Its Place.

Special to The Examiner:

PERTH, July 13.—Marking the advance of Dominion-wide prohibition, is the razing to the ground of the widely known McLaren distillery here. The builder and owner of the distillery, which was erected 75 years ago, was the late Robert McLaren, a native of Scotland, and a pioneer settler. Following his death the business came to his son, the late John A. McLaren, and on whose death in 1901 it became the possession of John A. Stewart, M.P. Through the efforts of Mr. Stewart, the distillery is being lowered and the land will make up part of what will constitute a fine park which has been presented to the town by Mr. Stewart. The new park fronts on the Tay river, being composed largely by a section of the lots, Hon. John Haggart's property, the home of which has been presented to the Soldiers' Aid Commission. The park will be known as the "John A. McLaren Park." The product of the now defunct McLaren distillery was known widely as a leader in malt whiskeys, being a replica of the famous Scotch whiskey.

FRENCH FORCES IN ALBANIA ARE NOW DRIVING NORTHWARD

The Austrians Are Availing Themselves of Defensive Positions in the Mountain Sections of the Line—A Million Allied Troops Are in Move.

ACTIVITY ON THE WHOLE FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, July 13.—"The Albanian advance is continuing rapidly," a semi-official statement declared to-day.

"The enemy is making only sporadic, rear guard resistance. He has abandoned and failed to destroy abundant war materials, which has been captured by our forces. The population of Berat welcome our troops as liberators.

LONDON, July 13.—French forces in Albania are now driving northward with apparently the same speed that charatcerized the Italian advance in the first days of the offensive.

Latest reports from the battle front indicate that the Italians have slackened their progress to permit the French, on their right, to bring their lines forward and maintain a practically straight front from Lake Ochrida to the Adriatic. The Italians, except on their right flank, were aided in their advance by comparatively level terrain bordering on the sea. The French have been forced to move forward over an extremely difficult mountainous country. That the Austrians are availing themselves of defensive possibilities of this sector is shown by their resistance on the heights dominating the confluence of the Devoli and Tomorica Rivers, where they have temporarily checked the French centre.

A Million Troops.

On both sides of these heights the French continue to progress. In Macedonia the Bulgarians are becoming increasingly restive, following up their intensive bombardment of several sectors by an attack on the Serbian positions near Varemita. Although they gained a temporary success, they were immediately driven back.

Unofficial advices place the number of allied troops at close to a million, including Italians, French, British, Serbians and Greeks. There are signs of activity along the whole front of nearly 300 miles from the Adriatic to the mouth of the Struma River, but there are yet no indications that a general allied offensive is contemplated.

Field Marshall Hindenburg is Dead, According to Hague Report

The German Leader Died From Congestion of the Brain Following Stormy Interview at Great Headquarters.

ORIGIN OF REPORT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, July 13.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is dead, according to the newspaper "Les Nouvelles." His death is said to have occurred after a stormy interview with the German Emperor at Grear Headquarters. In the past six months there have been several rumours of the death of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, and there have been many reports that he has been in poor health. At the outbreak of war Field Marshal Von Hindenburg was a general in retirement. He was credited with evolving and carrying out the campaign against the Russians in East Prussia, which resulted in a serious Russian defeat at Tannenburg, for which he was promoted to Field Marshal. When he became Chief of General Staff, General Ludendorff, who had acted as his Chief of Staff on the Russian front, came with him as his right-hand man with the title of Chief Quartermaster-General. Field Marshal Paul Beneckendorff and Von Hindenburg was 70 years old last September 28.

The Emperor and Field Marshal Von Hindenburg are declared to have had serious difference of opinion concerning the German offensive towards Paris. The Field Marshal died from congestion of the brain. The newspaper "Les Nouvelles," which reports the death of the German leader, is a newspaper in the French language published at The Hague.

AMSTERDAM, July 13.—A violent interview between Von Hindenburg and Emperor William occurred on May 16, Les Nouvelles says. It was followed by an apoplectic stroke, which ultimately resulted in the Field Marshal's death. The newspaper says its information was obtained from good sources in the occuied district of Belgium.

Letter Carriers Want Bonus

Will Give Government Nine Days to Make Good—Peterboro Carriers Affected.

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, July 13.—At a meeting last night the Toronto Branch of the Federated Letter Carriers' Association of Canada decided to call a strike within nine days if the Dominion Government did not hurry up with the bonus voted at the last session of Parliament. The two hundred and fifty letter carriers present were unanimously in favour of this course, which was referred to during the discussion as "taking a holiday."

Peterborough Carriers Affected.

The Peterborough letter carriers will be affected by the above decision and will "take a holiday" with the rest of the carriers throughout the Dominion should a strike be called.

JUDGE IS NOT IMPRESSED WITH FARMERS' PATRIOTISM

Greater Production is More for the Farmers Themselves Than for Country," Says Judge Curran.

Special to the Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., July 13.—Judge Curran, in Military Appeal Court, told a farmer that he did not put much faith in the patriotic production cry. The farmer who pleaded for exemption for his son said, "Well, it's for the country, you know." "For the country," queried Judge Curran, "I don't put much faith in a lot of that talk with wheat at $2.25 a bushel. It appears to me that greater production is more for the farmers themselves than for the country. If it was for the country I think they would be content to sell for less."

Draftees Dispute Has Been Settled

Men Will Not be Moved Out of Province Until Case is Disposed Of by Court.

(Special to The Examiner)

CALGARY, ALTA, July 13.—The draftee dispute is settled. At a conference in the Mayor's office last night, Col. MacDonald, of his own responsibility gave an understanding that the men affected by the habeas corpus proceedings who are still in the province, would not be moved pending the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada. That satisfied the Chief Justice and no further action will be taken until the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada is received.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, JULY 13TH, 1918.

MUST AVERT STRIKES.

In recommending that there shall be no strikes or lock-outs during the war, the Cabinet, following the suggestion of the Minister of Labour, has not gone any further, or perhaps not as far as it should go in view of the present unrest in labour circles. At all events the threatened strike on the Canadian railways must be averted at all costs. Germany could wish for no better news than the intelligence that by reason of a coast to coast strike on the railways, Canada's war efforts were being paralized. The effect of such a situation can readily be imagined. The movement of food to the sea board, of troops to the point of embarkation, and of raw materials to war industries, would all be stopped and the result would be an intolerable delay in the prosecution of the war. The railway companies and their employees should be able to get together and prevent this calamity from occurring in Canada. The government has a duty to perform in the present crisis, and it may be necessary to take more drastic action than merely making recommendations to the employers and the employees.

THE NEW OFFENSIVE.

The advance of the Italians in Albania is continuing successfully, and for the present the developments in the Balkans overshadow the news from the western front. The Austrians admit the withdrawal of their forces, while both Italian and French official communiques announce the successful progress of the new drive. The ports of Durazzo and Cajtaro, used by Austrian warships, are both endangered by the new offensive, but there are more important results impending than the capture of these prizes. The most significant feature about the operations is that a further advance by the Italians and French may open a way into Serbia, and force the Bulgars to retire without a struggle from the strong defensive positions they have been holding for many months. An offensive by the British and Greeks following upon further progress by the allies, might result in a huge victory that would paralize the Bulgarians. The latter are not very enthusiastic over the war and a crushing defeat in southern Macedonia might well cause them to consider peace terms. At all events the progress of the Balkan drive will be watched with intense interest."

THE AIRPLANE AGE.

So many marvellous inventions have come into common use in recent years that one sometimes wonders whether it will be possible to find any further inventions of great value. Each generation, however, seems to find some new field for the production of useful things, or for such development of existing inventions as makes them of much greater value to the world. At this moment the conquest of the air seems to be the most likely advance of the age. The development of the flying machine has been extraordinary. It is but a few years since the invention took a practical shape at all. It is hardly more than a few months since a flight of twenty miles was regarded as remarkable. It is only since the present conflict broke out that the usefulness of the airplane in war has been learned. Everywhere among the belligerent nations efforts are being made to improve the character and increase the number of the machines for war service. One of these days the war will end and the warring nations will have on their hands fleets— should the word be "flocks?"— of flying machines. Are they to go to the scrap-heap? Apparently not. Aviation, so greatly developed by the necessities of war-time, bids fair to become a widely used method of travel and transportation. Already it is being experimentally used on both sides of the ocean for mail service, and in this field there is the promise of transmission much surpassing in speed the railway mail service. The construction of machines successfully carrying many tons of bombs shows that the airplane may be used to a considerable extent as a conveyor of some classes of freight. As to passenger service, there seems to be no reason why at an early day this shall not be carried on by the flying machines to a considerable extent. The crossing of the Atlantic is likely to be accomplished during the present year. The time occupied in travel will be cut down surprisingly. Great distances will be covered in a few hours. Mr. C. G. Grey, the editor of The Aeroplane, gives us a time-table between London and distant points as fololw:—Newfoundland, 1 day; Cairo, 1; Bagdad, 1 1-2; Ottawa, 2; Winnipeg, 2 1-2; Calcutta, 2 1-2; Colombo, 2 1-2; Vancouver, 3; Hong Kong, 3 1-2; Cape Town, 3 1-2; Sydney (Australia), 5; Auckland, N.Z., 6.—Journal of Commerce.

WHERE IS THE BYLAW?

The revised building bylaw introduced into the city council some months ago, and blocked by a number of the aldermen who had been members of the committee to consider the matter, seems to have been mislaid somewhere. In view of the recent exhaustive report by the Commission of Conservation upon the fire waste in Canada, the city fathers should lose no time in rescuing the measure from its obscurity, and placing it upon the statute books.

The Commission's report says that while Canada's fire departments are the best in the world, they are not able to prevent a steady increase in the fire loss. Canada's annual fire waste, the report shows, is $2.73 for every man, woman and child, and is larger than that of any civilized country in the world. The Commission calls attention to the fact that the enormous losses are "sapping the economic vitality" of the country. The fire loss in Canada for the four years 1912-15 was $2.73 per capita, as compared with $2.26 in the United States, 64 cents in England, 74 cents in France, 28 cents in Germany, and 13 cents in Switzerland. And since 1915 Canada's fire loss has greatly increased.

Carelessness, faulty building construction, arson and lack of fire-prevention laws, are said to be responsible for seventy per cent. of the fire loss.

The responsibility of the local council in the matter is serious. The building bylaw, revised on the advice of the Fire Chief, insurance experts, and prominent builders, was intended to improve conditions in this city, as far as faulty construction was concerned. It should go a long way towards making Peterboro more immune from fires, and from keeping a conflagration from spreading. In spite of that fact the bylaw was blocked when it was presented to the council, and now is tied up in committee. There should be no delay in passing this bylaw as a measure that is solely in the public interest.

ARE NEEDED HERE

There is a pretty general impression throughout the country that it is time that Premier Borden and the cabinet ministers who are parading around England, attending banquets and making speeches at the slightest provocation should take the first ship back to Canada. In view of the present serious situation as a result of the judicial decisions that the exemption clauses of the Military Service Act cannot be changed by order-in-council and that the principle of habeas corpus cannot be interfered with by the same authority, it would seem that the Prime Minister and the touring ministers might leave the task of talking about Canada's share in the war to the Canadian editors now overseas and hurry home to Ottawa. Messrs Ballantyne and Mewburn are the latest cabinet minister to reach England and at present Canada's overseas cabinet is more numerous that the section left to keep the home fires burning. There is certainly need of the presence here of all the members of the cabinet in view of the present crisis.

The Toronto Telegram says:—

Mercy for the Motherland!

Count that day lost in which Sir Robert Borden and his retinue of Canadian Cabinet Ministers do not attend a banquet, deliver an oration, or figure at a function in once-merry England. Britain has borne the brunt of the world war. She has poured her men into the battle line, her women into her factories, and her wealth into the laps of her allies.

Today she is rallying the last ounce of her strength to repel the Hun offensive on the western front. She has little left to fight an oratorical offensive which must make up in dullness what it lacks in effectiveness.

If the Canadian Premier and his satellites can do nothing for Canada they can at least have mercy on the Motherland. Surely she has suffering and to spare.

EDITORIAL NOTSE.

The American troops are using mustard gas on the enemy. But even without the mustard the Huns are beginning to realize that the Sammies are pretty hot stuff.

A despatch from London says Premier Borden is kept busy overseas. There is plenty of work waiting for him in Canada.

The Globe advises the Cabinet to do more talking. The trouble, however, seems to be a matter of geography; the Ministers are doing too much talking—in England.

There are no more stories about France being bled white. On the other hand, the French armies are better fighting machines than ever.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Issued by the Canada Food Board in collaboration with experts on the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm.

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

BOOKLET THAT WILL HELP

"Canada's war gardeners and all classes of our people who have engaged in food production this year have done splendid service. The response to the call for more food has been magnificent, and there is every prospect of a bountiful harvest."

Such is the statement made by Mr. Henry B. Thompson, Chairman of the Canada Food Board, in a prefatory note to the new booklet dealing with the canning, drying, and storing of fruit and vegetables, which has been issued by the Board for the benefit of war gardeners.

He goes on to say: "By eating fruit and vegetables freely while they are in season, and by canning, drying, and storing our surplus for winter use, we can release more wheat and other foods for shipment overseas. At the same time we can reduce our own cost of living. Fruit and vegetables are conducive to health, and greater and more regular use of them throughout the year would have positively beneficial effects."

Those who want to make the best use of the produce of the war gardens should write either to the Food Board direct or to its provincial committes, asking for a copy of the fruit and vegetable booklet. A sister publication, which will be equally valuable, contains vegetable recipes. Five cents must be enclosed for each copy.

Consolidated Financial Statement of the National Council, Y.M.C.A. of Canada

(CANADA - ENGLAND - FRANCE)

The National Council of the Y.M.C.A. herewith presents a complete statement of its finances for the year 1917, covering its entire service Overseas and in Canada.

The Executive Committee of the Council arranged last November to have a complete statement for the year 1917 ready for publication before the recent Red Triangle Fund Campaign, but owing to conditions arising out of Military operations in France, this has been unavoidably delayed. It is presented now at the earliest date that existing conditions have permitted.

The portion of the following statement which concerns England and France has already been submitted to the Overseas Military authorities. Audited statements of the funds handled have been submitted to the Militia Department at Ottawa and for the past two years regular accounting has been made as well to the authorities in England and in France. In addition to the regular audit in France, the canteen business is checked every month by the Military Field cashiers, to determine the amount which is paid to Military units as indicated in the Expenditures. Printed copies of the audited statements are posted up in the huts for the information of the soldiers.

The General Operation Account shows, on the one hand, the entire receipts of the National Council; first, from the gross sales of its Military canteens in Canada, England and France, and second, from subscriptions received during the year. On the other hand, there is shown the entire expenditures for the year, including, first, the cost of the goods sold in the canteens and, second, the expenditures connected with the entire service which is carried on under the direction of the National Council.

The Balance represents the excess of receipts over expenditures. Of this the sum of $118,351.43 was the balance at the National Headquarters at Toronto, and the remainder was Overseas. This balance at the end of the calendar year represents the amount available to carry on operations until the time of the campaign in 1918. While the financial statement is drawn up on the basis of the calendar year, the receipts from the campaign of one year have to serve until the campaign of the next year. The above balance at the National Headquarters was by April 30th, just before the new campaign, not only used up but changed to a deficit of $237,930.13. This deficit was, however, offset by the balance overseas, which has to be maintained there as a working balance to carry on operations.

The item of $240,524.86 is a special amount which had to be expended for the purchase of canteen and other supplies in Canada for shipment to France. Beginning with June, 1917, on account of the scarcity of supplies in Great Britain, much of the purchasing formerly done there had to be transferred to Canada. The long period of time required for the shipment of these supplies to France involves the continuous employment of a large sum. The amount expended for this purpose, as at December 31st, has had to be treated as an expenditure and placed in a Reserve Account against the merchandise in hand. It is, however, a possible asset and will, when realized upon, be devoted to other forms of service to the soldiers, when it is no longer required to maintain the canteen service in France.

It was possible to provide for this expenditure only because the amount asked by the National Council in 1917 was oversubscribed by more than the amount required just at the time the Canadian Purchasing had to be undertaken. But for this it would have been necessary either to borrow this large amount or greatly curtail the service in France.

It is to be remembered that the goods at the front in France, where the greater part of the stock is carried, are subject to enormous risks. The English Y.M.C.A. in the German offensive of March and April suffered losses in huts and canteen supplies of nearly One Million Dollars. In the more recent offensive the American Y.M.C.A. has suffered losses nearly as large, and the National Executive have deemed it a matter of prudence to be prepared to meet a similar loss if it should fall on the Canadian Y.M.C.A.

The National Council has from the first declared the policy of devoting to the service of the soldiers whatever balance remains in the Military Fund at the close of the war. This policy has been made known to and accepted by the Overseas Military authorities. The need for the Y.M.C.A. service will continue all through the period of demobilization and the plan of the National Council is to use whatever balance then exists to keep up the efficiency of the service to the soldiers during that important period.

The National Council of the Y.M.C.A., under which the Military Work is conducted, is a representative body of the various Y.M.C.A.'s throughout Canada, but it has no authority over or financial responsibility for any local branch. The funds which it handles have no connection with those of any local branch of the regular Y.M.C.A. It wishes to make clear, therefore, that the funds which are acquired in or subscribed for the Y.M.C.A. Military Work have not been and will not be used in connection with the regular work of any of these branches, but will, according to the policy already announced, be kept in the Military Work and devoted exclusively to the service of soldiers.

The service represented in the expenditures of the accompanying statement covered at the opening of the present year, 96 centres of operation in France and 76 in England, including all regular camps and units, base camps, convalescent camps, hospitals, railway troops, cavalry, London and Paris, and forestry units from the north of Scotland to the South of France.

There were on the Overseas staff 133 Secretaries carrying honorary commissions, 50 of whom were at the expense of the Y.M.C.A. for pay and allowances and the remainder at the expense of the Government. There are also a considerable number of other ranks, non-commissioned officers and men, detailed to the Y.M.C.A. staff by the Military authorities. A number of these, who are given non-commissioned rank because of special responsibility, are at the expense of the Y.M.C.A. for the extra pay over that of their regular rank. Civilian help is also employed where required and where circumstances permit.

In Canada the soldiers are served in 38 centres, including camps, barracks, Red Triangle Clubs, hospitals, naval stations and on troop trains. This has required approximately 100 Secretaries, who work on a civilian basis and are entirely at Y.M.C.A. expense. There is also required a considerable staff of employed helpers, exclusive of the committees of ladies who render their service free.

The scope and variety of the entire service, in so far as expenditures can reveal them, are indicated in the following statement.

Signed on behalf of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A.

G. H. WOOD, Chairman.
F. L. RATCLIFF, Chairman of Finance Committee.
CHAS. W. BISHOP, General Secretary.

AUDITOR'S CERTIFICATE

We have audited the books, vouchers and accounts of the National Council Headquarters at Toronto, and of the Central Territorial Division, for the year ended 31st December, 1917, and have been furnished with the audited statements of the Maritime and Western Divisions of the National Council for the same period. We have also been furnished with the Annual Statement for England for 1917, duly audited, and the Annual Statement for France for 1917 with the auditor's Certified Statement for the six months to June 30th. Going, we understand, to Military restriction on civilian travel between England and France, it was impossible for the auditor to go to France and complete the audit to 31st December, 1917. We have agreed the Canadian and Overseas statements with the above General Statement, which combines them, and, according to the books and statements furnished, the above statement in our opinion, correctly sets forth the operations of the National Council at home and overseas.

St. Thomas Secures Services of Former Bank Manager

Mr. H. P. MacMahon Will Give His Services Free to the City.

St. Thomas' publicity commissioner, who was appointed during the past week without remuneration of any kind is Mr. MacMahon, one of Canada's best-known businessmen, and a better one for the position which he now holds could not be found anywhere. For over 35 years Mr. MacMahon occupied various positions as bank manager, his most extensive experience being with the Traders Bank, which afterwards merged with the Royal Bank of Canada, which he resigned a year ago in order to enjoy a well-earned rest. In order to make St. Thomas a real live town, Mr. MacMahon has decided to give up that rest and devote his time to securing industries for the city. He resides in a beautiful home on Metcalfe street.

MUST USE SUBSTITUTE WITH BREAKFAST FOOD

FOOD BOARD STATEMENT IN THE MATTER OF WHEAT PRODUCTS.

Having settled the question of flour substitution in the baking of bread, pastry, etc., the Canada Food Board has turned its attention to breakfast foods, and has issued an order requiring the use of substitutes in the manufacture of such as are now made wholly or in part from wheat. The Board's statement bearing on the matter is as follows:

"The order provides that no person shall manufacture any rolled wheat, wheat flakes, wheat meal or cracked wheat containing more than eighty per cent. by weight of wheat. In manufacturing any of these products of the whole wheat, from which the bran and shorts are not removed no substitute need be added. No alimentary paste or self raising flour, containing more than eighty per cent. by weight of wheat flour, may be manufactured. The manufacture of buckwheat flour containing more than thirty-five per cent. of wheat flour is prohibited.

"Except for those products mentioned above no breakfast food containing more than fifty per cent. of wheat flour may be manufactured.

"On or before August 1st, every manufacturer of any of the products mentioned in the order must file with the Food Board a sworn statement showing the ingredients and the proportion of the same constituting each such product made by him.

"Violation of any of the provisions of the order makes the offender liable to a fine of not less than $100, and up to $1,000, or to imprisonment for a period up to two months or to both fine and imprisonment."

FOOD BOARD FLASHES FOR FEMININE FOLK

Holiday time is at hand. This is the cheerful thought that lies at the back of most people's minds these days. Every woman has her own idea of what a holiday is. There are those who will go to the sea and others who will go north to the lakes; and there are some who will camp and some who will fish and a good many who will go back to where they came from—the farms.

A word of advice to the latter class. The farmer's wife is one of the hardest worked women in the world and this year her case is a little worse than usual. So don't go into the country with the idea that you must spend all your time in the hammock or having your hospitable relatives wait on you.

Turn to and help the farmer's wife! It will not take from your enjoyment and you will certainly be helping in a good cause. In a hundred little ways you can avoid being a burden to her. In a hundred little ways you can give her concrete help. Saving her time in the house will often allow her to help her overworked husband with his multifarious pressing duties about the farm. Regular farm help is very scarce.

RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT ESTABLISHES CITIZENSHIP, SAYS SIR SAM HUGHES

Former Minister of Militia Addressed the Orangemen at Lindsay—Peterboro Lodges Were Well Represented—Lindsay Gave the Boys a Big Reception.

NUMBER OF COUNTIES REPRESENTED

Orangemen to the number of several thousand invaded Lindsay yesterday, where they fittingly celebrated the 228th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. The Counties of Ontario, Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, Victoria, and Haliburton were represented in the big parade which lined up at Victoria Park shortly after one o'clock. The weather was all that could be desired. It was a big day and the Orangemen made the most of it. From early morning until late in the evening Lindsay was alive with the sound of martial music as the Orangemen congregated in all quarters of the town. It was one of the largest demonstrations ever held in Victoria County.

All trains were met by the Lindsay brethren and Citizens' Band, who showed the visiting lodges to the armory, where drums, banners and other emblems were stacked till the afternoon. But the tunes were kept going all day, even during noon hour, when the large armory fairly trembled with the continued shrill of the fife followed by the heavy beat of the drum.

The Peterborough lodges made a good showing and were well represented. It was after ten o'clock before they returned to the city.

The Addresses.

Addresses were delivered by W. Bros. General Sir Sam Hughes, Dr. J. W. Wood, County Master, Rev. G. R. Maconachie, Rev. C. H. Coon, Dr. R. M. Mason, M.P.P., Jess Bradford, Visiting County Masters and others.

Sir Sam Hughes.

The Orangemen loudly applauded General Sir Sam Hughes as he made one of his characteristic, sturdy, blunt speeches. In part General Hughes asked, "Why do we commemorate the day? Is it because we hate our Roman Catholic neighbours? No, hate never accomplishes anything. We love the Roman Catholic people as we love all others, but we have no place for ultramontane Rome which seeks to repress them."

General Hughes stated that he had been asked to explain the recent Guelph incident, the Jesuit College matter, to which he added, "How can I do so when the facts are not yet disclosed? But rest assured that at the proper time and place I shall endeavour to see that the facts are made fully known. One fact, I feel I can state in justice to Hon. Mr. Doherty, Minister of Justice, His son, it appears, was a student in that Jesuit College. I have not seen the lad for a couple of years, but at that time, and I am assured now also, the lad was a physical wreck, and I do not for a moment believe in any sense was evading the law."

Referring to the situation in Ireland, Sir Sam said: The hour Lloyd George grants any special Home Rule Government to Ireland, different from what he confers on Scotland, England or Wales, or gives the Irish any special favours, then will begin the disruption of the British Empire. Britain must recognize the spirit of true Liberalism and not ultramontane Roman Liberalism."

"Despite the weaknesses in the fuel controller, press censor repressions and chloroform methods on every hand, I still affirm such methods are all wrong, savour of Kaiserism, and do not belong to true democratic Government.

Slams For An Orange Paper.

"Responsible Government established not autocracies, not creeds, not societies, not labour unions, not Bolshevikism, not labour unions, not anarchy, but citizenship. I love Orangeism, but I have often asserted, and more than ever believe, the worst calamity to befall a nation, next to being ruled by a Roman Pope, would be to be ruled by an Orange Pope."

Sir Sam had a good word to say of the people of Quebec, some of them. "There are priests and priests, bishops and bishops. Some have been openly and successfully encouraging enlistment, while others were passive and still others negative.

'Incidentally it is not generally known that the most blood of Frenchmen has been shed for Protestantism and human liberty than all the world over."

FINED FOR UTTERING DEROGATORY REMARK

Man Criticized Uncharitably Neighbor's Motive in Enlisting.

SIMCOE, July 12.—John Stuart of Glenshee, a rural centre about nine miles west of here, was before Squire Hutchinson at Port Rowan on Monday, charged with uttering statements detrimental to the national interests, and was fined $25 and costs, amounting to about $20 more.

One of his neighbors, the father of a large family, has returned from overseas with a plate in his skull, having miraculously escaped death. Before enlisting in the 133rd Battalion he was with hard work supporting his family. It was while dining with several others in a home in the neighborhood, and in the presence of a near relative of the returned soldier, Pte. George Wingrove, that Stuart remarked lightly something to the effect that not patriotism, but an easy way to have his family supported prompted Wingrove to enlist.

Justice of the Peace throughout the county have received instructions that all criticism derogatory to the cause of the war must be suppressed.

WILLYS-OVERLAND EXPANSION

Rapid Growth of a Great Motoring Business

From a plant that shipped 465 passenger cars in 1908, the Willys-Overland Company has grown in less than 10 years to the second largest automobile manufacturing plant in the United States and is now in a position to materially aid in speeding up the war program.

"When this wonderful growth is taken into consideration", says C. R. Banks, local dealer, "it speaks volumes of praise for the farsighted visions of the officials of the Company. For the underlying reason behind this successful development has meant that its product has met the popular demand.

"The policy of the Company has been to sense the motor needs of the greatest number of people and build a substantial motor car best adapted to meet them. Many factors are to be considered in forecasting the desires of the motor buying public, but the officials have held unalterably to five main tenets — these being appearance, performance, comfort, service and price.

"The appearance of Overland cars must be neither too exaggerated nor too commonplace. They have all the big car style of design, with plenty of room and good color harmony.

"Their performance is built upon a motor designed for thrifty use of gasoline with ample power, mounted upon a durable and dependable chassis. They must be easy to operate, with narrow turning radius.

"In comfort they must have the easiest riding qualities it is possible to obtain. To make this possible, much thought has been expended upon the cantilever spring suspension and length of wheelbase. They must all be roomy, so there will be no cramping after the longest drive.

"To give the greatest possible amount of service, The Willys-Overland Company has gone to great lengths to provide fully equipped service stations covering the country. No Overland owner need ever be put to inconvenience through lack of service.

"Finally, in the matter of price, it has always been the policy of the Willys-Overland Company to make and market their product at the lowest possible margin. It is the desire of the Company to place the automobile in reach of the largest number of people.

"As a result of this policy the Mammoth plant in Toledo is busy day and night turning out supplies of every kind."

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE TO FRUIT TREES

Will be Smaller Crops—Prices for Apples Will be More Moderate

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, July 13. — Reports from all sections of the province received by the Department of Agriculture, according to a statement issued yesterday, show that extensive damage to both trees and fruit resulted from the past severe winter. There will be smaller crops as a consequence, but the Department states that prices for apples will likely be more moderate than during the past two seasons. The reason for this is that the export markets have been cut off by the embargo and limited transportation facilities. "Taking the whole province into consideration, there should be plenty of apples for local and western markets," the statement says.

Rain in the West.

Special to the Examiner:

CALGARY, Alta., July 13.—The first rain of any consequence in weeks is falling in the Calgary district, and will help the crops and garden truck immensely.

MALIGNING AN ALLY

(Providence Journal)

A certain element has been at work for a long time in America trying to discredit Japan with us, to arouse a suspicion against her that has never been justified. Japan according to every credible source of information, is absolutely loyal to us and the other nations of the Entente. As Viscount Ishil puts it, the report of a possible rapprochement between Japan and Germany "betrays utter ignorance of the national character of the Japanese people, to whom, whatever other qualities may be wanting. The chivalrous spirit and deep sense of obligation have never been lacking."

When Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes was first advertised, they sold at 15c a package. To-day the package is 50% larger and the price has been reduced to 10c. Who pays for the advertising?

We cannot help but conclude that advertising is not paid for by the manufacturer, nor is it paid for by the retailer, nor again by the consumer.

How The Bayonet Lost a Great Battle

BAYONETS, first made at Bayonne, France, whence they get their name, to begin, were almost as dangerous to the army with them as to its foe.

Fashioned with a solid butt, to be jammed into the muzzle, it rendered a gun useless for firing.

The butt was soon changed to a socket, but not before the new fangled bayonet brought the English army to grief at Killiekrankie.

The English soldier found the bayonet a poor fit, hard to get into his gun; and when he got it in, hard to get out. When he had to bayonet, he couldn't bayonet; when he had to shoot, he couldn't shoot.

MACHINISTS' UNION WILL APPEAL TO DOMINION FUEL CONTROLLER

Decided Last Night to Appeal to C. A. Magrath for a More Equitable Distribution of Coal—Feeling of Anxiety Moves Those Who Have Failed to Place Orders.

REGULATIONS TOO GENEROUS

At a largely attended meeting of the Machinists' Union last night it was decided to appeal to the Dominion Fuel Controller for a more equitable distribution of coal in Peterborough. The present regulations are regarded as being too generous to those who are fortunate enough to be able to get their orders accepted and filled by the local dealers. While many citizens are securing supplies in accordance with the regulations, many others have failed so far not only to get coal but even to place their orders. These citizens are becoming more anxious as the summer wears on, and among labour men there is a growing demand for some action that will consider their needs.

The Guelph experiment encourages the hope here that some practical and effective means may be found whereby the distribution of coal may be more general. The City Council failed to offer the relief the Labour Council expected, and rather than sit idly by while some orders are being filled to the limit, the Machinists will present their case to Fuel Controller C. A. McGrath.

None of the labour men have a doubt now of Ald. Edgar's powerlessness to control local deliveries, and with that enlightenment they are forwarding their S.O.S. petition to the source of authority. The attitude of citizens toward the regulations doubtless depends upon whether they have succeeded or failed in getting the coal they will need for next winter. Those on the inside looking out are no doubt agreed that the regulations could not have been improved, but to those on the outside looking in they are not sufficiently restrictive. It is contended that under the uncertainties of the general fuel supply, no man should receive more than 25 or at the most, 40 per cent., of his needs before all the other homes have been provided for to that extent. Then the list could again be gone over with a similar dole, thus assuring to every citizen some coal with which to meet the winter, instead of filling some orders as at present while others are not accepted.

The opinion may be safely advanced that none of the dealers desire a repetition of last winter's clamorous experience. And on that belief it may be that the dealers expect to provide for the bulk of the local demand before winter arrives; but the householders want something more substantial than surmises, especially in view of the announcement that this year's allowance to Peterborough will, as elsewhere, be based on the 1916 total consumption. The action of the Machinists may be interpreted as conclusive evidence of their impatience and anxiety, and of their demand for a share of the fuel that is now being received. These feelings of doubt and unrest might be allayed if there was a definite assurance to the people that no family would suffer, but, lacking steadying promises of that kind, there is a natural determination to avoid, if possible, the hand sleigh queues of recent and unpleasant memory. The suggestion might be offered that if the public could be kept informed of the trend of supplies and deliveries and of the prospect for the coming months; in short, if the people were taken into the confidence of the dealers the agitating doubts might be forestalled.

PETERBORO SIXTY YEARS AGO

A directory issued sixty years ago, containing an alphabetical list of the inhabitants of the town of Peterborough and other matter of historical interest as the following interesting reference to this city and district:

Prior to the year 1818, that portion of the country lying north of Rice Lake, now comprised within the United Counties of Peterborough and Victoria, was unknown to civilized settlement—the hunting ground of the aborigines of the Country. In that year a number of English families, from the County of Cumberland, took advantage of the survey then being made of the township of Smith, and settled upon the communication road. What were the privations of those sturdy pioneers of settlement, who, unused to the new mode of life, had ventured thus far back to conquer the forest, and carve out for themselves a competency amid the unsettled and uncivilized regions of this country, may be easily imagined. Separated from intercourse with the world abroad by an almost impassible barrier of dense forest; deprived of the ordinary appliances of civilized life; without a mill to reduce their grain to flour; with nothing but their axe and a sturdy spirit of indomitable perseverance to depend upon; they settled in this new land, and trusting upon God and their own energies, determined to overcome the host of difficulties that stared them in the face. As a substitute for a mill, it is said they cut a hole in the top of a large pine stump, as a mortar, and using for pestle a heavy piece of wood, attached to a lever similar to what may now be seen at farm wells, pounded the grain; while others were content with simply boiling the wheat with milk.

About the year 1823, a Mr. Scott, a millwright, who had the year previous erected a mill at Cobourg, erected one, or an apology for one, on the site now occupied by that owned by Mr. Wallis. The building had a saw mill at one end, a couple of run of stones at the other, and below, a still where unrectified whiskey was manufactured and supplied to the few settlers who would drink it, and to the Indians. Miserable, however, as was this apology for a mill, it was still an important step onward; and although it is of record that one of the settlers in Smith had to carry his bag of wheat no less than sixteen times on his back to the mill before he could get it ground, yet it was a good change from the primitive idea of a pine pestle and mortar.

In the year 1825 a considerable accession to the population took place by what was familiarly known as the Robinson Emigration. As early as the year 1822, the attention of the British Parliament was seriously directed to the subject of Emigration to the Colonies. As a result of this, in 1823 a regular scheme of emigration was organized and entrusted to the Hon. Peter Robinson. The emigrants of that year settled in the Bathurst district, but the second emigration, that of 1825, principally from the South of Ireland, was settled in the townships of Douro, Smith, Otonabee, Asphodel, Ennismore, Emily and Ops. In the evidence given by Mr. Robinson before the Parliamentary committee of the House of Commons in May, 1827, occurs a description of the route from Lake Ontario to the present Town of Peterborough, which, as indicating the then condition of the country, may be interesting to the reader. "On the 11th August," said Mr. Robinson, "I embarked five Hundred on board of a steam-boat, and landed them the next day at Cobourg on Lake Ontario, a distance of one hundred miles; the remainder of the settlers were brought up in the same manner, the boat making a trip each week. Our route from Cobourg to Smith, at the head of the Otonabee river, lay through a country as yet very thinly inhabited; the road leading from Lake Ontario to the Rice Lake (12 miles) hardly passable, and the Otonabee river in many places very rapid, and the water much lower than it had been known for many years. The first thing I did was to repair the road, so that the loaded waggons might pass, and in this work I received every assistance from the magistrates of the district, who gave me fifty pounds from the district funds, and this sum, together with the labour of our people, enabled me to improve the road in ten days so much that our provisions and baggage could be sent across with ease, and three large boats were transported on wheels from Lake Ontario to the Rice Lake. The Otonabee River is navigable for twenty-five miles, although in many places it is very rapid, and at this season of the year there was not enough water to float a boat of the ordinary construction over some of the shoals. To remedy this difficulty I had a boat built of such dimensions as I thought might best answer to ascend the rapids, and had her completed in eight days. So much depended upon the success of this experiment that I felt great anxiety until the trial was made, and I cannot express the happiness I felt at finding that nothing could more fully have answered our purposes, and this boat, sixty feet in length and eight feet wide, carrying an immense burden, could be more easily worked up the stream, than one of half the size carrying comparatively nothing. Now that I had opened the way to the depot at the head of the river, there was no other difficulty to surmount than that which arose from the prevailing sickness, the fever and ague, which at this time was as common among the old settlers as ourselves. The first party I ascended the river with consisted of twenty men of the country, hired as axe-men, and thirty of the healthiest of the settlers; not one of these men escaped the ague and fever, and two died. * * * The location of the emigrants, by far the most troublesome and laborious part of the service, was completed before the winter commenced, and I had a small log house built for each head of a family, on their respective lots, where they reside."

It is an old, old saying that union is strength. War serves but to emphasize the truth of it.

Organized women can do more than unorganized women. This is why it pays to cultivate the community spirit, to pool equipment and ideas and energies.

A dozen women working as one can accomplish infinitely more than twelve women going their several ways. It is estimated that only 12 per cent of Canada's women belong to organized bodies. This is a small percentage.

It does not matter whether it is Red Cross work or canning, or knitting or gardening or reforming—do it en masse! In the community way!

Belonging to an organization is an incentive to work. Instead of criticising freely wouldn't it be a good idea to belong to some organization and help to "make things go." They are all doing what they consder best for the national cause.

Yes, I Intend To But Not Now

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:

The premium you would pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4,000 of insurance at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2,500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1,440 at age 21.

Besides while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable, AT ANY PRICE, at the other ages mentioned.

Girl's Morals Lower in War Than Brother Says Crittenton Hea

National President Lays Problem to Lack of Consideration and Intelligent Direction.

NEW YORK.—A greater girl than boy problem has been created by the war, according to Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, of Alexandria, Va., who addressed the New Jersey Day meeting of the Florence Crittenton Mission, of which she is national president, at Ocean Grove, N.J.

"The reason there is a greater girl problem than boy problem," she stated, "is because the boys have an avenue of expression that is in harmony with the best interests of society, while the girls must search for some open door or translate into patriotic service the homely duties of life that are neither new, picturesque nor interesting. The truth of these statements can be proven by the study of the records of the Florence Crittenton homes since we went to war. At least three-fourths of the girls who are in the Florence Crittenton homes have brothers who are in the service.

"These boys, with the same blood, the same environment and, more often than not, the same moral delinquencies, are to-day in khaki, and Uncle Sam is making first class fighting men out of them. But their sisters are in Florence Crittenton homes.

"Is it that the girls in these same families are any different or worse than their brothers? Have they not the same possibilities of service? Cannot Uncle Sam, who has done so much for the boys, do something for the girls?

"After having had personal dealings with a large number of these girls since the war began I do not hesitate to say that the difference does not lie in the inferiority of the girl to the boy, but rather in the lack of consideration and intelligent handling that is given the girl.

"I have visited all the different cantonments and have spent most of the last year in cantonment cities, and I do not hesitate to say that the cantonment cities are the cleanest and best governed cities in the country. The great moral house-cleaning which has taken place in this country is worth all that the war has cost."

"What We Have We'll Hold," Captain E. Dodds' bulldog "Pepper."

A TALENTED DANCER.

Miss Meta Middlebrook of Toronto won well deserved appreciation by her excellent dancing. Her first two numbers consisted of two Scottish dances.

The pipes were played by Mr. Yeaman and the violin by Mrs. Foster, Miss Middlebrook also contributed two classical dances that were much appreciated.

In the presentation of the programme, Mrs. Perrin was ably assisted by Mrs. Huycke, Mrs. White, Mrs. Greenslade, Miss Piefron of Ottawa, and others.

The ice cream booth, which was liberally patronized was in charge of Mrs. G. L. Hay, Mrs. C. Moore, Mrs. G. G. MacCartney, while Mrs. J. M. Gemmell and Mrs. Frank Whitehouse had charge of the "Jack in the Box."

The flags for the occasion were supplied by J. J. Turner & Sons and the Edison Diamond Disc phonograph by the J. M. Greene Music Company.

The "Fair" which was held under the auspices of the Ashburnham Patriotic League was a decided success in every way and credit is due those who in any way assisted. The sum realized for patriotic purposes was three hundred and ninety dollars.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Miss Derry won the crocheted yoke—Ticket No. 118.

Mrs. B. F. Ackerman won the centrepiece and doylies—Ticket No. 112. Mrs. Ackerman kindly donated the centre piece and the doylies to be drawn over again.

The dress is to be drawn at the regular meeting of the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League on Wednesday next.

THE NATIONAL HOLIDAY OF FRANCE TO BE OBSERVED TOMORROW

The Fall of the Bastille Was One of the Great Milestones in the Nation's History—"Kings Must Stick Together."

France's national holiday falls on July 14th, and like the Independence Day of the United States, will have an international celebration to-morrow. The world has come to regard the Fall of the Bastile as one of the great milestones in human progress, as the birthday of the mighty nation of France. Of most nations it can be said that the day they choose to honour above all others was a day in which they broke the chains of a tyrant enemy, or won their freedom upon the field of battle. France has chosen to hold in perpetual reverence that day on which the mob of Paris destroyed the state prison. Were it for the events that followed the attack upon the Bastile the destruction of this gloomy old building might not appear to have greater significance than the burning of the Parliament buildings in Toronto; but the people of France with true imagination saw in the Bastile the stronghold of autocracy and tyranny, the symbol of the cruelty and injustice that brought about the revolution that established the republic.

FOUGHT THEN AGAINST PRUSSIANS.

It is worth noting that just as the American revolution was a revolt against Germanism on the throne of England, and was fought by Washington chiefly against Hessian mercenaries, the French people when they destroyed the Bastile were fighting against Prussia and Austria. The weak and irresolute Louis XVI, was as greatly under the domination of Marie Antoinette, a member of the House of Hapsburg, as was Nicholas Romanoff under the influence of his masterful and pro-German wife. Paris we are told was full of Prussian intrigue and overrun by Austrian adventurers. It was with these foreigners that the Emperor surrounded himself. They insulated him from French opinion and counselled against the slightest sign of yielding to popular discontent. When it became evident that the French army thought as did the French people, and not as the French monarch and his foreign advisers, an appeal was made to Vienna and Berlin, and German mercenary troops entered France to cope with the situation.

THE FOREIGN MERCENARIES.

Says Carlyle: "On all highways there hovered dust clouds, with the march of regiments, with the trailing of cannon; foreign Pandours of fierce aspect, Salis-Semade, Esterhazy, Royal-Allemand, so many of them foreign, to the number of thirty thousand, which fear can magnify to fifty, all wending toward Paris and Versailles—without drum music, without audible word of command." Fired by Camille Desmoulins, whose immortal cry of "To arms! to arms!" was later to thrill the world in the French national anthem, the citizens of Paris proceeded to arm themselves, to throw up barricades in the street. They had no other idea than that the German and Swiss mercenaries were there to massacre them. Their procession of protest was charged by the foreign soldiers, this horde "growling in harsh gutturals;" Prussian dragoons sought to hold the French guard under arrest in the barracks, a veritable army was drawn up on the field of Mars. Yet all weer of no avail against the populace of the city. The soldiers were brushed aside or trampled under foot. The huge concourse made for the Bastile and after a siege it fell and was destroyed.

"KINGS MUST STICK TOGETHER."

It was on July 14, 1789, that this historic event took place, but dreadful, bloody years were to follow before the French Republic was established. It is pointed out by John Walker Harrington in the New York Times, that while Louis pretended to accept the new Constitution, the interference and the wiles of the Central Powers still operated upon him, and encouraged him to a course which afterwards was to cost him his life. When he made that last flight in a vehicle called not inappropriately a berliner, whose journey Carlyle has described in one of his most famous passages, his purpose was to reach his friends in Berlin and Vienna and gather a Prussian and Austrian army to attack his own country. It was a German officer who arranged the details of the flight, and a German squadron of horse dashed 24 miles in a vain effort to rescue the King and Queen from the authority of the French town of Varennes, and take them safely across the Rhine.

THE TERROR, THE COMMUNE, REPUBLIC.

Followin gthe reports of French territory having been violated came the Reign of Terror, and the warning of the Duke of Brunswick that all soldiers who fought for the liberty of France would be condemned. The Commune was brought on by a Hun advance toward Paris, and the fall of Verdun, whose commandant killed himself rather than surrender. At Valmy, the invasion was stopped and it is on this account that Valmy is reckoned one of the most decisive battles of history. Not greatly different from the issues that were settled for the time being at Valmy are the issues that are being decided to-day upon French soil, except as we believe that this is the final decision, the verdict of the Supreme Court of Mankind that is being awaited. In Germany and in Austria feudalism has found its last stronghold. There is another Bastile to be destroyed, more menacing, more powerful than that old grey building in the Fauberg St. Antoine that the sons of France threw down 129 years ago.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterboro Bowlers in Good Trim for the Tournament

Over Forty Rinks Will be Presen From All Over Ontario When Big Tournament Opens Here on August Fifth.

Arrangements are nearly complete for the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association tournament which will open in Peterborough on August the fifth. It is expected that at least forty rinks will be present from outside points. Toronto is sending down ten or fifteen rinks, while others will come from Oshawa, Port Hope, Millbrook, Kingston, Lindsay, Port Perry, Barrie, Orillia, Belleville and other points. The local bowlers are in good trim and they intend to put up a good battle for the Stratton and Gillespie trophies, in addition to the other silverware.

Baseball is Torn With Conflicting Conceptions of the "Work or Fight" Regulations

Baseball is torn with conflicting conceptions of the applicability of the "work or fight" order to the professional player. One draft board holds that the player is engaged in a non-useful occupation, a second plays a neutrality role, while a third is open in its recognition of the right of the player to equal consideration with the actor. The threat of this state has created more havoc in the ranks than any actual orders to players to many players are forced to leave get out of the game. Of course baseball will continue, no matter how their work, but the fan is rather riled that his favourite sport should not be accorded the same treatment as is given to the theatre in the ruling issued by Gen. Crowder. At least at this season America leans toward the ball field as much as toward the vaudeville theatre for its entertainment, and the actor is not one whit better than the ball player.

The fact remains that a comparison between the major leagues and the big line in theatricals does not shed any the less luster on baseball. No theatre has operated its doors wide for the free ingress of the man in uniform. We would far rather listen to the chatter of the infield and the crash of the claymore and the horsehide than to a set of senseless jokes that wore whiskers when Rip Van Winkle started off on his famous nap.

They talk about Walter Johnson being the strike-out king, but how about the struck-out king? The struck-out emperor of baseball last season was Leslie, a Texas league first baseman, who fanned no less than 116 times during the campaign —about once in every four times he went to bat.

W. TAYLOR HAS BEEN SUSPENDED

C. W. A. EXECUTIVE TAKES ACTION IN CASE OF W. TAYLOR FOR BREAKING RULES AT PETERBORO MEET.

Important action was taken at the meeting of the executive committee of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association, which was held at the office of Chairman F. A. O. Johnston, of the Dominion racing board here.

W. Taylor, of the "H.M." Club, of Toronto, a prominent rider, was suspended for six months for winning the novice race at Peterboro on July July 1st, after having graduated from the novice class in August, 1917. His sentence was dated from the day of the offence, July 1st. This suspension will prevent Taylor from racing at the Newark Velodrome during his vacation, as he proposed to do. He will also be unable to ride at the meet of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association here, and at the Exhibition games.

The C.W.A. Executive decided to suspend for a year the next rider who is brought upon the carpet for riding in any race for which he is not eligible.

LAWN BOWLING

There was a very close game played last night in the doubles contest between the Oke and Taylor rinks, with the following score:

Oke	000223120000—10
Taylor	331000001132—14

The district bowling tournament which will take place here on Monday, August 5, it is expected, will be one of the largest that has been held for some time. Rinks are expected from Brockville, Kingston, Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Pickering, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Keene, Lindsay, Port Perry, Uxbridge, Niagara and other places.

Arrangements are made by which all the old bowlers will be asked to come on the tournament day to bowl. The non-attached bowlers will not be asked to join the club, but their help is asked to enable the local bowlers to muster enough men to meet the visitors. No less than a hundred men will be needed.

The refreshment booths will be in charge of one of the local Red Cross Societies.

Millbrook took three games out of five played with two rinks from Peterboro on Thursday afternoon. The local bowlers who made the trip were Dr. Hammond, A. Payne, R. Elliott and W. J. Oke, skip; E. Walton, J. C. Read, J. Skinner and T. C. Elliott, skip.

SPORTING COMMENT

Fighting Dick Loadman, claimant of the bantamweight championship by virtue of having knocked out Johnny Ertle at St. Paul, has received an invitation from Bob Edgren, in charge of the big training camp activities boxing show to be staged in Madison Square Garden next Tuesday night, to appear in a bout with Joe Lynch of Jersey City. "Loadman and Lynch would make an excellent additon to our splendid card, and we would like to get his acceptance," Edgren wired yesterday.

The card will be absolutely the greatest ever presented in the country. In the headline Jack Dempsey, leading contender for the world's heavyweight championship, will meet Billy Miske.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion and Packey McFarland, the greatest boxer of his time, will also engage in real bouts. Their opponents will be selected this afternoon by Bob Edgren and William H. Wellman, who has obtained a furlough from his soldier duties at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, to manage the big show at the request of the training camp commission.

The Miske-Dempsey bout is one of the best ever arranged for a benefit or regular show and promises plenty of action from the first gong to the finish.

Johnny Dundee, has been banned forever from boxing in Baltimore. Following his "runout" on George Chaney and the Monumental City A. C., ten days ago, Deputy Police Marshall House, who regulates boxing in the Maryland city, has decided Dundee's kind isn't wanted there.

Even the novice among the boxing fans can remember only a few years back when to mention Al McCoy's name with that of Jack Dillon would ersult in a police call and an examination for sanity. Still, the other night McCoy and Dillon met at Charleston, W. Va., and the best Dillon could get was a draw. The once terrible "Submarine" and "Mankiller" has surely gone back.

Tom Sharkey has gone back to the old love. He graduated from a man o' war in Frisco many years ago and gained fame by knocking out Bob Fitzsimmons on the occasion of that famous Wyatt Earp decision. Tom prospered and waxed fat and rich. Then he last money on the trotting turf, made bad investments and encountered financial and domestic difficulties. Recently, he has been engaged in a munitions factory, but he has quit that job to enlist in the navy and get back to the wave and the big war. Tom is made of the right stuff.

Connecticut now has a boxing commission and all contracts are to be filed with the board at least six days prior to the match. Boxers and promoters will be held to the strict letter of all contracts and other good rules have been adopted to protect and foster the sport.

WORLD SERIES IF BASEBALL LASTS.

ANNUAL CLASSIC SURE TO BE PLAYED UNLESS GAME IS KILLED.

New York, July 11. — Assuming that the "Work or Fight" order will not interfere with major league baseball this year, it is a sure thing that the World's Series will be played in October. The rumpus over the Perry case will not cause a baseball war until some time next winter, if then.

There is so much money in the World's Series for players and magnates that the games will be played regardless of political differences between the big circuits. As a matter of fact the public isn't a bit interested in the quarrels of the magnates. The game is the thing and the fans care for nohing else.

Voice of The People

July 12th, 1918.
Peterborough.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—A municipal fuel controller should be subject to the Council; and the Council are the honoured servants of the electors of the borough they represent.

At the deputation on the coal supply question, it was evident that the Peterborough Fuel Controller was not the man for the job; and I believe the concensus of opinion is, that the local fuel controller, has not got grasp of the situation in broad enough thought, and manner. The statements made by him at the meeting of the deputation prove a very narrow vision. In these times of stress, it often becomes necessary for the government of a country to take over, and control big interests, to avoid, or at least alleviate a shortage, or smash a monopoly. The necessity of municipal intervention, in the coal situation, is now here, in Peterborough, and as suggested in an open letter to the Council last February, let the slogan be coal and more coal. If it is a precedent the Council is looking for, I call the attention of the Council to the action of the Fuel Controller of Guelph; (a man with initiative), you will see he assumed authority, and his action is upheld, and now recalcitrant coal dealers are likely to loose their license. That man of Guelph has vision, that man, Sir, is worth his weight in gold, or coal. Peterborough wake up, get a man as Fuel Controller. Follow the voice of the people.

Yours truly,
TIMOTHY.

Peterborough, Ont., July 12, 1918.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—As a member of the G.W.V.A. I think you might have done justice to that body when the Y.M.C.A. directors at length saw the necessity of publishing its now celebrated statement, and did so. The Y.M.C.A. quite clearly is just such a business concern as any other company, whose chief aim is to sell goods with as large a margin of profit as possible.

Every other company that provides canteens for soldiers have their recreation-rooms, run victrolas, provide writing paper with the particular company's name upon it as an advertisement. They also encourage sports, but always with a view to further the company's interest. Some of our biggest companies are run that way.

Now the sales branch of the Y.M.C.A. represents nine-tenths of their transactions. Half a million dollars is the total spent by them for the benefit of the soldiers, while the balance of 3 million dollars is spent in the purchase of goods for sale to the soldiers, and which are paid for by them.

The soldier has or can have a canteen of his own managed by the Government. There is no benefit to the soldier in the Y.M.C.A. canteen which he could not obtain, and in many instances does obtain, in his own canteen. The long and short of the whole matter is that the public is subscribing large sums which should go to the chaplains, churches and Salvation Army Institutes, especially as the money is subscribed by all classes of people.

The Y.M.C.A. spends about 10 per cent. of it to amuse the soldiers, and the balance in a great business undertaking, which furnishes the wholesalers' profits, amounting to an immense sum, which should rightly go to the benefit of the soldier for whom it was collected.

Thanking you, sir, for your valuable space,

I Am Another G.W.V.A. Man.

Without wishing to prolong the discussion of this topic, the Examiner must confess itself utterly unable to follow the logic of the writer of the above letter. He finds fault with the fact that the Y.M.C.A. spent over two million dollars in the purchase of goods to be sold to the soldiers, suggesting that the wholesalers are making a big profit. No doubt the men who sell the supplies to the Y.M.C.A. do so at a profit, but the same thing applies to the goods sold to the Salvation Army or to any other concern who are serving the soldiers.

In the public mind the most serious charge made against the Y.M.C.A. by the Veterans was that the profits from the canteens was so great that the overseas work should be self-sustaining, and that therefore there was no need of a canvass for funds in Canada. The financial statement published by the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. refutes that charge. It clearly shows that the profits from the sale of articles to the soldiers are not enough to carry on the work that is being done. It shows the expenditure of large sums on free drinks and other comforts, on athletic supplies, on free concerts, lectures, picture shows, etc., and also shows that a percentage of the receipts is paid directly to the troops.

The statement answers the charge that the work is self-sustaining, and now the writer of the letter printed above complains of the cost of the goods bought. Does he think the Y.M.C.A. should get their supplies for nothing? Of course the wholesalers are making a profit out of the enterprise, as they do on every other transaction, but surely "G.W.V.A. Man" does not blame the Y.M.C.A. for that.

For five years this Maxwell motor car has remained standard in practically its present form.

That's four years longer than some of its would-be rivals have stayed in business.

And it is longer than any other comparable model has endured.

Of course we haye changed body lines and other external details from time to time, for the Maxwell clientele is fastidious as well as frugal.

Maxwell buyers demand style and finish; and all those other qualities that make all the difference to the owner who would be proud of the looks as well as pleased with the performance of his car.

But mechanically the changes in all those years have been in refinements of details only.

We have never had to apologize for a single detail—never found it necessary to change any unit—in the original Maxwell.

And you know, that had there been a single weak link—one detail that was faulty in the slightest—keen competition would have forced a change of such.

When, after looking them all over, you select a Maxwell motor car for yours, you have the satisfaction of knowing that more than a quarter of a million other careful buyers endorse your judgment and your good taste.

Better decide while the present price holds—there's no telling when it may have to advance again.

CLAIMING THE GREAT MEN

(Vancouver World)

Not content with annexing Shakespeare, da Vinci, Michael Angelo, and the Founder of the Christian religion, the Boche now claims that Napoleon was a German. The discovery is made by Professor Dr. Otto Hauser ,who solemnly declares that the great Corsican was a German on his mother's side, her maiden name of Ramolino being merely "a corruption of Rammlein." This is too much even for the Berlin Post, which asserts that the learned professor is among the scholars whose profound studies have somewhat unbalanced their judgment.

THE CHARGE OF THE "LIMB" BRIGADE.

(New York Sun.)

Half an inch, half on inch,
Half an inch shorter,
Whether the skirts are for Mother or daughter,
Briefer the dresses grow,
Fuller the ripples now,
While Whisking glimpses show
More than they oughter.

Forward the dress parade,
Is there a man dismayed?
No—from the sight displayed
None could be sundered.
Theirs not to make remark,
Clergyman, clubman, clerk,
Gaping from noon till dark,
At the Four Hundred.

Short skirts to right of them,
Shorter to left of them,
Shorter in front of them,
Flaunted and flirted.
In hose of stripes and plaid,
Hued most exceeding glad,
Sporting in spats run mad,
Come the short-skirted.

Flashed all their ankles there,
Flashed as they turned in air—
What will not women dare?
Though the exhibits show
Some of them blundered.
All sorts of shapes of pegs—
Broomsticks, piano legs,
Here and there fairy shapes,
Just built to walk on eggs,
Come by the hundred.

When can their glory fade?
Oh, the wild show they made!
All the world wondered.
Grand dame and demoiselle,
Shop girl and Bowery belle—
Four Hundred—h'm, oh, well,
Any old hundred.

"WHAT'S THAT YOU'RE SMOKING?"

Like many other cigar cranks, I could easily recognize the aroma of a good cigar by the smoke. So my friend pulled out his cigar case, saying:— "There it is. Try it." We were in Eddy Wright's Cigar Store. I was waiting for a shave—my friend had just had one. After a few good puffs of the cigar, Eddy said: — "Would you like a dozen?" "Well, yes Eddy—a whole box, please." 2d

THAT LAD OF YOURS; OVERSEAS.

SIMLA SENDS MANY.

Record for Recruits Tripled for Year

LONDON, July 12.—Simla's recruiting returns show that the numerous recruited in the fourth year of the war will be three times as great as during the third year. Every Province shared this great development. Punjab heads the list, but the Sikhs, Gurghas, Mussulmen and Dugras are doing splendidly.

Burma is assiting valuably. The recruiting organization has become so powerful and elastic that it should be capable of meeting all demands made.

MAYOR AND ALD. TAYLOR TRYING TO GET COAL

Mayor Duncan and Ald. Taylor, while in Toronto on Thursday, visited the coal offices, but without any encouraging promise of obtaining supplies. Miss Sophie Cohen, an independen jobber, who has turned considerable coal toward Peterboro in the past, has been deprived of her permit to deal in Canada, it is learned, and this is another source of supply cut off.

THESE WERE WHOPPERS

In the scroll that records the 1918 list of producers of marvelous potatoes, already quite lengthy and interesting, enter the name of Mr. Dickson Davidson, who proudly displayed a Cobbler and a Delaware yesterday, that in size were as large as any the Examiner has seen this summer, and they were grown in a fresh broken plot on the Peterboro Lumber Company's property at Burnham's Point.

Spinach for fall use should be planted the second week in August.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

THROUGH DIFFERENT SPECTACLES.

(London Daily Exress)

Ludendorff looks at the war map and his soul is exalted, but Ludendorff's war map is confined to Europe. The Hamburg shipper looks at his map—a large map covering the whole world—and his heart is sad. Germany may temporarily enslave free nations, but we have bolted and barred her factory doors and without our consent they cannot be reopened.

THE MOST OVERWORKED PHRASE

(The London Chronicle)

At a London club of writing men —chiefly from Fleet street—there was an informal debate recently as to which is the most over-employed phrase of the war. Thirteen members took part in the argument; and on the question being put to a vote, it was found that twelve were of opinion that without doubt the most overworked phrase was: "When the history of this war comes to be written."

THE DUTY OF SELF PROTECTION.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger)

International law is not a body of statutes. It is rather an agreement a contract, among nations, to observe certain principles of humanity and justice. If one nation breaks this contract, the rest must proceed against it by any other means consonant with humanity and justice. Gemany has announced, as if in so many words, that she will not respect the sanctity of hospital ships. It would be worse than folly for the United States to take no steps to defend her own and put the responsibility upon an enemy who has again and again shown his allegiance to the doctrine that might makes right.

DOWNING ST. GOVERNMENT

(Hamilton Herald.)

Messrs Mewburn and Ballantyne have joined the other cabinet ministers in England. For a little while it looks as if we are to have another taste of "Downing Street Government."

MAKING IT STRONG.

(Detroit News)

"The army of the United States is the greatest army on the planet"—Secretary Baker.

In fact we can whip the army of any other gol durn planet if it dares to show itself. (It is always well to make it strong while on the subject.)

SIMILES

(Chicago Tribune)

"Russia is now like a strong man who is recovering from a serious illness," said Mr. Kerensky. Or like a strong man who sits in the sun smoking while his wife takes in washing.

QUITE CONSISTENT.

(New York World.)

A German agent in this city is charged with telling coloured men (1) that "Germany loves negroes," and (2) that if we send them to France, and the Kaiser's men catch them, "the Germans would cut off their ears and arms and would dig their eyes out." This consistent Teuton has qualifications for a Foreign Secretary.

WAY DOWN IN GEORGIA.

(Greensboro Herald-Journal.)

Probably the reason why some people borrow trouble is because their neighbours know them too well for them to borrow anything else. It is just human nature; but when a man does a heroic deed it seems that everybody is looking the other way.

EXECUT ETHE MURDERERS

(Hamilton Herald)

Expressions of opinion to the effect that there should be punishment after the war for the perpetrators of German atrocities are not uncommon, but they are usually set down as passing ebuilitions of anger and indignation. That cannot be said of the opinion of Mr. Gerard, formerly American ambassador at Berlin. That distinguished diplomat has deliberately delivered himself of the opinion that German officers who violate the laws of war, as in the sinking of the Llandovery Castle, the Lusitania etc., and in bombing hospitals, should be executed after the war; also the officials who gave them their orders. And why not? Their acts are not legitimate war, they are murder, and murder should not go unpunished.

ENTERTAINED THE GLEE PARTY.

Mr. J. E. Bates, the president of the Cressman Welfare Club, entertained the members of the Glee Party, which the above club has formed. All had an enjoyable evening, and had a full rehearsal for the entertainment to be given on the moonlight excursion on Tuesday, July 16th, for the benefit of the Prisoners of War Fund.

KEATING RETURNS TO YANKS.

St. Paul Gets Two Players for Former New York Pitcher.

ST. PAUL, July 9.— Pitcher Ray Keating of the St. Paul American Association Club has been traded to the New York American Club for two unnamed players, Manager Kelley announced to-day. Keating is already on his way to join the New York Club.

GROCERY MARKET

Supplies of sugar are again somewhat light, and no surplus stocks are being accumulated, says "Canadian Grocer" for this week. Some refiners have shut down temporarily, which throws the load on those operating, but the hope is expressed that shipments to come will take care of all requirements. Some of the refiners advanced prices 10 cents per cwt. on Tuesday.

Indications are that prunes for Canada will run mostly to small sizes, the United States Government having virtually taken over 50-60s and 60-70s, and larger being a very light crop. How Canada's allotment will work out is not yet known, and until orders are in after July 22, figures cannot be arrived at. Prices will be high.

Canned Goods.

The canned goods outlook is better, as far as peas and tomatoes are concerned, while corn is not so promising. Fruit pack also will be much pound. Winnipeg jobbers generally are carrying fairly heavy stocks of high-priced beans. So a drop is not looked for until present stocks are largely cleaned up.

Rice is High.

Rice at primary points is high, and the trade is not looking for a decline when new crop is offering. Jobbers' stocks locally art in good condition, and prices considerably below replacement values. Tapioca has shown a slight decline, while sago is said to be unprocurable at primary points.

A decline of 2c per pound has been recorded in shelled almonds, though orders are being taken subject to being able to get them through.

Fairly good stocks of 1917 dried fruits are still on hand, and big orders of prunes and raisins, 1917 stock, for August shipment, have been placed, and will, it is hoped, come through. Business generally is fair.

lighter this year — perhaps not over 65 per cent. or normal on the whole—at the outside.

Rolled oats are up 15c, and this affects oatmeal, too. With the oat market firm there is a likelihood of this commodity being held firmly. Cornmeals also hold, with a strong undertone, but no changes were made.

Changes for the week are few and are confined to upward revisions for salt, lye, soap powder and sal soda, while oil cake is quoted lower. The trade conditions are steady and on the quiet side.

Bean Crop.

Prospects of a heavy crop of white beans, with indications that Government requirements for the year have been largely met, point to a possibility of lower prices for this line. Japanese beans, new crop, have been offering at a decline of 5c per

METAL MARKETS

The 30c advance in the price of flaxseed during the week, coupled with the placing of an embargo against further shipments from the Argentine, has proved a factor in the sharp advance in linseed oil, ranging from 7c to 14c per gallon. The question of supplies is increasingly difficult, and a recession in present prices before new crop seed is available is not looked for. Crop reports as yet are rather indefinite to have a direct bearing on the market, but the reports from the West have taken on a somewhat pessimistic tone. The future cannot be determined under unusual conditions existing and that may develop. Turpentine has also attained higher levels, another 3c advance being made in some quarters, while others have withdrawn prices altogether until further supplies are available.

Revised prices have been issued on wrought iron pipe providing for an advance. Pipe fittings have also undergone revision upward, both malleable and cast being affected. Valves, compression bibbs, stop and waste cocks, basin and bath cocks are all now selling on a new scale of discounts which bring net prices to higher levels.

Shipments of Tin.

Some shipments of ingot tin have come to hand, but have been absorbed. Supplies to arrive are largely sold, though when further shipments will reach Canada is not known definitely. Prices are holding high, and offers of as much as $1.50 per pound have been made in an endeavour to secure spot stocks. Lead remains very firm, and spelter holds steady, while antimony records an advance of 2c per pound under increased demand.

A revision in values on solder has been made, and quotations now ruling are substantially below those prevailing for some time past. Lead pipe is holding steadily at advances established last week, and other manufactured lead products are unchanged.

Many miscellaneous though important lines in the hardwareman's stock have been changed during the week. In the list will be found blow torches, fire pots, thresher endless belts, semi-rotary wing pumps, sweeping compound and tie-out chains, all of which have registered advances.—"Hardware and Metal."

The Toronto Markets

OTTAWA, July 13.—Situation very firm. Montreal jobbing advanced one cent to fifty for extras, forty-six-seven for firsts. Winnipeg jobbing advanced to forty-three-four. More competition for quality and less for quantity would help Western situation. Toronto very firm, specials fifty-four, extras forty-nine, firsts forty-eight, country shippers forty-five f.o.b.

HULL MOTHER PRAISES TANLAC

Was Alarmed Over Daughter's Condition—Improvement Wonderful

"Yes, Tanlac has certainly been a wonderful help to my daughter, for she not only gained ten pounds on three bottles but she is really in better health than she has been in a good long time," said Mrs. Elmire Plouffe, who lives at 36 Chateauguay Street, Hull, the other day.

"For about eighteen months," she continued, "my daughter had been suffering from a stomach trouble, and although I had given her a lot of medicine she never improved at all. Her appetite failed and on going to the table she would just take a bite or two of this and that and never would eat a good, hearty meal. It looked like she couldn't relish a thing, and what little she forced down always disagreed with her, so that she was in great distress for hours afterwards. She said that her food just seemed to lodge right in her stomach, where it would sour and fill her up so with gas that she complained of a tight, heavy feeling and an awful pain in her side and chest. Sometimes after eating anything she would get right sick at the stomach, and she had heavy, dull headaches all the time. She lost ten pounds in weight and I was really worried over her condition, for she complained of feeling tired and worn out and didn't seem to have a bit of strength left.

"I had been reading so much about Tanlac that I finally decided to get a bottle for her. Well, before she had finished her first bottle I could see that she was picking up, and she certainly began to brighten up and look better. She has taken three bottles so far, and it has done her a world of good already. She has such a fine appetite now that no matter what she eats she is never troubled with gas or indigestion like she was before. She is gaining in weight right along, and tells me that she is ever so much stronger than she was before she started taking Tanlac. I am much gratified at her great improvement."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

NEW OFFENSIVE OPENS UP ON WESTERN FRONT

Battle Blazes Forth on a Sixty Mile Front---Americans Resist Heavy Attack---British Positions Improved---New Drive Directed Against Paris.

WEEK-END WAR BULLETINS

Monday morning bulletins:

PARIS, July 15.—(Official) — A new offensive by the Germans was begun last night in the region between Rheims and Argonne. On the front between Chateau Thiery and Main de Massiges, the Germans attacked this morning. The French are meeting the shock of the enemy attack with energy and the battle continues on a front of sixty miles.

ON AMERICAN FRONT.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE, July 15 (8:40 a.m. —The Germans at daylight to-day launched a violent attack against the American positions west of Chateau Thierry, especially near Vaux. The attack came after a most violent bombardment of high explosives and gas shells throughout the night. When the enemy infantry appeared the Americans swarmed out and met the attackers with a rain of machine-gun bullets. The Americans wore their gas masks as they fought the attackers. An enemy bombardment of towns in the rear of the lines began shortly after six o'clock.

8:55 a.m. — The latest reports say the Americans are holding their own in the fighting, maintaining their positions.

ON BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, July 15.—(Official) — In operations carried out last night British positions south of Villers-Bretonneux, in the region east of Amiens, were improved. Prisoners were taken.

BOLSHEVIKI DEFEATED.

ARE DISSATISFIED WITH THE BUCHAREST PEACE TREATY

More Such Peace Treaties and Huns are Lost Says Reichstag Conservative—Fiercely Scores Kuehlmann's Plan.

THE PEOPLE WERE HUMBUGGED

AMSTERDAM, July 15.— "One or two more such peace treaties and we are lost," exclaims Herr Von Grafe, a Conservative member of the Reichstag, in a fierce indictment of former Foreign Secretary Von Kuehlmann's "no indemnity, no annexations" peace treaty of Bucharest. The article, which is published in the pan-German Deutsche Zeitung develops four points as follows:

"First— Austria-Hungary has received by frontier rectifications the lion's share of the most valuable Roumanian territory, and not our enemies, but we have to shoulder our billions of war debt.

"Second—The petroleum agreement is an absolute swindle. But it the banks profit, but not the German people, who will have to pay dearly for their oil.

People Humbugged.

"Third—We get Roumanian, grain, but at usury prices, of which the Roumanian Treasury is sure to grab the main part by way of export duties, so it is we who pay in indemnity to Roumania.

"Fourth — The dynastic question and the position of Jews in Roumania are dealt with on the basis of the Berlin treaty of 1878, when self-determination and rights and non-interference in internal affairs of conquered States had not been invented."

The writer declares the German people have been sadly humbugged and that when their eyes are opened they will heap maledictions upon the heads of those who drafted the Bucharest treaty.

FURTHER PEACE OVERTURES EXPECTED FROM GERMANY

Germany Would Sacrifice West to Get Russia, Is President Wilson's View—Hertling's Reference to Belgium Is Marked.

BELGIUM TO BE USED AS PAWN

WASHINGTON, July 15.—No official cognizance is being given here to the latest peace speech of German Chancellor Von Hertling before the main committee of the Reichstag.

As is the case with all pronouncements of the kind, the speech is being carefully read and digested by American officials, and in time they doubtless will learn of the opinions of the statesmen of the co-belligerents.

There is nothing to indicate that it will be made the occasion for any step toward peace negotiations, as President Wilson's last pronouncements on the subject are generally accepted as the war aims of all the allied belligerents.

Used as a Pawn.

The Chancellor's declaration that Germany simply was holding Belgium as a pawn for negotiations attracted most interest of all. The general impression among diplomatists has been that Belgium would be used by Germany to regain her lost colonies.

The Chancellor's statement that his willingness to discuss peace was shared by the chief of the army administration was regarded as significant as the first peace expression attributed to the military leaders.

It became known that further and more definite peace proposals from the German Government would not be unexpected. President Wilson is known to hold to the opinion that Germany is now bent on gaining control of Russia and would willingly give up everything on the Western front to accomplish that purpose.

ON THE OFFENSIVE.

ROME, July 14.—Five thousand prisoners more recorded in Albania. The Italians are still on the offensive.

Making It Clear.

(Dayton, Wash., Chronicle.)

It begins to look like the allies have got the kaiser looking at his hole card. He holds a bobtail flush and has only one more draw coming. Uncle Sam is dealing, too.

Lunge fishing is excellent in the lake. Mr. A. C. Carveth was fortunate enough to capture eight five lunge this week, averaging ten pounds each.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Little Eva McIlmoyle, daughter of Mrs. Laura McIlmoyle, had a very narrow escape from drowning. The young girl was in with a number of others near the boat houses on Water street, when she got beyond her depth and would undoubtedly have drowned but for the prompt action of Miss Helen Bygott, who immediately swam out and brought her to the shore. Part of the distance Helen had to walk on the bottom of the river completely under the water.

Mrs. George H. Rowe and family moved to Peterboro last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Madill and family left this week for Athens, Ont., where they intend farming for the next two months.

Mr. J. W. Ridpath went up to Sandy Point on Saturday to help set up the tents for the Girl Guides.

MOTORED TO LINDSAY.

Owing to be unable to get train accommodation, the Orangemen, for the Lakefield district with their friends, motored to Lindsay. It required between fifty and sixty cars to carry them out. There were a few minor accidents on the trip but altogether the day passed off nicely and all returned safely to their homes. There was no parade in Lakefield at all during the day, but at Lindsay the two Lakefield lodges made a splendid showing:

Beresford L.O.L., No. 122.
Bro. Roland Darling, W. M., with 44 members in the procession.
Young Canadian L. O. L., No. 1385.
Bro. George Hill, W.M., with 22 members in the procession.

The village rate has been struck this year; the assessment is $55,000 lower than last year, and although not raising any more money in taxes than last year ,the rate is proportionately higher, being 34 mills on the dollar.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

THE CHRISTENING

CHAPTER CXVII.

Little Helen was to be christened. I was more excited than was Evelyn. I had insisted upon giving her the christening robe and cap. What an exciting time I had buying it. I am sure I wore out the patience of more than one shop girl before I found one to suit me. Evelyn went into ecstasies over it; and really it was lovely.

George was out of town the day the baby was christened. I was so sorry because to my surprise he had consented to go to the christening But nothing could dampen my excited happiness. It was almost like having a baby of my own I told Evelyn. To have one named after me, to be god-mother.

The baby behaved beautifully, she never made a sound; just squirmed a little and puckered up her nose in funny little wrinkles when the clergyman put the water on her little head. I almost laughed to see how cute she looked making a face at the Clergyman.

We had refreshments afterward. Just the families and me. Mrs. Reeves, Kurtz's mother, was lovely. She seemed to forget all her coldness, and just mothered Evelyn and the baby as if she were Evelyn's own mother.

I said something of the sort to Evelyn when we were alone and she replied:

"I am sorry I ever said the things about her I did. Yet I always tried to do nothing to displease her. But I didn't know her, I guess I didn't try to know her. She is simply wonderful, and so lovely to me. It was only that I wasn't used to her dignimen in the little town I came from men in the little town I came from

"I guess that's the way with a lot of people, we don't try to know them," I said slowly, thinking that perhaps I didn't know George even yet.

A GOOD INFLUENCE.

Talking with Evelyn about her mother-in-law had been a good thing for me I mean it helped me. I thought of how stiff and formal I had thought her, how unapproachable. Here she was acting just like any other mother, yet always the delicately refined woman; the dignified society woman, but the mother; the woman with a heart as well. Perhaps in a sort of man-fashion George was something like her. I had not found my way down where he lived, I only judged him by his outside, as I complained he judged me. What a tangle life was. No matter how hard we tried, there seemed always misunderstandings and heartaches.

Upon his return George seemed pleased to hear all about the christening. When I confessed that I had been horribly extravagant in buying the robe he smiled and said:

"I guess I can stand the strain," he was always like that about money matters. He indulged me in anything I wanted to do. Now as I look back across the years, I realize that I was not at all extravagant. That my ideas of extravagance were the ideas of the small town girl whose parents were in moderate circumstances. That had I spent far more than I did it would not have been at all out of place because George expected me to spend enough money to keep up his social position in every way. But often I apologized for my bills ,altho he never had criticized them.

A GAY WINTER

We were very gay at this time. But I scarcely let a day pass that I did not see my illtle namesake. It was usually in the morning. My afternoons were all occupied. Dressmakers, receptions, dinners, balls, kept me too busy to think. Then there was my music, that I would not neglect. It was the one thing in which I absolutely pleased George. He never had done anything but praise me, and was, I knew, proud of my talent. Had I not loved music as I did, I still should have kept up my practice for his sake; for the happiness I had because I could interest and please him.

Sometimes when we were going out to dinner he would come home early and before we dressed we would go into the music room and without any light I would play for him for an hour. He said it rested him more than anything else to sit in the dark and listen to my music.

At all the affairs we attended Julia Collins and Madge Loring were always en evidence. Julia grew more daring in her remarks to George, took less pains to dissemble before me. He seemed absolutely oblivious that she was doing anything at all out of the way; anything to which I could object.

After a particularly obnoxious remark I said to him:

"I wonder what Mrs. Collins would think if her husband were alive and I said such a thing to her?"

"What has her husband being alive got to do with it?"

"Nothing much! Only it seems rather more—we'll say impolite to insult a wife when her husband is with her."

"Nonsense! You are always imagining things, Julia didn't mean a thing. She knows me so well she thinks she can say what she pleases."

"But she doesn't know me so well, and the remark was to me."

"For heaven's sake, Helen, do stop your faultfinding. It is a most disagreeable habit," George exclaimed impatiently, then went directly back to Mrs. Collins and commenced to chat and laugh with her.

Tolls on Belgian Skippers.

Bombardment, fire and sword have not been the only enemies of Antwerp. Holland, lover of freedom as she is, was unable in the past to resist the temptation to play the part of a Rhine robber and levy toll on the ships sailing up the Scheldt. The French, after a century and a half of this injustice, came in 1794 to the rescue of Belgium, and compelled Holland to relinquish the dues. Antwerp then forged ahead, aided by the fine harbors and quays that Napoleon built. All went well until the Belgian revolution of 1830, when the Dutch found themselves in a position again to levy toll on the poor Belgian skippers. The revived blackmail lasted for thirty years, and was only ended by the payment of 30,000,000 francs to the Dutch. Of this vast sum Belgium had to find one-third. Since then Antwerp has never gone back.

Never Washed Herself.

Benevolent Old Lady (to little girl)—My little dear, do you wash your face and hands every morning?

"No, mum."

"Good gracious! That's perfectly dreadful. Do you wash your face in the middle of the day?"

"No, mum."

"Dear me! When do you wash yourself?"

"I never washes."

"Horrible! It is shocking how depraved the lower classes are. I must organize a society to see that children are properly washed. Tell me, little one, do you really never wash yourself?"

"No, mum. Mamma washes me every morning." — London Telegraph.

Superstitions About Sneezing.

Xenophon, Prometheus, Themistocles and Cicero regarded a sneeze as a favorable omen. Among the Hindoos and Persians, however, sneezing and yawning were ascribed to demoniacal possession. The Hindoo snaps his thumb and finger and repeats the name of one of his gods. The Moslems believe that the devil may leap into a gaping mouth, and hence when he yawns he drews the back of his hand over his mouth and mutters this prayer, "I seek refuge with Allah from Satan, the accursed."

Breaking In.

"How is the new girl going to do?" asked Mr. Ferguson.

"She hasn't had much experience," said his wife, "but I think she will be all right when she gets broken in."

There came a loud sound of falling crockery from the kitchen.

"She seems to be making a good start, anyhow," observed Mr. Ferguson encouragingly.

Eskimo Wrestling.

Next to gambling the Eskimo men like to wrestle. The usual way of doing this is a test rather of strength than skill. The wrestlers sit down on the floor in any convenient place side by side and facing in opposite directions, say with right elbows touching. Then they lock arms, and each strives to straighten out the other's arm.

Strong and Flexible Both

If Goodyear Cord Hose was merely strong, or merely flexible, it would be much less notable. Much hose is strong. Much hose is flexible. But little, very little, hose is strong and flexible both. Goodyear Cord Hose is. That is why it is handled more easily, is free from bursts and trouble, lasts longer, and costs less in the end.

Features of construction have made the Goodyear Cord Tire famous. The same construction is winning garden-lovers to Goodyear Cord Hose.

COAXING THE FURNACE.

Try Gentleness and the Uplift and Kindly, Soothing Words.

Treat your furnace kindly. Let your watchwords as a furnace tender be gentleness and uplift. Be firm with your furnace, but always gentle. Some persons imagine that the way to make a furnace behave properly is to first shake it violently and then maul the life out of the remaining coals with the poker. They try chastisement when they should try gentleness and uplift and only succeed in packing the coal harder and destroying ventilation, the secret of successful furnace tending.

Nothing responds more readily to uplift than does a furnace fire. When in the early morning you wish to arouse the furnace fire from its slumbers, you should first shake it gently, then gently tickle the ribs of the grate with the poker to make ventilation more perfect and then crack the top crust with a lever-like uplifting use of the poker. In a minute the fire will be wide awake and in good humor, laughing and sticking out its tongues of flame at you in merriment.

Never swear at your furnace, no matter how it annoys you. That will make it sulky and obstinate. You never saw a furnace which was sworn at often which was not frequently sulky and obstinate. Now, did you? It is advisable to take the directly opposite tack. I know a man who always addresses his furnace as "sweetheart" or "darling," and he assures me the plan works to perfection. "Maybe it doesn't really make the furnace warm up the way it seems to," he frankly admits. "Maybe the mere suggestion just keeps me from losing my temper and hammering my fire to pieces. But, anyway, the results are excellent. Savvy?"—Lee Shippey in Judge.

Aisle on the Car In a Wreck.

A veteran railroad man gave a piece of valuable advice not long ago.

"If you ever get into a wreck," he said, "and have time to follow out this suggestion, remember this: Always stand in the aisle. Most of the injuries that are suffered occur because the victim is crushed between the seats. If you are in the aisle you may be thrown forward and bruised a little, but there is much less chance of receiving serious hurts. It isn't always possible to get out of your seat before the crash comes, but if it is follow that advice."

Tools, Not Toys.

Flimmer—Met Dimson downtown today. He'd just bought a tin horn, a triangle, some blocks, a rattle box, some sleigh bells and a popgun. I didn't know he had a baby. Flamson—He hasn't. He's a vaudeville trap drummer. Those things are part of his outfit.—Puck.

They Were Not.

A young clergyman, small of stature, preaching as a candidate in a certain place one Sabbath, peering over the pulpit Bible, announced as his text: "It is I. Be not afraid."

Arab Horse Test.

A good horse, according to an Arab test, is one that can stand perfectly erect upon his legs when drinking from a shallow pool.

As we grow less young the aged grow less old.—Bacon.

A Serious Matter

There is a delicacy about mentioning piles. And yet so many suffer needlessly who could be readily relieved and cured if they only knew about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Men tell one another about this remarkably successful treatment. But many women pine away their health and vitality, dreading a surgical operation and not knowing how easily they can be cured at home by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Hermine's Neighbors

By EDITH WELLS

Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The good neighbor rocked back and forth slowly before the crackling bank of embers on Hermine Whipple's hearth, and from time to time sipped the cup of steaming chocolate that Hermine had set beside her on the little teakwood stand.

"It really does seem a shame, Hermine," she said, rocking back, "that you should have no one to share it with," rocking forward and looking through spectacles into Hermine's face. Then a sip of the chocolate. "My husband said only this morning, 'What a shame that there are no nice bachelors about here'—you mustn't mind, Hermine, that is just his way—'what a shame there isn't some one to share that nice warm house these cold days,' and really, I must say, Hermine, this is the warmest place I've been in for days. With coal so short and the wind so nipping, I'm sure I don't see how you do it. Why, this fire here makes the room perfect, and it's not a bit close, either."

Hermine leaned over in her rocker and refilled the neighbor's chocolate cup from the chocolate pot that she kept warm by the side of the hearth. "The cups are very small," she urged, and then: "Oh it's just the way these grates are built. Then, you know, my grandfather made quite a hobby of laying fires, and old Rachel and I learned from him. But I'm sorry," she smiled, "that no one can share it. Do come often, if you find it comfortable, and I'll try to get some of the factory girls to come up for supper. There are some who are really quite in distress this winter. They must be cold."

"Oh, it isn't the poor only who suffer. Why, no one can get coal, and most folk haven't the knack you have with wood fires. Why, Mrs. Dalrymple has not had any coal for a week, and really she has to stay in bed to keep warm. She tells people she's ill; but she told me in confidence that it was simply that she hated to get up in the cold. And there is Mr. Denslow Gray, next door"—here the neighbor looked up from her chocolate cup and rocked forward at the same time, to study Hermine's face. "Mr. Gray, you know, hasn't any coal at all, and they say that he has all sorts of money, in spite of the way he lives—alone in that big house, with just his man Moses. I'm really afraid he'll take pneumonia. Poor Mr. Gray! It seems so strange he never married. Still, he isn't old—only forty, and I suppose there are a good many women would be glad to have him. Still, he must be very cold there." And then, rising to go, the neighbor murmured on: "I am so glad that you are warm enough, Hermine. Yes, I'll come again real soon, you are so comfortable"—then draining her cup—"such delicious chocolate!"

Hermine saw her good neighbor to the door, and then calling through a door that led to the kitchen she summoned her woman of all work and sole companion, Rachel. The plump old colored woman hobbled in and, taking the chair the good neighbor had vacated, answered Hermine's questions. Yes, old Moses had been begging a little wood from their plentiful pile every morning. He said the master had no coal, and Moses' rheumatiz was so bad he could cut no wood till it got warmer. The cold weather always stiffened Moses' arms just that way.

"Please tell Moses tomorrow," said Hermine, with a confidential tone to her good woman, "that he can't have any more wood. Tell him—but not as if I suggested it—that you think if they want more wood Mr. Gray had better ask me for it. And, Rachel, you might order two nice chickens tomorrow—one for that soup you make with the gumbo and another to roast; and see that you have a good fire in the range; and you might make crullers tomorrow—and if Moses begs any crullers for Mr. Gray you tell him he can't have them."

The colored woman looked her surprise, but only rocked back and forth. "Yes, Miss Hermine," she said, "I always did think you were too good—it's a long time I've had to hand crullers and things over the fence on account of Mr. Gray. I certainly think you are showing good sense, Miss Hermine. I reckon Mr. Gray will be pretty cold without the wood, but it sure does serve him right."

The next day Moses begged for wood in vain, and at ten o'clock the morning after Mr. Gray himself called and asked to see Miss Hermine. It was a most unusual occurrence. There was not, as some of the neighbors supposed, any feud between the houses of Whipple and Gray, but for ten years the bachelor had never called on his spinster neighbor. Then Hermine, recently left alone in her rambling old house, was twenty-five and Denslow Gray was thirty. He had called often then, till gossiping tongues had cut his calls short. He had heard through Moses that neighbors were expecting an engagement between himself and his neighbor, and so annoyed was he at the interference that the calls had ceased. He left the neighborhood and lived in the city for several years, and it was only within the last few years, when apparently all gossip had ceased, that he returned.

On this momentous morning he called very formally and requested his neighbor, with great formality, to sell him a little wood. He regretted having to annoy her, but he had heard from Moses that she had plenty, and, owing to the coal shortage, he was actually suffering from the cold. As he spoke Hermine led him to the corner of the living room nearest to the crackling embers on the hearth. The only chair available for him was the comfortable one the good neighbor had found so inviting. The fire was unusually inviting, and the rows of Temple Bites that bloomed on a stand near a sunny window at one side of the room gave a suggestion of warmth and cheer that captivated the neighbor. He rose to go, and then resumed his seat when Hermine went to the kitchen door and called to Rachel to ask her whether she could spare a little wood. At the door she whispered: "Hurry in with a pot of chocolate and nice buttered toast. Look surprised when you see Mr. Gray, and make a move to take the chocolate away. Hurry, Rachel."

Hermine walked slowly back to the fireplace. "My woman is looking to see whether we have any wood chopped," she was saying, and then the old woman entered with the tray. She started at the sight of the caller and pretended to return to the kitchen.

"That's all right, Rachel; you may bring it in," said Hermine. And then, turning to Mr. Gray, she went on: "You see, I usually have chocolate at this time on cold mornings. Rachel, another cup please. Oh! please, Mr. Gray, let me give you a little—it is so warming."

A half hour later, when the caller rose to go for the third time, he asked Hermine whether he might send Moses over at once with a basket for a little wood; they actually had no fuel to cook dinner. Hermine looked puzzled. She said the wood was in a shed at the end of the garden, and that the man who came to carry the wood had the key. She was sorry, and then: "Won't you share my own very simple dinner? I believe Rachel is roasting a chicken. It is beefless day, you know, and Rachel is very patriotic. She has made crullers—I can't offer you very much. Please stay, and Rachel will call to your man Moses to have him get a bite with her in the kitchen."

Mr. Gray accepted the invitation, though as he did so something that he mistook for his conscience pricked him. He felt that he was breaking down a barrier that it had taken him ten years to build up.

At six that afternoon Mr. Gray still lingered. He was playing cribbage with his spinster neighbor before the fire, with the light of a skilfully arranged bracket-lamp that threw just the right shadows on the board and a mellow, becoming glow on Hermine's face, in the kitchen Rachel was making savory coffee. A pan of johnny cake was browning beautifully in the oven, and a broiler of bacon was spitting on the fire. Rachel was laughing to herself—or rather to old Moses, who sat watching in admiration, with a growing appetite, at one side of the stove.

Hermine did not even ask her neighbor to stay to tea—it seemed to be such a matter of course for him to remain there in the glow of her fire rather than to go home to his own barnlike abode to feed upon cold meat and damp, chilled bread.

When Rachel had cleared away the things Mr. Gray drew his chair closer to that of Hermine. "You're a wonderful woman, Hermine," he said. "I made up my mind once that you were cold; but you've been thawing out my heart today—my heart and incidentally my fingers. I know it is only charity on your part. You are doing it in the same spirit that you had the factory girls here last night. The worst part of going home isn't the fact that it is as cold as a barn—it's because I'll have to leave you."

Hermine's expression showed complete amazement. She told Mr. Gray that never in the world had she imagined that he might want to marry her—the fact was that Mr. Gray had not expressed his sentiment in just those words—but she did hate to have him go home in the cold. Her guest room was very warm; Rachel kept a fire there. She wondered whether it might not be arranged for him to stay.

And that is how it happened that about eight o'clock that night Denslow Gray and Hermine Whipple roused the minister from where he huddled by his own meager grate fire. "We've been intending to be married for some years," Denslow explained, "and now we want to spring a surprise on the neighbors. Yes, it is rather cold," he answered, "but an old bachelor doesn't have time to think of the temperature on his wedding day."

Are You Master

or does your business master you? Does it insist on following you home and to bed and worrying you day and night until you are on the verge of nervous collapse?

A few weeks' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do wonders for any business man or business woman whose nervous system has failed to stand the strain. It nourishes the nerves back to health and vigor.

The Best Habit In The World is the habit of health. The way to get it is to train your bowels, through the liver, to act naturally, at a fixed time, every day.

Take one pill regularly (more only if necessary) until you succeed. Then you can stop taking them, without trouble or annoyance.

This has been the good-health rule for 50 years.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Colorless faces often show the absence of Iron in the blood.

Carter's Iron Pills will help this condition.

Eskimos Lunar Myth.

An Eskimo myth relates that "when a girl was at a party someone told his love for her by shaking her shoulders after the manner of the country. She could not see who it was in the dark hut; she smeared her hand with soot, and when he came back she blackened his cheek with her hand. When a light was brought she saw that it was her brother and fled. He ran after her and followed her, but as she came to the end of the earth she sprang out into the sky. Then she became the sun and he the moon, and this is why the moon is always chasing the sun through the heavens, and why the moon is sometimes dark as he turns his blackened cheek toward the earth."

Good for Some Love Letters.

A letter written with a solution of iodide of starch in water is perfectly legible for a few days. It is not, properly speaking, in the "invisible" category—at all events, for a while. But writing thus made has the advantage that after a week or two it fades out and vanishes forever, leaving no evidence that can be used against its author.

Napoleon and Rousseau.

Napoleon on visiting the tomb of Rousseau said:

"It would have been better for the repose of France that this man had never been born."

"Why so, Citizen Consul?"

"It is he who prepared the French revolution."

"I should have thought, Citizen Consul, that it was not for you to complain of the revolution."

"Well," replied Napoleon, "the future will discover whether it was not better for the repose of the world that neither Rousseau nor I had ever been born."

In these words we hear the first clarion of advancing imperialism.—"The Personality of Napoleon," J. Holland Rose.

The Origin of "Hurrah."

The word "hurrah" is pure Slavonian and is commonly heard from the coast of Dalmatia to Bering strait when any of the population living within these limits is called on to give proof of courage and valor. The origin of the word belongs to the primitive idea that every man that dies heroically for his country goes straight to heaven—Hu-ray, to paradise—and in the shock and ardor of battle the combatants utter that cry, as the Turks do that of "Allah!" each animating himself by the certitude of immediate recompense to forget earth and to contemn death.

How Indians Purified Water.

The Indians had a way of purifying water from a pond or swamp by digging a hole about a foot across and down about six inches below the water level a few feet from the pond. After it was filled with water they bailed it out quickly, repeating the bailing process about three times. After the third bailing the hole would be filled with filtered water. Try it.—Boy Scout Handbook.

Why Corn Has Silk.

A Potato Hill man who is sixty-one years old never knew until recently that for every grain on an ear of corn there is a silk running out to the end to light and moisture. These silks run back under the husk. One is attached to each grain on the cob and nourishes it. Everything in nature is more wonderful than any invented story.—Potato Hill Cor. in Atchison Globe.

Culture's Progress.

"Our daughter is studying French, German, music, dancing and painting," said the fond mother complacently.

"Well," replied Mr. Cumrox, "that's a good start. But has she yet learned not to use back number slang and chew gum?"—Washington Star.

No Longer Company.

"Familiarity breeds contempt."

"True! When I was first invited over to their house to dinner they used to let the dishes go until morning; now they do them right after dinner and call me into the kitchen to help."—Detroit Free Press.

His Definition.

CAY DANCERS WERE GIVEN RUDE SHOCK.

Police Raided Chicago Hall and Arrested Eligibles; Fair Ones Fainted.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The round-up by Federal agents and the police of alleged slackers and unregistered aliens which brought to various police stations nearly 5,000 men last night continued to-day. Railroad stations, steamship docks, theatres, hotels, pool-rooms, restaurants and other public places were searched and those who could not show cards or proper credentials, were detained.

Out of the 5,000 questioned, some 400 were compelled to spend the night in jail, many of them being visitors from out of town.

There was great excitement at the municipal pier dance hall when the investigators appeared. Practically all of the several hundred men dancers were of draft age and the majority had failed to bring their registration cards.

When the separation of couples began some of the young women screamed and two fainted, believing their escorts were being arrested for criminal offences. Scores of young women were hurried away in taxi-cabs and street cars in search of registration cards of their escorts.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

Don't imagine that palatable food can be prepared from poor materials.

The Soles Workingmen Need

After all, when you figure it out, work-shoe value is largely a question of sole-value.

If soles wear long, shoe-costs come down.

There's the big reason why your work-boots should have Neōlin Soles.

For Neōlin Soles are soles of long wear. Especially in the thicker sizes used on work-boots. Especially on work-boots and children's boots where they contrast with the cheaper soles generally used.

Get Neōlin-soled work-boots for their longer wear.

But get them for other advantages that are possessed by Neōlin alone.

Cut out foot-weariness with Neōlin's flexibility—the very opposite of old-style stiff soles.

Protect your good health, your working hours and pay envelope, with Neōlin waterproofness—insurance against rain-soaked sidewalks and wet floors.

All these advantages can now be had in work-boots—with Neōlin Soles of medium thickness. Go to your shoe-store and ask to see such shoes.

While you are there see Sunday shoes for yourself and the wife—shoes for the children, too.

Take your present shoes to the repair-man and have him put on full-soles or half-soles of Neōlin.

Be sure it's really Neōlin—look for the name on the bottom of the sole.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada Limited

Neōlin-soled shoes are in most shoe stores. But you will find them more quickly by looking for this price-ticket in shoe-store windows.

New Fashions Are Sponsored by Summer

Colorless Effects Are Very Popular

NEW YORK, July 13.—There are many little developments of the summer fashions that are absolutely fascinating. What could be more adorable than the wide sun hats made of straw and taffeta interwoven, with perhaps a knitting bag to match? Then, too, the organdie hats with their high crowns of taffeta or satin and wee silken roses in pastel shades are absolutely bewitching worn with the fluffy frock of organdie or voile. One hat of beige coloured organdie had a knife pleated ruffle on the edge of the brim, and a narrow grosgrain ribbon of navy blue around the crown, ending in a saucy fly-away bow. Turbans with flat silken flowers veiled in maline make splendid street hats, and here and there one sees a hat made entirely of velvet or ribbon to remind us that cool days come after hot ones.

The Collarless Dress in Printed Voile

White shoes, too, are playing their parts. There are the low heeled sports shoes with insets of tan or brown or blue, to match the costume. There are high-heeled slippers of kid, buckskin or canvas suitable for afternoon and evening wear. And among the new comers are the linen shoes, some very high—as many as fourteen buttons! Of course, white stockings are the most appropriate for white footgear, and they can be of silk, lisle, cotton and even wool for sport wear.

The Collarless Dress.

There are so many of them, these collarless styles. They have been a great feature of the French modes, and really the simplicity of effect gained by the "straight across" neck is really charming. With the extremely simple waist, the skirt that is draped seems the most natural. The illustration shows one of these fascinating costumes. The buttons on the shoulder add a pleasing touch. This is certainly an example of the smartness of the dress without trimming, for not even a sash is worn, though a girdle of soft ribbon could be used if desired. The skirt is pleated at the high waistline, and is draped on the side. Any of the soft summer materials could be used for developing this design. Voile is particularly good, and soft silk, too, makes up charmingly.

Combinations of Materials.

This is no new style feature, and yet it is one of the most effective of the summer modes. Some of the combinations strike us as a trifle queer at first, but they are really interesting, and as a rule there is a very good reason behind the seeming inconsistency. For instance, there are many combinations of Georgette crepe and linen. Georgette crepe washes perfectly and keeps its dainty appearance far longer than either voile or organdie, the two most natural materials to combine with linen. Then, too, silk and satin are often used to trim the pique or other cotton frock. Printed chiffons have pique or organdie collars and vests, and the organdie sash with the gingham silk is absolutely bewitching.

Bazaar Keepers Send to Europe for Rugs to Sell to British Army Men.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Henry M. Jackson, who arrived in New York from India, China and Japan, on his way to England, said that rug dealers in Persia were full of guile and were making fortunes out of the British officers since the capture of Bagdad.

When the victorious army entered the ancient city the officers bought all the rugs they could find and sent them home to England as presents to their families. The prices asked by dealers in the bazaars, who brought their goods to Bagdad by caravans across the desert, were paid without questioning so easily that the merchants conceived the idea of sending to Cairo, Paris and London to buy back rugs they had sent there for sale before the war.

The plan succeeded, Mr. Jackson continued, and cases of rugs carefully packed soon began to arrive in Bagdad. A small rug, which cost originally about $50 in Bagdad and could have been bought in Paris for $75, was disposed of in its old Eastern home for $125 or more without difficulty.

"The Bengalee merchant in Calcutta," Mr. Jackson went on to say, "is also very clever at taking in the unsuspecting traveler from the west. In the bazaars the natives sell a trunk which they guarantee to be solid English leather for a very small price, because it has been used a little. The heaviest man in the shop jumps up and down several times on the lid, apparently without injuring the trunk in the least. He is really a hypnotist and throws the customer into a trance for a few minutes until the money has been paid and trunk sent to the traveler's hotel. This feeling lasts until Calcutta is some hundreds of miles away to sea or land, and then the deluded stranger discovers that his trunk is made of paper covered with a thin strip of brown polished leather."

Tigers and panhers have become so plentiful in India through the falling off of shooting parties since the war, he said, that it is not safe to walk through the forests.

USED FOR SHAVING.

Many men are troubled, more particularly in the cold weather, with a sort of roughnes of the skin or eczema caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave soon cures the trouble and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities this ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.

KERENSKY'S METHODS OFFEND PARISIANS

Confers Only with Extreme Socialists and Scorns Bourgeois Papers.

PARIS, July 12.—The visit of Kerensky to Paris has not so far proved to be a very striking success. It is generally felt here that the Russian ex-dictator can now only be looked upon as a back number, and French opinion inclines to the view that not much is to be expected from a man who failed so utterly to take advantage of the splendid opportunity offered him a few months ago, when he had all Russia at his call.

The result in that, as The Tempts remarks this evening, although Kerensky is here neither Paris nor the nation is showing itself very much excited at his presence. Kerensky has made the mistake, as the Journal points out, of regarding everything in this country that is not revolutionary socialistic a non-existent.

"Since he came to Paris," says the paper, "he has consistently referred to the middle classes with a scorn which can scarcely be described. He has made a practice of declining to meet ordinary Republicans and even Socialists-Radicals. He declines to confer with anybody except pure-blooded internationalists. Yet he is supposed to have come here to plead for help from France and her allies in reconstituting Russia as a nation.

"By what fresh aberration does he imagine that the Revolutionary Socialists have the right to speak for France and her allies? Does he think that this method he affects of separating the good grain from the rubbish is consistent with his self-imposed mission? Does he think that this attitude reveals him as an able politician?

"When he sees Wilson will Kerensky explain to him what precautions he has taken in order to avoid meeting all but an infinite minority in our country? Will he adopt the same tactics to America and treat the Revolutionary Socialists there as the only people worthy of him? Will he confess that he has been rather coldly received by our Socialist party, which in matters of foreign policy is still inspired by Karl Marx?"

The Temps says that Kerensky's visit could hardly have been less fruitful if he had confined his meetings to non-Socialist Frenchmen. His own chosen Socialist friends have asked him several very awkward questions. Among them, they wanted to know why he allowed the order to be issued which suppressed all discipline and resulted in the practical disbandment of the Russian army. They asked also why he had allowed Lenine to come back to Russia, and to travel from Switzerland in a special train supplied by Germany, and why he did not suppress treason when it became evident that the Bolshevist leaders and German spies were in collusion. Further, he was asked why did he throw Korniloff overboard.

These are questions, says the Temps, that come into the mind of any man speaking of Kerensky, and which he must answer or be discredited. Hhe Tempts discisses Kerensky as a man of words and nothing else, and complaints bitterly that although the ex-dictator loudly asserted at Moscow that he would put down indiscipline and treason with fire and sword he subsequently allowed treachery to be accomplished with the result that the only sufferers from fire and sword have been France and her allies.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S TWO GORED GATHERED SKIRT.

Variety is constantly being brought out by means of fabric combinations in separate skirts, arrangement of pockets, girdles, trimming touches, &c. Silk fabrics unquestionably lead among the newer skirts, although many light weight woollens in plaid, striped and plain effects are also shown in smart models. The one shown in No. 8788 is very distinctive, but it is not at all difficult to make. The interesting side sections are simply the edges of the gores faced with contrasting material, turned back and buttoned to the skirt. Deep pockets are inserted over the hips.

The lady's two gored skirt pattern No. 8788 is cut in five sizes, 24 to 32 inches waist measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 1⅞ yards. As on the figure, the 28 inch size requires 2⅞ yards of 36 inch, or 2¾ yards of 44 or 54 inch material, with 1¼ yards of 22 inch contrasting material.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction. This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents

New German Offensive Opens On The Western Front

ENEMY CROSSES MARNE AT SEVERAL POINTS

HINDENBURG LAUNCHED HIS FIFTH OFFENSIVE EARLY THIS MORNING ON A FIFTY MILE FRONT

The Attack Was Preceeded by Violent Artillery Preparation—Germans Crossed the Marne at Several Points—French Positions Penetrated to a Depth of Three Miles—The Battle is Continuing.

HUNS MAKE DESPERATE EFFORT TO CAPTURE RHEIMS

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, July 15.—The Germans launched an attack this morning on the fifty-mile front extending from Chateau Thierry eastward to Main de Massimes. The battle is continuing.

The attack followed a violent artillery preparation. The French are sustaining their position.

Early indications are that the enemy is combining a drive toward Paris with a desperate effort to capture Rheims and eliminate that city as an obstacle to the advance.

THE ENEMY HAS CROSSED THE MARNE IN NEW DRIVE.

LONDON, July 15.—The Germans have crossed the Marne at several points in their new drive, it was learned authoritatively here this afternoon.

French positions have been penetrated at some points to the depth of 5,000 yards (nearly three miles). Some villages have been captured.

HINDENBURG HAS LAUNCHED HIS FIFTH OFFENSIVE.

(By J. W. T. Mason, United Press War Expert.)

NEW YORK, July 15.—Von Hindenburg has launched his fifth offensive along the least important part of the western front.

His primary purpose apparently is to try to entice General Foch into rushing a large part of the Allies' reserves to defend the sector northeast of Jaulgone. If this objective were accomplished Von Hindenburg would shift his main attack westward and would attempt to break through to Paris or the Channel ports. The wedge which Von Hindenburg drove into the French front when he thrust his Aisne front southward to the Marne now serves to separate the scene of the present offensive from the area defending Paris and the Channel. Eastward of this wedge, Von Hindenburg is now resuming his ruthless slaughter of German man-power. Westward of the wedge are General Foch's principal reserves. Because he is on the outside of the wedge, General Foch cannot move his reserves from east to west and back again as quickly as can Von Hinderburg.

THE ADVANTAGE OF CONCENTRATION RESTS WITH HINDENBURG.

The advantage of concentration, therefore, rests with Von Hindenburg. On the other hand, any moderate territorial gain Von Hindenburg may make east of the Oisne-Marne wedge will be without strategic importance to him. It will still further deplete his own reserve forces without bringing Paris or the Channel Ports any nearer the Kaiser's grasp.

A heavy death toll exacted by the Allies in this hitherto Quiesent sector may still further react against Von Hindenburg's leadership. A slight progress by the Germans may be expected unless Von Hindenburg sees that General Foch has not fallen into his trap and abruptly orders the offensive to cease.

The attack this morning against the American positions at Vaux and gains are evidences of being for the moment, at least, subsidiary to the main offensive on the eastern side of the Aisne-Marne wedge. If, however, Von Hindenburg suddenly swings his drive from east to west, the Vaux attack may assume more importance and the beginning of another effort to reach Paris. The situation as far as can be seen, is progressing favourably to the Allies, Von Hindenburg's blood lust is likely to result once more in frightful calamity for German man-power.

NOISE OF FIRING PLAINLY HEARD IN PARIS.

PARIS, July 15.—Those who were on Paris boulevards after midnight listened to the canonnade while some groups gathered on the high points of the city to watch the distant heavens. The noise of the firing was particularly loud in the southern part of the city. The sector of the battle line nearest Paris is that west of Chateau Thierry, about 45 miles east and northeast of the French capital. French and American troops are barring the German pathway there.

THE FRENCH ARMY IS HOLDING MAGNIFICENTILY.

(Special to The Examiner—By John Degant.)

PARIS, July 15.—(4:15 p.m.)—The French army of Champagne is holding magnificently against the new German drive, according to despatches received from the battle front this afternoon.

The enemy concentration appears to have been the greatest between Dormans and Rheims (a front of 25 miles). The Germans are reported to have crossed the Marne at several points between Chatean Thierry and Dormans, which should be easy because of the narrowness of the river. Elsewhere the French are holding the Germans on their outposts zones.

Simultaneous with the drive on the 50-mile front between Chateau Thierry and Main de Massiges, the Germans attempted a formidable attack on the Ourcq front, toward La Fere Nilon (15 miles northwest of Chateau Thierry). They encountered a crashing barrage and were unable to debouch from their own positions.

AMERICAN GUNNERS FOUGHT AND DIED WHERE THEY STOOD.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE, July 15.—Shortly after eleven a.m. one of the American infantry regiments launched a counter attack in the region of Conde and made progress.

The operation at Vaux appeared to be a feint, for soon after it began the Germans attacked all along the Marne where they were gallantly opposed by more of the American and French troops. The first crossing was made at the peak of the big river bend. American machinegunners and infantrymen fought and died where they stood here. The Germans threw many bridges across the river. Others of the American toops withdrew strategically as the enemy attacked from east of Chateau Thierry to along the Marne east of Dormans making additional crossings.

DEVELOPMENTS CONSIDERED TO BE SATISFACTORY.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 15.—The feeling in London on the situation following the German attack in France is that developments are quite satisfactory.

American forces in the Vaux region drove off the enemy. It is reported that the Americans have advanced their own lines a distance of several hundred yards, but this has not been confirmed. The main attack is in the Champagne country south and east of Rheims.

Huns Attacked The Americans

The American Artillery Responded With Barrage—Weather is Ideal For Fighting.

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

(United Press Service.)

WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE MARNE, July 15.—(8.10 a.m.).—The Germans attacked the American positions in the region of Vaux (two miles west of Chateau-Thierry) at six o'clock this morning, following a heavy bombardment with gas and high explosives.

The Amierican artillery responded with a barrage, and at the hour of cabling the situation is well in hand.

Simultaneously, the enemy started a heavy bombardment in the region of Jaulgone (seven miles east of Chateau-Thierry on the north bank of the Marne.)

Long Range Guns Used.

While the fighting near Chateau-Thierry was under way the Germans began bombarding Meaux (25 miles west and south of Chateau-Thierry) on the road to Paris, with long range guns.

The weather has cleared and is ideal for fighting.

The attack and bombardment extend over a front of nearly ten miles forming the apex of the huge German salient nearest Paris.

The cable was filed before the attack had developed sufficiently to permit any intimation of the degree of the effort, but apparently it is the biggest assault attempted by the enemy since the fighting which occurred soon after the Americans entered the line there.

WAR SUMMARY

Canadian Press.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Associated Press war summary today says:—Official reports relative to grand offensive begun this morning against allied positions shows that it is most ambitious stroke since March 21, when the Germans launched their assault against the British lines from the vicinity of Arras to La Fere. The Germans followed their most recent tactics of beginning an offensive. There was brief artillery preparation of the greatest volence and then came the advance of assault troops. There seems, however, to have been a new feature in this attack...Great naval guns had been brought up behind the enemy lines and towns and cities far behind actual battle area were taken under bombardment. The apparent purpose of the Germans attacking along the line from Chateau Thierry, east along Marne, over rolling hills to Rheims and thence eastward to Massiges, was similar to that in the great attack along the Aisne late in May. They evidently hoped to find the allies less well prepared in this sector than elsewhere.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday, with a temperature of 88 degrees in the shade, was the warmest day we have had this summer as yet. To-day is St. Swithin's Day, and if you are a believer in the old proverb, you can forecast the weather for the next 40 days according as to whether it rains to-day or not. While it rained on St. Swithin's Day last year the truth of the proverb did not hold. But, perhaps, in war time the old sawa are out of joint as well as everything else.—W.P.

MONARCHY IS NOT WANTED

Allies Must Send an Army to Russia If Country is to be Saved to World's Democracy.

SITUATION REVIEWED

(United Press Despatch.)

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

STOCKHOLM, July 15.—If the Allies will send an army to Russia to support the longing to drive German influence from the Ukraine, the Don and Baltic Provinces, and from the Crimea and Caucasus, it will unquestionably arouse spontaneous aid and sympathy which will prove the downfall of German militarism and save Russia to the world's democracy.

In view of the contradicting reports regarding the character of the anti-Bolsheviki movement, I have learned authoritatively that the Social Revolutionaries are in absolute control of it. The movement envelopes the whole of the Volga, Ural and Siberian regions, originally local to the right faction.

Pleas Were Refused.

The Central Executives refused pleas to lead a revolution against the Bolsheviki party and opposed seizing power in the local regions. Then spontaneous uprising took place, wiping out the Bolsheviki in cities like Nijni Novgord, Samara and Saratoff.

Until the coming of the Czecho-Slovaks, however, these uprisings were useless. Bolsheviki punitive expeditions restored the Socists to power and executed rebels, among them thirty-three leaders. Now the situation is changed in spite of the doctored reports of victories from Moscow, the Bolsheviki really fight the Czecho-Slovaks but run in dismay.

Deprived of Power.

The Bolsheviki have been deprived of their power in the whole of the Volga, Ural and Siberian regions. The people demand an all-Russian constituent government, war on Germany. Provisional local governments have been set up and the Dumas restored. A re-union of democratic Russia into a republic is eagerly awaited.

All other movements in Siberia have petered out through lack of support because they have degenerated into reactionary affairs. Black hundred organizations with monarchists tendencies fail. There is not the slightest desire for a monarchy. Reports of the activity of Gutchloaff, Miliukoff and Putiloff in favour of a monarchy are not worthy of notice. Miliukoff is now in the Ukraine and is thoroughly discredited. Grand Duke Michael does not desire the throne. All efforts to again introduce the old regime of landlords and a monarchy are doomed to failure, and will call out nation-wide resistance.

In the Ukraine.

In Ukraine an excellent example is furnished. There the peasants and workmen are fighting bitterly efforts of the reactionaries to aid the Germans in restoring the old order. The rest of Russia is most eager to re-enter the battle against Germany, and with the aid of the Allies, drive the Germans from the occupied districts.

STRIKE STILL IN PROSPECT

Railway Dispute Threatens to End in Strike of Federated Trades of All Canadian Railways.

NO SOLUTION

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, July 16.—(3 p.m. bulletin.)— After discussing the serious railway strike situation for several hours the Cabinet adjourned to meet again. Acting Premier, Hon. C. J. Doherty, said the situation is still difficult, but he was hopeful of satisfactory adjustment of railway and telegraphic troubles.

Canadian Press.

OTTAWA, July 15.—The cabinet met in special session at 11 this morning to consider the situation arising out of a letter despatched by Canadian Railway War Board to the Railway Federated Trades calling a General Strike for Thursday. Nothing was given out for publication.

(Special to Examiner.)

Ottawa, July 15. — An impasse appears to have been reached in connection with the railway dispute which threatens to end in a strike of the federated trades of all Canadian railroads. Negotiations have again been shifted to Ottawa, and a further conference between the Railway War Board, the men and the Cabinet, is in progress to-day. There is a bare quorum of the latter.

NO SOLUTION.

At the present time no solution of the question is in sight. The federated trades chose to conduct their negotiations with all the railways at once, hence the fact that the Railway War Board representing all the railways, has been the chief negotiator. Under present conditions it is difficult to see just what power the government has in the matter unless the war measures act be invoked. It is not at all certain whether the industrial disputes invesigation act applies to railway disputes, especially when the government railways are involved, although the government the other day laid down a labour war policy which enunciated that there should be no strike or lock out during war time, and that where a dispute could not be settled by the disputants, recourse should be had to conciliations, and afterwards, if necessary, to a board of appeal. The government's war policy is admonitory and not mandatory. In fact there are no means of enforcing the principles laid down.

BREAD WILL NOT HAVE TO BE LABELLED

Order Has Been Rescinded—Some of the Bakers Have Laid in a Supply of Labels.

Word has been received in the city to the effect that the recent regulations pertaining to the use of labels designating "Victory Bread," will not be enforced. The enactment provided that all bakers were to place a label on their bread with the words "Victory Bread" printed on the label. As one baker remarked, he would go out of business first rather than submit to such a needless expense. After some of the local bakers have laid in a supply of labels, word is sent out rescinding the order. The regulations were to have taken effect to-day.

Dominions to Have Voice In Making War and Peace

Premier Lloyd George Makes Important Declaration to Canadian Editors in London—God of Brute Force Must Be Destroyed.

DOMINIONS HAVE PAID

London, July 14. — The Governments of the British dominions will have a voice in determining the terms of peace, according to Mr. Lloyd George. The Prime Minister made this statement in a speech at a dinner given in honour of the Canadian editors who are visiting England, at whch Lord Beaverbrook was the host.

"This is a war in which we engaged the Empire," said the Premier, "when we had no time to consult the dominions as to policy, and it is perfectly true that the policy which we adopted to protect small nations in Europe was a policy embarked upon without any consultation with the dominions. But you approved of it. Henceforth you have the right to be consulted as to the policy beforehand, and this is the change which has been effected as a result of the war.

"The contributions which you have made to enforce these treaties have given you the undeniable right to a voice in fashioning what may commit you, and for that reason an Imperial War Cabinet is a reality.

"Another point in which you must have a voice is the settlement of the conditions of peace. We have discussed war aims and the conditions under which we are prepared to make peace at the war cabinet. We arrived at an agreement on the subject last year, with the representatives of the dominions and we shall reconsider the same problems in the light of events which have occurred since—and we shall recognize the whole of thes problems, I have no doubt, in the course of the next few weeks.

"Canada and Australia and New Zealand, yes, and Newfoundland — they have all contributed their share of sacrifice and they are entitled to an equal voice with the representatives of these islands—will determine the conditions under which we are prepared to make peace. Unless I am mistaken, we are pretty well in agreement upon them.

BRITISH FORCES HAVE OCCUPIED KEM

Kem Is an Important Port on the White Sea.

(Special to The Examiner.)

ROTTERDAM, July 15.—British forces have occupied Kem on the Murman coast, according to the Frankfurter Zeitung.

Kem is an important port on the White Sea, about 275 miles south of Kola and 375 miles north of Petrograd, on the railroad connecting those two cities.

10,000 Austrians Were Drowned

Forty Thousand Deserters From the Austrian Army Fled Inland After the Piave Disaster.

(Special to Examiner.)

London, July 15.—Forty thousand deserters from the Austrian army fled inland after the Piave disaster, the Zurich correspondent of the Daily News has learned from neutral sources, he declared in a despatch to-day.

Some of these are armed and are hiding in the mountains. Three thousand deserters were arrested in Budapest.

The Austro-German relations are seriously strained as a result of the Piave defeat, the correspondent said. Chancellor Von Hertling's recent statements were the result of Austrian pressure, designed to bolster up the tottering dual monarchy, by showing its oppressed people that the Central Empires "earnestly desire peace."

Despite the rigid censorship, it is learned that the Austrian losses on the Piave, exclusive of slightly wounded, were more than 200,000, of which 10,000 were drowned.

Austrian Premier Von Seydler, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister Burian and Count Czenin, and Count Berchtoldt, former Austro-Hungarian Foreign Ministers, are going to German headquarters on an important mission.

CABINET MEMBERS MEET IN OTTAWA

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 15.—That the Government should take over the railways and thus "govern" the employees, is something which has been suggested successfully but which officially is not believed to have been considered, or likely to be considered.

Members of the Cabinet here today include Hon. C. J. Doherty, acting Premier; Sir Thomas White, Hon. Martin Burrell, Hon. T. W. Crothers, Hon. Dr. Reid, Hon. Senator Robertson, and Sir James Lougheed, and Hon A. L. Sifton.

ARTHUR STINSON HAD NARROW ESCAPE

CANOE OVERTURNED AND HE WAS THROWN INTO THE RIVER.

Mr. Arthur Stenson, a familiar figure to all who attend the market, and well known as a small fruit merchant, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday afternoon at about five o'clock in the Otonabee river. He was paddling in the stern of a canoe when a gust of wind tipped him into the swift current a few feet south of Crawford's Grove. Luckily, although unable to swim, he had the presence of mind enough to hold on to the canoe and was being carried in the swift current towards Yankee Bonnet, when he was rescued by Mr. G. J. Johnson, of The Examiner, who camps on the other side of the Grove, and who witnessed the accident. Mr. Johnson paddled out in a punt and took him in over the back. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Arthur Brown also rendered valuable assistance.

OPENING OF THE ALBION SWEETS

Nothing Has Been Overlooked in the Equipment of New Store.

The opening of the 'Albion Sweets,' Peterborough's up-to-date ice cream parlour and candy store, was a successful event on Saturday. From early morning until late in the evening the twenty-four handsome marble-topped tables were occupied by a delighted crowd, eager to sample one or more of the hundred and seven varieties of ice cream, egg drinks, frappes and sudaes temptingly served by a bevy of pretty waitresses.

The store, with its handsome and expensive fittings, is really an important addition to George street, and a decided improvement to the general appearance of the block with its splendid plate glass and marble exterior and windows filled with every variety of choice candies and good things to eat. The spacious front room is finished in mahogany, with huge mirrors, back of which is the ice cream parlour finished in red and grey with quartered oak furnishings. No detail has been neglected in making the Albion Sweets an exact reproduction of any New York business, even a splendid and scrupulously clean wash and rest room having been equipped for the use of patrons. By Saturday the firm will be ready to furnish lunches.

Over $1,100 for Italian Red Cross

SATURDAY TAG DAY WAS A BIG SUCCESS.

The Italian Red Cross tag day proved an unbounded success, and although up to the time of going to press no definite figures could be furnished, the receipts totalled over $1,100. The hearty response made necessitated a hurry order at noon on Saturday for 2500 more tags, the original supply of 6000 having been exhausted.

SWORN TO AND GUARANTEED

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, JULY 15TH, 1918.

THE OFFENSIVE IS ON.

The long awaited German offensive has started. Early this morning the enemy attacked vigorously on a front of fifty miles east of Chateau-Thierry. The aim of the Germans is apparently to break through to Paris with the capture of the city of Rheims as one of the first objectives. The attack is being fiercely pressed, but it is too early in the battle to form a conjecture as to the outcome of the struggle. The enemy has crossed the Marne at several points. The American troops are in the thick of the fighting.

THE MACHINISTS' REQUEST.

The action of the Machinists' Union in appealing direct to C. A. Magrath, Canadian Fuel Controller, for a more equitable distribution or coal in Peterborough should convince the City Council, if they had any previous doubts in the matter, that the citizens generally are far from satisfied with the present condition of affairs or with the outlook for next winter. The general feeling seems to be that the city fathers' effort to deal with the problem is a hopeless one, that the average citizen who is not able to secure his coal now is not going to find it much easier when the cold weather comes, and that the present fuel regulations, which allow a customer to secure 70 per cent of his normal supply is re-acting against the working class, owing to the fact that the dealers are favouring the customers who have always bought their coal in large quantities. The answer of Mr. Magrath to the local petition will be awaited with interest. It is hoped that it will contain some advice that will help the local Council in dealing with the problem.

PROTECTING THE CONSUMERS

The consumer in Canada, as well as the great mass of the citizens of the United States owe a deep debt of gratitude to President Wilson for his courageous action in vetoing the annual Agricultural Appropriation bill because of its amendment fixing the Government guaranteed minimum wheat price at $2.40 a bushel. In doing so the American President made it clear that fixing the minimum price at $2.40 would immediately increase the price of wheat flour $2 per barrel, and American consumers would have to face an additional burden of $387,000,000 during the coming year. Not only would such a result occur, but the increase would force a similar jump in Canada and the scale of financial operations arranged by the Allied Governments would be changed, affecting practically the whole world.

The effect of the President's action is already being felt. In the belief that the proposed increase in the price of wheat would send the cost of wheat flour up to such a level that it would be prohibitive to many consumers and that therefore there would be a heavy demand for substitutes causing the price of corn to soar, but the announcement of President Wilson's action resulted in a material set back.

DECEIVING THEIR READERS.

The German press is very busy these days in an effort to convince the people of Germany that nothing is to be feared from the United States troops. When the Americans first entered the war, the Kaiser's newspapers used to tell their readers that it was not possible for United States soldiers to penetrate the U-boat blockade in sufficient numbers to have any effect on the situation. The fact that nearly 400,000 Canadian soldiers had been able to go overseas in spite of the efforts of the pirate craft, was ignored, as was also the still more significant fact that out of 13 million allied soldiers transported only 2700 were lost. The German editors have come to see that it is no longer possible to hide from the people that American troops in large numbers have arrived in France, and that thousands more are coming each week. In the realization of this condition of affairs the enemy press is now taking a new tack, and is ridiculing the Sammies as "lightning-trained Yankees," who will be outclassed by the expert German war machine.

The New York World contains the following despatch from Amsterdam:

"Inspired military moulders of German public opinion, while no longer attempting to fool the people into believing that there are an insignificant number of Americans in France, seek to reassure the public by arguments along three lines:

"First—That while there is a large number of Americans at the present time in France, at least half of them are not effectives, but are tied up in lines of communication, while the effectives are inefficient, untrained, and hopelessly inferior as first-lined troops.

"Secondly—That General Foch's reserves being exhausted, the Americans have come too late to save France.

"Thirdly—That though a large number of Americans may be in France, this is really to Germany's advantage, since an immense tonnage is needed to supply 1,000,000, and that the army in France will deflect vital food tonnage from England."

Whatever is the effect of such drivel on the German people, it will take more powerful arguments than these to convince the German troops who faced the Americans at Cantigny or at Chateau Thierry, or who came in contact with the Sammies who went over the top with the Australians at Hamel.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Having been granted the medal of the Aero Club of America, Major Bishop, Canada's premier airman, has now six decorations to his credit. He has won the Military Cross, the Distinguished Service Order with a bar, the Victoria Cross and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The Canada Food Board's plan is to beat the submarine with the substitute.

It is evidently work or fight for the big league ball players. Well, any time the redoubtable Babe Ruth, of the Boston Red Sox, comes to bat, the opposing outfielders have no chance to complain of a lack of work.

SHARING THE WAR BURDEN.

(Monetary Times.)

It is understood that at the next session of the Dominion Parliament, a measure will be introduced providing for the assumption of the patriotic fund by the Federal government. This is a measure which will meet with wide approval, as the provision of the funds by voluntary giving has become impracticable. It is becoming more recognized that the expenses of the war should fall upon the body which is condneting it, and that is the Dominion Goverment, rather than upon individuals or communities who are willing on their own initiative to bear a portion of the expense. Not only has this fund been maintained by the contributions of individuals, but many municipalities have been for some time making regular grants. The change, if it is adopted, will relieve these municipalities of this expense, at a time when municipal finances are, generally speaking, not in too good shape. The same injustice applied as in the case of individuals, for some municipalities were making grants for this purpose, while others made none whatever.

At the same time, the fact that this will entail still another burden upon the national finance must be realized. This is one of the few items of war expense which, fortunately, has not been increasing to a large extent. So far the draft has applied only to single men, and voluntary enlistments of married men have practically ceased. At any time, however, a much larger burden may be involved under the allowances of the fund. In any case, the regulations of these payments can be adjusted more in accordance with the system of army pay and allowances, and with the work board of the pension commissioners. It also adds still another obligation to subscribe for war loans, and can be used in this way in the coming campaign. With the obligation to contribute to the fund removed, the arguments for subscription can be the more forcibly applied, and subscribers will then receive an excellent interest return upon their contributions.

If.

(Rochester Times-Journal.)

If Germany were only capable of laughing at her ridiculous Kaiser, the war would soon be over. But if Germany had enough sense of humour to do that, there would never have been any war.

The Ultimate Victim.

(Guelph Mercury.)

Putting a stamp tax on matches is probably the first step to get after the smokers, who are the chief users, and little by little the small luxuries of the men are being eliminated. But what we want to know is why the stamp says "paid by the manufacturer," when the consumer has to put up for it? Everybody but the consumer knows how to get rid of the peak load, while he gets stuck every way.

The Only Terms.

(Buffalo News.)

Peace must rest upon the rights of the peoples, not the rights of governments—the rights of peoples great or small, weak or powerful, to freedom, security, self-government and participation in the economic opportunities of the world upon fair terms.

The German people will be included in the coming new league of nations if they will accept this quality and no not seek denomination.

(Pittsburg Post.)

The strategy of the crown prince is faultless. When his army advances he directs it from five miles in the rear; when it retreats he leads it—by at least that distance.

A Gentleman Unafraid.

(Westminster Gazette.)

The "poilu" is one-third heroism, one-third sense of duty, and one-third modesty. A stretcher-bearer blew up a bridge himself and delayed the German advance. The general decided to award him the military medal. "Summon the man at once, and I will decorate him here," said the general. Orderlies went to look for the stretcher-bearer, but no trace of him could be found. Nobody even knew his name. He was merely a French soldier!

Americans May Come.

(Mail and Empire.)

The Registration Act puts no obstacles in the way of Americans entering Canada and spending the summer or doing business here as freely as ever. If our friends across the line are deterreed from visiting us as usual the provisions of this Act are not to blame for it, though possibly a wrong idea of them is. If so the Government should hasten to remove that wrong idea by putting a brief but clear statement of the facts in the advertising columns of the principal newspapers of the United States. It ought to bring to the notice of all whom it may concern in that country that a certificate of American citizenship is a sufficient passport in this country for any reparable person coming from the United States.

Hard on War Experts.

(Mail and Empire.)

The delay in the great German offensive is causing the war critics who write for the newspapers some worry. They have about run out of forecasts and opinions of the German plan. However, the period of waiting is long enough to enable them to shift forecasts to fit every alternative, and then, when the drive comes, they can say, "I told you so."

GERMAN YOUTH IN REVOLT.

MANY YOUNG SOCIALISTS DISTRIBUTING REVOLUTIONARY LITERATURE.

That the Socialist youths of Germany are playing an important role in the distribution of anti-Kaiser literature throughout the empire is indicated by the following item sent out from Berlin on May 23, by the semi-official Wolff Telegraph Bureau, and found in German newspapers just reaching New York:

"Interesting disclosures about the treasonable activities of a German deserter in Switzerland resulted from a search made by the police late in April of the house of George Muller, a sixteen year old boy living in Berlin-Friednau and belonging to the Young People's Social Democratic organization.

"It was shown that a certain Felix Lewinsohn, who deserted to Switzerland three-quarters of a year ago and joined the International Young People's Socialist organization there, had been making numerous attempts through secret writing in apparently harmless letters, to promote revolutionary ideas with all his power among the young people. An extensive correspondence and many revolutionary and inciting articles and pamphlets, fell into the hands of the police, who also learned of numerous false addresses given by Lewinsohn, in order to obtain news from Germany without attracting attention, and thus to form a permanent connection with his fellow-believers. Muller, still a mere boy, made a complete confession of having several times acknowledged the receipt of consignments from Lewinsohn, and of having for his part sent the latter revolutionary material, (strike reports, circulars, etc.)

"This case clearly shows how unscrupulously the agitators work, as they do not hesitate to exploit for their treasonable ends immature youths who cannot grasp what unspeakable misery a revolution would bring to our people."

On May 2 a despatch to the London Daily Mail from Switzerland, said that German delegates to a Young Socialists' Congress at Olten reported that the German government was jailing and executing many youths caught distributing revolutionary literature.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

DE LAVAL GRABBED SATURDAY'S FIXTURE BY A SCORE OF 5-2

The Bush Leaguers Found Some Difficulty in Locating the Ball—Pitchers Had an Off Day and a Number of Men Got a Free Pass to First.

On Saturday afternoon the De Laval team trimmed the champion Thistles to the tune of 5-2 in spite of the ragged support given to Sharpe, the Dairymen's moundman. Too many men were walked by both sides, and most of these charities developed into runs.

In the first innings the De Laval started out well. Dugan walked on balls, but Sharpe, the De Laval pitcher, struck out. Taylor made a single, but was thrown out at first.

Cherrett, the first man up for the Thistles, fanned, and Murphy hit an easy grounder to second. Heenan, with two men out, made a single, but was caught out at second, when Cupoli made a base hit.

The De Laval stared the second innings by a fly to the left fielder's mit. Frost struck out, one, two, three. Lipsett made first on the third baseman's error, who dropped his fly. English struck out, thus retiring the side.

Jackson made a single to the middle garden and stole second. Mahood was out on a foul fly to third, while was out on a floul fly to third, while McLeod made a single, but Jackson was caught off second, closing the innings.

Legon, for De Laval, was out on a bunt. Fitzgerald singled to right field. Dugan's fly was caught by the third baseman, but Fitzgerald was out when he tried to steal second.

In the second half of the third, Neary was out on a throw to first, but Cherrett made first on a single to right garden, where the hay blooms. Murphy made a single and advanced Cherrett to second. Heenan singled, but Cherrett was caught at third. Duggan dropped Cupoli's fly and Murphy scored, Heenan going to third. Jackson was out when the popped to the left garden. Score, 1-0 for the Thistles.

Sharp made a hit and went to second on Taylor's sacrifice bunt. Macdonald struck out and Frost's fly was handled by the left fielder.

Mahood got four balls and stole second after Bartley was out on a fly to the third baseman. McLeod and Neary went out by the strike-out route.

In the beginning of the fifth, the De Lavals went out in order.

In the Thistles' half, Cherrett got to first on a well-judged bunt. Murphy singled, advancing Cherrett to second, who stole third when English was off the base. Heenan singled and Cupoli got a life when Legon dropped his fly. Jackson was out on a fly to centre, and Mahood struck out with the bases full. Bartley was out at first.

Fitzgerald, the first man up for the Dairymen, walked and stole second. Dugan laid down a bunt, but Neary threw wild to first and both Dugan and Fitzgerald completed the circuit, making the score a tie, two all. The next three men were thrown out at first.

The first three men up for the Thistles were retired via the strike-out route.

Frost of the DeLaval, walked, but was caught at second when Lipsett singled. Lipsett was caught later stealing second.

In the last half of the seventh, the Thistles were retired in a row.

In the first half of the eighth, Legon walked again and stole second when Fitzgerald flew to left garden. Dugan was also walked and Sharpe made first on a fast grounder, thus filling the bases. Taylor was hit by a pitched ball, forcing Legon in. Macdonald made a Texas leaguer, bringing in Dugan and Sharpe. Captain Cherrett then used the hook and Bartley was send to the mound for the Thistles. Macdonald was out stealing third.

Jackson of the Thistles was out on a grounder to the pitcher, and "Stuffy" Mahood fanned. Bartley got a base on balls and stole second. McLeod made a foul fly to the catcher.

In the first half of the ninth, Frost and Lipsett fanned, but English made a single. Legon closed the game for the Milkmen by a pop fly.

In the last half, Neary lined out a hot grounder and reached second when Cherrett was out on a fly to centre field. Murphy fanned and Heenan ended the game by hitting a fly to left field. Batteries:

De Laval—Sharpe and Taylor.

Thistles—Neary, Bartley and Cupoli.

Score by innings:

	Runs
De Laval	00002030—5
Thistles	00101000—2

SPORTING COMMENT

They say that Willie Hoppe will have to give up his billiards to work in a useful occupation. If he becomes an officer in the army there should be no one better adapted to give the boys the right cue. Furthermore, he ought to be able to balk the German line pretty well.

The boys at the front are getting a sample of the French idea of what a baseball glove ought to be because of the shortage of American supplies. Instead of the old familiar webbing between the thumb and the forefinger there is a string. The Buddies, though, are convinced that the Frenchmen are not trying to string them, but are doing the best they can in the lack of leather these days.

A Pittsburg writer states that baseball players will soon be wearing paper suits because of Uncle Sam's demand for flannel for the soldiers. If this happens the fans will have to curb some of their inflammable remarks. It will also put a premium on sliding if the player is of a modest disposition.

So Hans Wagner has joined the Home Defence in his town. Well, he was the home defence for the Pirates for a good many years and his well known efficiency with the club, should make him a very valuable member of the organization. Hans' noted bow legs ought to make a pretty picture in puttees.

Stars in the Camp.

Johnny Evers, who is going abroad to help promote athletics, particularly baseball, among the American expeditionary forces, for the Knights of Columbus, said that the big league club scouts should take a trip down to Camp Upton, where hundreds of first-class baseball players are being developed.

"It would be a good plan," says Evers, "for the scouts to recommend to their employers to sign some of those men. Of course there is no telling just when they may be able to use these men, but as soon as the war is over they would be mighty good material for their clubs. The best part of it is none of them would cost them a penny to try out.

"One of the biggest items in the running expenses of a baseball club is the money spent for purchasing minor league players. Some of them cost small fortunes, and invariably they fail to live up to their reputations. With the players to be found at Camp Upton there is at the disposal of the big leagues men who may, in the future, draw in thousands of dollars at the gate.

"I've seen many of the men in action, and there are at least a dozen that I've looked at who look like coming stars. I've seen some of the best plays that I have ever witnessed on the diamond pulled by these soldier-players.

"The Knights of Columbus are doing a great deal to promote athletics among the soldiers, and at the Knights of Columbus fields there are many promising players."

GOLF MATCH.

On Wednesday, the 17th, the Peterborough Golf Club will play the return match with the Oshawa Club on the local links.

Luncheon will be served at the Club House at 12:30, and the players taking part in the match are requested to be on hand in good time.

While the match is in progress no other playing can take place.

WHAT OF BASEBALL?

Baseball in 1919? It will be time enough to consider the subject, of acute interest to multitudes though it is, when the present race is over. Nobody can foresee what conditions will be the latter part of this year or the early part of next, but neither of those times will be too late to make arrangements for 1919. Meanwhile there is no use "killing" the 1919 season with pessimistic conjecture. It may not be necessary for the big leagues even to suspend, but if it is they will only suspend, and there is no necessity to wear crepe over the outlook or wax lugubrious. The magnates themselves are not doing so. You couldn't kill baseball. It is a game which is the most popular of all at home and is spreading abroad, and that under circumstances a sport could sustain more than a temporary check in its own land is unthinkable.

Baseball, after the war is over, all the while building up a wider clientele than ever through the instrumentality of the war, will be more popular than ever. Sports in general will enjoy far more widespread favour after the war. The need of encouraging them has been strongly brought home. If not essential now, professional baseball—if it is possible for any one health giving recreation, in this case the country's leading recreation, to be essential—will be essential then.—New York Herald.

BASEBALL

Larry Lajoie has all the unstudied grace of his prime. In the American Association and in harness a generation since he played his first big game, he has not lost a particle in gracefulness or style. He has the same effortless glide to a given point to head off a ground ball or take a throw. At the bat he rags pitching with the same free, easy swing and effective timing. There is no sign that his eye is in the least dimmed. Yet his speed must be affected. In the natural course of events he must have slowed down. But such is the style, the quality, the way with him of the man that any retrogression is not apparent as he fields or bats. As was the case with the ungainly but mighty Wagner, he can go a long distance after the turning point on sheer class. Form in baseball is a very intangible thing. There are so many different "forms" that there isn't any, and yet, no matter how the best players may differ, there is about every first-class player a positive but indefinable something which is clearly evident.

However, in so far as there is a standard of form in baseball, perfect form, as in rowing and golf and running on the cinder track, Lajoie has it to a degree greater than all but a small few of the ball players of this or any other period. With him it is nothing more than inborn grace—nothing acquired, as might be the case with an oarsman, golfer or runner. And it isn't necessaryily that he has form because of being graceful. It is because he has made the best use of natural talents for doing things the easiest and most effortless way. J. Franklin Baker is without the easy grace of Lajoie, but when it comes to applying his natural endowment in the way best suited to himself he has just as much form. The ability to do that with certain recognized standards of position and swing and the like are what constitutes form.

METHODISTS PLAN MONSTER CAMPAIGN

Expect to Raise Ten Million Dollars in Five Years.

To raise ten million dollars by the end of 1923, the one hundredth anniversary of the Canadian Methodist Church is the object to which this church will bend as efforts through the next five years.

It is expected that at the General Conference in Hamilton next October the gigantic campaign will be outlined. There is every indication that the measure will go through with enthusiastic support. The money will be used for both home and foreign missions.

Next in importance to the missionary drive will be the re-organization of finances of the Methodist Church which will be discussed at the General Conference. A Board of Finance may be appointed to undertake the control of Methodist Church finances, which have assumed such proportions that they require the supervision of a financial expert.

ARMY TRUCKS STAND IDLE

More Than $1,00,000 Worth Are Parked in Jersey Meadows.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Upward of a million dollars' worth of army trucks are packed in the meadows on the main driveway between Jersey City and Newark. Many of the trucks have been there since March, and perhaps longer. They have been exposed to the weather, and it is reported that many of the parts have been stolen. The only explanation given for the presence of the trucks was offered by one of the watchmen, who asserted that the Government had been unable to get bottoms in which to ship them. Captain Lemon of the barracks located near by who was said by a guard to have charge of the trucks, declined to make any statement, and said that an information would have to come from Secretary Baker.

There are 161 trucks—all said to be Packards—parked in one spot on the driveway immediately across from the Federal shipbuilding plant and it was stated on the reservation that there were at least that many more scattered over the place.

The fact that the Packard Company had mechanics overhauling some of the trucks on the premises two weeks ago, as reported yesterday afternoon, apparently confirmed the report that thieves had robbed the trucks of parts. While the statement was made by one of the watchmen that all the trucks were in good condition now, they appeared to be very much weather-beaten and the wheels of many were sunk deep in the earth. The trucks for the most part were brought to the meadows district from the factories under their own power to be sent from New York to France.

9 FACE ESPIONAGE CHARGES.

Alleged Liberty Bond Scalper Among Those Indicted at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, July 15.—Nine men face charges of violating the Espionage act, as a result of secret indictments returned by the Federal Grand Jury here. Frank C. Brown was taken into custody at Akron, where, according to Federal officials, he was charged with scalping Liberty bonds. He is declared to have represented Liberty bonds as likely to become worthless, in order to induce holders to sell their bonds to him at prices far below their value.

Charles F. Zademack, advertising promoter of this city is declared to have predicted victory for Germany and heavy indemnities from the United States. This country is in the war, he is alleged to have contended to get back the money loaned to the Allies.

ALD. EDGAR MUST GIVE UP COUNCIL OR FUEL DUTIES

Amendment to Municipal Act Prevents Member of Council From Holding Position on Any Civic Board Under Council's Control.

BOARD OF HEALTH, TOO

By the effect of one of the latest amendments to the Municipal Act, Ald. Edgar must either resign from the Council or relinquish his honorary office of Fuel Commissioner. The same statute demands the resignation of both Aldermen Saunders and Langford from either the Council or the Board of Health, to which they were appointed by the Council.

The amendment is an extension of the law that prohibits members of the municipal council from holding offices it creates. In the past this has applied to many civic officials, especially to those who derive a salary from thier work. For example, the city clerk, assessor, treasurer and others could not be members of the Council and at the same time accept civic appointments from the Council. It is easy to recall instances in which aldermen resigned to assume positions which were directly under the Council's control. The principle is so well known that it does not require detailed explanation. And now the statute has been broadened to include all civic commissions that come within the Council's authority.

The position of Fuel Commissioner was filled by the Council. Ald. Dobbin was first appointed, but upon the objection of the fuel dealers that he was also chairman of the Council's special Fuel committee, he stepped aside and Ald. Edgar succeeded him. As has been often explained the duties of this office were simply to record the retail dealers' daily sales of coal. There was no salary attached to the position, but provision was made to pay a girl assistant who would perform the details of the clerical work.

The Board of Health, at present includes Aldermen Saunders and Langford in its membership, and also Mayor Duncan, ex-officio. In fact its connection to the Council has always been closely maintained during all the years the Mayor has been in the Council. He has given this department a great deal of attention, and it was probably through a desire to strenthen its membership by appointing men he was confident would regularly attend the meetings that the two aldermen were added.

Now, however, other citizens must be selected for this very important body. It is not expected that the aldermen will forsake the Council circle for the Health Department. Besides, Ald. Edgar will doubtless remain with the Council, and the work he has been carrying on may be transferred to the City Treasurer's office with the help required to attend to it. This is only a surmise, and in suggesting it, the fact is not overlooked that the City Treasurer's staff is already fully employed.

THE MUNSTERS AT EPEHY

By LIEUTENANT J. P. LLOYD.

The world perhaps will never know the full story of the gallant stand of those heroic Divisions of the 5th Army, when, on the 21st of March, 1918, the flood of the enemy came up against them out of the mist. But the world does know that never, in all their glorious history, have British soldiers faced greater odds, or faced them with more of that unflinching courage which is their peculiar heritage.

Against the Divisions of the 6th Army, strung out along a great front of 40 miles from Barisis, south of the Oise, to Gouzeaucourt, south-west of Cambrai, in the north, came 40 German divisions, picked troops, confident that they would brush the British aside, like flies, from their path. They never made a greater mistake.

This is the tale of how an Irish battalion held but throughout all that long day in front of Epehy, a village set on a hill, due south of Gouzeaucourt.

North-eastward from Epehy runs the narrow tongue of land, which the English had christened Lark Spur, while to the south-east the high ground rises gently towards the village of Lempire, some two miles away.

The 2nd Munster Fusiliers, of the 16th Division, were entrenched on the forward slope of this ridge, with their right near Malassise Farm, about three-quarters of a mile south-east of Epehy, and their left in the neighbourhood of Tetard Wood, in front of the village. Before them the ground sloped gradually down to Catelet Valley, a mile to the eastwards. Behind them a railway swept, through deep cuttings, in a great curve round Epehy.

Six Hours of Shell Fire.

For six hours their trenches were lashed with a pitiless hail of shells. At 8 a.m., when the guns had done their work, the German infantry advanced through the mist. But it was no demoralized enemy that confronted them. Dazed men manned their broken parapets, and mowed down wave after wave of the attackers as they swarmed over No Man's Land.

Strange tales filtered back through the fog, of bombers who hurled their bombs amongst the advancing Germans to the end, of infantrymen who charged with the bayonet when their last round had gone, of machine gunners who fought until they fell dead across their smoking guns.

Weight of numbers told in the end, and the Germans entered our trenches. Here and there strong points held out with obstinate gallantry, even when they were surrounded. The defenders of Malassise Farm clung to their ruins, and the survivors only surrendered when the enemy had worked through a copse on their right, and taken them in the rear.

The Colonel Down.

At half-past ten the Colonel was hit, and a Major, his second-in-command, took over. The situation was indeed desperate. He could not tell what was happening to "A" and "D" Companies. No runner came back through the fog with news of them and none could reach them. All along the ridge from Malaissise Farm to Tetard Wood the continuous rattle of rifle and machine gun fire told that the two remaining companies were being hard pressed.

All that morning the Germans strove to scale the ridge, and their dead lay thick upon the base slopes. At last they set foot in Room trench, on the left of Malassise Farm, but the defenders on one post stayed on there until noon, when they withdrew to Ridge Reserve further up the hill. Away to the left in Tetard Wood an officer and a few men were putting up a great fight against a cloud of enemies. They contested bitterly every shallow trench and every shell-hole in that narrow strip of splintered trees and tangled undergrowth, and when they were at last driven out, they manned a trench at the head of Catelet Valley, and took heavy toll of the Germans as they strove to emerge from the wood.

Airmen Get at Them.

Meanwhile the messages that reached Battalion Headquarters from Ridge Reserve were reassuring. The trench was being enfiladed from Malassise Farm, and the Germans were still attacking vigorously, but the garrison could hold out, they thought, as long as their ammunition lasted. In the afternoon, when the mist cleared somewhat, they were confronted with a new terror. German airmen found hem, and, flying low overhead, swept the trench from end to end with their machine guns. But they suffered for their daring. One fell a victim to a Lewis gun, and a man of "C" Company taking careful aim at another as it swooped down upon him, killed the pilot with a single shot from his rifle, and brought down the machine in a chaos of wreckage to the ground. The Irishmen, too, had their reward when the mist cleared. Down in Catelet Valley they could see hundreds of Germans massing for the attack, and away on the right some field guns were climbing the hill-road to Malassise Farm. Machine guns and rifles were soon busy in Ridge Reserve. The Germans in the Valley were scattered to the four winds, and death stalked amongst their gunners on the road to Malassise Farm.

The Major is Captured.

It was not until the late afternoon that the Germans reached the railway. It had been in the Major's mind to make his last stand in Epehy itself. But he was not destined to be with his men to the end. The battalion that had been sent up in support of the Munsters was not yet in touch with them, and on their right was a long gap in the line.

At 7 p.m., when it was already growing dusk, the Germans poured through this gap, and the Munsters were almost surrounded. The Major was in the dug-out, which was Battalion Headquarters, giving some final instructions to his Adjutant when he was startled by a warning cry from a sentry outside. He led the way out, and, glancing round when he reached the duck-boards, saw several Germans standing on the top of the dug-out. A German officer covered him with a revolver, but the Major dodged, and ran down the trench. It was only putting off the inevitable. The trench, whichever way he turned, was full of Germans, and the Major was captured.

The Germans drove the Munsters back slowly through the ruins of Epehy that night. But they did not capture the whole of the village until next day. A small handful of Irishmen, led by the same officer who had fought so gallantly in Tetard Wood, held their ground in the village, and only surrendered when they had fired their last round and thrown their last bomb.

"A Hard Struggle."

The next day a German communique informed the world that "The heights of Epehy have been captured after a hard struggle in which the British were surrounded." That short sentence is high tribute to the remnant of that brave battalion that battled on, with the enemy pouring through on their flank, with death roaring down upon them out of the sky. "A hard struggle!" Yes, those Germans who came into Epehy, and looked back next morning on the slopes that were carpeted with their dead, the battalions that were gathering in Catelet Valley when the storm broke upon them, the drivers who flogged their maddened horses into the hell of flying bullets on the Malassise Road, all these men know what a hard struggle it was. That communique is a worthy epitaph to those fearless Irishmen who in front of Epehy died for the great cause.

AID TO BUILD HOUSES.

EXPERT URGES HOUSING PLAN FOR GOVERNMENT CONSIDERATION.

Ottawa, July 12.—A Government housing plan carried out by a joint partnership between the Dominion, provincial and municipal authorities as a solution of the war housing problem, is suggested by Thomas Adams, the town planning expert of the Commission of Conservation.

"At the present moment," says Mr. Adams, "the most urgent question is that of war housing. Britain and the United States are dealing with that as an important war measure, and that phase of the housing shortage in these countries is being met by means of housing schemes promoted and financed by the National Governments. It is claimed that in Canada we are also in urgent need of houses to help in winning the war, that we need them to enable us to increase the output of our war industries.

"Private enterprise may be dismissed as a factor under the pesent conditions," he says.

OVATION TO ROYAL COUPLE

Belgians in London Acclaim King and Queen—Degree to Albert.

LONDON, July 15.—The visit of the King and Queen of the Belgians to England has been purely a private affair, with no public functions, although the British people would have been delighted to accord them any public honors. Yesterday's concert at Albert Hall, which was mostly a Belgian function, had not been advertised, but the ovation the Belgian monarchs received from several thousand of their own people was a scene of delirious enthusiasm.

The royal couple, King Albert in khaki and Queen Elizabeth, a stately figure, in white, stood in the front of the royal box, with King and Queen of England in the background while the Belgians sang their national hymn repeatedly, shouted and wept.

The formal conferring of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, awarded to King Albert, recently by Oxford Universty, was observed under circumstances which never before attended the bestowal of an Oxford degree. The simple ceremony took place at the residence of Earl Curzon, Government leader in the House of Lords and Chancellor of Oxford University. A deputation from Oxford handed the diploma to King Albert, who responded with a few words of thanks.

After being entertained at a luncheon party by Earl Curzon, their majesties motored toward the coast.

Perhaps, after all, babies do understand the language women talk to them—and stay awake at nights to get even.

After reaching a ripe old age some men have nothing to do but sit around and nurse their frost bitten aspirations.

MATRIMONIAL IDEALS IN TEXAS

Perhaps it may be taken for granted that girls will be girls even in Texas. It has not been recorded that girls are more given to "symposiums" than are newspapers, but in certain matters they are quite likely to resort to such methods of expressing the variations of class sentiment. A symposium, of course, is somewhat different from a plebicite, which is frequently necessary to determine such important matters as class mottoes, class ribbons, class flowers, etc. A symposium settles nothing, but merely registers personal preferences, fondnesses, ambitions and aspirations. As an institution, then, the symposium is much like the theatre—its chief function is entertainment.

Anyway, we are told that the girls of the Dallas High School—only the members of the senior class, we may hope—have been conducting a symposium for the purpose of recording the qualities they will demand in their husbands. A few typical answers have been published for the benefit of public education in juvenile psychology, and here they are:

He must have a chummy roadster and earn $5,000 a year, and he must be literary inclined.—Lois.

My man must earn $7,000 a year. He must have a convivial roadster and not belong to any clubs.—Gladys.

He must be good-looking and a fine dancer and earn at least $10,000 a year.—Jewel.

I want an ambitious man; his looks and earning capacity do not matter.—Cecile.

My man must have refinement and good morals; the rest can take care of itself.—Hortense.

I won't marry unless I can have either a Lieutenant or a Captain.—Rieta.

These six examples of girlish ideals are perhaps fairly representative of the proportion of financial, moral and social considerations that might be found in the mass of mature feminine appraisal of the desirable qualities of a husband. The juvenile ingenuousness revealed is probably characteristic of the whole symposium, but the aspirations are scarcely to be laughed at on that account. Some may think it regrettable that half the number have been moved to mention the matter of money in defining their ideals, but it is fairly safe to predict that within twenty years all six will have reached the conclusion that money is a highly important consideration. The amount of true idealism now manifested in this respect is considerably greater than it is likely to be after experience has dulled the edges of illusion.

But it is to be noted that the financial requirements expressed do not seem to be based on practical considerations. A few years of domestic experience teaches a girl various hard and fast facts about the indispensability of money, but Lois, Gladys and Jewel seem to regard money only as the means to realizing delirous dreams of social enjoyment. Jewel, for instance, who wants a ten-thousand-dollar husband who is good-looking and a fine dancer, apparently pictures married life as a pleasant course of fox-trotting and waltzing, for which the chief requisite is a skilful and attractive partner. She has a notion, likely enough, that a ten-thousand-dollar allowance would be ample to provide the necessary dancing frocks, and probably has not reckoned on the beans and potatoes and oatmeal and beef-shanks and brooms and mops and coal and gas and five thousand three hundred and eighty-four other items necessary to the maintenance of a menage.

It is rather surprising that automobiles are mentioned by only two out of six girls who are thus discussing the necessities that must accompany a satisfactory husband. This was probably an oversight on the part of the others. Any way, it is a safe guess that before they have been married a year all six will be yearning for motor cars, even Hortense, who now cherishes the beautiful dream that nothing matters but "refinement and good morals."—F. H. Young in Providence Journal.

GIVES UP DESERTING SON.

Father Finds Boy and Turns Him Over to Army Authorities.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 15. — Starling Hicks, Jr., who deserted his command at Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga., two months ago, was back in the hands of military officials through the instrumentality of his father. The young man, who hid in the woods near his home at Japer, after leaving camp, was turned over to the authorities by his father, who spent several nights in the woods before finding his son.

"It nearly breaks my heart to have to arrest my own son and turn him over to the authorities on so serious a charge," the father told officials, "but even if he is my son, I cannot harbor him as a deserter or even countenance his action."

The most striking advance of the week has been in Albania, where, aided by British and Italian monitors, operating from the sea, a general advance over a crescent-shaped sector of eighty miles in length, has been made, the advance being 22 miles at its deepest point. The former crescent into the allied line there has been wiped out and a straight front substituted.

There is no indication at the War Department of when the next German thrust will come on the western front, but all the allied commanders are confident of their ability to withstand it.

THAT HOLD-UP IN DOURO

It Looks as if the Men in the Car Brought it On.

If the information that came to the Examiner Office on Saturday through a very reliable source regarding the alleged hold-up in Douro is correct, it would appear that the car was being driven through the townships with its lights out.

Previous to this other cars had been through Douro with lights out, and on one occasion a sheep was run over and killed and a horse and buggy nearly run into, as well as other near accidents from a similar cause.

Farmers just wish to draw the attention of the motor drivers to the question, how long is a motor car allowed to drive around Peterborough with its lights out, and instead of being stopped and told about the matter they are brought before the magistrate and fined.

There will be no hold-ups in Douro if all motor drivers keep their lights burning.

THE NAVY LEAGUE

We are informed by a member of the executive of the local branch of the Navy League of Canada that during the course of the war, the warships of the British Navy have been increased from four million tons to six million tons, a fect which explains why transports have been so well protected that of thirteen million men carried overseas, only 2,700 have been lost on account of enemy attack. The British Navy, also, has enabled the United States to export nineteen billion dollars of good during the past four years—more than was exported in ten years before the war.

Membership in the Navy League which sends comforts to the sailors is only two dollars, while those 18 years of age and under may become Junior members for twenty-five cents.

Peterboro Soldier Presumed Dead

GUNNER SALTER HAS BEEN MISSING SINCE LAST OCTOBER.

Mrs. Mabel Salter, 793 George St., has received word that her brother, Gunner W. J. Salter, who has been missing since October 26th, is presumably dead.

C., regarding his death, he said that when last seen at Passchendealt, Gunner Salter was very heroically aiding a wounded soldier under fire.

SAVE YOUR CABBAGE.

It is about this time that the flies of the cabbage-maggot are most active, large numbers of eggs being deposited against the stems of young cabbage and cauliflower plants. The best preventative where these pests are concerned is the felt disk placed around the plant as soon as it is set. But for those who did not take this precaution earlier in the season cure rather than a preventative is now necessary. A good remedy is to dust the infected plants with fresh pyrethrum insect powder and air-slaked lime or other dry diluent, one part of the former in four of the latter. After being thoroughly mixed together the powder and lime should be kept in a tight vessel for 24 hours before using. The mixture should be applied from a duster, sold by seedsmen, or from a cheesecloth bag tied on the end of a short stick, the operator holding the bag over the plants and tapping the stick with a cane held in the other hand. A mixture of Paris green and dry arsenate of lead may be safely used as a spray for cabbage until the heads are half formed, but not afterwards.

FRITZ PAYING DEAR FOR HIS GAINS, SAYS PETERBORO SOLDIER

Stanley Kernaghan, In Letters to His Parents, Speaks in Optimistic Terms of Conditions at the Front—A Chance to Get a Bath Every Day.

The following letters from Stanley Kerneghan, who is now overseas, are addressed to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Kerneghan, 497 Aylmer street:

France, June 5, 1918.

Dear Old Dad,—Your letters all O. K. some time ago and although I have always answered to home, I thought I would drop you a few lines. I am pleased to be able to say that I am fine and hope all at home are the same, and I only hope that some day I may be back with you all once again and then I'll be happy and will be able to enjoy it all again. We are stationed out in the country and it is beautiful to see the crops growing and the cattle in the fields, and it makes one long to be back up in the orchard or around the farm. You can bet I wish I were there now.

Well, dad, things looked kind of black for a few days, but they are better now, and Fritz sure is paying dearly for his gains, but don't worry, there is lots of France left yet, and he has to beat the Canadians, and they take some beating out here. Well, I must close for now. Remember me to all.

Your boy,
STAN.

France, June 15, 1918.

Dear Mother and Dad,—Some more papers and parcels, with smokes, etc., and sure was pleased to get them all O.K. I hope you all are well and having fine weather and that everything is going good. I suppose you are busy. I see that the early closing is in effect, so it will give you all a little more freedom. How do you like the new time. We are used to it now and it is fine, as the evenings are longer and it is better all around. We worked this morning, and this afternoon a couple of lorry loads of us went up to the column to see a baseball match between the Yankees and the Column. The Yankees won 10 to 9. It was some game. The Yankees had a band there and they supplied lots of music, and it was a real treat. I enjoyed it very much. We have a good job now for a few days, and get a bath every day and it is grand, as they are scarce. Well, dear people, I must close and go to bed. Yours with heaps of love and good wishes.

STAN.

France, June 8, 1918.

Dear Max,—Just a few lines to you to let you know that I am still alive and able to do a little. I am fine and have just come off guard, and it was a fine night and Fritz did not even come over, so we were well away. We are having most beautiful weather but cool, and it sure is a fine country when it don't rain, but you can bet it is some mess when it does.

Murf, I often wish you were here with me, as it is some life and the experience is worth the discomforts. I get fed up at times, but we have a good bunch and good N.C.O.'s and officers and you can bet that makes all the difference in the world, as it gives a fellow a heart to work See a bunch of boys every day and they make it feel like home, in fact it is just what a fellow makes it over here. We get lots of work but it goes with the game and we have some good times also, especially when a bunch go on the same job. I never regret coming over here under the circumstances. Had letters from home and believe me, mail from home is as welcome as money, and that is saying some. Fritz got poor Rev Heaslip the other day, and he was killed instantly. I was in the same town when the shell landed and I intended to drop in and see him on my way back home. I always did when I went by and when I came back all I could see was ruins and the place was deserted. Tell Will, please, that I am going to see his grave and have a picture of it sent to him as soon as I can. See Milf Hardill often and other boys, and I can tell you they are going fast and soon most of the old gang of the club will be all gone. But one never knows over here when he will go west, as Fritz puts them anywhere and everywhere, and is not particular where they land. Things are going some over here, but Fritz has a big problem to solve and there won't be many of his men left if he keeps on, as our boys give him hell all the time and then some. But I can tell you it takes some doing to stand up and shoot men down as fast as you can and bunch after bunch, but war is war, so it must be done. Well, I must close and turn in as it is about 9.30 and lights out is on the way. So good-night and God bless you all.

PROTHER STAN.

THE HOSPITAL TRAIN

By CANADIAN OVERSEAS

"Khaki trains" as they are called from their colour, are built especially for hospital work, and to-day they are most complete in every way. Khaki outside with a large red cross on each coach and pure white inside. In all from sixteen to twenty-three coaches.

They are most comfortable and compact inside. The wards are placed longitudinally, and the beds in three tiers. The compartments are like ship's cabins for cot cases, and as ordinary coaches for sitting cases.

Each coach has running water, telephone and electric fans for the hot weather.

There are kitchens, storerooms, staff coaches, office dispensary, disinfecting plant, baggage vans, isolation wards, X-ray room and theatre for urgent operations. All coaches are joined by the extension concertina device.

The kitchen is very compact, and the storeroom must have provisions sufficient for five or six meals for a load of four or five hundred men, as well as the train staff, which consists of, apart from the officer commandnumerable officers and sisters, an innumerable number of orderlies, who do all the ward work and the moving of the cases.

The cases are sorted by the receiving medical officer who allots certain cots and coaches to certain cases. The higher tiered beds are given to the lying cases likely to need least attention.

In the early days of the war a certain amount of rolling stock was takene over from the French for this purpose, but it is unsatisfactory from a medical and nursing point-of-view, besides not being comfortable as they are just ordinary European coaches, and the cases are put on the seats lengthwise, while the baggage coaches have racks put in upon which the stretches are placed. The coaches of these trains are not connected so the staff and the attendants have to wait till the train stops or where it is going slowly to go from one coach to another, and to get to one compartment to another in many cases they have to use the running board. This is not practical, nor pleasant, especially in rainy or stormy weather.

Often when a train has brought a convoy of wounded to the base it goes on to a post with a load of evacuated patients from the base for England. When it returns empty, either after a convoy or an evacuation, the time is employed by the train staff, in bed making, arranging the wards, preparing dressings, doing clerical work and slepeing. This latter in a busy time they take when they can.

Train duty is a mixture of night and day duty, and is varied all along the line by various incidents. At the railhead they may be bombed, the routes vary and also the length of the journey. Such things as mail, personal shopping, laundry, etc., have to be left to chance and opportunity.

In the busy times loads usually come from the dressing stations and the cases are mostly in trench clothing. In quieter times the patients come from casualty clearings, and have rested, been washed and shaved, and had their wounds dressed. Fortunately the periods during which the cases come straight from the line are not more than ten days or two weeks at a time, and are not frequent.

BOOKS FOR THE SOLDIERS

Notice has just been received from the Inspector of Public Libraries that all books destined for the use of the soldier at Petawawa Camp, must be sent to him by Thursday of this week at the latest. All intending donors of books therefore are requested to bring their books to the Library on or before Wednesday in order to be assured of their arrival at the camp. The books given died in the permanent Camp Library, so that not only the Peterborough boys, but also those from places may have access to them under ordinary library regulations. It is felt that in this way the greatest amount of good will be derived by the greatest number. The soldiers from Peterborough are so few compared with the great body of men at the camp and the number of books supplied so many that it would be impossible to get them adequately disposed of in any other way.

The response to the appeal made through the press has been generous, but there are very many yet, who have not given of their stores owng to the difficulty to sending them to the library. In order to obviate this, Miss Nora Hatton, (telephone 127) has kindly offered to call for any books if a message is sent to her.

About 400 volumes have so far been brought in to the library.

Food Board Flashes

While Canadian housewives are thinking that it is a hardship to have to buy substitutes along with flour the women of Norway are contemplating the prospect of mixing fish and wood with their bread. At present they are eating a dark, heavy war bread made from Government flour but the stocks of this are so low that they are now trying to use dried fish with it. Cod roe is very nourishing and as the shortage of tin makes it impossible to can much fish this year, large supplies of it are available for use in the bread.

Experiments are being made with cellulose which is produced by boiling wood until all harmful or unpleasant properties are removed. This product is being used very successfully as fodder for cattle and scientists claim that mixed with flour up to 30 per cent. it produces nourishing bread.

LARGEST DRYDOCK THIS SIDE.

Being Built at St. John—Will Accommodate Greatest Ships.

OTTAWA, July 15.—More particulars of the contract with the St. John Drydocks and Shipbuilding Company has been secured from the Department of Public Works for the construction of a drydock and ship repairing plant at Courtney Bay, St. John, shows that the contract calls for the construction of a drydock which will be of the first class, and the largest on this side of the Atlantic. It will, when completed, be capable of accommodating the greatest ships any navy in the world, or the largest merchantile vessels now built or contemplated.

FIRE DESTROYED MUNITIONS PLANT AT PEMBROKE

Special to The Examiner:

PEMBROKE, July 15.—The munitions factory operated by Thomas Pink & Co. was practically destroyed by fire this morning. The plant was engaged in the manufacture of shrapnel shells, and narrowly escaped the fire that swept this town a short time ago. The company is widely known, especially in the lumber industry, as makers of cant hooks, peevies and other tools used by lumber men.

Canadian Press:

PEMBROKE, July 15. — Starting where the conflagration of June 17th left off, Pembroke this morning had another disastrous fire, involving more than four hundred thousand dollars, and destroying one of the town's chief industrial districts. Lack of water handicapped the firemen, but the flames were eventually subdued.

PETERBOROUGH MAN WAS A GOOD FORAGER

Recently, Mr. John E. Hooton, of Cavan, had the misfortune to have a large barn laid low by the wind. Mr. Hooton had the lumber all carefully assorted out and one morning he found fresh waggon tracks to this spot and a large quantity of the lumber missing. A few days later, in broad daylight he discovered an exhotel keeper of Peterborough back for his second load. Mr. Hooton, in his ever generous manner, did not prosecute, but for unmitigated nerve the Peterborough man should receive the prize.—Port Hope Guide.

SHEEP DOG TRIALS.

Australia's National Pastime, the Maltese Cross Test.

Sheep dog trials may be considered a national pastime if not a national sport in Australia. There is an annual agricultural show in every town and village in the pastoral parts. There are general competitions on the lines of the American county and state fairs. There are horse races, buck jumping, shearing, log chopping and other strenuous competitions, but not one of these excites more interest than the sheep dog trials, and in these tests Australians have set the example of certain of the most serious tasks that a man and a dog may be asked to accomplish with three strange sheep—sheep that had never previously met until they had a moment before been turned out from three separate pens to be packed or gathered together by the dog.

It was the Australians who first put forward, and they still maintain it, the Maltese cross test. The eight six-foot hurdles are set in the shape of a Maltese cross. The passages are of a width that will permit only one sheep to pass through at a time. The animals have to be driven north and south and east and west, all the passes being open at the time. The skill and patience of the dog are here tried to the utmost, and there can be little wonder there is a gasp of satisfaction and a cheer of joy when the sheep have been successfully driven through these narrow ways.

The Australian sheep dogs are the smallest in use in the world, but are quick and lively in their work. It is no wonder that the Australian gives much thought for his dogs, for it goes without saying that the work of the sheep station could not be accomplished without them. In ordinary cases it is reckoned that one dog can do the work of half a dozen men. In many instances a dog is superior to fifty humans, and where there are such vast flocks of nimble sheep, such as the merinos in Australia are, it would be impossible to round them up so that they may be examined, counted and duly looked over without the dogs.—Argonaut.

LAWS OF THE INCAS.

A Code That Was Remarkable For Its Beneficent Simplicity.

Among the most remarkable laws of the Incas were those concerning taxation. The principal feature of those laws was that taxes were not paid in money, but in work and in produce, whether manufactured or grown. The Inca emperors thought it unjust to demand that taxes should be paid in any kind of commodity that the people could not produce by their own personal labor.

The people also paid another sort of tribute. They made clothes, shoes and arms for the soldiers and for the poor who could not work themselves owing to age or infirmity. The cloth was made of wool from the flocks of llamas that abounded in the mountains. On the plains of the seacoast, where the climate is warm and they do not dress in woolens, the people made cotton cloths, the cotton being supplied from the crops of the emperor. The shoes were made in the provinces where aloes were most abundant, for they were made of the leaves of a tree called maguey. Each province furnished its own produce, and no province had to supply anything that did not belong to it.

There was a mandate that forbade beggary and destitution; that, of course, followed upon due provision of their laws. Every citizen was provided for theoretically and practically. No man need be idle; no man need lack land or seed or implements for cultivation; therefore no one was permitted to beg. If any were found doing so it was clear proof of idleness, for the incapable were provided for, and contempt and punishment were meted out on all tramps, vagabonds and idlers.—"The Secret of the Pacific."

"For the Sake of Argument."

"Well, now, for the sake of argument"— Is there a more irritating phrase? Is there any greater bore than the person who habitually employs it? To be asked to assume anything "just for the sake of argument" invariably prejudices us against making that concession. We sit grim lipped while the controversialist examines and expounds. We feel that to oblige him we would not even assume that two and two make four.—Youth's Companion.

AMERICANS DROVE ENEMY BACK AND TOOK 4,500 PRISONERS

Yesterday's Attack Proved a Failure—Enemy Used 800,000 Men—Large Number of Tanks Were Used on Both Sides—Marne Crossed at Several Points.

THREATENED RAILWAY STRIKE AVERTED

Tuesday Morning Bulletins:

LONDON, July 16.—The attack yesterday, launched on a fifty-two mile front, in which the Germans had eight hundred thousand men employed, proved a failure. West of Rheims the enemy penetrated to a depth of three miles. They crossed the Marne in several places. The Americans drove them back at one point and captured fifteen hundred prisoners.

TANKS USED.

PARIS, July 16.—A large number of tanks were used on both sides in the present offensive.

MUCH ELATED.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The Government officials are very much elated over the outcome of yesterday's fighting in which the Americans had their first great baptism.

STRIKE AVERTED.

OTTAWA, July 16.—Every railway employe, male or female, according to the decision reached by the Cabinet yesterday, is to receive wages in accordance with the McAdoo award in the United States. A strike will likely be averted.

TELEGRAPHERS OUT.

TORONTO, July 16. —The G.N.W. Telegraphers will walk out at ten o'clock this morning.

Monday Evening Bulletins:

COUNTER ATTACK.

PARIS, July 15.— Americans in a counter attack advanced the lines several hundred yards near Vaux, taking a few prisoners, but later withdrew to the old line for strategic reasons. Fighting is in progress at other points of the German attacks.

TURKS ACTIVE.

LONDON, July 15.—Turkish troops attacked British positions in Palestine Saturday night in a counter attack. The British restored the lines and took five hundred prisoners, two hundred and sixty of which were Germans.

Stomach Troubles Are Due To Acidity

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomachache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antiacid, such as bisurated magnesia which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestents. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

GOT THE TRAIN STOPPED.

Two Attempts Were Dismal Failures, but the Third Won.

When the late Robert Bonner purchased Maud S. he sent her to Charter Oak park to be trained. One day a friend of Mr. Bonner left New York to visit him at the park, but found that the train did not stop at that station. The conductor was polite, but said that he could not go against orders.

At New Haven a halt was made and Mr. Bonner's friend tried to bribe the engineer with a ten dollar bill, but in vain. He was then told that Charles P. Clark, the president of the road, was on the train, and he went to him and politely requested that the stop be made.

"Why don't you see the conductor?" asked Mr. Clark.

"I have, but he will not disobey orders."

"Why not then go forward and bribe the engineer?"

"I tried bribery at New Haven, but it would not work."

The absence of evasion was the best policy. Mr. Clark not only gave orders to have the train stopped at Charter Oak, but promised some day to see Maud S. He had witnessed the attempt at bribery, and the frank confession of the offense seemed to please him.

A Paderewski Story.

Paderewski was once at the house of a noted Polish poet, who gave it as his opinion that no living composer could compare with Mozart. Paderewski said nothing, but the next day he visited the poet again and said that he would like to play to him a little Mozartian piece which perhaps he did not know.

The poet expressed his delight and was charmed with the music.

"Ah!" he exclaimed when the pianist had finished. "Now you must surely acknowledge that that beautiful piece could not have been composed in our time."

"Perhaps," answered Paderewski dryly, "only it happens that I composed it myself this very morning."

"That beautiful piece" was Paderewski's now celebrated "Minuet."

GRAIN MARKET

There was evidently a good demand by export interests for spot offerings of all the coarse grains. Contract grades command high premiums. The movement of the new wheat crop in the southern States is limiting deliveries of the coarser grains. Corn acted strong on the Chicago market, the option market closing 2 5-8c. to 3c. higher. Oats were also strong, closing 1c. to 1 3-4c. higher. Ontario cash barley is quoting 2c. to 3c. higher.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2c. tax, in store, Fort William.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 142 cars, with 2,543 cattle, 359 calves, 1,018 hogs, and 646 sheep.

The market was slow and draggy. Not until about midday did the cattle begin to move towards the scales. Prices were just about steady with last week for anything with quality in the butcher steers and heifers, but barley, steady and from 15c. to 25c. lower on medium butcher.

Good fat cows and bulls ran about the same as last week, with the demand not too active.

Calves were steady, but tendency lower.

Sheep steady, but lambs 50c. to 75c. lower.

Hogs steady at $18.25, fed and watered.

TIRED AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Warren Randles, Rothesay, Kings County, N.B., "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter, so when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the results were most satisfactory. I feel fine now, and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

Says Machines for Altering Shells Hidden From Inspectors

New Developments in Case Against a London Munitions Company Are Rumored—Munitions Board Has Evidence.

THE COMPANY'S CLAIM

LONDON, Ont., July 16.—The officers of the Imperial Munitions Board, it is stated, have secured a number of photographs which will be submitted in evidence at the trial in which the superintendent and foreman of the London Manufacturing and Machine Company are charged with tampering with shells being manufactured for the British and Canadian Governments, to show the serious effects of the fuse of defective shells.

It is not claimed that the pictures were taken following the use of shells made by the London firm, but it is contended that such results are almost certain to follow the discharge of shells having the defects alleged in the London case.

Alleged Offence Serious.

These show British and Canadian field guns destroyed by the explosion of their own shells within them, and it is claimed that in a number of cases whole gun crews were killed and maimed. Evidence will also be offered in an endeavour to show the seriousness of the alleged offence to prove that such shells, having lost their proper balance, take a wobbling course through the air, almost inevitably exploding short among the allied troops in the trenches. The specific charge against the officers of the munitions factory is that an apparatus was used to expand shells which had previously been rejected because of the small diameter of the shoulder. Then, it is said, in cases where the expansion was uneven they were placed in a lathe and machined down, the effect being that he walls of the shells would be seriously weakened. Moreover, the process of expanding is said to break the fibre of the shell, making a disastrous explosion within the gun almost inevitable.

Another Serious Charge.

Evidence has been brought forward in an attempt to show that the inspector's rejection mark was ground out or battered out in special forge in hundreds of cases. While the officers of the Munitions Board are pressing the case it is claimed that the prosecution had its origin at Ottawa and that the first instructions to the London police were for the issuance of warrants for the immediate arrests of the parties accused. This, however, was not carried out on the advice of Chief Williams that more complete evidence could be secured by moving with the slower process attending the issuance of summonses.

The Company's Claim.

The case is generating a great deal of interest in London and is being taken up by the returned soldiers, who claim to have knowledge of many instances in which Canadians were killed and maimed at the front by defective shells in their own guns.

Meanwhile, Mr. Ernest Yeates, president of the company, claims that if rejected shells were so treated it was without the knowledge of the company. He claims that the men in their zeal to produce a greater number of shells for the army took these measures, if they were taken at all. Moreover, he contends that expanding is permitted by certain of the allied Governments whose regulations are not so rigid as those of the British. He contends further that his company has delivered 600,000 shells to the Government during the war and that firing tests of 1,500 of them at Petawawa showed satisfactory results.

Certain of the witnesses secured by the Munitions Board swear that the machines for altering the shells were kept in rooms which were locked and which were only used while inspectors were in remote parts of the building.

Neglected Streets.

San Sebastian stands almost alone as a famous cosmopolitan watering place upon which the shadow of the war is scarcely cast. Existence there proceeds almost exactly as usual. The conchas is crowded in the mornings with bathing parties and boulevards and the terrace of the others, and in the afternoons the boulevards and the terrace of the Casino are as gay as ever. As a result of the war the place certainly suffers from the absence of a good part of the cosmopolitan element, largely French and American, and it is dependant chiefly on the people of Spain itself, but there are quite as many of the aristocratic families as ever there were, and the humbler folk follow them in their thousands. The absence of the aliens inevitably means a considerable decrease in the income, and this is made the excuse for certain apparent neglect on the part of the Ayuntamiento, for some say they notice an occasional untidiness in the streets which did not exist before. It has been declared of San Sebastian that a lady might cross the street in dancing slippers immediately after a heavy rain without marking them with mud, but that is scarcely true at the present moment. —Family Herald.

Artificial Gems.

Nearly all artificial gems—that is to say, stones that are really made by artificial means—are compounds of alum crystallized under special conditions. The metallic salts that are added during fusion determine whether the stones produced shall be sapphires, rubbies, oriental topazes, amethysts or emeralds.

A GOOD SAMPLE OF IRISH COBBLERS

Mr. Frank Hamilton, Hunter street, East City, probably the oldest resident of Ashburnham, and one of the city's best gardeners for years, left with the Examiner this morning a hill of Irish Cobbler potatoes which, without detracting from the other samples left in of this season's production, are really the best we have seen.

Mr. Hamilton has not been very well for the past week, but the fact that his garden, in which he takes so much pride, is doing so well, should help him to be up and around as usual in a short while.

Mr. Hamilton is eighty-six years of age and does his own gardening.

STRANGE FIGURES OF WAR.

Striking Acrostics Produced by a New York Golf Instructor.

A novel calculation in connection with the war has been made by John Forman, instructor in the Far East Garden golf course at the Vanderbilt Hotel, New York.

"For some time I have worked over the figures that have come up in the war," Forman states, "and possibly this month may bring about some surprises when you take into consideration the significance of six curious comparisons and citations which I shall give you.

"The Kaiser is the man who started the war; Serbia is the country where the war started. There are six letters in each of these words, mark you, and if written together and divided in halves, these two halves will spell 'Kaiser' and 'Serbia,' thus:

Kai : ser
Ser : bia

"The great man in France is Joffre. Apply the same rule as above, and we have:

Jof : fre
Fre : nch

"Germany claims to be the most cultivated nation in the world. This superculture is termed Kultur. Turkey has the least Kultur. Apply the same rule:

Kul : tur
Tur : key

"The Kaiser's Number. — If the word Kaiser is written with each letter followed by the number of its place in the alphabet, and after these numbers is placed the significant number 6, we have:

K——11 6
A—— 1 6
I—— 9 6
S——19 6
E—— 5 6
R——18 6

Kaiser's number 666

"Also note that when the Kaiser started the war he was aged 55 years and 6 months (666 months), which again fixes the Kaiser's number. Having established this fact, you will be interested in reading from the thirteenth chapter of Revelations, the fourth, fifth, and eighteenth verses:

"'And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast; and they worshipped the beast, saying — Who is like unto the beast? Who is able to make war with him?

"'And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months.

"'Here is wisdow. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast; for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred and three score and six (666).'

"War started in August, 1914; plus 42 months make February, 1918.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

THE WAYS OF SOCIETY

CHAPTER CVIII.

To me the ways of society were most puzzling. The caustic remarks, the frank discussions of things which in my home town never were talked about always made me feel sort of out of it. When I spoke to George of my feelings he either made light of them, or said I "didn't understand." There were many things that I evidently didn't understand.

I once talked in an impersonal way of Julia Collins to Geraldine Ross. In response to something I said she returned:

"Julia is a regular man's woman," as if that excused anything she might do.

"Just what do you mean by a man's woman, Mrs. Ross?" I asked.

"Oh, she makes herself like them. She never fusses, she flatters them and makes them comfortable."

"Yes, but she must do more than that to attract them as she does."

"I don't know that I can explain. But I keep close tabs on Bert when she is around. She is always ready for anything anyone proposes, she isn't a bit of a prude, yet she never has done anything to get herself talked of. If a man does something he shouldn't, like taking a drop too much or something like that she never rakes him over the coals, just sympathizes with him because his wife does. Oh, she is clever, all right."

Helen is Enlightened As To Julia Collins Methods.

"But how can she know that his wife hauls him over the coals, as you say?" I asked, my curiosity excited.

"My but you are innocent!" Mrs. Ross exclaimed. "Why my dear Mrs. Howard, Julia Collins is the confidante of half the men in our set. They all run to her for comfort when things go wrong at home. While I do not believe they complain of their wives, they let her see that they need sympathy, and come to her for it."

"But—I don't see"—I hesitated to say what was in my mind, That if Julia Collins did not care how much she hurt the feelings of the wives; I should think, for her own sake, her reputation, she would hesitate to receive their husband's.

"I want you to understand one thing. No one can ever accuse Julia Collins of anything wrong," Mrs. Ross interrupted before I could put my thought into words. "She is as cold as ice, and as chaste. No one else I know could do as she does, and be liked by other women. I like her immensely. She is clever, bright, and although I wouldn't like her to get my Bert dangling after her, if she did I would not think anything wrong. I wonder sometimes you are so lenient with Mr. Howard. He is altogether too charming a man to let her monopolize him as she does. I know they are awfully old friends and all that; but there's a limit to good nature. I wouldn't be so kind I am sure."

"Oh, yes you would. She is such an old friend, you know. It would be very small in me to object to a friendship begun before my husband knew I existed," I protested, anxious to make her think I knew and approved of all that George did.

"Don't be foolish. She IS an old friend, grant you that. But that is no reason why she should lure a married man from his home with her little chafing dish suppers, and her cozy evenings when she forgets to ask his wife," then she added, "Conveniently forgets."

Helen Asks An Explanation.

"Just what do you mean?" I asked "Just what I have said. Julia thinks nothing of having those little suppers a deux, or if there are more, it is always more men. She is a monopolist in a way. I'll warrant half the men in our set are with her often when their wives think they are at their clubs."

"Oh, you must be mistaken," I declared, yet making a vow to find out the next time George said he was going to his club if he were really there.

"It is awfully nice of you to stand up for the men. But I am not so generous. I want my own husband. If Julia Collins wants a man she will have to find some one else besides Bert Ross. But I don't mind telling you that I have learned a lot from her. Or that I use a good many of her methods. If she can win men by them why shouldn't I use them to hold the only man I care about? What a gossip I am," she said after a moment, "Here I have been talking about Julia Collins in a horrid manner, and I really like her. I feel as if I should beg her pardon. Yet I have said nothing but the truth."

"And nothing that was not flattering to Mrs. Collins," I assured her. "I am sure she could not object to your saying she was so fascinating that none of us could hope to vie with her."

"Not quite that! you, with your youth, your beauty, and your wonderful musical talent have no reason to be afraid of any woman. But with we ordinary women it is different. We have to watch out that she does not make our husband's discontented with their hum-drum home lives."

Pearls.

The use and popularity of pearls date back to about 300 B. C., but they were known to yet older peoples, and especially to those of the east. The Chinese records go still further back, and oyster pearls were received as tribute in the twenty-third century B. C. It is probable that they were found in the waters of Ceylon and India 2,000 years ago, and the Greeks of course both knew and recognized the value of the pearl. But it was not until the Roman empire was beginning to rise that the knowledge of the value of the pearl became general.

BRAWNY NORWEGIANS.

They Are the Longest Lived People in the World Today.

The fine stature and unique physical qualities of the athletic Norsemen are thus described by Price Collier in an article on "Norway and the Norwegians, From an American Point of View," in Scribner's Magazine:

"The so called bonder, or agricultural peasantry, form the very backbone of the nation in Norway. Each is proprietor of his own farm, and they occupy the country from the shore of the sea to the foot of the hills and up every glen or valley as far as corn will grow. They are, as a rule, fine looking, athletic men, as their properties are not so large as to exempt them from work, but large enough to supply them and their families with wholesome food. In the old days they built their own houses, made their own furniture, plows, carts, harness, ironwork, wood work and basketwork. Probably there are no communities anywhere else in the world so self efficient, so independent and so comfortable.

"Indeed, their size and wholesome aspect prove this, for they are the fairest, tallest, broadest chested and longest lived people in the world today.

"In the streets of the towns, at the farms, on the roads, one seldom sees a fat man or one who looks unwieldy. They are sturdily, sometimes heavily, built, but they are lean in the flank, broad of shoulder and thick through, and, though they do not always carry themselves lightly or gracefully, they look to have plenty of room for the working machinery of living, for heart and lungs and digestive apparatus. Wherever you go in Norway, from Christiansand to the North cape, you cannot go far without going up and down hill, nor can you go far without inhaling the champagne like mountain air. It is not impossible that the plain food—a necessity in a poor country—the physical training in the schools, the obligatory military training, the sensible temperance legislation, the up and down hill exercise, the almost entire lack of luxury and the fact that they are not hard workers—not lazy, perhaps, but certainly leisurely in their toil, seldom making any undue demand upon their nervous energy—have produced what no artificial legislation can conv."

A Book That Wasn't Published.

A singular plan for honoring heroes was proposed in 1832, if we may credit the following footnote to "La Typographie," a poem by Le Pelletier, published in that year at Geneva: "In February last several newspapers announced that the largest book ever printed will shortly appear in London under the title 'The Pantheon of English Heroes.' The pages of this book will be twelve feet long and two feet wide and the letters six inches high. It has been found necessary to erect special machinery for the manufacture of the paper required. This gigantic work will be printed by steam in characters of gold, no ordinary printing ink being used in the process. Only a hundred copies will be issued, and these will serve to adorn the principal libraries in England." You will not find that book in any public or private library.

DAMAGE BY LIGHTNING

Proper Rodding Would Have Prevented $331,450 Loss.

Caring for Lambs at Weaning—Different Ways Fruits and Vegetables May Be Used as Substitutes for Foods Our Army Requires.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

As a comprehensive conclusion from our investigations, we have found that if all the buildings in rural Ontario were rodded more than 95 per cent. of the annual damage to buildings by lightning would be prevented. The method by which this conclusion was arrived at was as follows: In 1912 eighteen insurance companies in Ontario kept special records for us; from their reports we learned that out of every 7,000 unrodded buildings insured by them 37 were struck by lightning, while in every 7,000 rodded ones only two were struck by lightning. The rods prevented damage in 35 cases out of an expectancy of 37, showing an efficiency of 94.7 p.c. Since that we have determined the efficiency for the years 1913, 1914 and 1915. The results for the four years are as follows:

Year.	Efficiency of Rods.
1912	94.7
1913	92.0
1914	99.8
1915	88.9
Average for four years	97.2

To apply these figures: The report of the Superintendent of Insurance shows that in 1912 the insurance paid on losses caused by lightning was $262,282. No doubt the actual loss exceeded the insurance by perhaps 1-3 or ½. If so, the actual loss was $350,000 or over. 94.7 per cent. of this equals $331,450, which represents the saving that would have been effected that year if all the buildings had been rodded.

Investigations along similar lines in Iowa have shown an efficiency of 98.7 p.c. for rods in that state, based on the report of 55 mutual companies each year for eight years. In Michigan the efficiency of lightning rods has been shown to be from 98 to 99 p.c.

These few facts, which are all matters of record in published reports, establish beyond question the conclusion first given, that if all buildings in rural Ontario were rodded 95 p.c. of the annual lightning damage to buildings would be eliminated.—Prof. W. H. Day, Ontario Agriculture College.

Uses of Fruits and Vegetables.

The drastic regulations set forth by the Canada Food Board lately, have caused much anxiety to many people who feel that they must now choose between either being considered unpatriotic, or going without sufficient food to nourish their bodies.

This is a mistaken idea. In their excitement they have forgotten for the moment to recall the long list of available substitutes which can wholly replace the Allies' demands, and to remember that foremost among these stand fruits and vegetables.

Fresh vegetables not only contain a high percentage of water—a necessary requirement of our bodies—but, also, a large amount of mineral salts and acids which act as blood purifiers and body regulators; they also serve to prevent too great concentration of food and thus aid in the digestive process. Dried vegetables on the other hand, are rich in tissue-building material, dried peas and beans containing as much protein as our best cuts of beef, in addition to containing a large percentage of starch.

While fruits are usually noted more for their flavor, mineral matter and water than for anything else, still we must not forget that bananas, dates, figs, raisins and prunes are high in food value, some containing as high as 60 p.c. of sugar. For this reason, they are a valuable substitute for cane sugar. They might well be given to children in place of candy, and when served in combination with puddings, or salads, reduce the amount of sugar [illegible] much to the value of the dish.

Vegetables and fruits should form a large part of the diet during the winter as well as the summer months, and it is therefore to our advantage to see that they are canned or dried at the proper time for future use. Much valuable information on the canning and drying of fruits and vegetables may be secured from the Women's Institute Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.—Geo. A. Putnam, Superintendent of Women's Institutes.

Care of the Weanling Lamb.

For best results lambs should be weaned at between four and five months. It has been found that under conditions prevailing during the hot dry months of mid-summer the ewes will drop off considerably in their milk flow. The lambs receive comparatively little nourishment and it is better for both ewe and lamb for them to be separated. When the lambs are removed from the ewes they will miss little the small amount of milk they would receive and will soon learn to depend upon pasture. They should receive the very best pasture available. Nothing fits in better than a patch of rape sown at the proper times so as to be ready for pasture when the lambs are weaned. Care should be exercised in turning the lambs on the fresh rape to avoid bloating and probable death. If no rape is available fresh clover will give satisfactory results. In addition to pasture a feed of grain once a day will push the lambs along to a good finish. At no time should it be necessary to feed over one-half pound of grain per day to each lamb while on pasture.—J. P. Sackville, B.S.A., Ontario Agricultural College.

Unfortunate Namur.

From the tenth century to 1421 Namur was the capital of a dukedom, but was merged in the Netherlands in 1421. It was captured in 1692 by Marshal Vauban in the Netherlands war and three years later by William of Orange. Again in 1746 the French General Clermont took it, and it was taken from the French by Joseph II. in 1794, but restored again later. In 1815 it was defended with great bravery in the Waterloo campaign.—London Answers.

Not a Corn or Callus on Feet
Apply few drops, then lift them off without pain.

A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it freezone and it now can be had in little bottles for a few cents from any drug store.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off with fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses, just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it!

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Earning Her $37.83

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Stanley Ashton agreed to give thirty thousand dollars for the work of the ambulance corps by the student body of the college from which he some dozen years before had taken his degree, on the condition that the student body would raise a like amount, he little knew what a medley of unusual activities he was starting within the dormitories of that college.

"I know it's going to be hard for the students," he told the dean of the college when he made the proposal, "but the ambulance corps needs sixty thousand dollars if their work is to be worth while. I'm not a millionaire, and I guess it is as hard for me to get that thirty thousand dollars together as it will be for each of the students to do his or her share toward raising the difference."

The dean was figuring on the back of an envelope as Stanley Ashton was talking to him.

"Yes," he said, having finished his little sum in division. "There are 793 students enrolled this year—about 400 girls and the rest men. That will mean about $37.83 a student, as I reckon it. In my announcement I shall suggest that each student try to raise that sum. It will give zest to their endeavors if each student knows just what is expected of him."

So the announcement was made, and for the weeks that followed each student of the college went around more bent on extracting the sum of $37.83 from his financial endowments—and most of the students of this co-educational institution were not possessed of an overadequate allowance—than on securing passing grades in their classroom work. Dances, athletics, theatricals—all the usual side interests of the college—were subservient to this desperate struggle on the part of the students, each to earn the allotted quota. The trouble was they were all doing it at once. Little efforts to extract the money from each other by blacking shoes, pressing clothes, darning socks, etc., were rather useless, since no student had the amount to pay for such services while each was saving his funds for the quota. Fudge was a drug on the market, for who had money to buy fudge?

Margaret Benton achieved quite an honor for herself among her friends by announcing that she would give up her Christmas holiday vacation. She had received a check for $20 from home to cover the expenses of her trip and, with her parents' sanction, she renounced this pleasure so that she might thereby save the larger part of her quota. There was $17.83 to be earned. By going without fudge supplies herself for three weeks she eeked out her funds till she had but $16.75 to be earned. Then she earned 75 cents by selling one pair of old rubbers, two old textbooks, the gold tips from two outworn fountain pens and a last winter's hat. Thirty cents she saved by walking downtown and back on three occasions. There then remained $15.70 to be earned, and there her fund remained.

Her allowance was exhausted and there was nothing to save, and every means of earning money seemed to be in use already by some of the 793.

On a certain gray day, when she had indulged herself to the extent of using 5 cents carfare to go to collect the pittance that the old-clothes dealer was to allow her for her old hat and rubbers, she sat crowded in the surface car—so crowded, in fact, that she could not help but hear the conversation of two well-overcoated men beside her.

"But what are you going to do about it?" the younger of the two asked. "I've done all I could to comply with the request of the department of agriculture. I had all my fields cultivated on our summer place, and then I couldn't get men to harvest them. I have had to pay $5 a day for a man to repair the hotbed frames, and now I've had the beds planted to green vegetables in an effort to do my bit towards keeping the local market supplied with green goods. I can't get anyone to transplant the seedlings. Did get a man for 30 cents an hour, but unless some one watched him every minute he soldiered."

Margaret heard the man sitting with him suggest that it was more satisfactory to contract the work. Then it didn't matter if the men did soldier.

"But if there aren't any men to do the work, what am I to do?"

Margaret had only a vague idea of what a hotbed looked like, but somehow the task sounded easy. She sat quietly beside the young man in the warm overcoat and allowed herself to be carried beyond the street where she would have got off to return to the dormitory. For several miles more she rode, until in a dreary country lane on the outskirts of the city the man signaled for the car to stop. He alighted, and Margaret alighted, too. He turned to walk up the lane, and Margaret, with face averted, followed him at a distance. He went into the front door of a rambling, spacious and well-kept-up country house, and after standing in the dampness in the lane for ten minutes, Margaret rang the doorbell.

It wasn't very easy but it had to be done. She asked to be permitted to do the transplanting, and named as her minimum price—she insisted on contract work—$15.70. The man, who had seated her in front of a cheery wood fire and stood beside her, smiling as she made her proposition, held out against the price. He said it wasn't worth it, and that he could ill afford to pay fancy prices. But Margaret was obdurate, and finally the bargain was struck. Margaret stipulated that she should be allowed to do the work when she chose. She realized that most of it would have to be done after lecture hours, and mayhap by the light of a lantern.

By the aid of one of the men students in horticulture, Margaret gained a smattering knowledge of how the hotbed seedlings should be transplanted. She secured a lantern for her night work and, wearing under her long coat a pair of working overalls, which she borrowed from the same student, she started out for her task. It was not easy, but she persevered, even when her hands were bruised and scratched.

The second afternoon of her work Margaret determined to continue there until nine o'clock, and accordingly took with her a package of sandwiches put up by the dormitory cook, at the direction of the kind-hearted house mother. Margaret was sitting in her overalls, eating the sandwiches by the light of her lantern in the workshed for which her employer had given her the key, when the employer himself appeared at the door. At first his obvious amusement at her position and costume embarrassed her, but it was so good-humored that finally Margaret laughed herself and offered him a piece of her last sandwich. He watched her work and did not criticize. Then, obviously only to have an excuse for lingering with her, he worked with her, always under her direction, and assuming no knowledge of the work himself.

"You are a robber," he told her, as he worked by her side. "It was a hold-up game for you to get so much; but it was you or no one, so I had to give in. By the way," he said, asking a question that had been perplexing him since her first offer to do the work, "it is unusual to find a young woman so in need of funds. Pardon my rudeness," he hastened to add. "If you didn't seem to enjoy the work so much I should be sorry that I had let you do it. There must be other more congenial, more remunerative sorts of work."

Margaret did not answer his question nor satisfy his curiosity, and although they became well acquainted, in a measure, during the fortnight that followed, never again did the man inquire more into Margaret's identity. They did not even discover each other's names, for acquaintance in the usual acceptance of the word has very little to do with the acquaintance that is sometimes the precursor of a deeper attachment. On the last night of Margaret's work, when she had transplanted the last succulent head of lettuce and the last leaf of endive, it seemed the most natural thing in the world for the man to tell her that he loved her, and for Margaret, standing there in her clumsy, baggy overalls, her hands loaded with the warm, brown earth, to look quite frankly into his eyes and to tell him that she loved him, too.

"And now," he said, "tell me why and wherefore. Why did you stick me for $15.70—just that and nothing more?"

"Why did you hold out?" she rejoined. "You were dreadfully stingy."

"A man has to be, when he has pledged $30,000 and he isn't a millionaire."

"Stanley Ashton!" she gasped. "Why, I somehow imagined you were baldheaded and sixty, with a beard and a diamond stud, and creaky boots. That's the sort of man I thought you were. Then we have been really working for the same thing. How little my $37.83 looks compared to your 330,000, especially when I've held you up for $15.70."

"You aren't the plucky little girl who gave up her Christmas holidays for the fund? The dean told me about that. It was far finer than anything I've done."

And then, in spite of the muddy hands, Stanley Ashton folded the little gardener into his arms—those strong arms, that had somehow struck Margaret when she was crushed against them in the street car two weeks before, as arms it would be very nice to be folded into.

Tempting the Stork.

It is customary in China, when the number of children—daughters preponderating—begins to exceed the family income, to name the latest comer "Enough," relates World Outing. Acting upon this superstition, the Lees, a native Christian couple, presented their seventh child for baptism.

"What is her name?" inquired the missionary pastor.

"Enough!" announced both parents in fervent unison.

"That will never do!" the pastor frowned. "Think of a more fitting name!" But Mr. and Mrs. Lee were smitten with stage fright and could think of nothing.

The Bible woman sitting near whispered "Call her Dorcas!" So Dorcas she was hastily named.

But fancy the dismay of Mr. and Mrs. Lee when they discovered that Dorcas, translated into the native dialect, is identical in sound with the Chinese words, "Many More!"

Hoeing is a severe strain on the back. It calls into play muscles not used much in lifting or in other kinds of farm work.

If you have a weak back you cannot stand much hoeing unless you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to set the kidneys right and remove the cause of weakness and lameness of the back. Just try one pill a dose at bed time and see how much better you will feel.

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons, and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear, and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

FAMOUS FOREST QUITE GONE

Absolutely Nothing Left of the Once Beautiful Woods That Were the Pride of Verdun.

Lovers used to stroll arm in arm through the well-ordered forests of Verdun. To stroll arm in arm where these forests once stood is no longer possible, Gouverneur Morris writes in Collier's. You must go alone. If there has been rain you should have nails in your boots. The smooth convolutions of the hills have been tortured and turned into ridges and hollows like the Atlantic ocean during the equinoctial gales.

I doubt if there is to be found one single square yard of the original forest floor. I doubt if there is to be found one single perfect example of a shell crater. One crater breaks into the next, and there, merged into one shocking hollow, are a dozen which at the first moment of looking appeared to have been but one.

It has been well but truly "worked," that forest floor; but not for 100 years can it ever again be worked by man in any peaceful and profitable pursuit. Rich soil (doubly rich now), it will be shunned by the farmer with his plow; a prospect very rich in copper and iron, the prospector will shun it, for here, buried and half-buried, the shells great and little, which did not explode at all, are as thick as temptation in the life of every man.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and sold by most druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

SAVING A CITY.

Ducazel's Method Was Unique, but It Pacified Madrid.

It was in the year 1868, after a battle in the Spanish revolution of that year, and the streets of Madrid were filled with angry crowds that were bent on destroying everything and every one. Suddenly an unknown man appeared at the city hall.

"Give me a band of musicians," he said, "and before nightfall I shall control all Madrid."

He must have been a man of rare personality to have been able to persuade the authorities in that dark hour to give him anything.

But he got the musicians and went out with them to wander through the city. While they played he sang—popular street songs or some old national air. When these bored the listeners he mounted old boxes and told funny tales and got the populace amused and laughing.

By nightfall peace reigned in the city, and the mob broke up and went home to bed. The man's name was Felipe Ducazel, and he was only twenty-two years old when he cleverly achieved this result.

We are told a deal about heroic things in saving countries by long, terrible rides at night or by the sacrifice of oneself by dying in somebody's stead, but few of us hear of any one who saved a town by laughter.—Youth's Companion.

British Rural Life Changes.

With women taking the place of men workers, conditions in many parts of the country are undergoing a remarkable change. This is most noticeable in parts where woman land workers are making their homes.

The Woman's Institute is largely responsible for the movement, which is gradually revolutionizing village life, making it more attractive and stimulating a sense of citizenship. In conjunction with the food production department, a parliamentary meeting is called which elects a democratic committee representing farmers' wives, cottagers and landed women, who thereafter manage affairs, arranging for monthly social gatherings where useful lectures are given, exhibitions of housecraft or gardening skill held, and old, treasured recipes and household hints exchanged.

Several hundred villagers already have their committees and the food department is inundated with demands for organizers and lecturers.

Bacon and Beef.

American bacon will be used to stretch out British beef supplies. The scheme of rationing, which already is in operation in London and the surrounding countries, is to be extended at once, and after this only two of the four weekly coupons will be available for the purchase of butcher's meat.

The object is to diminish the demand for home grown cattle during the months when these can be fattened on grass. The new order limits the purchase of beef, mutton and pork to 20 cents a head weekly, but does not affect diners in restaurants and hotels, who are permitted to exchange coupons for meat meals.

Children over six will be entitled after April 14 to a full adult ration of meat. All coupons are cashable for bacon and poultry.

Woman Champion Maker of Flies.

The title of world's champion artificial fly maker is proudly claimed for Miss Alice Sherwin Coleman of New York, who for more than a decade has been making flies for anglers. Some idea of her reputation among the disciples of Izaak Walton may be gathered from the fact that she and her assistants make $400,000 worth of flies for fishing enthusiasts every year.

Miss Coleman makes 300 different varieties of flies regularly summer and winter, special orders bringing the number up to 1,500 varieties altogether; for such is Miss Coleman's reputation that exacting fishermen in the wilds of America sometimes catch strange flies that hover over particular streams and send them, alive in a ventilated bottle so that she may study and reproduce them accurately.

False Modesty

has led many a suffering person to neglect the treatment of piles. The itching, stinging sensations produce the keenest distress. The thought of a surgical operation brings mental anxiety which undermines the general health.

Relief can always be obtained by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in most cases persistent treatment brings about complete cure. This ointment is worth trying when you think of the comfort to be obtained.

GERMAN CIVIL COURTS.

Mode of Procedure Where Commercial Cases Are Tried.

The "handelsgericht," or commercial court, is presided over by one judge and two laymen known as "handelsrichter"—commercial judges nominated by commercial bodies and appointed by the government. Any German is eligible who is registered as a merchant, thirty years old, and otherwise qualified as specially provided by law. Only commercial cases are sent to this department upon motion of either party. I witnessed a trial between merchants and was much pleased with the speedy method of determining the case.

Instead of submitting technical business questions to a jury, who in all probability never heard of the like before, and then offering the testimony of experts on each side of the case, which often has a tendency to confuse the jury rather than to enlighten them, the German commercial judges possess personal experience in business and skill in affairs of commerce of the greatest value in arriving at correct conclusions. Besides, the procedure, as a rule, is brief and to the point and causes little delay to the litigants. So far as I could observe, this system worked very satisfactorily.—Fred H. Peterson in Case and Comment.

THE MAN WHO LAUGHS.

The Reason He Does So From the Physical Point of View.

Laughter is an involuntary response of certain muscles to a communication from nerves controlling their action. We laugh because we receive an impression through our sensory nerves that causes a demonstration from the muscles which express mirth. The vigor or heartiness of laughter depends upon the susceptibility of the brain to what is received through the sensory nerves.

They get the impression in three ways—from something we see, feel or hear—and send it along to the nerve center. From there it is sent along other nerves connected with certain muscles or glands and excites them to activity.

The nerves are like so many electric wires, and the sensory nerves act as a battery, by means of which the electric currents of life are transmitted. The muscles have the power to express the state of gladness, inflated by laughter, according to the positiveness of the impressions passed along the nerves which operate them. You laugh less heartily the second time you hear a funny story because the impression is less positive.—Rocky Mountain News.

"Do It Now."

The successful man or business woman arranges his or her day so that it won't be full of wasted minutes, half hours gone wrong, broken appointments, delayed efforts. There is no more important rule for success than this simple one: Do it now.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' OR SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

It is in semi-shirtwaist dress style and is splendid for wash silks or gingham, though it may also be made up in wide embroidery flouncing. The dress buttons all the way from neck to hem at centre front. The shirtwaist has a V neck with a broad collar attached. Either the long, close fitting sleeves or the three-quarter length may be chosen. The two piece skirt may be gathered or pleated in shallow side pleats to the slightly raised waistline.

The miss' or small woman's dress pattern No. 8789 is cut in three sizes—16, 18 and 20 years. Width at lower edge of skirt is 1¾ yards. As on the figure, the 16 year size requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch or 3 yards of 54 inch material, with 9½ yards of soutache braid.

FELT THAT HE NEEDED "PEP"

Little Fellow Simply Had to Spend a Nickel of the Dime in His Possession.

Frank Groninger, attorney, has a pink-cheeked, tow-headed youngster, whose name to every one who knows him, is synonymous with effervescent, overflowing spirits. He is a thinker, too, this small Jack.

It was he, who some years ago (he has now attained the mature age of eight years), after gravely meditating on the phenomenon that ensued when things were planted in the ground—i. e., that duplicates of the thing planted accommodatingly took root and grew up out of the ground—was discovered in the yard by his mother, carefully patting and slapping down a pile of wet mud with his small spade.

"What are you doing Jack; planting something?" Jack's evident reluctance to disclose the nature of his agricultural activities aroused his mother's suspicion. Grasping one of the miniature garden tools at Jack's feet she dug vigorously into the wet mud. A glint caught her eye, and in horrified silence she scraped the mud from her jeweled gold watch.

But, if Jack didn't succeed in growing nice little timepieces, that a small boy could hear tick undisturbedly, he has kept right on being active. Hence, his mother's surprise the other day at a reply of his.

Jack's father, before leaving for his office, gave Jack a dime. Afterward Jack's mother seeing the coin in his hand, admonished him to put the dime away and save it.

"O mother," Jack exclaimed insinuatingly, "I simply got to spend a nickel of it to give me some 'pep.'"

ONLY NEEDS TO BE ROUSED

Under Certain Conditions, Tiger Can Probably Be Awakened in Each Individual.

They tell us," said Mr. Blinksome, "that we all have a tiger in us, that we are all of us savages under our skin; kept from revealing our true natures only by the restraining force of custom and the law.

"In a general way I have always believed this to be true, and yet I have always supposed there must be exceptions. You take, for instance, a certain mild-mannered neighbor of ours whom we have known for many years, a man in all circumstances kind, gentle, forbearing; seeing good in everyone and willing to make excuses for everybody. There was one person who I knew had no tiger.

"Our mild-mannered neighbor dropped in to see us yesterday, just after I had read something in the paper, and I picked the paper up again and read this thing to him. It was an account of something that the Germans had just done.

"It was a circumstantial, careful, exact and apparently truthful statement, and yet the thing described was something so contrary to all civilized usages that it seemed incredible, and I said to him:

"'You don't believe that, do you?'

"At that our mild-mannered neighbor fired up. Fired up? He flamed up.

"'Believe it?' he said. 'I believe every word of it,' and then he proceeded to tell me what he would do to the Germans if he could.

"Had he a tiger in him? Well!

"So now I am inclined to think that we all have a tiger in us, that there is no exception; only with some of us it takes one thing and with some another thing to make the tiger waken."

Why Torpedoed Ships Sink.

The committee appointed by the Council of the Institution of Naval Architecture to inquire into the effects of explosions of mines and torpedoes upon the structure of merchant ships find that there are three principal causes of loss. First, the existence of a forward reserve bunker partitioned off from the cargo hold by a non-watertight bulkhead. A second cause of loss is the failure to close the watertight door in the engine room bulkhead leading to the shaft tunnel. A third danger lies in the main drain pipes, leading from the bilge pumps to the different compartments, and passing through all watertight bulkheads, which are generally fractured in torpedoed compartments. There should be non-return valves on the end of these pipes. The committee recommends that bulkheads should be protected as far as possible from flying splinters, at least temporarily, by using timber or other suitable material as a splinter-screen.

An Unsolved Problem.

"How, sir, is it possible," demanded counsel of a bankrupt who was undergoing his public examination, "to live in the luxurious style you have affected on £40 a year?"

"That," replied the bankrupt, "is a problem to which I have devoted considerable time in the interests of social economy, and the results of my humble efforts are now before the court."—London Mail.

Plenty of Collars.

A young man went into a clothing store and asked for a collar. The clerk waited on him and said: "They are 15 cents each, two for 25 cents. Want two?"

The young man replied, "No, I have plenty of collars, but they are both in the laundry."—Indianapolis News.

JAPANESE COURT TRIALS.

The Judges, Not the Lawyers, Question the Witnesses.

The defendant in a Japanese court was testifying in his own behalf. He stood directly in front of the presiding judge, not ten feet distant from him, and answered his questions in a clear voice, without any apparent hesitation. The judge seemed conversant with the case, for he put questions rapidly, giving a funny little grunt of acquiescence after every answer. Occasionally one of the associates wrote a suggestion and handed it to the president, and once or twice the defendant's counsel asked the court to put a certain inquiry. The whole proceeding—and the same may be said of those in several other courts I visited—was conducted in a quiet, colloquial way. In every instance I was impressed with the simple, businesslike atmosphere.

Some of the Japanese lawyers with whom I have talked say that they feel that very often the court does not elicit all the facts and that our system of having witnesses questioned by counsel would be better, but, on the other hand, some lawyers maintain that better results are realized by the system, which puts upon the court the duty of getting at the truth, maintaining that the witnesses are more apt to talk frankly to the court than to the lawyer for the opposite side who is engaged, as they think, in trying to make them out liars.

I came away quite favorably impressed with what I saw and wondering whether on the whole in 95 per cent of the cases a decision by three judges trained in the investigation of facts would not be as nearly right as the verdict of twelve citizens casually gathered in from the general community.—George W. Wickersham in Case and Comment.

MEASURING THE STARS.

What Is Meant by First and Second Magnitude, and So On.

The classification of the stars into orders of magnitude, depending on their apparent brightness, was undertaken a little hastily, with the result that many stars have been found which are brighter than stars of the first magnitude. Aldebaran is a typical star of the first magnitude, but Sirius is much brighter. Consequently the system of classification has to be extended.

A star of the first magnitude is 2.5 times as bright as a star of the second magnitude; a star of the second magnitude is 2.5 times as bright as a star of the third magnitude, and so on. Stars which are 2.5 times as bright as a star of the first magnitude are called stars of 0 magnitude, while stars 2.5 times brighter still are said to be of the —1 magnitude, and so on.

Professor Ceraski has made measurements to determine the magnitude of the sun, reckoned in this way. By adopting different methods of measurements he reaches very accordant results, and it appears that our sun is a star of the —26.5 order of magnitude, which means that it sends us as much light as 880,000,000 of stars of the first magnitude.

At the distance of a little over four light years—i. e., about 20,000 times its present distance—it would be a star of the first magnitude, so that, considered as a star, it is nothing out of the ordinary.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Surgical Dressing Work.

Some skeptical people, who usually aren't doing anything themselves, think that the production of surgical dressings by patriotic women is being overdone. If they could see conditions in some of the French villages, where not a single able-bodied man remains, they would not feel so.

In these colossal battles, where hundreds of thousands of men are engaged, all previous wars and needs are outclassed. A great many men are wounded in these battles. With prompt care and abundant material handy, the vast majority of the wounded are saved.

Vast storehouses should be filled in France at all times for this need. A Red Cross doctor who recently returned from France reports a case of a soldier so badly wounded that it took a whole case of dressings to save him. Under the strain of such demands, a great mountain of supplies will quickly melt away.

New Disease.

A disease new to science and provisionally called "X" has broken out in the west and northwest of New South Wales and has already caused a number of deaths. The symptoms somewhat resemble those of cerebro-spinal meningitis, but it differs pathologically from that disease and in some respects is somewhat akin to pneumonia.

The Double Part

By CHARLES POWERS BRENNAN

Chivalrously and respectfully Andre Warren brought his auto to a halt before a young lady standing in the shelter of a tree, and graciously she smiled as he said:

"You are Miss Albert, and I think my way is yours. Will you allow me to save you from the shower and the mud?"

"You are most kind," spoke the beautiful young girl, allowing him to assist her into the machine. "You know my name?"

"In this narrow little country world who does not?" intimated Andre. "Especially the children. My landlady's three speak of you a dozen times a day."

"Yes, I know," nodded Miss Albert. "Dear little tots! I came here to rest, but the little ones have been an inspiration of interest. I have heard of you, too. You are Mr. Warren, who makes bird-houses for children, and does all kinds of nice, helpful things for them. They are loyal, grateful friends, Mr. Warren. Would I be disappointed if I hoped you would help me out in a little party I am going to give the children of the neighborhood this afternoon? The sun is coming out and the lawns will surely be dry by the time my guests arrive."

"I can promise little as an entertainer," declared Andre modestly.

"I shall not call on you in that respect," came the bright, smiling response, "for there will be tennis, the swings, music and the children's own games. If you would help me in the way of dispensing the ice cream and other refreshments—"

"I should be delighted," declared Warren, and he was. The afternoon was passed in the company of Miss Albert and her juvenile friends. She was the idol of her happy guests. He had never seen such grace and beauty. Fully smitten, after he had taken home the last of the children in his auto Andre returned, to find Miss Albert resting on a garden seat.

"You look tired out," he said, "and I ventured to hope that you would enjoy a spin around the lake," and in her frank, friendly way she at once gratefully assented to the invitation.

He allowed the machine to drop down in speed to a mere crawl as they neared the end of the four-mile circling of the lake. She had said something of the fagged nerves and a longing for quiet that had brought her to seek a secluded rest, but nothing in detail of her own personality. He was led to apprise her of the motive that had brought him to the country.

"Don't smile at me, Miss Albert," he said, "but I have been foolish enough to imagine that I have some literary and dramatic power, and I sought this solitude to write out a play I had conceived."

"A play!" she repeated, and she gave him a quick look. In her own mind there arose the query, "Is he searching me out?" Had the innocent, open-minded Andre read the silent thought, however, he could have furnished no key to the enigma.

And then he found an ardent listener to the details of the play in question. He had gone to an old theatrical friend in the city with the bare skeleton of his conception. He had been encouraged at the honest enthusiasm of the old actor.

"Tell you, Warren," he had said, "you have struck a gem of an idea that will make men stronger and better and women to think and analyze. By all means pendent it and come to me with the finished product. Your play requires no novice to mangle your beautiful theme, but a real soul actress. I know of one particularly adapted for the star part, but I have heard that, young as she is, though at the pinnacle of her popularity she is thinking of retiring from the stage. I shall try to reach her, though by correspondence. You are a made man if she consents to accept the rendition. She is Helena Baird."

Again Miss Albert studied the earnest face of Andre as he recited these circumstances. Once more for a flashing moment a faint suspicion shadowed her eyes. Then she dismissed her disquietude, charmed with the eloquence and ardor of this amateur play writer.

"How I would like to hear all about it!" she said. "My father was a playwright, Mr. Warren, and I—I have inherited some of his predilection for the stage."

And before that week was over Andre Warren felt himself in a sort of paradise. Daily for several hours his charming new friend would listen to his reading of the play. She would suggest new ideas, alterations, added force to some sentient thought. More than once she read to him some passage in the play, and he would sit thrilled at her perfect delivery.

And then one day love overcame ambition and he told her how he adored her. "I am going to take the finished play to my theatrical friend in the city," he said. "I hope we are successful in having this Helena Baird in the chief role."

"I am sure she will gladly accept. In fact I know Miss Baird and can influence her action entirely."

"Why, how strange you speak!" marveled Andre. "You never mentioned it before."

"No, Andre," replied his companion, "because I was hiding a great secret. I am sure Helena Baird will accept the play, because—I am Helena Baird."

The Hopeless Amateur.

"It requires patience to be a successful gardener."

"Yes. But you can overdo it. I planted some seeds two years ago and I've waited all this time without a murmur for them to come up and do something. Em going to give them one more summer and then if they don't make good I'm going to dig up the whole patch and start over."

Belligerent Pacifism.

"Are your constituents in favor of war?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "An' they think it's the business of this country to take up arms and eliminate any nation that insists on having war."

A Sure Case.

Mrs. A.—Can your husband claim exemption?

Mrs. B.—Well, I don't see how he can be strong enough to fight abroad when he is too weak at home to take up a carpet.

BIG NAVAL GUNS.

Death at Times Comes From Merely Serving Them in Battle.

Modern naval engagements demonstrate that the gunners sometimes die after the battle, even when they have not been wounded or injured in any way. Death is caused by disturbance of the circulation due to the strain placed upon the nervous system by the excitement and the tremendous vibrations of modern guns.

Curiously enough, this collapse is quite as likely to affect the most robust members of the gun crew as the ones with poorer physiques and bears no relation to the individual's courage. It is due to a lack of sufficient reserve power of the heart, which is dependent upon the quality of the heart muscles, and there is no known means of estimating this inherent quality exactly.

It is possible, of course, to determine the force and strength of the heart in an individual, but only some test, such as that of actual battle, will determine the quality of the heart muscles.

Thus the veteran gunner who has proved his heart quality in actual battle has become a peculiarly valuable factor in modern naval warfare.—Los Angeles Times.

AMERICANS DRIVE THE BOCHES INTO THE RIVER

Graphic Story of Yesterday's Fight in Which Americans Played a Prominent Part—Intense Shelling for Ten Hours

DELUGE OF GAS SHELLS

(United Press Service.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE MARNE, July 16.—(8 p.m.)—Thrown back across the Marne by the brilliant American counter attacks, the Germans had not renewed their infantry assaults up to the hour of cabling to-day. The sky was overcast and it was raining intermittently. The artillery duel which continued all night, was still raging. There was considerable aerial activity, despite unfavourable weather, and great quantities of bombs were dropped on the rear areas of both armies.

The American counter attack, which cleared the river bend of the enemy, resulted in the taking of 1,000 and 1,500 prisoners, including a complete brigade staff. Failure of the enemy to renew his attacks may be significant, as infantry actions usually start before 6 o'clock.

FIRE CONCENTRATED.

The German attack on the Marne began yesterday at 3 a.m. Initial attempts of the enemy to bridge the river were frustrated by American artillery and machine gun fire.

As the Boche fire was concentrated on the American positions in the bend of the river, from three sides, our men gradually fell back in perfect order and the Germans succeeded in throwing six pontoons across.

Following the cleverest dictates of strategy, the American retirement continued until our men reached the base of the salient created by the bend in the river. There they halted at 10 o'clock and resisted all efforts of the Boches to dislodge them.

FORCED INTO THE RIVER.

Coolly, despite the harassing fire the offideS began preparing for a counter attack. Shortly after noon it began. Slowly and methodically, as though executing some training manoeuvres, the Americans pressed forward. Their advance was irresistible. They drove the Germans back more than two kilometres (a mile and a quarter) before there was any slackening in the attack. When it did halt, it was voluntary.

The counter attack was resumed after a brief pause. This time the American assault was conducted with an almost unbelievable ferocity. The Boches were caught up in the cyclonic rush and great numbers of them were hurled bodily into the river.

Co-operation of American artillerymen and machine gunners was perfect. The gunners, firing from far in the rear, dropped shells on the enemy's pontoons with the greatest accuracy. When the Boches reached the river bank they were compelled to plunge in and many of them were drowned.

CREEPING BARRAGE.

Others were caught in the rain of shells and machine gun bullets, and the stream was soon thickly dotted with shattered bodies.

In some places, the Germans clung doggedly to the south bank. American officers sent back word late last night, however, that they expected to drive these Boches back across before morning. It is reported that this was accomplishted, but this has not been confirmed.

The battle was one of the most remarkable of the war. For ten hours the intense shelling by guns of all calibres continued. Everything within 25 miles of the front was shelled, while the front lines and organizations immediately in the rear were subjected to the fiercest deluge of gas shells and high explosives.

When the Germans attacked, a creeping barrage five kilometres (more than 3 miles deep) swept over the American and French lines. Behind this curtain of fire the Boches crossed the river.

AMMUNITION RAN OUT.

In addition to throwing over pontoons, canvass boats and rafts, each

TORONTO, July 16.—At 10.20 to-day, twenty minutes after the G. N. W. strike order became effective in every Canadian centre except Toronto, where at the last moment an hour's truce was asked, the announcement was made following hurried conference between D. B. Hanna, representating the company and representing the company and reunion that the trouble had been satisfactory adjusted. The discharged men will be reinstated and paid for five months lost time.

GIVEN A WEEK TO LEAVE TOWN

STRATFORD, July 16.— Josephine Surage and Frank Marabella were given a week to leave town by Police Magistrate Makins. They were arrested a week ago, the former for registering under an assumed name, and the latter for not being usefully employed. According to reports from Ottawa, Marabella's finger prints are the same as those of a man who was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary in 1915 for theft and who had also served previous terms of varying lengths at different places. In view of this the magistrate thought that, while there was no serious charge against them, it would be better to have them leave town. They have been living together although unmarried. They came from Peterborough.

It was decided to purchase five hundred cords of wood.

WAR SUMMARY

(Canadian Press Despatch.) 5

NEW YORK, July 16.—The Associated Press war summary says to-day:

East and west of Rheims the Germans are fighting with desperation and every resource to bring quick success to their fifth offensive of the present great battle year.. Almost everywhere the Allied troops are holding tenaciously and the fighting zone behind the first line is yet intact along the entire 65-mile front. Superb resistance by French, American and Italian troops held the Germans to minimum gains. Between 700,000 and 800,000 men were thrown into the battle line by the German command. Large forces were concentrated to be thrown across the Marne and bridges were laid between Fossoy and Dormans. American troops met this menace, and they now dominate with cannon and machine guns the bend in the river where the Germans crossed. East of Rheims the Germans have been smashed completely. The French defense there stood resolutely and stopped the foe in his tracks. Attack after attack is being launched against the French on this end of the battle line, but General Petain's men are unwavering in their defense.

CASES HEARD BEFORE THE REVIEW TRIBUNAL

Several Applicants for Exemption Will be Allowed to Remain on the Farm Until November First.

CROP PROSPECTS

The critical state of the food situation helped a good many young men in A2 class out this morning at the review tribunal and most of them get an extension until November 1, to get in the crops. Poor hay and good grain prospects were reported.

INCONVENIENCE VS CONQUERED

Ernest Taylor, a billing clerk at the G. T. R. appealed for extension of time through Mr. J. A. McNab of G.T.R., who appeared for him. An extension has been granted to have a substitute trained to the important position Taylor holds. The substitute has not as yet qualified.

"His going will inconvenience Peterboro," said Mr. McNab.

"What of that?" said the Judge, "better inconvenienced than conquered."

Mr. McNab asked another six months for Taylor.

Judgment reserved.

A LARGE CROP.

George Westlake, Bridgenorth, with his brother, Charles, had been exempted temporarily. They work a 200 acre farm and have a large and promising crop which couldnt be taken off by one man. Judge Huycke thought both boys should be left until after the harvest anyway after which one or both may have to go. An extension until November 1 was granted

GOOD WAGES

James S. Guirey, city, has two brothers in military servce and desired to be exempted further in case his help financially is needed at his father's home.

He works for 6 to 7 dollars a day at what be called hard work on munitions. Many boys are doing harder work at $1.10 a day overseas said the Judge. Decision withheld.

LIMITED EXTENSION

George A. Johnston wrote asking a very limited extension which will probably be granted.

HAD INCREASED PRODUCTION

John H. Archer had worker hard on increasing production as instructed by the department and showed satisfactory results.

He was granted exemption until November 1.

TO HELP CROP.

Percy McFadden sought an extension on time through his employer to help get off the crop. This was granted until November 1.

LITTLE DIFFERENCE

John D. Crapp, Hales Bridge, asked an extension of time until at least slackers and defaulters have been taken. He had been married lately.

ONLY HELP.

Hilliard Mathews, Halls Glen is the only help of his father on a large farm He also was allowed to stay until after the harvest November 1.

A STRONG CASE

Cleavel and Byers, Baileyboro, has a young brother wounded in England and works 120 acres with his 65 year old father. As his case showed he is necessary to production. He was allowed until November 1.

AN ERROR.

Wm. Darling, had in error been given exemption while he remained a farmer. His production on the farm with his father is not extensive, as none of his family had gone, the Judge and Mr. Hatton thought Darling should think about the army. He was given until the Fall to get in his harvest.

ONLY SON

Josiah W. Hunter, Lakefield, asked extension to get in his extensive crops on an 100 acre farm. He is the only child. He also was given until November1.

RECEPTION FOR LIEUT. F. HUBBS

Peterboro Speakers Were Present —Addresses of Welcome.

The town park at Hastings was the scene of a splendid gathering of the residents of Hastings and adjoining country on Monday evening who gathered together for the purpose of welcoming home Lieut. Fred Hubbs. Under the auspices of the I.O.D.E., of Hastings a dainty tea was served at the tables under the trees while the Norwood band under the leadership of Band Master, Brault, rendered a number of patriotic and other selections which were greatly enjoyed. Later with Dr. Hess, Reeve of Hastings presiding, there was a splendid programme of music and speeches. Mr. Frank Whitehouse and Mr. Nichols giving violin and piano selections to the pleasure of all.

Addresses of welcome were made by the resident clergy, the Reeve and Lieut. Thompson and a beautifully worded address was read to Lieut. Hubbs by the Reeve. Judge Huycke and Mr. F. D. Kerr made interesting and eloquent patriotic addresses.

Lieut. Hubbs in a brief address thanked the people of Hastings for the reception and for the interest and kindness shown to his family during his absence and particularly emphasized the value of the work of the I.O.D.E. and other patriotic associations, pointing out that the interest displayed by the women folks at home had a splendid effect in encouraging the soldiers in the firing line.

The grounds were lighted by Crinese lanterns and the gathering was larger and enthousiastic in it's welcome to Lieut Hubbs.

HUGE LOSSES WERE INFLICTED ON HUNS

Machine Gunners Withheld Their Fire Until They Could See "The Whites of Their Eyes."

AN INFERNO

(United Press Service.)
(By Frank J. Taylor.)

WITH THE AMERICANS IN THE CHAMPAGNE, July 16.—(8:55 a.m.)—American units holding the line east of Rheims have not given an inch before the German drive.

Forming the Allied right flank, they stood like a stone wall against the great enemy push, inflicting huge losses on the Germans and taking a large number of prisoners.

Following a bombardment of gas and high explosives, which adjoining French units declared was heavier than any ever attempted at Verdun, the masses of grey-clad German infantry swept forward to the assault yesterday morning.

Tornado of Steel.

American field guns firing low over the heads of our men in advanced positions tore great gaps in the close packed ranks of the enemy. The machine gunners and riflemen withheld their fire until they could literally follow General Putman's famous order:—"Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes." Then at a signal, they cut loose with such a tornado of steel that the foremost waves of the Boche infantry were torn to shreds.

The Germans wavered, tried to reform their ranks, and finally fled, leaving the field carpeted with grey bodies.

Time and again the Boches returned to the attacks doggedly trying to sweep over the American front lines and carry the rise which formed our support position. And time and again their waves broke and receded on the defense of the Americans, for all the world like the waves of the sea battering at a rock-bound coast.

Trench Mortars Used.

Americans even brought trench mortars into play. The range at times was so short that the heavy projectiles often cut through a score of men before exploding. One of our mortar gun's outfits operating in gas masks for six hours, wiped out five German battalions, probably 2,500 men.

Some of the rushes carried into the American lines, and bayonets, clubs, rifles and fists were substituted for bullets. But these temporary successes only resulted in the Americans taking a few prisoners. The prisoners were comparatively few, too, as a Boche, in the heat of the melee, had to shout "kamarad," mighty quick to beat a bayonet through him.

Hun Aviators Fled.

The Boches sent over an escadrille of thirty-six airplanes to attack the Americans with machine gun fire while flying low. Our dough boys turned their automatic rifles skyward and actually shot down one of the enemy machines. The others were so badly strafed that they fled.

The fighting was almost continuous throughout the day, but toward evening the Germans, thoroughly whipped for the time being, called off their infantry and settled down to an artillery duel that was a battle of some magnitude in itself.

SOUKHOMLINOFF A DOORMAN.

Wife of Former Minister of War Sells Programme in a Theatre.

On June 10 the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag, printed the following dispatch from the Swiss board:

"The Russian Press Correspondence announces that the former Minister of War, Soukhomlinoff, once a millionaire and recently set free an amnesty, now, entirely without resources, is occupying the position of a doorman in a Bolsheviki office. Because of his advanced age he was unable to find anything else to do. Mrs. Soukhomlinoff is engaged in selling programmes in a moving-picture house in Petrograd."

General Soukhomlinoff was convicted on Sept. 28, 1917, of high treason to Russia in his administration of the army in the early days of the war.

The Proposed Railway Strike

To-day's Session May Determine Fate of Transportation in Canada

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MONTREAL, July 16.— The announcement was made to-day on behalf of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railway Conductors here that these organizations had practically come to an agreement with the C.P.R. to accept the McAdoo award. It was also stated that these two unions would not interfere in any way with the negotiations between the shopmen and the railway and any fight that afterwards might take place.

MONTREAL, July 16.—No settlement of the wage difference between the Federated Shopmen's Brotherhood and Canadian railways was announced this morning. According to Brotherhood representatives here the strike looked inevitable this morning as the offer of the railways at Ottawa yesterday is the McAdoo schedule which has already been emphatically refused. The Railway War Board, which has handled the negotiations for, the roads had until 2 o'clock to reply to the ultimatum handed in last Friday by the shopmen. There was no further communication sent in to the union men to-day. "We have said all we had to say," said Mr. Neal, secretary of the Railway Board. "If the men wish to reopen negotiations on the basis of the McAdoo amendments, we are willing at any time."

Hearing no word from the War Board, the men went into secret and serious session at the Alexandra Hotel. On this meeting depends the fate of transportation in Canada for the next few days at least.

"Nothing New."

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 16.—Strike or no strike the Railway War Board has in its decision to apply the McAdoo wage award to all railway employees in Canada, gone as far as it proposes to do, and has the approval of the government in its stand. The representatives of the Federated Trades which threaten to strike, say there is nothing new so far as they are concerned in what the Board now offers. The application of the McAdoo war scale to the employees in question was offered—and rejected—the feeling of the Board and of members of the Government, however, is that if under the circumstances, the disputing employees insist upon striking, they will not have the sympathy of the brotherhoods who showed no inclination to strike, but to whom in common with alal other organized and unorganized employees of all the railways, the McAdoo award envolving considerable increases in wages. The McAdoo award is to be extended from the time of the expiration of the existing schedules.

Increase in Rates.

The Board and the Government take the view that the rate of wages in force in the United States should satisfy the employees here, especially as it is provided that any further amendment to the McAdoo award will be adopted by the Railway War Board of Canada. The railwaymen claim that the increase in wages will involve an additional annual expenditure of from forty to forty-five millions and have declared that this can only be met by a further increase in freight rates. Within the past year, they say, American roads have been allowed increases totalling about forty per cent. A fifteen per cent. increase was recently ordered on Canadian roads in the face of very considerable opposition. However, it may be safely said that the Railway War Board was yesterday given an assurance by the Government in the presence of Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Board of Railways Commissioners that an increase would be ordered. Such increase, however, will not apply to pasenger rates.

There is, however, a difference in the two situations. In the United States the railways are under the control of the Government. In Canada only a portion of them are. Increases in the United States have constituted a tax upon the travelling and shipping public by which the Treasury to a considerable degree benefits.

Whether, therefore, some means will be taken to tax any excess accruing from increases here is a matter for conjecture.

A husband in hand is worth two that are beyond control.

Maximum Depth of Penetration Was Four Miles—Enemy's Losses Were Appalling.

OFFICIAL REPORTS

Canadian Press:

ON FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, July 16.—The impression of the results of the first day's battle in the new German smash on the French front is very good. Nowhere along the stretch of many miles did the enemy succeed in penetrating more than four hundred yards, and that was only on a small sector in the neighbourhood of Marfaux, south-west of Rheims, although orders found on German prisoners announced that the first day should take them 20 kilometres from the front line of departure. On the battle front east of Rheims the enemy did not even get beyond the advanced line, invincible resistance of French troops preventing him from attaining the main combat line. With the French on the section west of Rheims, fought American and Italian troops, both of whom vied with the other allies in keenness and courage.

Battle Continues.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, July 16.—(Official.)—The battle continues violently, especially south of the Marne and in the region of Chatillon. Except for one sector south of the Marne, there is no change in the situation. American and French troops are counter-attacking magnificently and are taking many prisoners. South of the Marne the Germans have not been able to advance their line beyond St. Agnon, La Chapelle, Monthodon, Lisieres and south of the Forest of Bouinquigny. The French in this region have taken a thousand prisoners. On the front east of Rheims, in spite of terrific fighting during the past day and night, the enemy has not been able to penetrate the French zone of defence.

Offensive Held Up.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, July 16.— The Germans this morning continued their attacks against the French line in pursuance of their offensive, according to information that reached here. Information received indicates that the offensive remains held up, attacks up to this morning having been nearly everywhere repulsed with heavy losses. Word received this morning from the battle front to the east of Rheims shows that the allied defence is not only still holding up the German attempts to advance, but appears to have broken the enemy spirit.

American troops have recaptured Fossoy and Crezancy, towns on the south bank taken yesterday by the Germans when they crossed the Marne.

Attack Shattered.

Special to The Examiner:

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, July 16. — East of Rheims the Germans' attack has been shattered, in what is known to military men as the "advanced zone." At no point was the main line of resistance reached.

The Germans planned an advance of from 12 to 13 miles on the first day along the entire front. In crossing the Marne the enemy's losses were appaling.

Heavy Losses.

MAY CONTROL TOBACCO.

The attention of Mrs. Gordon Wright, president of the Dominion Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the other members of that body who have attempted to interfere with the sending of tobacco and cigarettes to the Canadian troops in France, is called to the report from the United States, that the American government may shortly take over the control of the tobacco industry in order to ensure an adequate supply for the American troops. While a few Canadian women have been trying to influence their sisters against supplying our soldiers with tobacco, the United States' government calmly proposes to take over the whole industry and talks of placing the people at home on a tobacco ration in order that the soldiers who are fighting the battle for democracy may be sure of smokes for their needs. Already the United States has taken over the Bull Durham plant and its entire output is being used for the army, and now this action is apparently to be supplemented by the State control of the whole tobacco business.

This unprecedented proposal should be sufficient to convince even Mrs. Wright that tobacco for the soldiers is not a luxury or an evil, but is a necessity. When a country will go to the extent of proposing to supply only a limited amount of tobacco to the smokers at home in order that the smokers over there may not be in any danger of running short, there should be no doubt in anyone's mind of the sheer need of keeping a steady supply going overseas. The Canadian people would do well to forget the remarks of Mrs. Wright and her associates, and recognizing the necessity, in view of the United States' action see that the Canadian soldiers are well supplied with the cigarettes that mean so much to them.

AN IMPORTANT ADDRESS

"Canada and Australia and New Zealand," yes, and Newfoundland—they have all contributed their share of sacrifice and they are entitled to an equal voice with the representative of these islands— will determine the conditions under which we are prepared to make peace."

This extract from the speech delivered by Premier Lloyd George at the dinner given to the Canadian editors is one of the most important declaration at the war in as far as the colonies are concerned. Lloyd George's address was an eloquent tribute to the great achievement of the overseas dominions in the struggle against the German menace. The British Premier pointed out that it had not been possible because there had not been time to consult the Dominions as to policy but as a result of the war the people of the overseas dominions had earned the right to a voice in all such questions. Not only was this true but they must also have a voice in deciding the terms of peace.

Lloyd George's address left no doubt as to the determination of the British people to see the war through to the end. The German leaders can search in vain for any sign of weakening in the Premier's speech. His sentences ring out like a trumpet call. "There must be a real peace. We are not waging war for the purpose of killing and being killed but for the sake of establishing a just and durable peace for the word. You cannot make peace unless it is both just and likely to endure."

In its promise that the Dominions shall be consulted as to the peace terms and its straightforward declaration that it must be a real peace" Lloyd George's address should be an inspiration to the representatives of the dominions.

LABELS ARE DISCARDED

"A short time ago the Examiner called attention to what it considered a most unnecessary and inexcusable regulation would have been an expense—namely the rule that required all bread sold after yesterday to be labelled "Victory Bread" to show the consumer that the proper amount of wheat substitute had been used in its manufacture. The view was taken that such a regulation not only proved utterly ineffective in stopping dishonest bakers from violating the law but rather encouraged such violations because the label provided a fine opportunity for camouflage. In addition the regulaton would have been an expensive and troublesome one to the bakers who were unanimous in condemning the rule and forwarded a petition to that effect. The Food Board has recognized the validity of these arguments and at the last moment has abolished the regulation and has notified the bakers that Victory Bread labels need not be used.

It is unfortunate that the Food Board experts did not fully consider this question before the regulation was announced. As a result of the blunder many bakers have been put to the totally unnecessary, as it proved expense of havng labels prepared and printed, ready to use yesterday only to find that the Board has changed its mind and the labels are now deadwood. The amount lost by the bakers throughout Canada will be heavy in the aggregate as majority were ready to begin using their labels yesterday in accordance with the clearly expressed regulation of the Board.

The abolition of the label rule will be approved of generally and it is be approved of generally and it is a pity that its foolishness did not become apparent to the members of the Food Board earlier so that the bakers could have been spared the expense they have undergone.

The regulation in regard to the use into force yesterday has also been changed because the Food Board has discovered the fact that there is not a sufficient supply of substitute available in Canada at the present time to permit the rule of using one pound of substitute to every four pounds of wheat flour being put into force. It was therefore suspended for the present and in the meantime one pound of substitutes must be used with every nine pounds of the wheat flour.

Neither the bakers or the public will complain of the order in regard to substitutes. Wheat must be conserved as much as possible at until after the harvest and the regulation will be accepted cheerfully as a necessity. The same however could not be said of the rule regarding labels.

EDITORIAL NOTES

WHAT IS NEEDED

(London Advertiser.)

Disagreement as to the proper methods of winning the war are certain to occur. Honest disagreement as well as dishonest agreement have marked the pathway of the nation. A union of parties appealed to some, unselfishly to many, but selfishly to many others. Broad men saw a greater success for war effort through the organization of the war administration apart from the politicians and the profiteers. Those leaders who had proved themselves should have been retained, and the "big men" from all walks of life should have formed the backbone of government, as has been the case in Britain and the United States. Merit, rather than political standing or favouritism with the political powers should have been the measure of a man's capacity to sit in an ideal war-time government. But that was not to be. A government which willed itself to power won the day and has carried on the war policy.

The Canadian Government is deserving of support from every citizen worthy of the name in its war undertakings. The Canadian Government is also deserving of receiving the full force of the public opinion by means of which it claims to be elected. No government in Canada or any of the allied countries can carry on with adequate momentum unless it consults the people and gets its inspiration from the spirit of the people. If a pepole has no spirit it deserves to perish, but no one will dare to say that the spirit of the Canadian people has not been tuned to a high pitch of service to the cause. Only one will say that this spirit is not capable of inspiration to an even higher pitch of service to the cause, Only by appealing to this spirit, rather than by invoking the force of the strong arm of a majority, can the country become thoroughly harnessed for the war. Even to-day Canada is playing with many of its war problems, or blundering with them. Thousands of people do not realize that a conflict is in progress. The country has never reached a complete war footing. Why? For one reason, because public opinion has been largely snuffed out as the flame of a candle is snuffed out. There is no great beacon-light beaming from Ottawa to light the way to service. The policy of conscription makes for blind allegiance. But how much is being done to make the service of the drafted men an inspired service? How many ministers are staying with the ship of state at a time when sight-seeing tours across the ocean are going out of favour? The kudos of Canada's war service should be paid after the war or to the men at the front.

How much can be done to bring the Government to an appreciation of the vast opportunities for a re-creation of war spirit in this country? How much is being done at the present time, in city or country, to carry the message to those who have become war-weary and fainthearted? Getting the men may have been a great achievement for the Government, but if the heart of the country is lost for the cause because of stupid or weak leadership, has the future of the nation been improved or injured?

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Only Fair.

(Toronto Star.)

If workers cannot be permitted to strike—and it seems clear that they cannot be permitted to do so without much injury being done to the general welfare—then some remedy other than the strike must be provided by the authorities, insuring the workers that advantage will not be taken of the fact that they cannot strike. If a worker were not permitted to quit one job and accept a better one with more pay, the authority which forbids him to do it should see whether he is being sufficiently paid and rightly used in the place where he is ordered to remain.

No Short Cuts to Victory

(London Chronicle.)

The ultimate victory over Germany remains as necessary for us and for the world as ever it was. But by this time we should most of us have realized that there are no short cuits to it, and that the only way for us to get home is to travel unflinchingly the long stony and uphill road.

The name "Dome of the Rock" is one that has been conferred on the celebrated mosque of Omar, at Jerusalem. It stands on Mount Moriah, on the site once occupied by the temple of Solomon. Making Stone From Mud.

The latest triumph in building material is the manufacture of "stone" out of "mud" that has almost the solidity and strength of concrete. Buildings constructed from this material really are adobe structures, but their durability is said to be almost equal to that of brick and the softer stones.

This material comes from the ferruginous schist of the mountain side and is screened through grizzlies and tamped into forms like those used in the making of concrete blocks.

Powerful Pumps.

Pumps powerful enough to lift water to the top of the Woolworth building, rearing a crest of fifty-seven stories and overlooking all the rest of New York, were recently tested and found to register 350 pounds pressure in the basement of the building, the tallest in the world. This is said to be twice the pressure necessary to bore a hole through the strongest brick wall. At the top of the structure a nozzle pressure of twenty-two pounds was obtained.

Yesterday Was St. Swithin's Day

Yesterday was St. Swithin's Day and so far as this locality is concerned it was a dry day. There are many who still believe that rain on St. Swithin's Day will result in rain for forty successive days.

The old legend has it that St. Swithin, who died in 862 A.D., desired that his bones rest in the common burying ground of his monastry. Later some of the monks planned to move the remains to the chancel, but on the day set for the removal a downpour of rain prevented the ceremony being carried out, and the monks, fearing that this was a sign of their Saint's displeasure at his wish being violated, abandoned their plan. Rain fell, however, says the legend, for the next forty days.

"All nonsense," says the Weather Man. There are no records extant of rain having fallen continuously for forty days, and even if it did, St. Swithin he thinks can hardly be blamed.

THE VETERANS DECIDE UPON DECORATION DAY

At the regular meeting of the Peterboro branch at the Great War Veterans Association it was decided at the suggestion of Secretary Whatley to establish an annual Veterans decoration day when the graves of members of the Canadian Expeditionary who are buried here will be decorated. This procedure has been adopted by a number of branches of the Association.

The suggestion of the secretary was heartily approved of by the members. It was first proposed to select the last Sunday in August as the annual day for this purpose but eventually it was decided that for this year the ceremony would take lace on the last Sunday in August and afterward the second Sunday in July will be Decoration Day.

Comrade Canon Davidson was elected as one of the delegates of the Peterboro branch of the Dominion Convention of the Great War Veterans Association which is to be held in Toronto from July 29th to August 3rd. President H. J. Staunton and Secretary G. Whatley are the other delegates who will attend.

Comrade Davidson asked that a resolution be introduced at the Dominion Convention proposing that the singing of the chorus of "Oh Canada" be adopted as part of the closing exercises of the Association.

A member of the Association stated that it had been remarked that returned soldiers were prepared to accept situations as letter carriers at the rate of $2.00 per day at a time when the letter carrier many of whom are men back from the front are fighting for better wages. A motion that no member of the G.W.V.A. should accept a letter carrier position under a minimum wage of $2.50 per day was carried.

The meeting unanimously decided against allowing the billiard table to be used on Sundays.

The executive was asked to reconsidered the fees charged for the use at the table as some of the members claimed that the recent scale was too high.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND MEN AVAILABLE FOR FARM WORK

Superintendent of Registration Says There Will Be No Dearth of Harvest Labour.

CARDS COPIED

Special to Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 16.—That in the tral Ontario registration districts A total of 84,500 men registered who have agricultural experience and that in Toronto alone there are no less than twenty-five thousand volunteers for the farm available is the statement of J. M. Godfrey, superintendent of registration for that district who is in Ottawa to-day. Mr. Godfrey states that there will be no dearth of harvest labor in the province if these farmers do their part.

NO TIME LOST

Immediately after the cards were filled in a staff of school teachers was put to work to copy such cards as indicated agricultural experience or willingness to volunteer for farm work on the part of the register. No time was there lost. These duplicated cards were placed in hands of the Ontario resources commission. To the commission farmers desiring help may address their requests. The commission thereupin transmits to the particular farmer the names of a number of persons in his vicinity who have declared that they have agricultural knowledge and are willing to go on the farm. It is then for the farmer to negotiate for himself. Mr. Godfrey states that practically ninety per cent. of single men between the ages of twenty and thirty-five who have registered have expressed a readiness to go on the farm. The Military Service Act has therefore he says, worked not only toward securing men for the army but for the land. Most of such men are of course in categories lower than A. Of registers declaring that they have knowledge of agriculture, fifty per cent. have volunteered to go on the farm.

BOOKS FOR THE SOLDIERS

With reference to the notice that appeared in yesterday's papers it is necessary to add that although books are due to be sent to Toronto during this week if the donors are anxious to have them sent to Petawawa Camp, the authorities will be glad to receive consignments for shipments at a later date to other camps in Canada such as Camp Mohawk or Camp Borden. By giving books for the camps we are helping in a very essential way towards the comfort and recreation of our men who are preparing for service at the front and can show as well in this manner as in others that the city of Peterborough is well to the fore in doing her duty by those who are engaged in doing such a tremendous service for us.

Two boxes of books have already been expressed this week to Toronto en route to Petawawa.

ALL CAPTURED 1ST CLASS HONOURS

The piano pupils of Mrs. A. L. Fenwick, 161 London street have made a remarkable showing in the recent examinations of the Toronto College of Music. Her three pupils who tried the examinations all took first class honours.

Winnifred King and Marjorie Spence in senior first piano and Lily Bacon in primary piano. This is the third time Miss King has won first class honours having gained that distinction in both primary and junior 1st piano.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS CELL

A. H. Webb Injured When Five Killed in Montreal on Sat.

Mr. Andrew H. Webb, and a man named Logan, both of Peterborough, were both slightly injured in the accident at the Metal Products Company's plant, Montreal, on Saturday morning, by which five men were electrocuted and four wounded. A gang of men were engaged in raising a smokestack, which in some way came in contract with a high voltage wire, transmitting the current to the stack and its guide wires. The exact details of the fatality have not been received, but in a letter to his wife, Mr. J. P. Doris, 46 Sophia street, who went to Montreal with the company, wrote that neither of the Peterborough men were seriously hurt, and would be around again in a few days. It was reported here that Mr. Doris was also injured, but the statement was a groundless rumour that in some manner became current.

Mr. Webb resides on Sherbrooke street, and has been with the company both in Peterborough and Montreal. He has been in charge of one of the departments. When the Montreal plant was almost destroyed by fire he was put in charge of the reconstruction of the building, his experience as a contracting mason serving himself and the company in the emergency.

AN ESSAY ON NAILS.

They Are of All Sizes, Shapes, Varieties and Habits.

A nail is a short piece of iron which a man uses to aim at while he is hammering his thumb.

Nails come in various sizes. A tack is a baby nail which is fond of standing upon its head in the dark when you are turkey trotting around your room in bare feet, trying in vain to locate an electric button. An adult nail is two or three inches long and comes in boxes which are sent to you by express, upon which you have to pay the charges, which have already been collected by the express company at the other end. Not being able to find the hammer, you vainly endeavor to extract this nail and others of its kind from the box, both with and without prayer, until you finally succeed in wrenching the top off the box with superhuman strength while your wife looks on with superb disdain.

Nails are also used to build houses, as sinkers on fish lines and, when applied internally to the feet, to promote and foster lockjaw.

They come in vast quantities in hardware and department stores, but when you want just one to drive into the bathroom wall during your wife's absence to hang a razor strop on you might as well look for a needle in a haystack or a square deal in a state legislature.—Life.

His Excuse.

"Loogy yuh, Brudder Bagus!" severely said good old Parson Bagster on a recent Monday morning. "What was de 'casion for yo' 'sturbin' de whole cong'egation last night by snawtin' dat ah-way and den gittin' up and trompin' out'n de church wid all de ferocity of a blind hoss?"

"Uh-well, to tell de troof, pahson," answered the culprit, "I's amphibious."

"Wha-what's dat yo' specified? Yo' is what?"

"Amphibious, sah. I walks in mub sleep."—Judge.

Puzzled.

"I can't understand that man."

"Why not?"

"He's a lawyer, and a little while ago he advised me to keep out of litigation as long as possible."

"It seems to me that was mighty good advice."

"Yes, I feel sure that it was, but he didn't charge me a cent for it!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Desperate Character.

"This man demands a reduction in his luncheon check. He puts up a strong talk."

"What if we refuse?" said the manager of the fashionable New York hotel.

"Then he threatens to take advantage of the bankruptcy act."—Kansas City Journal.

Forgot Himself.

Old Lady (to beggar at door)—What's this soiled paper? You'll have to tell me what it says, for I haven't my glasses.

Beggar—Please, mum, it says I'm deaf and dumb and can you spare me a few cents.—Boston Transcript.

Cumulative Possibilities.

"Don't you think peace would be promoted if nations could be persuaded to talk things over deliberately before going to war?"

"Possibly. But sometimes the more you talk things over the more you find to fight about."—Washington Star.

Food Board Flashes

Two thousand women in the city of Vancouver recently pledged themselves to conform exactly to the requirements of the Canada Food Board and to apply the food regulations governing restaurants and bakeries to their homes.

They added a rider to this. They would discountenance all social functions which promoted the consumption of wheat products, pork, sugar and fats.

Vancouver is one city in all Canada. Wouldn't it be stimulating to all classes of women in the community if this were done in every big city in the country?

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

TAX BONUS TO C.P.R. EMPLOYEES IN HAVELOCK IS UNDER APPEAL

Court of Revision Feared These Men Would Go to Smith's Falls, Where the Railway Men Are Said to Be Relieved of Income Tax.

ASSESSMENT OF $26,000

On its own initiative, the Havelock Court of Revision struck off the income assessment of its resident C.P.R. employees to the total of $26,000, fearing that they would move to Smith's Falls, where, it is stated, this practice is followed. But some of Havelock's other citizens object that this is illegal, and an appeal will be heard by Judge Huycke in the railway town to-morrow, asking for an order that the income taxes of the C.P.R. men be levied as required by statute.

The appeal was entered by Mr. Alex Primrose, who is understood to have the support of some of the most prominent citizens of the town, who feel that there should be no tax discrimination in favour of railway employees, and who maintain that this form of bonusing citizens should be discontinued not only in Havelock but also in Smith's Falls, and in any other community where it may be tolerated.

The railway men are divisional engineers, conductors and other members of the crews who may select either terminal of their runs as their place of abode. It was learned to-day that the appeal may not be pressed, but the result of the action, one way or the other, will be known to-morrow. As has been pointed out, there is something of the nature of a precedent in the appeal, and that it affects more than the municipality of Havelock.

Some men are born with black eyes and others acquire them.

$3.88 FOR THE RED CROSS

A subscription of $3.88 received at the local headquarters of the Red Cross Society a few days ago, represented the total gross receipts of a "bazaar" held by four little girls. They were Marcelle and Marjorie McNulty, daughters of Dr. F. P. McNulty, and Jean and Isabel Cameron, daughters of Mr. J. O. Cameron. This was no one night stand. It ran all week, but of course "the old rain" had to come along and nearly spoil everything. The "bazaar" was held on Dr. McNulty's verandah, and it was in full swing before any of the parents were apprised of the great event. Emulating the societies that have been holding alwn socials for the Red Cross the four winsome little girls had all the popular features of those affairs, with a few ideas of their own inspiration. They had a doll, for example, which was quite properly named and all that, but the "thronging public" were ignorant of the appellation, and had to pay a couple of cents for a guess, with the satisfaction of correct and long guessing being the winner's only reward. The friends of the two families were duly and frequently reminded that they were expected to come early and often to the bazaar, and especially with funds. Friends of the families, neighbours and others fell in with the children's idea, which no doubt had this satisfactory feature that they were so engrossed in their big event that nothing could attract them from the limits of the broad verandah. At any rate, when the last copper was counted up the little girls were satisfied that under the weather conditions their efforts were quite successful, and depositing the money in an envelope, took it to the Public Library as an offering to the Red Cross.

Cases Heard Before The Review Tribunal

TWO FARMS.

George Would, Indian River, had worked hard for increased production on two farms. After November 1 he may have to go.

Clayton Sanderson, Peterboro, is necessary on the farm especially if his brother who comes in the 19-year-old class is called. He was granted until November 1.

ONE MUST GO.

Peter Ross McNaughton, Norwood, has a brother, Dean, wh ohas repeatedly appealed for extension of exemption. The Judge said one should go preferably Dean. They work a 400 acre farm. To enable him to take off rhis crop which is the largest he ever had he will be given extension at the end of which time if Dean hasn't gone Ross will be sent.

WANTED TIME

Alex. Darling wanted time till general Hemming comes back, to enlist as photographer in the Flying Corps. "A" men are not eligible for this branch of the service.

Judgment reserved.

GRANTED RE-EXAMINATION

Joseph M. White, a shell inspector exempted last fall asked permission for re-examination by Kingston Medical Board. He is willing to go if fit but did not want to quit his job until sure of being able to stand military life. Two brothers have already gone one of whom has ben killed. A re-examination was granted.

EXTENSION TILL NOVEMBER

Wm. H. Puffer, aged 30, runs 600 acres with his father. Being the only able bodied man working a fair farm with good stock he was granted exemption until November 1.

Puffer claimed 85 head of cattle. "That does not include chickens does it," asked the Judge to the amusement of the court.

Many a man who couldn't train a dog decently imagines that he is an ideal child trainer.

FUEL ADMINISTRATOR HARRIS ANSWERS SET OF QUESTIONS BASED ON LABOUR'S DEMAND

A letter received by Ald. Edgar, the local Fuel Commissioner, from R. C. Harris, of Toronto, the Fuel Administrator for Ontario, embodies the information recently sought from the City Council by the Trades and Labour Council, when their deputation demanded a more equitable distribution of coal to Peterborough consumers.

The Labour men asked why the Fuel Commissioner did not control the delivery of coal in this city, and were told that Ald. Edgar was not given authority under the fuel regulations to take this drastic step. Other questions were directed to the quantity of coal that Peterborough will be allotted this year, and to the Commissioner's power to requisition supplies from consumers who have obtained more coal than the regulations permit.

Ald. Edgar's questionaire, with the Administrator's reply, follow:

(1) Will Peterborough's supply of coal be based on the quantity received during 1916-17 or 1917-18?

Ans.—Allotment of fuel has been made to the Dominion and not to any individual community; it is therefore essential that the dealers should preserve their source of supply.

(2) Will the 70 p.c. be based on quantity consumed during 1916-17?

Ans.—Supply is based on quantity consumed in the coal year 1917-18.

(3) Has the local Fuel Commissioner or the City Council power to say how the dealers should distribute coa so long as they adhere to the 70 p.c. clause of the Fuel Act?

Ans.—See page 3, under the heading, "Municipal Organization," and pages 4 and 5 under caption "Deliveries to Customers" of the Fuel Controller's bulletin No. 2.

(The answer to this question is practically a flat negative, and is based on regulations that have already been published on several occasions.)

(4) Has the local Fuel Commissioner power to demand from any consumer a copy of receipts for coal consumed during 1916-17 and 1917-18, so as to be able to determine if any person exceeds 70 p.c.?

Ans.—You may satisfy yourself as to supply for 1917-18; failing information, you may prevent delivery of any quantity in excess of six tons.

(5).—In the event of anyone acquiring more than 70 p.c. of coal, what proceedings would you take, if any?

Ans.—Would not advise taking proceedings except in case of emergency during winter, and would then act under special heading, "Requisitioning of Coal," page 13.

(6) Can the demand for information asked in question (4) be made at any time, and can action be taken as soon as information is required, providing anyone exceeds 70 p.c. of their supply?

Ans.—Yes; at any time.

(7) In case of doubt in answer to question (4), can you compel parties to make oath as to correctness of same?

Ans.—See form "F," page 15. You may call upon dealers to have this form filled in prior to accepting order, and, if false declaration is made, the consumer would be liable to prosecution.

I suggest that you endeavour to secure the co-operation of dealers in the fullest measure, and, if possible, arrange that orders shall be received in some central office controlled by you, and distributed to the dealers, with instructions to make such delivery as you think proper, preferably on a percentage basis. This is working out very successfully in Guelph, Kitchener and other places.

R. C. HARRIS.

Nothing Radical Here.

Citizens who have been unable to get supplies of coal up to the present will find little encouragement in this statement. There isn't a radical note in one of the answers, in fact, reading between the lines, one finds advice for the Commissioner to take no action, except perhaps, to endeavour to bring the dealers together in a mutual agreement with the municipality to distribute coal under the direction of the dealers. But the initiative practically rests upon the dealers, cooperating with the Commission, and is not required in any clause of the regulations.

SUMMER FAIR NOTES

Despite the fact that the Summer Fair was a postponed affair, the weather and everything that could be conducive to success, helped the ladies of the Ashburnham Patriotic League to make it the pleasing financial success it was.

More beautiful and spacious grounds than those of "Engleburn," the beautiful residence of His Honour Judge Huycke, could not have been chosen, and the ladies are very grateful to both His Honour the Judge, and Mrs. Huycke, who not only gave them but much material, time and trouble as well to the undertaking.

The lovely lawns were dotted here and there with small, white tables, where high tea was served under Mrs. P. J. Doris' management, assisted by Mesdames Dover and Pretty as teapourers, Miss Burnham as cashier, and the following ladies as waitresses: Mesdames Holden, Fairweather, Nickels, and the Misses Margaret Turner, Jessie Matthews, Doris, Conroy and others. The sum of $63.00 was realized.

The first booth near the entrance was that of Mesdames T. H. Glover, J. McDonald, Anderson and Miss J. Conroy, where miscellaneous articles were offered for sale, as well as, home-made cooking, fancy work, and preserved fruit. Several articles were raffled, among them, being crocheted yokes, centre-pieces and doilies and a lady's suit. Proceeds amounted to nearly $90.00.

Between this and the ice cream booth was a prettily decorated stand, where Mesdames Sedgewick and Lee offered flowers for sale and disposed of $20.00 worth.

The next booth was the ice cream one with Mrs. C. H. Moore as convenor, with the following ladies ably assisting her: Mesdames Wood, G. L. Hay, Macartney, and Miss Stella Knox—Mrs. Machett being treasurer. Many thanks are tendered to the people who contributed money as well as flowers to this booth. $72.20 was the sum cleared here.

On the opposite side of the drive were the Never-failing Fortune-Tellers—in charge of the Misses Ruth Robertson, Georgie Stevenson, Gretchen Gladman, and Mesdames Wainwright and Hollingsworth. A great business was done with teacups, cards, and palmistry—showing results of $9.00.

Perhaps the most popular place (among the children at least) was the Jack-in-the-box, operated by Mrs. J. M. Gemmell and Mrs. Whitehouse. Everyone was delighted with the things obtained here for the small sums of 5c and 10c, some of the draws being silver brooches, lovely, little vases and useful bags. Almost $30.00 was realized.

Mrs. J. Weir and Mrs. Machin were busy selling Dustless Mixture and Dustless Dusters from a stand near the house, and they report a very busy time, having cleared nearly $15.00 by the sale of these very useful articles.

The Living Pictures, under the management of Mrs. Perrin, assisted by Mesdames Huycke and White, was one of the most striking features of the Fair, and well worth double the admittance fee. Too much in the way of praise or thanks cannot be given to those who helped to make it the great succss it was. Mr. Wand, who gave the frame for the pictures, Mr. Smith, who did all the electrical work, and Mr. Martin, who gave a day's time preparing the hall and grounds. The stores, that so kindly lent things—Turnbulls, Fairs, Graftons, J. J. Turner & Sons, and Mr. Green, who loaned a beautiful Diamond-Disk instrument. Lieut. Waltere Perks, who acted as stage-manager and outside crier. Mesdames Greenslade and Martin, who gave their musical talent, and Mr. Yeaman, his with the bag-pipes. Receipts were $36.00.

Miss Meta Middlebrooke, of Toronto, shared the honours of the day as well, by her beautifully executed dancing on the lawn, accompanied at different times by the band and bagpipes.

Warm thanks are also due the Salvation Army Band who so kindly gave their services. They added much to the beauty of the scene by their dark-red uniforms and delighted the many hundreds present with the lovely airs they played.

This Fair has proved to be one of the most successful undertakings, indeed, we may venture to say, the most successful, of that indefatigable band of ladies—the Ashburnham Patriotic League — and they wish to thank the public as well as others, for their kind patronage, which has enabled them to add over $418.00 to their funds. Messrs. Richard Hall & Son generously donated a check for $10.00, regretting their inability to be represented. This donation is very much appreciated by the ladies of the League.

It is usually a case of misplaced confidence when a woman marries a man for the purpose of reforming him.

Situation Is Regarded As "Distinctly Good"

to a depth of ten kilometers, (about six miles,) according to the Petit Journal to-day. The attacking forces paid the price of great losses as they crossed the Marne.

This advance, the despatch to the newspaper added, might have been dangerous but the Americans on the French left counter-attacked with superb dash and retook the ground, throwing the Germans back across the Marne.

Tanks Destroyed.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 16.— The Germans are employing from 30 to 35 divisions (from 360,000 to 420,000 men) in their great offensive, according to battle front advices received here this afternoon. This is nearly one division (12,000 men) attacking on each mile of the fighting line.

To the east of Rheims many German tanks have been knocked out of action by the French and American artillery. Their wrecks strew the ground.

Hundreds of German dead are entangled in the Allies' barbed wire. The whole line holds in its fighting positions. Nowhere has the enemy been able to cut through.

Very Little Change.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 16.—There was very little change in the situation on the Champagne battle front up to 10 o'clock to-day, it was learned from an authoritative source.

All of yesterday's attacks east of Rheims except in the neighbourhood of Souain and south-east of Prunary were repulsed with the heaviest losses.

West of Rheims the enemy nowhere penetrated more than four miles.

A capured airplane map shows the main direction of the push to be down the Marne river towards Epernay. The Americans' brilliant counter attack completely restored their whole front south of the Marne.

The enemy really intended yesterday's drive as a big offensive, it was learned. It is extremely unlikely he will be able to start another drive while the present one continues.

The French command continues satisfied with the situation, which is characterized as "distinctly good."

Convinced of Defeat.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, July 16.—Additional prisoners taken to-day say they are convinced that their commanders have been beaten. American troops to-day shot down a courier pigeon belonging to the enemy east of Chateau Thierry. It was carrying a message from German divisional headquarters saying that the situation was serious, that the Germans saw no chance of making further progress in that locality.

FREE RATES FOR LIVESTOCK.

WINNIPEG, July 16.—The railways announced a 50 per cent. reduction in livestock rates and feed in Saskatchewan and Alberta to points where the pasturage is better. The Canadian Government will supplement this by 50 per cent. so that carriage will be free to livestock men for this purpose.

Peterboro Boy Was Instantly Killed by Bursting Shell

Victor Thorndyke Was Working With a Signalling Party.

LETTERS DELAYED

Mrs. Albert Thornpyke, 578 Stewart street, has received the following information concerning the death of her son, Victor, who was killed in action some time ago. The letters follow:

FRANCE, June 20, 1918.

Dear Mrs. Thorndyke,

I just heard to-day from one of the signallers of No. 6 Battery that you had received no word from any of the officers here regarding your son Victor's death. I was very sorry to hear this, as I have a very dear mother of my own and so know how you would feel about it. I wrote you about a month after Victor's death telling you about it, but apparently my letter never reached you. I thought probably this was the case when I received no reply from you, and can only blame myself very much for not writing to you again sooner.

I was in charge of the signallers at the time of the show, i.e. battle, and was also detailed as F.O.O. which meant my going over the top with my signallers to send back information to headquarters. Victor, along with two other of our signallers was detailed to go with me.

We were about half way across No Man's Land, I leading and three signallers of whom Victor was one, following in rear with the phone wire, when a shell whizzed over my head and lit just where the three signallers were. Your son was killed instantly without any suffering whatever, or any consciousness that he was going to die; such a death as would make any mother justly proud of her son. And now he is safe above in our Heavenly Father's Paradise, far removed from the sordid sins and temptations of this type, and far happier there than we, who are left behind. I have had many friends taken myself and only a month ago the dearest chum and finest pal I ever had and the only thing that consoles me is the thought that it is God's will and therefore for the best and that those taken so, are far better off than we are. For all we know they may even be watching beside us as we go about our daily tasks and of a surety will be ready to greet us when our day we, too, cross the Great Divide.

All the signallers as well as myself felt his loss very much, for he was always merry and bright, and no matter what the circumstances you could always see a little smile ready to come out on his face.

I understand his personal effects were not received by you. I have not been able to find out yet if I can trace them. They were registered and sent to you a long time ago though, and I will do my best to have them traced.

If there is any other matter in which I could be of any help to you be sure and let me know for I would be very pleased to do anything I can.

I am very sorry that you have been caused this undue anxiety and trust that the personal remembrances may be forth coming before long.

Sincerely Yours,

W. R. SKEY, Lieut.

48th Howitzer Battery, C.F.A., France.

FRANCE, Monday, June 10, 1918.

My dear Mrs. Thorndyke,—

Your letter of March 10 requesting news of your son, Victor, reached me only a few days ago owing to the move across here, mail has been much delayed in reaching me.

On August 15, last your son, Sharpe and myself were with the forward observation officers party engaged in laying a telephone line in a forward trench. During a Hun retaliation barrage, we were all three hit by pieces from the same shell which exploded I believe on the parapet of the trench I was wounded in the shoulder and knee but crawled back to the dug-out and told the other chaps that Vic and Sharpe were lying in the trench I thought at the time that Vic was instantly killed and the fellows I spoke to since your letter arrived agree with me. The boys who carried the body out later in the day say that all the personal papers and badges had been removed by some person unknown.

Vic was buried in a cemetery back of the line the location of which, the Canadian Record Office in Ottawa will supply.

The remainder of Vic's personal belongings were sen tto the battery wagon lines and forwarded to you by the O.C. under registered cover. I will try and trace them for you.

There is little else I can tell you except that Vic was awfully well liked by the boys and officers and a splendid signaller. I am sorry that I can give you no further information at present but hope you will accept my lowing me to be of any assistance.

My present address is 6th Battery, deepest sympathy and thanks for al- C.F.A., France.

Yours very sincerely,

WILFRID CAMPBELL.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Modes of Today)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone.

Americans Drive The Boches Into The River

holding a score of men, were sent out from the concealment of the wooded banks, their occupants poling them across. The Boches looked like gnomes while crossing the river, being forced to wear gas masks owing to the violence of their own gassing.

Numerous stories are told of individual bravery of the Americans. One artillery outfit maintained such a constant rapid fire that it ran short of ammunition. Volunteers were called for to go three miles over a road, every inch of which was swept by shell fire. Every man volunteered The necessary number was picked. They drove their horses, dragging the bumping caissons, at a gallop through shell bursts. Several horses were killed. Returning more horses were killed.

AMERICANS ESCAPED.

The number of horses was so reduced that the men were forced to substitute themselves. They would leap off, cut loose the mangled bodies of the faithful animals, then grasp the traces and run along beside the remaining horses. When this strange cavalcade, half man and half animal, arrived at the battery, the men serving the guns paused long enough in their deadly work to cheer their heroic comrades.

Sergeant Fred Brown and Oscar Wilcox returned to the American lines late yesterday afternoon with eight prisoners. They had been captured themselves and disarmed, but watching for an opportunity, they overpowered their guards and escaped, picking up a squad of Boches on the way back.

Documents and maps taken from other prisoners showed that the enemy reached none of his planned objectives between Chateau Thierry and Dormans. A full enemy division was identified as the tenth. The Americans engaged this same division when they were thrown across the path of the Germans' advance on Paris in June, and stopped it.

Another remarkable phase of the battle was the task of aerial observation in the middle of the day. While the weather was fairly clear early in the day, the sky soon became heavily clouded and few airplanes were up when the Americans counter-attacked around noon. There were two sharp showers late in the afternoon, after which the sky again became clear. Airplanes then began to swarm in great flocks and scores of Allied bombing planes crossed the lines and bombed the bridges and all German organizations from the front far to the rear.

Watch For Potato Blight

The Peterboro war gardener who used the vacuum cleaner to pick his potato bugs was not a great deal more impractical than many another potato grower who is still in his novitiate. Of course, it cost the price of a compressed air sprayer to have the cleaner fitted to the wheel hoe frame, and the son had to push it while the wife pumped and the gardener directed the hose, but that was all they had to do that day. The gardener still insists it would have worked but for the crown leaves following the bugs into the nozzle and stuffing it up. Anyhow, the experiment did no harm to the crop and brought the gardener to realize that advice based on experience is not such a bad thing to take; also it is easy to get in any gardening neighborhood. The sum of his experience was the discovery that the bug or bettle, as the entomologists insist on calling it, is not the only nor the most serious hindrance to a good crop, that the potato gardener must combat. Anybody, even a child can get rib of potato bugs. They are there in person and in number, and visible to the naked eye.

There is no mystery about potato bugs—just a plain everyday biological phenomenon. Many men now living remember when the first potato bugs appeared on their eastward migration from Colorado. In those early days paris green, mixed with plaster, dust, flower, or starch, was used to kill them. Then the idea of using paris green diluted in water was evolved, but it was found that unless carefully used it burned the foliage and ruined the plants. Paris green was followed by arsenate of lead, which is white and visible on the green foliage and do not burn unless used very strong ,and adheres even through rather heavy rain. And the addition of a little soap makes it stick still better. But the scientists discovered that the bug was not the potatogrower's worst enemy. Many a grower saw his field flourish for a season, then suddenly show a backward tendency wither at the bottom leaves, and gradually dies before their time. This was due to blight, a fungus disease that usually appears at two stages of the potato's growth.

Early blight sometimes kills off plants before even the bugs tackle them, but late blight is more dangerous because it comes later, after the bug season is well over and when the crop under grounds just changing from little potatoes to big ones. Bordeaux Mixture was first used to control fumgus diseases on fruit trees and where potato blight was found to be a fumgus disease experimenters naturally turned to it. The idea of uniting arsenate of lead and Bordeaux Mixture in one spray was a natural development, and now amateur gardeners almost universally use the combination. Here are some ideas about the use of Bardo Lead, as the combination has come to be known commercially, gathered from the Department of Agriculture and other scientific potato growing promoters.

The first spray should be applied when the plants are from four to six inches high, whether bugs have appeared or not. This spraying tends to prevent any latent blight from doing harm and the poison that adheres to the plants will kill off many old bugs from the year before they have a chance to deposit their eggs and start the real bug damage. This spraying sometimes is sufficient fire the eggs hatch and the first brood of young bugs appears, but it is well to spray each week or ten days to be sure the blight is kept under control. As the late blight season approaches, which in the North is usually after the middle fo July a protective spraying should be given and the weather watched more closely for if continuous showers occur with a mean temperature of 72 to 74 degrees, spraying every five or seven days will be necessary. In potato growing neighberhoods a In potato growing neighborhoods a and progress of late blight should be organized so that growers may be warned to increase their efforts.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION CONCERNING OBJECTIVE OF PRESENT GERMAN OFFENSIVE

General Foch Has His Plans Carefully Laid Out for Meeting Any Move Germans May Make

THE NEW ATTACK

(United Press Service.)

(By Ed L. Keen.)

LONDON, July 16.—The fifth phase of the German offensive, which began early yesterday in an attack on a fifty mile front, extending from Chateau Thierry eastward beyond Rheims, appears to be a supreme effort to break through and defeat as large a portion of the French army as possible, without any definite geographical objective.

This was the majority opinion of expert military men today, although some authorities maintained that the drive was an effort to use up French reserves from the north, preparatory to renewal of the attack on Amiens.

Still other critics saw in the drive an effort to widen the base for future attacks on Paris with the reduction of the Rheims salient and capture of that city as a part of this plan.

All are agreed that General Foch has his plans completely laid out for meeting any move the Germans may make.

Are Optimistic.

The morning papers are decidedly optimistic and express satisfaction with the result so far. They are puzzled however, as to whether yesterday's battle was the main attack. So far as has been learned, no British have yet participated.

It is estimated that between fifty and sixt divisions (between 600,000 and 720,000 men) took part in the assault. The Germans, it is learned from an authoritative source, advanced three miles on a front of four miles between Fossoy and Pourdy. Between Foschoy and Jaulgonne, the enemy penetrated slightly more than Marne. (This is where the Americans drove them back across the river. Fossoy is four miles due east of Chateau-Thierry and Jaulgonne is the same distance north-east of Fossoy.) Between Bligny and Troissy, the enemy penetrated slightly more than a mile. (Troissy is on the south bank of the Marne), two miles north of the Dormans; while Bligny is 12 miles north-east of Troissy, in the direction of Rheims.

This would indicate that the Germans succeeded in progressing on a sixteen mile front between Chateau Thierry and Rheims, separated into two sectors by a five mile strip along the Marne, between Jaulgonne and Dormans. The greatest penetration, obviously, was about midway between Dormans and Rheims.

Main Attack

It is believed the Germans penetrated the village of Prunay (7 miles south-east of Rheims) and also advanced a mile and a half in the direction of Prosnes and Souain, but were driven back by counter attacks. (Prosnes is twelve miles east and south of Rheims. Souain is eleven miles directly east of Prosnes. The latter village is believed to be on the left flank of the American unit fighting east of Rheims.)

"Compared with their initial successes in previous efforts, the Germans' present achievements are relatively inconsiderable," the Daily News declared. "If this is the main attack, it is reasonable to believe it is parried."

The Times believes the drive is preparatory to an advance on Paris and is confident Rheims will be able to hold out.

SAVED FROM A WATERY GRAVE

Through the prompt action of Miss Helen Bygott, daughter of Capt. Bygott of the 93rd. Battalion, Eva McIlmoyl, Lakefield, was saved from drowning on Monday afternoon. The little McIlmoyl girl had waded out beyond her depth and would certainly have drowned had Miss Bygott not had the presence of mind and courage to swim after her, walking for some distance while the little girl clung to her neck on the river bed under water.

KILLED IN ITALY ON SATURDAY

Mr. D. D. C. Dawe, 479 Gilmour street, received word today that his nephew, Lieut George Armstrong, R.F.C., had been killed in Italy on Saturday. Lieut. Armstrong, who went over with the 235th Battalion, was later transferred to the Flying Corps. His home is in Toronto.

BOARD OF CONCILIATION WILL DEAL WITH LOCAL DISPUTE

Matter Was Amiably Settled at a Meeting Held Last Evening—Will be No Strike.

THE DEMANDS

There will be no immediate strike of the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co., today. An eleventh hour decision reached at a mass meeting which was held in the Labor Hall on George street last night postponed a settlement of the difference of opinion between the company and the employees pending the finding of a recommendation of a board of Conciliation and Adjustment under the Industrial Disputes act. The employees of the company will be represented at the board by Mr. Fred Bancroft and a nominee of the company will be named immediately. The board will convene as soon as can be arranged.

The decision of the men at the meeting last night was not expected locally on account of the fact that the men did not expect that the company would agree to the board. The offer of a board, which was made mutually by the company and the men was communicated to the mass meeting by Mr. H. W. Harper, last night, and after considerable discussion this procedure was decided on. Feeling that it was no time to tie up industry by any strike the men finally decided to agree to the board.

The schedule which the employees of the company ask to have accepted deals with the mechanics, toolmakers and specialists and electrical workers, as well, the latter being in a somewhat different position from the former, as the rates paid electrical workers differ from those paid to machinists.

On April 15 last, the employees submitted a schedule of rates and conditions which they asked the company to accept. They asked that the schedule be put in effect May 1, 1918, but it is only now that the arbitration stage of the discussion has been reached.

The story of the intervening months has been a constant series of negotiations which followed an initial refusal of the company to grant the request of the men. The deadlock which preceeds the present arbitration was brought about by the failure of the parties to agree on all points although there was some common ground which gave promise of a settlement.

The demands of the electrical workers were as follows: — Men earning under 30c per hour asked for an increase of 20 per cent, those earning under 35c, fifteen per cent. and those over 35c, ten per cent. The powerhouse men asked for a straight 20 per cent., increase. The company declined to increase the pay of this class of employees whose case now rests with the board of arbitration. Just prior to the meeting yesterday an offer of a ten per cent increase was made to the men earning under 40c per hour which was not acceptable to the employees.

The dispute on the machinists side of the arbitration rests on the allegation of the men that there are many men employed at the plant who ought to be paid the machinists rate of pay as such men are paid in other shops, but who hitherto have been differently classified by the Canadian General Electric and paid a lower rate of wage. These are such men as fitters, machine hands and brass workers and repairmen and had no special classification by the company. They are asking to be classified as machinists and paid accordingly. Most of these men have served an apprenticeship.

Another grievance which at one time threatened to make the dispute more difficult to settle was that of the hours of work. The men desired a nine instead of a ten hour day which was agreed to by the company, before any formal demand was made.

Overtime rates asked by the men have been agreed to and put in effect during the discussion of the grievances.

When the Engine Stops.

Eager Lady—But what if your engine stops in the air—what happens? Can't you get down?

Aviator—That's just what 'appens, mum. There's two Germans up over in France now with their engines stopped. They can't get down, so they're starvin' to death.

PRESENTATION

The following presentation and address was made to Miss Margaret Miller, of Peterborough, who has severed her connection with School No. 5, Otonabee:

Dear Miss Miller,—It it with deepest regret we learn that you are again about to give up your duties as teacher of S.S. No. 5, Otonabee.

We will always remember the little kindly deeds which you have performed while in our midst. We have all tested your patience numberless times, but you always bore patiently with us and endeared yourself to us.

We ask you to accept this fountain pen as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held.

Trusting that you may have a pleasant vacation.

HAD $100 CHARGED WITH BEING VAGRANT

With $100 in his pockets, Frank Schub, peddler, hit the hay in a barn on Chambers street last night, after picking out a de luxe soft spot that looked better and particularly cheaper to him than a hotel room at $1.50, without bath. The police disturbed his slumbers, however, and this morning, charged with vagrancy he was remanded until Friday.

MAY TAKE OVER LOCAL PLANT

In appealing on behalf of one of his office men at this morning's Review tribunal, Mr. J. A. McNab, drew the judge's attention to the further probable shortage of men in the expansion of the present Peterboro industries stating that he understood the Renfrew manufacturing company which occupies the Metl Products plant are taking over the Lundy Shovel Company building.

HUNS WILL CONTINUE THEIR OFFENSIVE

Canadian Press:

PARIS, July 16.—Germans will continue their offensive, as they have concentrated strong reserves in the region of Bethel, north-east of Rheims, says Marcel Huin, in the "Echo De Paris." The reserves, he adds, undoubtedly will be put into the fighting line, probably extending the front of the attack toward Argonne.

TO MAKE SUBSTITUTES ONLY.

STRATFORD, July 15.— The Canadian Cereals, Limited, mills here and at Ayr, Galt and Tillisonburg, will shut down next week as far as wheat flour is concerned. Some departments, however, will continue to work on substitutes.

WAR GARDEN BULLETIN

Issued by the Canada Food Board in collaboration with experts on the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm.

Practical Daily Guide For Vacant Lot and Backyard Gardeners Enlisted in Greater Production Campaign.

WASTE NOT, WANT NOT.

One of the first principles of the 1918 war garden is that nothing be allowed to go to waste. Practically everything can be made use of in one way or another but a few odds and ends will necessarily have to be cast aside and, wherever possible, these should go to the compost heap. Remnants of the various crops should not be allowed to remain in the garden for they will simply harbor and feed insects. Beet tops, if not canned, stumps, cabbage leaves and all healthy plants may be sent to the compost heap as the season advances but dead tomato vines, bean vines and other plant tops which have been diseased should be burned. While this may seem like a waste of vegetable matter it is the only thing to do. To save or compost such matter for fertilizer would simply be to mature and save millions of disease spores which would be ready to attack next year's crop.

PRINCE ALBERT IN DEFAULT

Interest Overdue on Debentures Floated in London in 1913.

LONDON, July 15. — The Times says the city of Prince Albert, Sask., has defaulted on interest due the first of July on two issues of debenture floated in London in 1913. The first issue was for £102,700, bearing 4½ per cent., and the second for £200,000, bearing 5 per cent., interest. The holders, on presenting coupons for payment had them returned marked "no funds," which means the city has failed to provide the requisite monies to pay interest. The holders feel they are entitled to receive further informations as to the probable length the default is likely to last.

In view of the wartime prosperity in the Dominion as a whole the default has caused some surprise among debenture holders.

CROP OUTLOOK GOOD

M. P. for Prince Albert Reports Conditions Excellent in Western Provinces.

PRINCE ALBERT, July 15.—Andrew Knox, M.P., for Prince Albert, who has just returned from a visit to the country along the C. N. R., east of Prince Albert in the interests of the Grain Growers' Association, during which he observed conditions at Kinistino, Melfort, Star City, Tisdale and Ravine Bank, says that he never saw a better crop outlook. The grain is probably a few days later than in previous years, but it assures a wonderful yield.

Percival in the Suburbs.

After several years of hotel life, Percival's parents took up their residence in a city suburb.

"What were you doing, son?" the mother asked him, when Percival came into the house one afternoon.

"I was just out on the front porch," replied Percival, "listening to a man with a pushcart paking blackberries."

GEORGE'S BAD SPELL.

Washington Never Could Learn to Write Some Words Correctly.

Whoever heard that the great George Washington never could learn to spell correctly?

You see, it happened this way. When George was quite a young boy he came across a copy of an English book called the "Young Man's Companion," written in a "plain and easy style," as the title stated, which taught one how to write letters, wills, deeds, to survey, to navigate, to build houses, to make ink and cider, how to doctor the sick and how to conduct oneself in society, "all without the aid of a tutor."

Washington studied this book from cover to cover and from it acquired two qualities that clung to him through life. His handwriting, easy, flowing and legible, was modeled from the engraved "copy" sheet, and certain forms of spelling were learned that he never could correct.

To the end of his life Washington wrote lie, lye; liar, lyar; ceiling, cieling; oil, oyl, and blue, blew, as in his boyhood he had learned to do from this old book. Struggle as he did in trying to spell as the others of his day did, he never could be sure of certain words.—St. Louis Republic.

STREAKED WALLS.

Cold Surfaces Always Catch More Dust Than Hot Ones.

The reason that lath and plaster walls become streaked is explained by John Aitken, in Nature, as due to the tendency of hot air to deposit its dust on cold surfaces, and the colder the surface the weaker the power of resistance. So where the laths protect the plaster from the cold outside the plaster receives less deposit of dust than where it is between the laths.

Wherever a hot steam or water pipe comes through a wall a vertical streak of dust may be seen above it, due to the hot air driving the dust against the cold wall. Rooms that are heated by open grates are much less dusty than those heated by radiators because in the former the furniture is heated principally by radiation, and, being warmer than the air, it repels the particles of dust insteed of carrying them while in the latter the air heats the furniture and in so doing deposits its dust on it.

Rooms lighted by electricity keep clean longer than those heated by gas simply because the light is almost cold.

Mr. Aitken sums it up as follows: "Any surface hotter than the air keeps free from dust."

Swallowed and Climbed.

A woman newly rich was invited to an aristocratic dinner party. During the course of fowl and salad this woman noticed with dismay a fat, furry caterpillar on her topmost leaf of lettuce. Glancing up, she met her aristocratic hostess' eye. The hostess, too, had seen the caterpillar. Her gaze implored the guest to save the dinner from catastrophe. The guest gave her hostess a reassuring smile. Then she doubled a lettuce leaf around the caterpillar and swallowed it calmly. The look of awe and gratitude that her hostess gave her was an assurance that her footing in society was at last firmly established.

"Did you think," said Mrs. Newly rich to her daughter afterward, "that I'd lose a chance of establishing the family socially for a little thing like a caterpillar?"

SOLDIER AUTOMATONS.

Latest Device to Heighten the Terrors of Warfare.

Yet another terrible engine of war is likely to be added to the equipment of modern armies if the invention of an engineer named Aassen of Copenhagen fulfills expectations. This engineer has perfected an invention which he calls a "soldier automaton," an automatic machine for replacing the line of skirmishers for defense purposes. Briefly it consists of a cylinder, which is buried in the ground and which, like submarine mines, may stay there for years without being damaged. A signal station a distance of four, or five miles away is connected with the cylinder. By pressing a button an electric current is transmitted, and the cylinder shoots up until it is about two feet from the level of the ground, firing at the same moment 400 shots in a horizontal direction.

The value of such an invention in repelling invaders is obvious. It means that one of these cylinders can take the place at any point of 400 soldiers, and if a number are buried in proper systematic order over a certain stretch of country a continuous hail of bullets can be fired at an invading army without the latter seeing a single enemy.

A number of these cylinders, in fact, makes a line of skirmishers whose operations may inflict terrible damage on the enemy. The shots take effect at a distance of 3,000 yards, and the inventor calculates that only 10 per cent of the enemy would be saved after an attack of these automatic troops.

The "skirmishers" would be placed in rows, behind each other, to be used successively for resisting various attacks, and, as the cylinders are hidden in the ground, no enemy can know where the line is before the firing starts.—Exchange.

Saves Handshaking.

A Frenchman who meets you half a dozen times a day shakes hands each time. M. Poulbot, an artist, is tired of this eternal handshaking. In the little Montmartre cafe which he and his friends frequent he has hung up by a chain a carved wooden hand. When he enters he goes to the hand and shakes it vigorously. This makes a great noise by jingling a piece of iron inside a tin kettle at the other end of the chain.

The signal is accepted by those who hear it as a sign that M. Poulot has shaken hands with all his friends.

FAMOUS MAN MAY VISIT US

Australian Premier Is Coming to America.

AN INTERESTING CAREER

William Morris Hughes Is a Labor Man, Though He Does Not Work With the Radical Element, and He Resembles Premier Lloyd George In Many Ways.

WILLIAM M. HUGHES, Prime Minister of Australia, is paying a visit to America. He was on this continent a few years ago. Since then he has passed through a crisis in his career and triumphed in a difficult achievement, and he appears before us in a somewhat different light. A labor man he is still, but a labor man who has broken with the radical element in his party, fought with all his strength for the establishment of conscription, been expelled from the councils of the labor extremists, and welded the moderate laborites into one war party with the conservative elements in Australian politics. As Prime Minister in a Coalition Cabinet, he has ceased to be the leader of a majority party only; he has fused labor and capital into a working combination to which only the "I. W. W. element" has been opposed. And he has worked successfully to overthrow the labor machine which he himself built up.

In February of last year the Australian Cabinet, with Mr. Hughes as Prime Minister, resigned, and he was at once asked to form the new coalition Ministry.

Like Lloyd George, the Australian Premier is a Welshman, and self-made. His rise has been against tremendous odds of physical disability. He was born in 1864, weighs scarcely 100 pounds, and is said to be a chronic dyspeptic.

Thugs Were Once a Religious Sect.

The word "thug" has an interesting historical origin and comes to us from India. In a recent address in England, Rudyard Kipling told the story as follows:

"Once upon a time, a hundred years ago, there was a large and highly-organized community in India who lived by assassination and robbery. They were educated to it from their infancy; they followed it as a profession, and it was also their religion. They were called Thugs. Their method was to disguise themselves as pilgrims or travellers or merchants and to join with parties of pilgrims, travellers and merchants moving about India. They got into the confidence of their victims, found out what they had on them, and in due time—after weeks or months of acquaintance — they killed them by giving them poisoned foods—sweetmeats for choice—or by strangling them from behind, as they sat over the fire of an evening, with a knotted towel or a specially prepared piece of rope. They then stripped the corpse of all valuables, threw it down a well or buried it, and went on to the next job.

"At last things got so bad that the Government of India had to interfere. Like all Governments, it created a department—the Department of Thuggee—to deal with the situation. Unlike most departments, this department worked well, and after many years of tracking down and hanging up the actual murderers, and imprisoning their spies and confederates, who included all ranks of society, it put an end to the whole business of Thuggee."

What Is T. N. T.?

Tri-nitro-toluol, or tri-nitro-taluene or T.N.T. is a white solid which is easily made and which is safer to use than many other explosives. Chemically it is CH-3 C-0 H-2 (No. 2)-3. It is made from toluol and nitric acid. The toluol is obtained as a bye-product in the coke industry. There is not enough toluol prepared in the United States to supply its present needs. The tar and illuminating gas of the city gas-works contain toluol. By making certain changes in equipment the toluol could be saved. Toluol in gas gives illuminating power, but if gas mantles are used its absence will not be missed. It is of no value in the gas used for heat. It has been estimated that enough toluol is burned in illuminating in the United States in one day to make T.N.T. for 150,000 9-inch shells. Three hundred pounds of T.N.T. are used in a single torpedo.—Electrical Experimenter.

NAVAL SITUATION IMPROVES.

More Submarines Sink; More Merchantmen Built.

Twelve German submarines were sunk or captured by British and American destroyers during the month of April. This means that twelve U-boats were officially reported and recognized as sunk, and that evidence, either a cap bearing the name of the submarine, a portion of the craft, or a live or dead German, was produced when each case was recorded.

In addition to this number, at least two other U-boats were destroyed during that period. One was sunk on April 8 in the North Sea, while making an attack on a convoy to Holland.

Another U-boat, making the total fourteen, was sunk on Friday, April 26, during the forenoon, while attempting to attack a convoy of transports filled with American troops on the way to France.

In the last two cases depth charges were used and large patches of oil came to the surface.

The commanders of the U-boats are worrying now and are acting on the defensive. Several cases of mutiny among the crews and the wrecking of submarines along desolate coasts have been reported in England during the last eight weeks.

The convoys are escorted by cruisers, destroyers, patrol boats, and dirigibles, called "blimps," which are better than the seaplanes, as they can swoop down over the water and hover in one spot for any length of time without difficulty. Battleships, as well as battle-cruisers and destroyers, are used to escort the big convoys across the North Sea to Norway and Denmark. There are from fifty to seventy-five steamships in each convoy, and they all manage to get across safely. The U-boats try very hard to get the vessels in the Dutch convoys as they can see them from Zeebrugge, and are directed by scout airplanes.

If the submarine cannot get there in time the airplanes try to drop bombs on the steamships, even when they have reached neutral waters along the coast of Holland. So far they have only succeeded in sinking one small Dutch vessel.

Admiral Jellicoe was against sending the battleships to sea for the purpose of protecting convoys, as he thought the risk of their being torpedoed was too great. He was overruled at the Admiralty after the capture of a convoy in the North Sea by the Germans, and that, it is understood, was the cause of his resignation.

The sinking of vessels in the Mediterranean is still considerable on account of the lack of destroyers. The British and American destroyers are all needed for convoy work, and for protecting the shipping in the Irish Sea and waters around the British coast, and the Mediterranean is left to the French and Italian destroyers, with a few Japanese destroyers.

According to the official figures in London, the output of shipyards in Britain and America in June will exceed the estimated loss of tonnage of 10,000 and increase monthly hereafter.

The Romanoffs and Labor.

Unlike the old Rurik dynasty of princes of Muscovy, the upstart Romanoffs never sided with the people, but stood with the powerful. It was under them that the peasants became serfs, and in the end slaves. When factories began to spring up in Russia, the Romanoffs, of course, became accomplices of the capitalists in holding workmen down with a ruthlessness long since abandoned in Western Europe. Unions of wage-earners to promote their economic interests were stamped out. Even when some employers wanted the workmen to be given the right to organize, in order that there would be authorized representatives of the men with whom they could make a stable agreement, the Government refused lest such organizations become centres of political movements. The Government at times patronized mutual-benefit societies among wage-earners, but would tolerate no association that might lessen profits. Nor would it allow the workmen to quit work in concert. Forced in 1905 to recognize their right to strike, it nullified this concession when a year or two later, it felt itself firm again in the saddle. A strike was treated as a seditious outbreak calling for stern measures. Through his spies among the men the employer would learn in advance the day and hour of the walk-out and, when the strikers marched out of the works, they would be met by gendarmes or Cossacks, who would disperse them with clubs and whips and throw their leaders into jail, if they did not send them to the front."—Edward Alsworth Ross, in the May Century.

German Public Opinion.

Every appeal to the German people over the heads of its leaders, every attempt to impress it with the good faith and disinterestedness of its opponents in this war, every assurance that we are fighting, not for the extermination of the German people, but for their right to develop their great virtues and manifest genius in the humane forms insured alone under the influence of free institutions, pre-supposes in Germany the existence of at least a kernel of the sort of thought which we describe by the phrase "publi opinion." But no one who has been long and intimately familiar with the inside of German institutions, with the ways of thinking in typical German circles, whether liberal or conservative so-called, with the whole political atmosphere breathed by radical or reactionary within the borders of the German Empire, can hesitate to say that there never has been in Germany any such thing as public opinion.

Tin In Australia.

Geologists have estimated that Australia's little developed tin deposits could be made to supply about three-fourths of the country's needs of metal.

Where Shell Bracelets Come From.

Though Dacca has lost its trade in fine muslins, it is still the chief center of the manufacture of the shell bracelets everywhere worn among the Hindus. These are cut by women, using a very primitive saw, from what is popularly known as the chank shell of the East Indian seas, and into the sunk portion of the design colored lac is melted. Except the rare specimens with reversed opening, which have fetched as much as £70, chanks are not costly. But the shell is sacred to Vishnu, and the bangles and anklets made from it are frequently left on the body at burial. Thus these sankha are not entirely subject to fluctuations of taste, and the demand for them remains steady.—London Chronicle.

O'Connell's Big Head.

Thackeray was six feet two inches in height, and Sir H. W. Lucy says the great novelist wore a seven and five-eighths inch hat, beating Dickens and John Bright by a full half inch. Mr. Gladstone's hat was of seven and three-eighths inch measurement—the same as Macaulay's—while Beaconsfield needed a full seven inch. The hat of Daniel O'Connell, however, would have beaten them all, measuring eight and one-half inches by ten inches.

Diplomacy.

"Baron, the banker Veltelsberger is in the parlor with a note for $5,000."

"But I haven't any money."

"Yes, sir. He says that then you must propose to his oldest daughter today. He's brought her too."—Munich Meggendorfer Blaetter.

Just His Luck.

It may not rain every time a woman wears a new hat, but we never sit around in a soiled shirt and need a have that company doesn't come.—Detroit Free Press.

CHANGE OF WATER CAUSED DIARRHOEA

People moving from one place to another are very much subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, change of climate, change of diet, etc., and what at first appears to be but a slight looseness of the bowels should never be neglected or some serious bowel complaint will be sure to follow.

The safest and quickest cure for diarrhoea dysentery, colic, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, pains in the stomach, sickness and all looseness of the bowels is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mr. T. T. Allard, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "In the fall of 1914 I was working on the new 'Chiclet Gum' factory, on Carlaw Ave., in Toronto, when I had a violent attack of diarrhoea, owing, I think to the change of water. One of the foremen advised me to get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I did, with the result that I hadn't taken it all before I was completely cured."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been a national remedy for the past 72 years, and is sold by medicine dealers everywhere at 35c, a bottle. Don't let anyone palm off a substitute on you. When you pay your money for the genuine, you've a right to get it. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Cause Found at Last.

The teacher was having an interesting half hour with the children, asking them questions, any one having the privilege to answer. It was a great time to show off. The teacher asked about various things, and one question was about locusts. Several hands were raised, and finally one boy was selected to speak. "A locust is a bug that gives people tuberculocusts," was his answer.—Indianapolis News.

Joy of Obliviousness.

"How did you like my turning off the gas at 10 while you and that young fool were in the parlor last night?" asked her father.

"Did you?" she responded innocently, and father knew the true meaning of the word failure.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Hard Task.

'Miss May certainly has the male contingent at her feet. But she is rather a capricious belle, isn't she?"

"Yes; a hell who is going to be very hard to ring."—Baltimore American.

Presentation to Mr. John Mahood

On Friday evening, June 28th, Mr. John Mahood, sonof Mr. Edward Mahood, of Smith township, former teacher of Lily Lake school, and now principal of Elmira school, was presented with an address and a beautiful scarf pin. An Elimra paper has the following to say of the event:

On Friday evening, June 28th, Mr. John Mahood was visited by his entrance class, who came loaded with parcels to give him a surprise. They were made heartily welcome by Mr. and Mrs. Mahood, who gave them the freedom of the house.

They enjoyed some time in music and games and then some of the girls opened the aforementioned parcels and produced an excellent supper. The way in which these things disappeared showed that the hard studying of the past term had not in any way affected their appetites. When all were filled to the limit and the remnants gathered up, Mr. Mahood was called to a seat of honour and Miss Edith Winn read the following address, and at the proper time Master Robert Otto made the presentation of a beautiful solid gold scarf pin:

Elmira, June 28th, 1918.

Mr. Mahood—

Dear Teacher,— Your Entrance Class, call you aside just to say, "Thank you, sir," for the interest you have taken in us; for the patience you had in us; and for the confidence you enthused through the whole class that we would make a pass or better.

We ask you to accept this small token of our esteem as a remembrance, and when many winters have passed, may the associations of the past year be as pleasant to you as they shall be to each one of your Entrance Class of 1918.

Mr. Mahood, who was taken completely by surprise, made a suitable reply and gave the pupils much good advice regarding their future course of studies.

When this was ended, Master Harvey Hehn resided at the piano and the class in their usual hearty manner, sang several of their old school songs, after which they gave Mr. Mahood three rousing cheers.

The evening was ended by singing the National Anthem and all went home feeling that the friendship which had grown up during the past year between teacher and pupils was cemented in such a manner that it would never be broken in the years to come.

THAT LAD OF YOURS; OVERSEAS.

All that is humanly possible is being done to see to it that he is well fed, well clothed and efficiently equipped. Organizations like the Y. M. C. A. are looking to his physical comfort, healthful recreation and clean fun. If he is sick or wounded, the Red Cross will provide for him with tender loving care. Yet there is one thing that will bring a smile to his face and a joy to his heart that none of these can give; that only you can give—your photograph. Sacrifice of Samuel Vickery, of London, for Ivy Campbell.

LONDON, Ont., July 15. —To save the life of Ivy D. Campbell, of 290 Hill street, a pretty young stenographer of the traffic department of the Bell Telephone Co. here, Samuel Vickery, of 182 Simcoe street,, another employe of that company, gave a quart of his blood.

Miss Campbell's condition is reported as materially improved. Vickers is very weak, but in a satisfactory condition.

LINDSAY'S FUEL COMMISSIONER RESIGNS

LINDSAY, July 17.— Deputy Reve McGaffey has resigned the dual position of Fuel and Food Commissioner, his resignation being in the hands of His Worship Mayor Kylie. Deputy Reeve McGaffey would have resigned his position on the council, but such a step would entail an expenditure of $300 in a new election, besides create an embarrasing situation.

GERMANS HELD UP OFFENSIVE ON ADVICE OF WEATHER EXPERTS

PARIS, July 17.—The German offensive which started this morning had been held up for several days because the German meteorologica experts had advised the high command that the bad weather prevailing would soon end and conditions would be more favourable for the attack. This statement was made to-day by an American army officer whose rank accords him the right to speak with authority.

The officer said the Germans had sixty weather experts at the front and that much importance always was attached to their reports, a statement which seems to be verified by the fact that in all the previous German offensives the weather has been favourable for the operation of the enemy.

PETERBORO LOOKS LIKE A COLLECTION OF TRUCK FARMS

High Average of Grain Crops Showing in Peterboro' County—Development of Power and Introduction of New Machinery.

THE EXPANSION OF DAIRYING

Peterboro, like almost every other urban centre in Ontario, at least in the outlying sections of such centres, looks like a collection of truck farms this year, says the Toronto Globe in a review of the local crop situation. Continuing, it says, there are potatoes, cabbage, tomatoes and beans everywhere. Vacant lots that were unsightly masses of weeds in other years are this season covered with vegetable crops making luxuriant growth. The back yards are being made use of as well. In fact there hardly seems to be a foot of idle land anywhere within Peterboro city limits. The appearance of these miniature farms shows that our urban people, most of whom either came from farms themselves or are the offspring of men who did come from the land, have not wholly lost their love of the soil or their capacity for cultivating it.

CROPS ABOVE AVERAGE.

In a run out into the township of Smith, north of the city, excellent barley and oat fields were seen on every hand. There are some poor fields but in almost every case the backward appearance is due to lack of drainage with a cold soil as an accompaniment. Unusually cold weather with a good deal of rain, has been exceptionally hard on crops growing in such soils this year. Taking it on the whole, however, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, who is continually going up and down the concession lines in connection with his dairy business, says that while the hay is light, the grain crops generally are above the average. Peas here as in the neighborhood of Port Hope, constitute one of the most prominent features in the crop situation. One farmer, Mr. Harry Crauley, living east of Peterboro, has one solid block of 50 acres, and this block, like practically all other pea fields, is making a magnificent showing.

CORN MAKES POOR SHOWING.

On the other hand, Mr. J. J. Hogan, a cheese manufacturer, eight miles east of Peterboro, would go so far as to describe corn as a failure. Certainly the present appearance of that crop is not as encouraging as it might be, a good deal being only nicely above the ground last week. I have, however, seen a fairly good corn crop grown on land from which clover had been harvested in the same season. Favorable weather and plenty of cultivation may yet work wonders in the corn this year.

CULTIVATION TELLS.

While corn generally east of Toronto is so very backward, there is on the farm of Mr. Charles Moore, of Smith township, one field well over two feet high. The land on which this corn is growing on the Moore farm was in alfalfa last year; that enriched it. The surface was thoroughly cultivated before the seed was planted; that warmed the soil. Seed was put in early, and cultivation has been kept up ever since; this ensured the giving of every possible advantage in a season of phenominally slow growth. The result is that Mr. Moore has the best crop of corn that I have seen in a trip covering some hundred and fifty miles.

SWEET CLOVER DROUTH RESISTER.

Sweet clover is getting quite a hold in Peterboro county as well as in many other parts of Ontario. The story of its introduction here, as told by Mr. F. E. Ellis, editor of Farm and Dairy, is an interesting one. Some three years ago, Mr. Ellis says, crops in Peterboro district suffered rather severely from drouth, and in that year Mr. Sanderson had one field, fronting on the roadway, half of which was seeded to sweet clover, and half to red. The sweet clover came on splendidly after the removal of the nurse crop of grain, while the red killed out completely in the parching heat. Hundreds of farmers in passing along the roadway were impressed by the object lesson given, and sweet clover has been quite extensively grown in the section ever since.

OXFORD OF THE EAST.

Peterboro bids fair to become the Oxford of Eastern Ontario in point of dairying. Not only are cheese factories numerous in the county, but there is in the city of Peterboro, a condenser that accounts for fifteen to twenty thousand pounds of milk daily. Five motor trucks are used in hauling milk to this factory, most of the ground being covered twice each day in order to secure delivery after each milking.

"The economy of the truck depends altogether on the driver," said Mr. Gillespie. "But economy or no economy, we simply had to get the trucks, as men with teams were unobtainable. We pay $1.90 per 100 pounds at the stand or $2.10 at the factory for milk. We do not base the price on butter fat content, but as a matter of fact, the average test is 3.2 per cent."

The condenser really has not cut into the cheese factory trade, as all the milk for it is taken from two sections from which two cheese factories had disappeared—one by explosion, and the other by fire. Besides cheese factory patrons are getting $1.70 for their milk with the whey back, which many of them consider worth 30c per hunderweight.

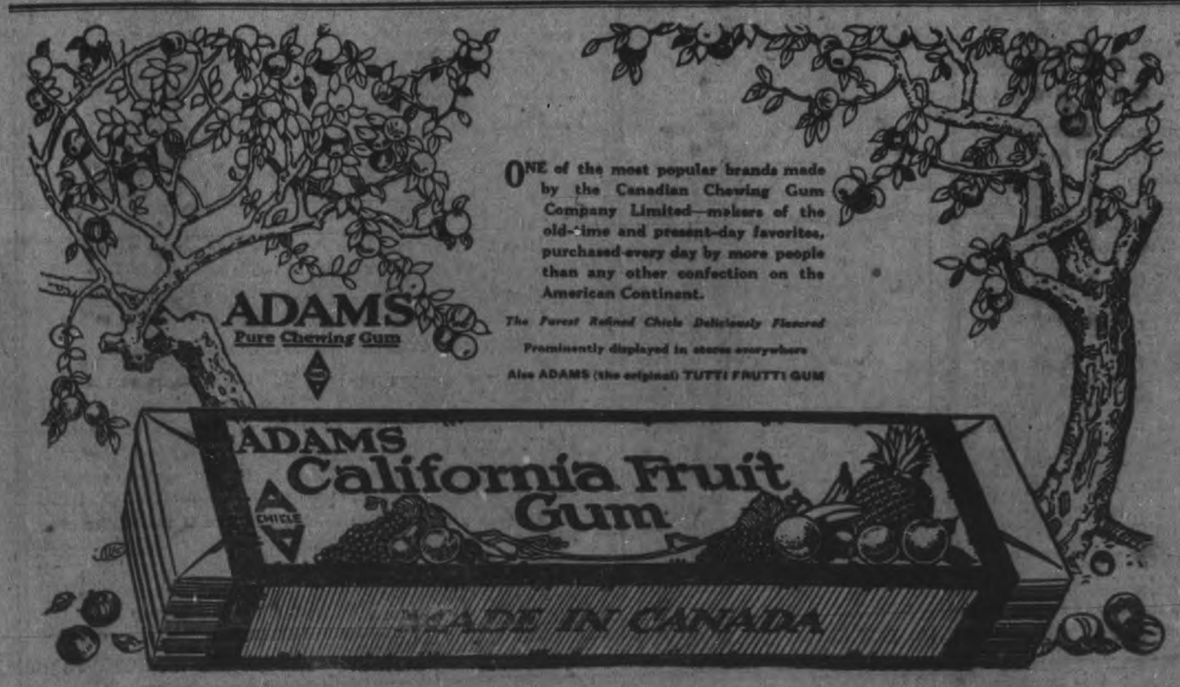
MILKING MACHINES EVERYWHERE.

Dairy herds are not so very large in Peterboro county, 20 head being considered, Mr. Gillespie says, a fairly large one. The average yield per cow would appear to be good though, as some of the condenser patrons receive cheques for $350 to $400, and even a little better, in a month.

Peterboro county dairymen are up-to-date, too. There are, Mr. Gilespie says, at least 50 milking machines in use within a radius of 20 miles of the city. Here is more of up-to-dateness. At two o'clock in one afternoon the work of installing a milking machine with one double unit began; that evening the 16 cows of the herd were milked by the machine without the slightest fuss on the part of a single cow.

UTILIZING POWER TO THE FULL.

Some Peterboro farmers are not satisfied with using the power installed for operating the milking machine for this one purpose. Mr. Fred Mann of Smith township, has a 4½ horse power gas engine which operates two double unit milkers, and crushes the grain for the next feeding at the same time. Mr. Mann has 22 cows and he has milked these in 45 minutes, the engine used in milking running a grain crusher at the same time, preparing feed for 50 or 60 hungry porkers.



ARRANGES TO SELL 140 CORPORATIONS OWNED BY GERMANS

Mr. Palmer Perfects Project to Dispose of Property Valued at $250,000,000.

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 17.—A. Mitchell Palmor, Alien Property Custodian, today organized machinery which, as part of the alien property custodian's office, will sell all the German owned corporations and other enemy owned property taken over under the Trading with the Enemy law. There are now 140 German owned corporations in the hands of the government, which will be disposed by the new organizations. Their value is approximately $250,000,000.

Of the corporations about forty with a capitalization of more than $100,000,000 are ready for sale. The others, together with all corporations hereafter taken over, will be sold as soon as the new organization can make the arrangements.

The selling organization will consist of a Washington committee, an advisory committee in New York city, a sales manager in New York city and local representatives and lawyers who will be connected with each property which is sold.

GRAIN MARKET

After a strong upward movement in corn yesterday the market weakened at the close, the July option going off 2 1-2c. below Monday's close. The changed tone of the market was due to the action of the authorities on the Grain Board, who took steps to prevent the undue boosting of prices in the face of essentially bearish conditions. Winnipeg oats were stronger on further reports of crop damage in the West.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 23 cars, with 287 cattle, 151 calves, 456 hogs, and 157 sheep.

There was a very quiet market yesterday. Not much offering, and apparently not very much wanted. The advent of warm weather has doubtless slackened the demand for fresh meat, good seasonable substitutes being found in plenty of vegetables, fruits, and fish. The butchers, at all events, are not carrying any larger supplies of fresh meat than they are obliged to, and the packers probably have ample supplies for all present needs in store. Yesterday's light receipts of fresh cattle, with those held over from yesterday, made a sufficiently large offering for yesterday's market, while at the same time not so large as to cause any further decline in prices, which held about steady with Monday.

Hogs are unchanged.

NEW YORK, July 17. — Several thousand youths who were wont to proudly display an official looking badge adorning a uniform similar to that worn by members of the Police Department were compelled to surrender their emblem of authority and cease their activities as the Junior Police. There were many tearful scenes as the boys parted with their badges.

Last week Richard E. Enright, Police Commissioner, issued an order becoming effective yesterday, transferring the organization to the Board of Education. But Edward C. Bibney, assistant director of the Community and Recreation Centres of the Board of Education, who was to take over the organization, refused to assume responsibility for he boy "cops."

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

George Howard Spends the Evening With Julia Collins

CHAPTER CXIX

Mrs. Ross' flattering remark about my being young, beautiful, and musical, did not allay the fears her conversation had excited. So all the women considered Julia Collins dangerous, and they thought me good-natured to stand for her taking so much of George's time.

"Good natured or a fool!" I said to myself bitterly, "probably the latter," but I made up my mind no one should think me knowingly a fool. I would pretend ignorance then they couldn't say I connived at it in any way.

After the door closed after Mrs. Ross I breathed a sigh of relief. She had given me a bad half hour. I was glad she was gone. In a few was glad she was gone. In a few moments Evelyn came in. I expect I was looking awfully dismal for she said:

"Whatever's the matter, Helen? I met Mrs. Ross, she said she had been here. Did she say something disagreeable?"

"No—and yes. She gave me the doldrums talking about Julia Collins."

Evelyn gave me a keen glance before she replied:

"For heaven's sake, Helen, don't let anything anyone can say about that cat make you unhappy. "Cat," was Evelyn's pet name for Mrs. Collins whom she didn't like any better than I did.

"I know I shouldn't but—"

"Now see here Helen, Howard. I am ashamed of you. If Julia Collins had her way all the men in town would be at her feet, yet I don't believe that if she had the chance she would marry any of them. She just loves to be flattered, and—to show her power."

"I'm not so sure about that." Then I blurted it out, just what had made me so sore over what Mrs. Ross had said:

"George was with her until midnight last night. I accused him, and he didn't deny it."

EVELYN LAUGHS AT HELEN, AND—SYMPATHIZES

"What if he was! I'd rather Kurtz would be with her than with some namby pamby woman who expected him to make love to her, and who took every word he said as gospel truth. Julia Collins isn't that sort. She just is hail fellow with them all."

"But Evelyn! It all seems so awful! What would mother think if dad spent the evening and half the night with another woman, and left her alone?" Why no one out home ever heard of such a thing. When I was first married I thought ALL married people like mother and dad. Of course I know different now; but yet I can't get accustomed to the way men act—women too. I feel so belittled, so neglected when George leaves me alone and spends his evenings with Julia Collins. He never asks me to go to her home with him—perhaps she wouldn't let me in if he did—but he might ask me. Yet he makes me invite her whenever we have a dinner or any sort of an affair. Oh, Evelyn! I wish I knew how to manage better and"—I stopped short. I was doing just exactly what Mrs. Sexton had warned me not to do. Telling my private affairs. "I'm silly. I guess Evelyn, Mrs. Ross upset me, come on let's play a game of pool." George had recently had a pool room fitted up and I was learning to play.

"Yes, I am anxious to learn to play a good game. Kurtz is awfully fond of pool. Poor Helen, don't be silly over Julia Collins," she laughed a little, "all the same I am sorry you feel as you do. Try to forget her."

HELEN TALKS TO GEORGE.

When George asked me why I did not eat my dinner that night I said:

"I am unhappy George, and when I am, I can't eat."

"What are you so unhappy about?" he asked, not unkindly.

"Will you tell me why you spend so much time with Mrs. Collins?"

"No! I'll make no explanations of my conduct to anyone."

"That means I am to think anything I please just as others do."

"What you or others think makes no difference to me."

"What if I took the same stand with you! Suppose I went to some man's apartment and remained until after midnight and left on sitting here alone. Wouldn't you think you had a right to some explanation?"

"Don't talk foolishness."

"I am not! There is not one bit of difference in the two cases. Everyone is talking of your infatuation for her; her's for you. They think me fool for standing it; I was as much as told so to-day."

"If you stoop to listen to gossip you can always hear disagreeable things," he said coldly, never asking who had been my informant. I think his absolute indifference was more galling than anything else could have been.

"How can I refuse to listen. And George if you only knew how it hurt me, my pride, to have people say you care nothing for me, that you always have been in love with Julia Collins. It makes me feel so small, so unhappy."

"Stop talking that way. Perhaps some day you'll grow up. Until then I suppose I shall have to be patient." And he rose from the table.

"I am growing older and—wiser all the time, George," I quietly returned, growing calm as he showed anger and impatience.

"Makes a good car better"

For Piston Pins

PISTON pins receive the full force of every explosion. Unless their bearings are adequately cushioned with oil of correct body and lubricating qualities, they soon wear loose, with vibration that racks connecting rod and crankshaft bearings. Correct lubrication guards your motor against this danger.

BEWARE OF "KNOCKS"

Every "knock" in your engine is a danger signal. Knocks mean extra strain, excessive wear on moving parts. They foretell increased repairs—decreased intrinsic car value. And often the cause of these "knocks" is the use of the wrong lubricant. Don't wait for that metallic warning from a worn part before you realize that there is a great difference between lubricants. Help save your engine to-day from that possible breakdown of to-morrow by the use of

Polarine
FRICTION REDUCING MOTOR OIL

It has both body and lubricating qualities that minimize wear and friction. It flows freely at all temperatures—does not break down and run thin when your motor heats up. It lessens carbon trouble—softens vibration—keeps your car running smoothly and delivering full power day in day out.
Polarine is made in two grades—Polarine and Polarine Heavy. It is supplied in one-half, one and four gallon sealed cans, also in 12½ gallon steel kegs, barrels and half barrels.
There are also Polarine oils and greases for effective transmission and differential lubrication.
Buy Polarine where you get Premier Gasoline—at the sign of the "Red Ball."

CROWNS LOSING LUSTER.

Modern Monarchs Becoming More Ornamental Than Useful.

While European democracy continues its process of relegating to the position of spectacular ornaments its crowned heads, interest in the personalities of these picturesque individuals continues to be one of the features of the social order today, particularly on the continent.

The modern monarch has come more and more to stand merely as the symbol of the continuity of national life, the emblem of the people's distinctive nationality and sovereignty. Even if in a few scattered instances he pretends to regard himself as ruler by divine right, his people no longer look upon him as such.

Even the great Hohenzollern, William II., has recently publicly insisted that the sole stake as monarch has been and will continue to be not the glorification of his dynasty, but the welfare of the German people.

As each passes off the human stage his successor, born and reared in a more democratic atmosphere than himself, becomes more than ever the representative of his people. The rising generation of young royalties, if a republic in form does not actually prevent their reigning, will sit in the chairs of constitutional power democratic at heart.—Review of Reviews.

Popper and the Cello.

David Popper, the world's most noted violoncellist and composer for that instrument, celebrated his seventieth birthday in Budapest recently, says the Musical Courier. He is the Liszt of the cello, having saved its repertory from degenerating into trashy supersentimental morceaux and tawdry transcriptions and variation arrangements. Popper widened the scope of cello technique, ennobled its character and made a lasting place for the knee fiddle in the rank of real solo instruments. Popper teaches at the Landesaka demie in Budapest and is the musical idol of all Hungary, although he is by birth a Bohemian.

Spanish Surnames.

In addition to three or four Christian names the Spanish child bears the combined family names of his father and mother. When the surnames are doubled or connected by the y, meaning "and," the first is the more important one and the only one that may be taken alone, for it is in the father's name, while the last is in the name of the mother. In Spain they know no "senior" and "junior." Father and son may bear the same Christian name, but each takes his own mother's name as a distinction, the father being, for instance, Pedro Diaz y Castillo and the son Pedro Diaz y Blanco.

"It was I who passed the plate around!"—Judge.

They Like Fat Girls In Tunis.

A Tunisian girl has no chance of marriage unless she tips the scale at 200 pounds, and to that end she commences to fatten when she is fifteen years old. She takes medicine and eats a great deal of sweet stuff and leads a sedentary life to hasten the process. Up to fifteen she is very handsome, but at twenty what an immense, unwieldy mass of fat she becomes! She waddles, or, rather, undulates, along the street. Her costume is very picturesque, especially if she be of the richer class. She is clothed in fine silks of resplendent hues of a bright red, yellow or green and wears a sort of conical shaped headdress, from which depends a loose white drapery. Turkish trousers and dainty slippers, the heels of which barely reach the middle of the feet, complete the costume.

Missing Marks.

"I saw a stage Englishman in a play last night who didn't use the adjective 'bally.'"

"Is that so?"

"Yes. And he didn't say 'My word!' either."

"Strange. At least he wore a monocle?"

"No."

"Then how in the dence did you know he was a stage Englishman?"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

CHILDREN MUST BE PROTECTED

The children must be safeguarded, for, if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption. Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:
The premium you would pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 40 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $1,000 of insurance at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2,500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1,440 at age 21.

Besides while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable, AT ANY PRICE, at the other ages mentioned.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Successful Experiment

By GORTON CARRUTH

Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

He put his paper aside abruptly, rose and walked down the leaf-strewn path to the other bench, where the girl was sitting.

"Would you like to try an experiment?" he asked quietly, standing with hat in hand before her.

She looked at him for a moment inquiring, her expression neither inviting nor repelling.

"Perhaps," she said at length.

He sank into the seat beside her. "It is something I have often wanted to try," he said slowly. "Here are we two perfect strangers in a city of five millions, and never likely to see each other again after we leave this chance meeting place. We have sat here for half an hour, each pretending to read, or to watch the squirrels, or the falling leaves, or the misty golden sunshine out there on the field, but each examining and appraising the other when the other wasn't looking.

"Now, this is the experiment: We have each gained a strong first impression of the other. Let us, with absolutely frankness, tell each other what those impressions are. Let us do what friends cannot do—speak without reservations, made for fear of hurting each other's feelings."

She sat without speaking for a moment after he had finished, gazing thoughtfully out at the warm expanse of autumn-tinted park.

"But why?" she asked at last. "I am not sure that Burns was right. Perhaps it is just as well that we can't see ourselves as others see us."

"That," he said, "makes it an experiment. It will be a new experience. I want to know exactly how I look in the eyes of a stranger, however much the knowledge may hurt. Have you ever felt that way?"

"Yes," she said, "I have. Everyone does, I think."

"Well, I'll tell you, if you will do as much for me."

Again she hesitated and sat silently watching a gray squirrel that untroubled by self-consciousness, was busy burying a nut.

"Well," she said finally, "you first."

"The fact that I came over here and proposed this experiment to you at all shows that I thought you a sensible girl," he began slowly. "You impressed me as being neither a prude nor a dirt. You are pretty—I don't need to tell you that—but it has not spoiled you. You are rather thoughtful and studious, and you have a genuine feeling for the beauties of nature—something which too many girls just pretend to have. You are not above, I believe, taking an interest in babies and embroidery, although you know what is going on about you in the world and read something besides the woman's page in the newspapers. You don't work for your living, and your home is one of the comfortable houses in the Seventies. You see a good deal of the society side of life, but you keep healthfully busy at serious things. You are probably a suffragist in a quiet way, and you are also interested in some form of social or philanthropic work, which you do not treat as an heroically assumed duty. And—"

He was interrupted by the girl's low laughter. "Why not say that I have all the good qualities, and be done with it?" she asked. "Your impression is certainly not very accurate. Let's see if I can do better.

"You, it seems to me, have many of the excellent qualities that you are attributing to me. You are nothing of a 'sport,' but are a rather serious-minded young man, somewhat, too much given to introspection. You are not bad looking, and you impress me as having a good deal of common sense. You are about twenty-five, and you are one of our rising young professional men—an architect, perhaps, or an engineer of some sort. You read a good deal, and, when it comes to newspapers, something besides the sporting pages. You are rather domestic by nature, and you have a sense of humor. You also live in one of the better homes in the Seventies or the Eighties, and you are a confirmed New Yorker. There, how is that for a snap-shot portrait?"

He did not answer at once, and they both sat silently for a few minutes. Presently he said gloomily:

"My experiment has failed, I'm afraid."

"Of course," she assented gently. "It was bound to. It shows of how little worth a first impression is, anyway. You wondered if the defects that you see in yourself were apparent to others, and you are half disappointed that they are not, for you do not like the idea of wearing a mask. Isn't that it?"

"Yes."

"And yet you must have known, except in moments of self-depreciation that you make a favorable first impression; and I know that I do, conceited as that may sound."

"All right." He straightened up abruptly. "Then we come to the second part of this experiment. We will now tell just how badly each of us is mistaken."

"Well—" she hesitated. "We can try it, but that also is a pretty hard thing to do."

"Listen to me first," he answered, "while I tell you what a poor judge of character at first glance you are. I may have a sense of humor, but it doesn't work very well. I am gloomy pessimistic and am rapidly developing into a cronic grouch. I am not one of our rising young professional men; I am a clerk in a large mercantile house, and there hasn't been anything startling in my rise yet. I may have common sense, but it doesn't keep me from making a fool of myself about half the time. I may be domestic by nature, but that's all the good it does me. So far from living in a brown-stone house in the Eighties am I that I live in a single room down in the Twenties. I come from Michigan and am a comparative stranger in New York. I read a good deal, it is true, and you are right about the sporting page, but I don't believe that I ever had an original idea in my life. And—well, I might go on at considerable length, but how do you like the retouched portrait, so far?"

The girl was laughing at him again. "I think the portrait none the worse," said she; "especially since you are clearly in a mood for self-disparagement. Let me alter your portrait of me a little. I hope that I am sensible. I'm not a flirt, but I'm not so sure that I am not conceited. I like babies and embroidery, but I'm not interested in charitable work and I do read the woman's pages in the newspapers. I don't live in a brown-stone house in the Eighties, either, but have a room up in the One Hundred and Eighties. I earn my living by teaching a class of little Greek, Italian and Russian children down in an East Side school, and I don't move in any other society. I have a bad temper; I'm afraid my pupils suffer a good deal at times. No doubt, I am more studious than most girls but I like the movies and candy and all sorts of frivolous things very much. Now how do you like the retouching?"

"Well," he admitted gravely, "I rather think it improves the portrait; it makes it so much more human."

They fell silent again, watching the sunshine on the colored trees.

"You are quite right about one thing," said the girl presently. "I love the trees and the fields and the sky. I was brought up in the country, and I don't believe I could stand it here in these endless miles of brick and stone, if it were not for the park."

"I come here often myself," the man said. "Do you?"

"Every Sunday afternoon. I like this spot best of all; the view is so beautiful."

"So do I."

The sun had left the trees and they could see the lights of the city twinkling like brilliant stars.

"Do you know," said the man, rising, "I think my experiment is not going to be a failure, after all, though it has not resulted as I expected."

"Perhaps it won't be," answered the girl quietly.

There was a moment's pause. Then: "I will say only—good-night," he said.

"Good-night," she answered.

He turned and walked along the darkening path. As he reached the bend he broke into a cheerful whistle. The girl, smiling, walked briskly away. She was wondering what she would wear next Sunday afternoon, and he was trying to decide if it would be wise to take a box of candy with him.

Kink in the Back

You bend over and can scarcely get straightened up again. This comes on you so suddenly you can't understand it.

This is lumbago. Like backache and rheumatism, it is the result of poisons in the blood. The kidneys are deranged, but the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will soon set them right. The pains and aches will disappear with the poisons when the kidneys do their work properly.

WIZARD BURBANK'S ADVICE.

Go to the Farm, Young Man, and Your Future Is Assured.

Luther Burbank, by experience and accomplishment doubtless the best qualified man in the world today to make such a statement, says the great opportunity for our boys and young men is in agriculture. He points out that after the young man has spent eight years at hard study of medicine, the law or engineering, he has not made a success; he is only prepared to commence the battle for it. Whereas to add but one kernel of corn to each ear grown in this country in a single year would increase the supply 6,000,000 bushels. One improvement in the potato is already paying back $17,000,000 a year. Everything we eat and wear comes out of the ground. With less than half our population raising things, should there be any wonder that the cost of living has increased 58 per cent in fifteen years? To quote from Mr. Burbank:

"What the world needs urgently and now is men who can increase the forage from our present acreage, so that 16 cents will buy a pound of the choicest sirloin, as of old, instead of a pound of rump, as now.

"What the world needs is not theory or agitation or college lore. There are plenty of these, and at a cost of $180,000,000 per annum in money and who knows how much time they have succeeded in increasing our crop yield only a bare 3 per cent.

"What the world needs is men who can do to agriculture and to horticulture what Edison did to electricity, Carnegie to steel and the Vanderbilts, Hills and Harrimans to transportation—develop their efficiency." — Popular Mechanics.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

QUEEN MARIE STANDS FIRM

Will Not Bow Before Teuton Conquerors.

BRAVER THAN THE MEN

The Germans Are Finding It Very Difficult to Deal With the Heroic Queen of Roumania Who Refuses to Recognize the Terms of the Treaty as Binding.

THE signing of the treaty of peace between Germany and Roumania will be by no means the last action in the Roumanian tragedy. The announcement by German newspapers that Queen Marie would rather abdicate than reign over the country under the German peace conditions is held to be a case of the wish probably being father to the thought. The queen was largely instrumental in bringing Roumania into the war on the side of the allies and she has fought stubbornly for many months to avert peace. Even now that peace has been signed, it is predicted she will continue to be a formidable obstacle in the path of the German plans for "penetration."

In a talk with the Associated Press correspondent at Jassy the day before his departure from that city Queen Marie said:

"I shall never become reconciled to a humiliating peace with Germany—never! and I hope, indeed, I know, that I shall have the support of Americans as well as Roumanians in continuing the fight against the invader. The time is a critical one for Roumania, but we know we are right and our courage is undaunted. We have been through critical times before. We have borne great hardships and undergone great sufferings. Greater hardships and sufferings are perhaps in store, but I continue to hope. It is only a woman's hope, but I cannot abandon it."

The Wilhelmstrasse is probably considering ways and means for ridding Roumania of the queen's infantry. As a preparatory step, the German newspapers apparently have been instructed to speak of her as planning abdication. It seems safe to predict that she will never abdicate unless forced to do so, as she is known to be imbued with a deep sense of responsibility to the Roumanian people. It seems probable that the only reason why Germany has not already insisted upon the abdication of the queen is that King Ferdinand is a member of the Hohenzollern family and therefore still regarded with some degree of consideration by the German rules.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Importance of Sleep.

A very frequent cause of nervousness in many persons is loss of sleep. It gives rise to headaches and neuralgia and is mainly responsible for other distressing ailments. The man or woman whose sleep is unduly disturbed as the result of of heavy mental work, by night watching at the bedside of the sick or through irregular hours of employment should endeavor to secure a little refreshing sleep whenever possible in order to make up for the loss sustained, for not only will headaches and other ailments develop from sleeplessness, but the nervous system will soon become considerably deranged as a consequence. Be careful upon this point.

Getting Along.

"Lemme see, how old is your daughter?"

"I always have to stop and think, anyway, she must be getting on. Yesterday I heard her contemptuously refer to the youngsters at a nearby preparatory school as a parcel of little boys."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Care Required.

"Good heavens," said the impatient friend, "are you writing yet? Does it take four pages to tell her you will see her tomorrow night?"

"No," said the weary writer, "but it takes eight pages to tell her I can't."—New York Times.

CHLOROFORM IN FICTION.

It Acts in a Manner That Surprises the Medical Experts.

Every now and then stories appear about individuals and even whole households being chloroformed by enterprising burglars. A report of that kind in New York city induced the New York Herald to interview a number of experts on the subject with the result of obtaining a verdict that should effectively dispose of that sort of fiction for all time, but probably will not, as previous exposures have failed.

These medical witnesses pointed out it generally requires the undivided attention of two surgeons and several nurses to induce a willing patient to yield to the fumes. If, it is suggested, the burglars have found a more expeditious mode of administration the medical world would be glad to hear of it. Dr. James J. Walsh, an authority on anaesthesia, said that the application of a chloroform soaked cloth to a victim's nostrils would produce a burning sensation that would at once arouse the sleeper.

Dr. J. T. Gwathmey, author of a text book on anaesthesia, said bluntly that it is not possible to chloroform a grown person while asleep. Another expert said he could not see how a person could be anaesthetized without realizing the fact and instances a slight woman patient who required four attendants to hold her while being put under the influence of chloroform on the operating table.

Tales of wholesale chloroforming, either by saturated cloths or atomizers, may therefore, in view of this testimony, be relegated to the realm of the imaginary.

Seats Not Comfortable.

"I am afraid I will lose my business," remarked A. J. Merrill, manager of the Princess theater at Evansville, the other day.

"And why?" wondered an innocent listener, who was noting the full house.

"Well, you see the seats don't seem to be comfortable since the government put the tax on them."—Indianapolis News.

Children in Korea.

With their short waists and full skirts a bunch of Korean girls look like old women. Very quaint are they and very wide awake as you see them squatted on the floor at a Sunday school or church gathering. When they come in with their Bibles and hymnbooks they bow on hands and knees until their foreheads touch the floor, then adjust themselves to their inexpensive, backless floor seat, waiting in quietness and perfect patience until things start. Children are always placed at the front in these gatherings, the girls on one side of the partition which separates the sexes and the boys on the other side. They sing with a gusto and intensity that seems to lift the slanting Korean roof.—Christian Herald.

Breakfast Table Revelations.

To girls about to marry one would tender the advice that they study their intended victim at breakfast. If he is one feeding like forty, reject him as the direct descendant of Circe's herd of swine. If he is melancholy, beware of the abrupt curves of his temperament. If he is boisterous and facetious, remember that an empty drum gives the greatest reverberation and a chatterbox at 8 a. m. is as tiresome as chanticleer at 3 in the morning. By their breakfasts, my sisters, ye shall know them.—London Saturday Review.

Shell Shocked Nerves

Shattered nerves are the source of greatest suffering to many a returned soldier.

The doctor can give something to relieve physical pain but when the nervous system breaks down and you are sleepless, nervous and mentally worried, real cure only comes when the exhausted nerve cells are nourished back to health and vigor by such restorative, upbuilding treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

You Can Tell the People Who Have Iron In Their Blood—Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks

Doctor Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength of Nervous, Run-down People in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

ONE glance is enough to tell which people have iron in their blood. They are the ones that do and dare. The others are in the weakling class. Sleepless nights spent worrying over supposed ailments, constant dosing with habit-forming drugs and narcotics and useless attempts to brace up with strong coffee or other stimulants are what keep them suffering and vainly longing to be strong. Their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood, says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Without iron the blood has no power to change food into living tissue and therefore, nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. When iron is supplied it enriches the impoverished blood and gives the body greater resistance to ward off disease. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. There is nothing like good old iron to help put color in your cheeks and sound, healthy flesh on your bones. But you must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like Nuxated Iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete and prizefighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

In regard to the value of Nuxated Iron, Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says: Nuxated Iron has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves and strengthening the muscles. Dr. J. W. Armistead, Grove Hill, Ala., graduate of the University of Alabama School of Medicine, Mobile, 1883, says: "In the cases I used Nuxated Iron I have found more beneficial results than from any preparation I have ever used in 34 years' practice." Dr. R. B. Baugh, Polkville, Miss., graduate of the Memphis Hospital College, Memphis, 1902, says: "I always prescribe Nuxated Iron where a reconstructive tonic is indicated."

CUT THIS OUT

What Nuxated Iron is Made From

Sworn Statement of Composition of Its Formula

THE Board of Directors have authorized the broadest publication of the sworn statement of the composition of Nuxated Iron, so that the public may examine it for themselves and judge as to its merits.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to any one who desires such. It is as follows:

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate of a special specific standard which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorous in a state very similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons is very great, and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "NUXATED IRON" by the Due Health Laboratories, Paris, London and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

LADY'S TWO PIECE SKIRT.

Smartness is in every line of this new style two piece skirt with the cascade effect at the back. Skirts of silk promise to be very fashionable and No. 8776 shows a design which is particularly appropriate for this material. The soft cascades at each side of the box pleats are separate pieces which may be sewed on the skirt or omitted if preferred. The flat back is formed by two very wide box pleats. The rest of the skirt is pleated in shallow side pleats to the slightly raised waistline. A wide belt of the material may be worn with this skirt.

The lady's two piece skirt pattern No. 8776 is cut in five sizes—24 to 32 inches waist measure. Width at lower edge of skirt is 2 yards. As on the figure, the 26 inch size requires 5 yards 36 inch, 3⅞ yards 44 inch, or 3½ yards 54 inch material. PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JULY 17, 1918

BATTLE IS PROCEEDING FURIOUSLY ON VARIOUS SECTORS

AMERICANS DRIVE THE ENEMY BACK ACROSS THE MARNE

MAIN LINE IS INTACT

Partial Surprise Is Impossible Under Present Conditions—American Participation.

THE NET RESULT

(Ed. L. Keen, United Press Correspondent.)

Special Cable to The Examiner:

(LONDON, July 17.— One of the chief causes in the lack of success of the Germans' fifth and most ambitious drive this year, is the great improvement in the Allied intelligence work since the previous enemy effort. This is due largely to our steadily growing aerial superiority, which renders even partial surprise at this time impossible.

Not only was the general locality, but almost the exact frontage of the prospective attack long known, enabling the most effective counter preparations, among which was the massing of superior reserves without denuding the lines to the north.

In these preparations the extent of the American participation cannot be entirely revealed.

Attack Failed.

Even if the present offensive is merely checked, instead of definitely held, it must so far be considered an inglorious defeat, inasmuch as despite the lengthiest and most elaborate preparations, none of the German objectives has been achieved.

The net result has been only isolated penetrations on comparatively lightly held front positions, without even denting the main battle line—and this at the heaviest cost.

The early supposition that this drive was probably a "side show" now seems erroneous. British and French military authorities generally agree that developments show the German concentration on both sides of Rheims was too great to allow effective operations anywhere else until later.

World Happenings

Special to The Examiner:

ATHENS, July 17.—It is announced that the Spanish steamship, on which Minister Lopez De Vega was returning to Spain, has been torpedoed by a German submarine. The diplomat and his family were rescued.

AERIAL ACTIVITY.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 17.—British aviators again have attacked Offenburg, near Karlsruhe, and Thionville, near Metz, says an official statement from the Air Ministry, issued last midnight. Good bursts were observed at Offenburg and a fire followed by explosions, was started at Thionvile.

WIRE SYSTEMS.

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, July 17.—President Wilson will take over the nation's wire systems to-day or to-morrow, it is learned authoritatively.

ENEMY MACHINES DESTROYED.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 17.—British aviators shot down six enemy airplanes Monday and lost one of their own machines, the Air Ministry reported to-day. Successful bombing operations were carried out at various points.

GERMAN PRESSURE.

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, July 17.— Information obtained from prisoners shows that the object of the Austrian fleet, which steamed from Pola on June 10, was the destruction of anti-submarine barriers in the Straits of Otranto, according to a despatch from Italian headquarters to-day. The prisoners said that German pressure forced the Austrian fleet to leave the harbour.

FRENCH LOST NO GUNS IN PRESENT OFFENSIVE

Present Position of Allies Said to Be Distinctly Satisfactory—German Attacks Broke Down.

OFFICIAL REPORT

(Special to The Examiner)

LONDON, July 17. — American and French troops attacking on a four mile front south of Dormas have swept the Germans back 3,000 yards, nearly two miles bringing the enemy bridges across the river under artillery fire, it was learned from an authoritative source this afternoon.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, July 17.—The position of the Allies at the present stage of the German offensive in France is said to be distinctly satisfactory. French losses are stated to have been very small. They have lost no guns, the reports declare. Casualties sustained by the German troops in the offensive up to the present are estimated to number a hundred thousand, according to the news received in London to-day from the battle front in France.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, July 17.—(Official). — Raids carried out last night by the British in the Amiens area east of Villers Bretonneux, and in the neighbourhood of Hulluch, on a front to the north, resulted in the taking of prisoners. In the Somme and Ancre sectors to the north-east of Amiens and in the Arras region north of the Scarpe, the enemy artillery was active last night. Similar activity was displayed by the German guns in Flanders.

The statement reads:

We captured a few prisoners and machine guns during the night in a successful minor enterprise east of Villois Bretonneux. A raid attempted by the enemy in the same sector was repulsed. A few prisoners were secured also in the course of a successful raid carried out early this morning by English troops in the neighbourhood of Hulluch. Hostile artillery has been active in the Somme and Ancre sectors north of the Scarpe, north-east of Bethune and north of Bailliou.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, July 17. — (Official). — The Germans last night threw new forces into the battle on the front south of the Marne and attacked the Allied lines north of St. Agnan. The enemy succeeded in penetrating into Bourdonnerie. The battle is continuing in the woods immediately to the south of this point. On the front further to the east the French held the enemy in the southern outskirts of the Bouquieny Wood and at the village of Nesles. A powerful attack likewise was made by the Germans in the direction of Monvoisin, but they were driven from this locality by a French counter attack. On the front between the Marne and Rheims the fighing developed violently in Courtron Wood. The Germans attacked in the Vrigny region on this front, but their assault here broke down completely. Along the line to the east of Rheims the Germans delivered local attacks, notably in the Prunay region. These efforts by the enemy were fruitless. In renewed assaults upon Beaumont the enemy suffered a sanguinary repulse. The French positions throughout the region to the east of Rheims were maintained intact.

The statement reads:

South of the Marne new German forces pushed forward and attacked yesterday and last evening the heights north of St. Agnan and Lachapelle-Monthoden. The enemy succeeded in pentrating into Bourdonnarie Farm and the battle continues with violence on the slopes and woods immediately south of this point. Further east, despite very vigorous attacks, the French held the enemy in the southern outskirts of Bouquigny Wood and at the village of Nesles. The Germans likewise launched a powerful attack in the direction of Monvoisin, on the south side of the Marne, south-west of Venteuil, but were thrown back from this locality by a powerful counter attack by the French. Between the Marne and Rheims violent combats developed in Courton Wood. A German attack in the region of Vrigny broke down completely. East of Rheims German local attacks were fruitless, notably in the region of Prunay. A renew-

GERMAN AIR SHEDS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Special to The Examiner:

AMSTERDAM, July 17. —German air sheds near Nivelles, Belgium, containing 22 air planes, were destroyed by fire, believed to have been set by revolutionaries of the German army, according to advices received here to-day. Ten Belgians and two Germans have been arrested.

Nivelles is 17 miles south of Brussels.

Missing To-day Lt. Roosevelt

Son of Former President of United States Is Believed to Have Been Shot Down.

By Fred S. Ferguson—United Press.

WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE MARNE, July 14—(delayed by censor)—Lieut Quentin Roosevelt is missing today following a running fight with German airplanes, Northwest of Chateau Thierry.

Four American airmen chased a squadron of Boche planes behind the enemy lines. Roosevelt has not been heard of since. It is not definitely known whether he was shot down, or forced down and taken prisoner. If he was taken prisoner it is believed German aviators would have dropped a note announcing his capture. One machine was seen falling in flames during the battle, but one of the American aviators declared he believed it was one of the Boches. No one definitely saw Roosevelt fall, but he has been given up for lost.

Brought Down in Flames

(Special to The Examiner)

PARIS, July 17.—Paris newspapers reported today that the airplane piloted by Lt. Quentin Rosevelt, son of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, was brought down in flames during an aerial battle on the Champagne front. The report could not be confirmed.

The newpapers said he was attacked Sunday by a German squadron while returning from a patrol flight on the Chateau Thierry front. He suddenly lost control of his machine, the reports said, "having probably received a mortal wound."

Greatly Affected

NEW YORK, July 17.—Col. Theo. Roosevelt was greatly affected when the news of Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt's disappearance was given to him over the telephone early today from the New York Bureau of the United Press. He listened with no interruption after asking that great care be taken to give him the dispatch fully.

Asked if he had anything to say, He replied in a weak voice:—"Not a thing; Not a thing."

Heard Nothing.

Col. Roosevelt declared he had heard nothing from the front. The news of Lieut. Roosevelt's disappearance given him by the United Press was his first intimation that anything had occurred.

The former president had just arisen and was preparing for breakfast when called.

After the conversation over the telephone, Colonel Roosevelt quickly recovered his poise and told his friends that he would say nothing until official notice of some sort had reached him. He was expected to have something to say later in the day.

All in the Service.

Quentin's cousin, Captain Philip Roosevelt who was in the trenches saw the former fall, but did not learn his identity until later.

Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt is the youngest of Colonel Roosevelt's four sons, all of whom are in the service in France. He is 22 years old. He received his commission as a Lieutenant in the first aero squadron on July 14, 1917, having entered training at Mineola, N.Y., on May 1. He received a short course of intensive training under French instructors in France before going to the front.

Roosevelt's machine which was set on fire fell behind the German lines in full view of the American positions.

Quentin Roosevelt, in April 1917, joined the Canadian aviation corps to train for service with the American army. He was commissioned last fall and in the present spring began active service with the American air forces on the French front.

"Quentin's mother and I are very glad that he got to the front and had the chance to render some service to his country and to show the stuff that was in him before his fate befell him" the Colonel said.

Col. Roosevelt declared the death of his son would have no effect on his plans. His speech at the republican convention at Saratoga will be delivered Friday.

A Father's View.

OYSTER BAY, N.Y., July 17.—Col Roosevelt was glad today that his youngest son, Quentin, "had the chance to render some service to his country," before he was killed in a battle with German aviators in France.

INCREASING HESITANCY

The Present Drive May Be the Most Fateful For the Germans—Killing Off German Manpower.

ALLIES RESERVES INTACT

(By J. W. T. Mason—United Press).

NEW YORK, July 17.—Irresolution and timidity to an extent not hitherto shown by the Germans since the beginning of the war are now apparent in Von Hindenburg's new offensive. The increasing hesitancy of the German assaults and Von Hindenburg's failure to press even for local successes except in isolated cases strongly indicate a serious division of judgment at German headquarters. The present drive may well be the most fateful in its influence upon the German opinion at home that Von Hindenburg has ever undertaken. Von Kuehlmann has but recently been dismissed from the post of German Foreign Minister because he offended the Kaiser's War Lords by declaring peace could not be won the battlefield. Following upon this arrogant display of the power of the militarists the present offensive was ordered. It has failed, ludicrously. Von Hindenburg now finds himself in a position of deep huimiliation.

Reserves Not Needed.

Von Kuehlmann has been proven right. Germany cannot win peace on the battlefield. Nevertheless, if Von Hindenburg openly confesses his failure the thumbs of the German populace may suddenly be turned down. This bloody gladiator must still rattle his shield even though the rattle comes from fright. So the fighting is continuing, but in desultory fashion and with growing despondency. General Foch has not been compelled to call upon his reserves to stem the German rush. This all important fact is known definitely because the Germans were checked long before the Allied reserves could possibly have been transferred to the eastern side of the Marne salient. To use reserves in an advance eastward from Paris and to the Channel ports would be the biggest blunder Von Hindenburg now can commit. Thanks to American reinforcements the Allies are in a position where they can give Von Hindenburg all the time he wants to kill off the German man power.

AMERICANS CUT THEIR WAY BACK TO THEIR OWN LINES

(By Fred S. Ferguson—United Press)

WITH THE AMERICANS ON THE MARNE, July 17. — American troops having thrown the Germans across the Marne on their sector East of Chateau Thierry, are aiding the French to clear the enemy from the South bank farther to the Eastward.

Two companies of Americans (500 men) in attempting to flank a large force of retreating Germans drove forward so rapidly that they were cut off and surrounded in a wood. Called upon to surrender, their answer was a crashing volley. Before the Boches could recover from the surprise, the Doughboys rushed them with bayonets and cut their way back to the American lines with surprising few casualties.

NEW GERMAN DRIVE HAS BEEN A COSTLY FAILURE

WAS EXECUTED BY FIRING SQUAD

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 17.—M. Duval, former manager of the newspaper, "Bonnet Rouge," was executed by a firing squad early to-day. He was convicted of treason in the second "defeatist" trials growing out of the Bola Pasha intrigue.

Bolsheviki Will Sever Relations

Object to Presence of British Forces On the Murman Coast.

(Special to The Examiner)

AMSTERDAM, July 17—Premier Lenine of Russia is about to break off relations with Great Britain and other members of the Entente, because of the landing of Allied forces on the Murman Coast, according to German newspaper despatches from Moscow.

TAKEN ALARM.

London, July 17. — Reports received in Tokio state that the Bolsheviki leaders in the Irkutsk region have taken alarm at the coupe executed by the anti-Bolsheviki elements at Vladivostak and are preparing to flee towards Mongolia.

TOWN CAPTURED.

(Canadian Press.)

Pekin, July 17. — The town of Klutshevsk, in the southwestern extremity of Transbaikal region, has been occupied by the Czecho Slovak forces, following the capture of Irkutck. The Bolsheviki are reported concentrating at Verhenudinsk.

GRAND PROGRAMME FOR GIRLS' CLUB GARDEN PARTY TO-MORROW ON THE GROUNDS AT "HOLMWOOD"

The Business Girls' Club garden party at "Holmwood," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Holmes, McKellar street, on Thursday (to-morrow) afternoon and evening, should be one of the big outdoor successes of the summer. "Holmwood" is ideally located a few steps west of the Street Railway wharf at the south end of George street. Its broad and inviting lawns with their flowers and shrubs, will be the stage and setting for this lawn social, the proceeds of which will be used by the Business Girls for the comfort of the soldiers in France. They have arranged a programme so diverse that its attractions should be obvious. The following booths will be open—fancy work, ice cream, vegetables, refreshment, "Line of Mystery" and soft drinks.

At the Vegetable Booth, the girls will offer for sale the vegetables they grew this summer on their own lot, and by their own care and labour. "The Line of Mystery" is all the phrase suggests, and will doubtless be a feature.

A Fine Programme.

The programme is quite an ambitious one, including the following—Vocal solos by Miss Lynn and Mr. Asa Huycke, violin selections by Miss Laura Logan; Rose Ring dance by Misses Esme Aylmer and Edith Price.

Miss Caroline Littlefield will dance a "Russian Rhapsody," an interpretation of Russian peasant life, and also "On to Victory," an interpretation of the martial spirit of the people of France.

57th Band Will Play.

Another fine attraction will be the 57th Regimental Band, which has very kindly offered to play a programme during the evening.

Excellent arrangements have been made for dancing. A pavilion has been erected for this purpose, and a special orchestra will provide the newest music. In fact, the girls have gone to great pains in their preparations for their garden fete, and deserve the fullest co-operation of the citizens, who will find no end of interesting features on the grounds at "Holmwood" to-morrow afternoon and evening. The Street Railway management will run extra cars on the George street line for this event.

SIX PULLETS LAY 681 EGGS IN 5 MOS.

From February 15th to July 15th of this year, six 1917 barred rock pullets owned by Mr. H. A. Porter, 265 King Street, have laid 681 eggs. They have averaged five and six daily, rarely dropping down to only four, and have kept on laying seven days a week. Mr. Porter believes that this is a record for Peterborough poultrymen, and he also points out that it is a means whereby householders may save money instead of paying it out to farmers.

Many of the new coats are without a belt.

Fighting on Scattered Sections Is Violent, But the Allies Are Safely Holding.

A HOPELESS VENTURE

(United Press.)

(By John De Gandt.)

PARIS, July 17.—(11.00 a.m.)— As a whole the new German drive is a costly failure so far. The battle is continuing, but it consists only of comparatively local operations along the new fronts created by the enemy's initial rush.

Fighting on these scattered sections is violent, but latest reports indicate that the allies are safely holding. The degeneration of the German effort into a series of limited operations proves the failure of the Ludendorff style style of attack, which necessitates an immediate advance of at least eight kilometres ((five miles) to be effective. Nowhere has such an advance been accomplished. Even the allied first positions have been passed only with difficulty. The Germans balked in their original intentions, are now seeking to pinch off Rheims, while their right wing is struggling to hold its meagre gains on the table lands south of the Marne.

The enemy either must continue his apparently hopeless venture in the Champagne or must cease abruptly and begin immediate preparations for a drive elsewhere. This loss of time is affording the allies an advantage of which they are taking full measure.

The situation in the Champaigne was authoritatively pronounced "excellent" in the middle of the afternoon. The enemy is generally held everywhere it was said. More hard fighting is expected, but the general impression is that the German effort will not continue long.

FAILURE TO REGISTER BROUGHT FINE OF $180.

Woodstock, July 17.—Stephen Palmer of Norwich, was fined $180 in the police court for failing to register. He gave as his reason for not registering that in his opinion registration was only for the purpose of getting men under the M.S.A., and he "was not going to be a military man," he said. The magistrate's fine was at the rate of $10 a day for each day Palmer had not been registered, which totalled up $180. The same man was also asked to pay $10 costs on a charge of having obscene pictures in his possession.

ENTIRE SCHOOL PASSED EXAMS.

In the mid-summer examinations, the entire school at Mount Horeb, near Reaboro, passed, all making an exceptionally high total. Miss Gladys Hunter, of Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. THE NEW DRIVE.

The news from the western battle front to-day is distinctly good. While war experts have not been able to decide whether or not the present offensive is the supreme effort that has been looked for from the enemy, it is satisfactory to know that the German onslaughts has made no gains commensurate with the masses of men thrown into the struggle, or with the heavy toll of lives the allies have been taking from the enemy. To-day's reports fromParis would lead to the conclusion that the drive, which started on Monday, is not a feint, as the French War Office reports new enemy divisions in action. In spite of these reinforcements, however, the reports indicated that the French, American and Italian troops, who are holding the portion of the front under attack, are successfully meeting the desperately pushed attacks of the enemy. At one point, south of the Marne, the Germans succeeded in pushing forward their lines, but further east, Paris officially announces the complete failure of powerful onslaughts. Between the Marne and Rheims, a terrific struggle has been raging, with the honours going to the French, as one German attack broke down completely. East of Rheims, the gallant Poilus have parried every blow directed at their lines. "The French positions throughout have been maintained intact" is the cheerful report from the French commander.

All goes well so far for the allies in the enemy's fifth offensive. The German machine is far behind its schedule and must have suffered terrible losses in the past three days. The British have had no share in this week's battle.

A NATIONAL SPIRIT.

Canon Davidson, a member of the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, and former chaplain in France with the Canadian forces, is firmly convinced that the Veterans of the Great War should be in the vanguard of a movement to promote a healthy national spirit in Canada, and the members of the Peterboro branch would make no mistake in following his advice in this respect. As a first step in the campaign, Canon Davidson proposes to introduce a resolution at the Dominion Convention of the Great War Veterans, which will make it obligatory to have the chorus of "O Canada" sung before the close of all meetings of the branches throughout Canada. The originator of the suggestion believed that there should be wider use of Canada's national air; that all Canadians should be proud to sing it, and that the men who fought for Canada overseas should be particularly interested in standing up for Canada at home. In this spirit the use of "O Canada" at all meetings of the Veterans has been urged, and as Canon Davidson has been chosen as one of the local delegates to the convention, and will therefore likely have an opportunity to speak to his resolution, there is every reason to hope that the whole body of the G. W. V. A. will fall in line.

"O Canada" is not heard enough: it should in this critical time be sung at every gathering throughout the length and breadth of the land, of which we are all so proud, and the Great War Veterans would be doing a valuable missionary work if they adopted and carried out the resolution which Canon Davidson will introduce before the coming convention.

GEN. WATSON'S TRIBUTE.

Many Peterborough soldiers know Major General Sir David Watson, K. C.B., C.M.G., commanding officer of the 4th Canadian Division. Major General Watson, then Lieut.-Colonel Watson, commanded the 2nd Battalion at Ypres, during the gas attack of April, 1915, when so many brave lads from this city made the supreme sacrifice. Since that immortal stand of the Canadians he has made rapid progress in the army and has earned many laurels by his work in command of the 4th division. He has been at the front ever since the Canadians went to France and, therefore, should be thoroughly well qualified to speak authoritatively of the conditions there. The letter that he has sent to his own newspaper, the Quebec Chronicle, dealing with the charges made by the Provincial G.W.V.A. against the war work of the Y.M.C.A., is, therefore, of prime interest and importance in view of the fact that Major General Watson is well known here personally, and by reputation, and that his long service at the front enables him to study the situation at first hand.

Sir David writes as follows:

Having been over here now going on four years, and having been almost continuously associated in the forward areas during that period, I am, I consider, in a position more or less to gve an unbiassed and intelligent opinion concerning the matter,and further consider I would not be doing my honourable duty if I were to allow such statements to pass by without comment.

Whether or not the Y.M.C.A. charge dearer prices than others for the goods that they sell to the men is beyond my knowledge, but I do take exception to the statement that "they are four-flushers and hypocrites, that they give very little away, and that they are doing work in the newspapers only." These statements are absolutely false. The Y.M.C.A. over here is doing a most noble work, and it is common knowledge that our Canadian Association is continuously carrying out its duties in a quiet, unpretentious manner, while at the same time giving the greatest possible benefit to the men in that part of the area in which we may be located.

The officers in charge of the associatino in this division are absolutely, undoubtedly possessed with one ambition, and that to give our men in the trenches and in the lines of communication the fullest benefit of their services, and they do this without stint, and without regard not only to their personal concerns, but also in many instances to their personal safety. Their stations are located well forward into the lines, and at all hours of the day or night they are prepared to give every material assistance to the men, either those in the line, working parties, or other details who may be in that particular sector.

Nothing is heard of this work, carried out quietly and unostentatiously, and there is no such thing as "parading their good works" in the newspapere," such as they have been charged with at this convention.

These officers enter into the games and sports of the men with the greatest vigour and spirit. They encourage these healthy exercises, and not only do they encourage them by their presence but they assist them in every way possible in providing material for these games, without any cost whatever to the men. This I believe they have been able to do, not only through the generous contributions of the people of Canada, but through the profit they make on the articles sold in their small canteens.

They further provide cinema shows, theatricals and other forms of entertainment without any charge whatever, and I am speaking with knowledge that they are always ready to assist their good work in anything which I suggest to them in the interests of the men in this division.

There is no such thing as parading any of their good works, and I, as well as every officer and man of this division, and I am sure I speak almost for the whole Canadian Corps, am proud of the work that is being carried out by the Canadian Y.M.C.A.

A COURAGEOUS ACTION

The following editorial from the London Advertizer refers to Rev. R. G. Peever, former pastor of George St. Methodist Church and will be read with interest by his many friends here. Says the Advertizer:

Most of us were born to our creeds and our politics. If we were all as broad-minded and as much in quest of the truth as we profess to be, we would accept no label of church or party simply because it was affixed to us at the time of birth. Before accepting or rejecting the claims of this or that belief we would probe deeply for the hidden gem of understanding and we would go our way with sublime faith in our reasoned judgment. But we are all of us imperfect, intemperate creatures. In this comparatively enlightened age, when the deed is more and more demanded for the word, we are content if we can fix in our minds certain fundamental rules of conduct. We accept the broad chart of Christianity for our life journey in one respect, as when that broad chart is opposed to heathenism in any form or to heresy or disbelief. Yet in our subdivisions of belief we are often more bitter and intemperate toward one another than we would be toward the unspeakable Turk.

This by way of pointing to the remarkable letter which appeared in The Advertiser from the pen of Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of the First Methodist Church, in which he took up the cudgels to defend his Catholic fellow-citizens from an attack which he believed to be unwarranted, and which on the word of Protestants for whom he could vouch was proven to be a product of malice and bigoted opposition. Mr. Peever's letter was remarkable not because of the virtue of defended needs to be praised, but because simple moral courage is worthy of commendation. When a Methodist minister speaks out from knowledge to discourage the circulation of what he believes to be a slander against a Catholic, we believe that he brings men and women closer together, and if Christianity does not aim toward wordly as well as heavenly amity, it aims at nothing. Truth is the vital thing to give coinage. Truth standing unafraid to expose evil is quite as fine a figure as Truth acting as the defender. When Truth wins a battle the world advances, for Truth removes the scales from the eyes of humanity! Who would grope along in the dark lights of ignorance or go with parched soul when Truth is a sparkling fountain shedding light and welling forth with life-giving waters. We are not so much concerned what Mr. Peever dealt with, the so-called "Blood Oath of the Knights of Columbus," as that he gave Truth as he found it to those who were in search of Truth. It was the principle behind the action that counted. The action of a Catholic priest in taking the witness stand against some slander on Methodism would be quite as inspiring.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The German leaders will have a hard time convincing the survivors of the German troops who tackled the Americans on the Marne on Monday, that the Sammies are poorly trained, and cannot fight.

The German shock troops show signs of being overtrained. The Hindenburg-Ludendorff machine seems to have gone stale.

The Canadian editors who witnessed a test of gas masks in England were probably impressed with the practicability of using a similar apparatus in reporting the debates of the House of Commons.

Another sign of victory for the allies: Ludendorff has widened his tombstone.

"We penetrated into parts of French positions," was the best news the German war office could produce in summing up the effect of Monday's offensive.

The Americans don't know how to fight, according to the German press. The evidence of the German soldiers who ran into the stonewall defence on the Marne will make it difficult for the enemy editors to prove their case.

Haiti has declared war on Germany —making the twenty-second country to enter the struggle against the Huns. The Kaiser should soon be able to appreciate the fact that somehow or other he and his people are not very popular in the world.

Captain B. A. Magrath, son of the Dominion Fuel Controller, paid an official visit to Belleville and as a result the price of coal was dropped $1 per ton. Will Capt. Magrath please include Peterboro in his itinerary.

The U-boats are wasting some of our food. Don't be a U-boat advises the Canada Food Board.

"Soldiers like to get books," says a newspaper heading. Pay-books, especially.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

IS IN HIS ELEMENT, TOO.

(Detroit News.)

Scientists have discovered a fish so transparent you can see through it. The poor fish who has to write Germany's diplomatic notes belongs to the same species.

CAN'T FLAP THEIR WINGS YET.

(London Daily Chronicle.)

But we may yet live to see an aeroplane that really "flies." An American has invented a very small machine with movable "wings," which he calls a fly-plane. It has been tested and approved by the U. S. Government, and if the flyplane jutsifies expectation, it may shortly make its appearance in the war area, a real Bird o' Freedom.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

(Westminster Gazette.)

Put out of your mind altogether the notion that this policy of a league of nations is merely sentimental pacifism. It is on the contrary, a sternly fighting creed. It calls for the allegiance of all men of liberal and humane ideas, and will brace them as nothing else to the horrors and trials of the last stage of this struggle. The defeat of Prussian militarism is the road to the League of Nations, and that is what we meant when we proclaimed it to be our main object at the beginning of the war.

SANDBAGGING A KING.

(London Daily Express.)

King Charles lost his head by the axe in 1649; we are now sandbagging him to save his life. He perished on the scaffold; now he is in process of being preserved by one. His bronze replica in Trafalgar Square is to be rendered immune from shell splinters and bombs by the usual unattractive but effective safeguards. Although King Charles—the statue—was once in a cellar at Islington, it was not because of air raids—it was due to the persistent attentions of Cromwell's Roundheads. He remained there till the Restoration bugles sounded the "All clear." Now Charles will sit proudly in the square protected with an infinity of sandbags that will hedge a king.

OTTAWA WOMAN SUFFERED 30 YEARS

Mrs. Bond Tells of Wonderful Improvement After Taking Tanlac

"I never thought I would let my name be used in a testimonial but Tanlac has done me so much good that I feel it my duty to tell others about it," said Mrs. Mary Bond of 42 Daly Avenue, Ottawa, in an interview recently. Mrs. Bond has been a resident of Ottawa for thirty-five years and her statement will be read with interest by hundreds of people who know and respect her.

"I have suffered almost continually," she continued, "with my stomach for thirty years and had almost dispaired of ever getting any better. Everything I would eat caused me to suffer agony. Almost immediately after eating my pain would begin. There was a gnawing sensation in the pit of my stomach and sometimes my suffering was almost beyond endurance. Many a time I sat down at the table and actually cried because I could not eat. Just as soon as I looked at the food I would turn sick and have to leave the table. I was troubled a great deal by the gas pressing on my heart, and for the past year now I have been unable to rebetter. I have taken five bottles now. Even sweet milk disagreed with me. I never dared to eat meats or any of the more nourishing foods on account of the misery they caused me and had to live mostly on dry toast and other very light things. I would have attacks of vomiting that would completely exhaust me and my suffering especially during the past ten years, just can't be described.

"I had very little idea that Tanlac would help me, just thought it was like everything else I had tried, but I had been taking it only a few days until I found it was making me feel better. I have taken fixe bottles now and am beginning to feel like a new person. My appetite is good and my stomach is so much better that I can eat most anything without it hurting me. I never have any pain or indigestion now after meals and I haven't had a spell of vomiting since I began taking Tanlac. I sat down the other day and ate a big, nice piece of steak without it hurting me a particle and anyone can imagine how good I felt after having lived on such scanty diet for so long. Before I began on Tanlac I felt too weak and bad to dress and go out anywhere, but I am so much stronger now tha tI can get around fine and my housework is a pleastime. I have nothing but praise for and I don't feel exhausted all the time. I have nothing but promise for Tanlac and I will gladly tell anyone personally just what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Supreme Court Will Hear First Application To-morrow

The Government is Not Apprehensive of the Habeas Corpus Proceedings—May Cause a Delay.

WAR MEASURE ACT

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, July 17.—Counsel are busy at the capital preparing for the important reference to the Supreme Court to-morrow of the Grey habeas corpus application. W. N. Tilley, K.C., is here, and, in conjunction with Deputy Minister of Justice Newcombe, is busy sounding the case for the Crown, while F. H. Chrysler, K.C., of Ottawa, who is associated with C. C. Robinson, K.C., of Toronto, is preparing the case for Grey, the applicant. Grey's affidavit has already been filed. R. B. Bennet, K.C., has not yet arrived from Calgary. The Government counsel and the justice authorities were in conference until midnight last night, and will be busy again to-day. The Government is not apprehensive of the habeas corpus and of the controversy. What it is interested in is the validity of the Order-in-Council. Habeas corpus applications can at the worst but delay the Crown in the carrying out of the regulations, but should the Order-in-Council be held valid, reasons for refusing such application can readily be submitted. Should the Order be declared invalid on the other hand, the Government is at once deprived of a defence of such applications. The Government will base its case largely upon the powers conferred upon the executive by the War Measures Act, which powers, it is specifically provided, shall not be detracted from by the Military Service Act. The latter measure, in any case, though it provides for exceptions, does not specify exemptions. These are provided for in the regulations which emanated from the Act, and such regulations, it is contended, can be amended at any time by the Order-in-Council.

Lost Her Hand From Wound By a Needle

The many friends of Miss Doris Warren will regret to learn that her hand had to be amputated yesterday. About eight months ago it was pierced by a needle while she was at work, and in spite of long attention, it had to be removed yesterday, the operation being performed at the Nicholls Hospital.

City Clerk's Discovery of the Limitation of the Activities Of Aldermen Arouses Interest

City Clerk Armstrong's discovery that members of a City Council are restricted from accepting other civic appointments has created considerable interest up and down the province. The broadening of the Municipal Act to include all offices and commissions within the appointment of the Municipal Council was apparently generally unknown, and the city clerks' discovery has caused a flurry in more than one civic household.

The Toronto Star last night referred to the amendment of the Municipal Act as follows, indicating that even in Toronto where the legislation first saw the light, but was immediately and effectively obscured:

There was a good deal of discussion at the City Hall to-day over some one's discovery that an amendment to the Municipal Act would affect aldermen who were members of the Board of Health, the Exhibition Board and other outside bodies. It applies to members holding dual positions and may compel Ald. Cowan and Nesbitt to resign from the Health Board. The clause read:

"To remove doubts that the words 'officer, employe or servant in clause 'e' of subsection 1 of section 53 of this Act shall be deemed to include a commissioner or member of any commission or other body appointed by the Council of a municipal corporation and except where otherwise expressly provided no such commissioner or member shall be eligible to be elected to the Council or be entitled to vote thereon."

Further on this is added: "This shall have effect notwithstanding that the appointment of any such commission or other body is authorized by special Act of the Legislature."

The Mayor is a Hydro Commissioner and a Harbour Commissioner. He is all right in the first position, because the Act specially appoints him, but his status on the Harbour Board is doubtful. There also seems to be little difference of opinion but that Controller Maguire is out of court as a member of the Social Service Commission.

Confusion Exists Everywhere.

G. H. Duncan, the Mayor of Peterthe Municipal Act must be enforced the Municipal Act must be enofrced and that Ald. Joseph Saunders and Ald. William Langford of that city must either resign from either the City Council or the Local Board of Health, and that Ald. John Edgar must either resign from the City Council or relinquish his honourary office as Fuel Commissioner.

It is pointed out, however, that the amendment states that the words, "Officer, employe or servant. . . . shall be deemed to include a commissioner or a member of any commission or other body, appointed by the Council of a municipal corporation."

"I believe that the amendment only refers to a case where the Council appoints a whole body," stated a prominent lawyer.

Another lawyer points out that as the comma comes after the word "body," it is apparent that the words which follow the comma refer to individuals who are appointed to Council and therefore the members who sit on these bodies may be ineligible for Council.

The City Solicitor's Department has no comment to make regarding the Act and no opinion will likely be passed until they are officially asked to make one.

Toronto Members Surprised.

Members of Council were astounded at the interpretation put on the subsection by the amendment. One of the first questions they asked is, "Will Works Commissioner Harris have to resign as a Fuel Controller?" Then, "That must affect Commissioner Bradshaw sitting on the Arbitration Board."

There seems to be little doubt that the Works Commissioner must relinquish his post as administrator of the fuel situation. He is evidently a dual capacity under the Act, and he is a "servant" of the municipal corporation. Civic officials approached again in connection with the Bradshaw appointment declined to attempt any analysis of his case. "It would seem so silly to refuse the right to a municipality to have one of its ablest servants assist in settling an industrial dispute," said one official, "yet on the face of it it would seem that he is ineligible."

The uncovering of this clause would have been credited to City Clerk Armstrong when it was first reported, but it was upon his own request that the source of the information was passed over. To those who know his exact and careful methods, his custom of scrutinizing all enactments pertaining to civic affairs has already been noticed on more than one occasion. All the amendments to the statutes are submitted to a microscopic search for alterations that affect the Council or any of the city's commissions or departments. This is only incidental to the Armstrong idea of thoroughness, a system at the city hall which the ratepayers rarely perceive, although its results are apparent in the accomplished work.

T. A. LOW, EX-M.P., OFFERS SITE FOR RENFREW HOSPITAL

RENFREW, July 17.—Mr. E. J. Stewart, solicitor, on behalf of Mr. T. A. Low, ex-M.P., appeared before the Victoria hospital board at the monthly meeting to present that body a proposal of a handsome donation in the shape of one of the best sites in the town of Renfrew for the purpose of erecting thereupon an up-to-date hospital. Further, Mr. Stewart explained that it was the intention of the donor of the site to ask for a committee to be appointed which will visit certain towns and cities of this province with a view of obtaining the information which would lead to the construction of a thoroughly modern hospital, and further, that he, Mr. Low would be prepared to pay the expenses of that committee and also pay the architect's expenses for plans and specifications as agreed upon.

Increase Given Lindsay Firemen

LINDSAY, July 17.—At the special meeting of the Town Council, the members of the local fire brigade were given an increase. They now receive $100 per year each. Chief Beadle was given an increase of $50, and a similar increase was given to the member who sleeps in the fire hall, provided he becomes qualified to drive the fire truck.

It was pointed out that the Oshawa firemen receive $80 per year with an additional $20 to those who sleep in the fire hall. In Orillia a grant of $300 is made quarterly. This amount is divided among the firemen by mutual arrangement. In Barrie the firemen are given $2 each for each fire they attend. If the fire lasts longer than four hours they are given an additional 50 cents per hour. The fire chief receives $150.

PETERBORO WILL BE REPRESENTED AT MASONIC MEETING

The delegates from Peterboro who left to-day to attend the Grand Lodge A.F. & A.M. meeting in Windsor are Most Worshipful Brother W. J. F. Allen, D.D.G.M., Rt. Wor. Brother H. Rush, Peterboro lodge; Wor. Bro. E. B. Fowler, Royal Arthur lodge; and Wor. Bro. W. G. Morrow, Corinthian lodge.

SMALL STORES need advertising as well as large ones. If the small dealer fears that his little ad. will be lost in a newspaper carrying large ads., he should be reminded if this were true, it would follow that his little store located in a city with large stores, would also be lost.

THE A.S.C., IN THE RETREAT

By CANADIAN OVERSEAS.

As approximately three-fourths of the army is behind the lines waiting on the wants and needs of the front line army, a retreat involves the moving of an army behind an army.

For every man who uses a rifle or artillery there are three or four others stretching away rearwards to attend upon his needs. When the actual fighting men have to retreat the great danger is that the men behind may become disorganized.

In a great retreat the enemy seeks to isolate the troops immediately in front of him by cutting off all communications in their rear. He pounds roads miles back with heavy artillery, especially at intersections of roads and railheads. The "contact" must be maintained, consequently the drivers, whether horse transport or motor lorries, have to go through a hail storm of projectiles and once they have gone through they must turn back and risk it again. All munitions for men and guns are moved this way. As the front line moves back the transport has to reorganize into order, no matter how great the rush or how thick the shells.

The traffic is all controlled. One stream of waggons passes forward keeping to its proper side of the road. While the backward moving stream flows along the other. Guns go up and down the same way. Also the ambulance. The "traffic control" stands on enemy cross roads, and what he says is law. He has to stick to his task no matter how hot it becomes, and immediately he is put out another takes his place.

Road-making, too, forms a large part of the operation, whether the troops are advancing or retreating. The army must have roads and plenty of them. Motor lorries cannot go over ploughed fields, consequently the steam roller and the labour battalions and railway battalions are everywhere. No blocks must occur whether the army is advancing or retreating and consequently nothing is left to chance.

An advancing force always forms big dumps or depots of various war supplies close behind it. These must be moved with the greatest ease and rapidity possible and this work is left to the A.S.C. men. In a retreat much has to be destroyed, but the Army Service Corps work to the last and they make sure that what is left is of no value to the enemy.

There is no question about it — more sugar must be saved by individuals in their homes.

Candy manufacturers have had their sugar allowance cut by 50 per cent. Bakers and cake and biscuit manufacturers have all had restrictions laid upon them. Limitations have been placed on private holdings of sugar.

These measures have been as effective as was expected. But more is asked of the individual in the way of voluntary denial.

That is to say—let us be sparing in the use of the sugar bowl. We want all we can get for the canning season. It will help if we stop taking sugar in tea and coffee or at least confine ourselves to one level teaspoonful. It will also help if we cut in half our customary allowance on fruit, cereals and desserts. Ordinarily we use far more sugar than we need and thereby lose much of the flavour of our food. It will not hurt any of us to do with less.

Tangled Politics In Warring Europe

Despite Rumania's conclusion of ace with the German alliance, fol- ing her second betrayal at the de of Russia when the Bolshevist ies collapsed last Fall, her con- on and future continue to excite siderable interest in enemy coun- .

By the terms of the treaty a moun- nous strip along Rumania's north- frontier, together with a corner territory at the extreme western of the country, was annexed to ngary; and the Dobrudja, the ip along the Black Sea coast, was en over to the Central Powers to disposed of at their pleasure. To Bulgarians, who had played a ge part in the defeat of Rumania Dobrudja seemed to be a legiti- te part of their plunder. A small ip along its southern border had n taken away from them by the manians in 1913, and Bulgarian perialists expected not only to re- n this, but the whole of the Dob- ja, with the valuable port of Con- nza, although both Turks and eks are more numerous in the pulation than either Bulgars or Ru- nians. But immediately upon the clusion of peace Turkish news- ers began to make a demand for Dobrudja, basing their arguments rily on the ground of the character the population and partly on the ory that, as the Constantinople anin" put it, "The Turk of today aks and feels as a European. Ac- dingly he intends also to have the ht of a European." This claim used a tremendous storm in the lgarian press, and for a time the sion between Bulgaria and Turkey s quite marked. Eventually it was rted by a pressure from Ger- ny and Austria, but Bulgarian in- nation was so great that Premier dolavoff was forced to resign.

While the northern part of the Do- ja is still under joint control of four allies, Bulgaria got the south- part, but not without certain cessions. According to a Buda- st report, the form of the transac- n was that the Dobrudja was re- rded as the prize of the whole alli- e, and consequently Germany, stria-Hungary, Turkey, and Bul- ria divided it in proportion to the mber of troops each had contibuted the Rumanian war. The other three wers, however, promptly ceded ir portions of the southern part of e territory to Bulgaria for certain nsiderations. In the case of Ger- ny and Austria-Hungary these re of an economic nature, pertain- g chiefly to control of the Bulgar- n railroads. But Turkey demanded d received—at least according to e last reported state of the negot- iations—territorial compensation. Bul- garia ceded back to her a strip of ter- ritory near Adrianople, which Turkey had given up to Bulgaria at the time the latter nation joined the German- Austrian-Turkish alliance in 1915.

Meanwhile Germany and Austria had intended to placate Rumania by allowing her to annex Bessarabia as compensation. This, the most south- westerly Government of Russia, had belonged to Rumania, with few and short exceptions, up to the Congress of Berlin in 1878, when it was taken by Russia. Most of the population is Rumanian, though there are consid- erable minorities of Jews and Ukrain- ians, with small Bulgarian, German, Greek and Turkish settlements along the coast. Through Bessarabia the Bolsheviki had directed an attack on Rumania last winter, but this broke down, and when Rumania completed the annexation of the district this Spring it seems to have been in har- mony with the wishes of the majority of the population. But this "compen- sation" or "aggrandizement" of Ru- mania dissatisfied the imperialists among her enemies. The Echo de Bul- garie, semi-official organ of the Bul- garian Government, put in a claim to part of Bessarabia for Bulgaria on the ground of the Bulgarian colony there; observing at the same time that to allow Rumania 'to get out of the war with an enormous increase of territory would be a reward of treason and a great discouragement to loyalty and fidelity."

Similar views were expressed in Pan German circles, as, for example by a writer in the Berlin Tagliche Rundschau, who declared that the Ru- manians were not at all more favor ably disposed toward the Germans in spite of the lesson which had been taught to them, and that any appar- ent concessions to Germany that might be made were only to get rid of the German troops and officials still in the country. "Even now," he wrote, "while the occupation is still in force, demobilized Rumanian of- ficers returned from the Moldavion front are greeted in the streets of Bucharest with tumultuous enthus- iasm. Quite openly, people speak of the provisional character of this peace, so long as England and France are still fighting. It is frankly admit- ted that there was no other way to get rid of the German occupation than to make a peace which would leave the way once more open for Ru- mania to strengthen herself both at home and abroad."

Meanwhile, it appears that there were attempts to bring about a rap- prochement beteen Bulgaria and Ru- mania. Such a drawing together of two deadly enemies one of whom has just been defeated and lost much ter- ritory to the other, seems difficult enough to accomplish; but there is evidence that certain circles in Bul- garia and Austria-Hungary were trying to bring it about. King Ferdin- and of Rumania, a member of the non-Prussian branch of the House of Hohenzollern, has apparently come around to the German side to some extent in the last few months, despite the influence of his English Queen, who is a determined supporter of the allied cause. This shift in position has been ascribed to the recently pub- lished letter which the Emperor Charles of Austria wrote him in Feb- ruary, which contained the observa- tion that "We kings must stand to- gether" against the dangerous trend toward democracy.

Ferdinand's change of front, how- ever, does not seem to have affected his people, but has seriously jeopar- dized his own standing. The letter of the Austrian Emperor was given to The Associated Press by a Rumanian statesmen, apparently the representa- tive of a group dissatisfied with the King; and there is strong ground for the assertion that among the Ruman- ian peope, stung by defeat and loss of territory, the King is at present under deep suspicion, while the Queen is more popular than ever.

As for Radoslavoffs part in the at- tempt to draw Rumania and Bulgaria together ,it seems to have begun when he realized that Bulgaria was not go- ing to get all the territory she wanted and might as well make the best of it. His paper, the Narodni Parva, observ- ed when the Dobrudja was finally distributed: "Rumania ought to be grateful not only for the great mag- nanimity of Bulgaria, but also for the sincere desire of Bulgaria to live peace fully with her. And the Echo de Bul- garie added: "If we consider the mil- itary situation in which Rumania found herself through the peace made by Russia, the most conspicuous thing is the moderation of the conditions which we have imposed. The Ruman- ian desire for expansion into the Balkans, stimulated by the possession of the Dobrudja, is cut off, and noth- ing irreconcilable will divide the two neighbors in future. There is no evidence as to how this Teutonic piece of reasoning was received in Ru- mania, but the scheme seems to have been wrecked by Bulgarian dissatis- faction with the settlement, which forced Radoslavoff out of office and apparently will give the post of Premi- er to Alexander Malinoff, who has been a vigorous critic of Radoslavoffs yielding to Turkish and German pres- sure.

There is a shortage of food every- where in the Dual Monarchy, less se- rious in Hungary itself, and rather naturally most serious among the sub- ject peoples whom the Austro-Hunga- rian Government is trying to keep un- der by systematic underfeeding. Still more is this the case in the occupied districts of Serbia and Montenegro. A Serbian leader recently remarked that no doubt his nation would be restored by the victory of the Allies, but that it was a question whether there would be any Serbs left by the time that vic- tory was won. In Montenegro, accord- ing to a semi-official Austro-Hungar- ian publication, the deaths from starv ation now number 200 a day—and this in a country whose population before the war numbered not much more than 400,000. Mountainous and barren Montenegro was never able to pro- duce all the food needed by its popula tion, and this condition has been ag- gravated since the Austrians overran the country by the requisitioning of all the cattle and much of the annual crop by the Austrian Government. Last year the crops were exceptional- ly poor, and the extreme shortage of food produced an effect all the great- er because of the almost entire lack of physicians in the country.

SOME ILLS AND THEIR CURES.

The insect world is at its busiest these days in the war garden and it is important that the pests be given attention just as soon as they appear. Delay in spraying or removal may prove fatal.

The following table may help the war gardener to make the best of his beet crop:

Leaf Spots—(Red and purple spots, turning ash gray).
Remedy—Spray with Bordeaux, mixture when plants are 3 to 4 inches high, repeating two and four weeks later.
Web Worm —(Eats the leaves.)
Remedy—Spray with arsenate of lead when worms appear; re- peat when necessary.
Spinach aphis —(Sucks sap from leaves).
Remedy —Spray with nicotine sulphate when pests appear and repeat when necessary.
Beet-root aphis— (Sucks sap from roots).
Remedy—Pour a small amount of nicotine sulphate spray around roots and repeat if ne- cessary.

Cheese Board Adjourns for Five Weeks Because Fixed Price Makes Routine Sales

The Cheese Board adjourned this morning for five weeks after selling 1,743 boxes at 22 1-4 cents. The decis- ion practically to dispense with many of the regular meetings for the rest of the season followed the intimation made by secretary, Mr. E. Hawthorne that at the next meeting he would move an adjournment for the rest of the season. Apparently his suggestion was intended to open a discussion of the cond tions under which the Board has been operating this year. With the fixing of prices by the Govern- ment's commission, there has been almost no variation in the price paid the factories, and the salesman concluded that they were simply wast ing their time and money attending the sales when they and the buyers knew before hand that there was no price latitude as in the old days.

Two weeks ago only one price was offered, 22 1-4 cents; it ruled again this morning, and has been almost the only quotation throughout the season.

The fixed price for cheese on board boat at Montreal is 23 cents. Out of this sum must be taken freight, in- surance and commission charges, which seldom vary. Hence the maxi- mum price the buyers could quote is approximately 22 1-4 cents, and the factory salesmen have felt that the buyers divided up the cheese in order that each could share in the commis- sion.

Mr. Hawthorne touched upon these facts in his remarks, but Mr. W. S. Cook advised that meetings be held at least monthly as is done in Wood- stock and other dairy towns in the west end of the province.

Mr. Hawthorne—We have no objec- tions to the buyers diving the cheese but we might as well apply the pres- ent price to future sales and dispense with meetings for a time. Of course we must keep the Board together.

Mr. Gillespie—Mr. Kerr and others agreed that the fortnightly meetings were unnecessary just now. Mr. Kerr moved seconded by Mr. Hawthorne that the Board adjourn for five weeks. The cheese made during the last half of July will be bought at 22 1-4 cents, and the usual shipping ar- rangements will be followed.

TO-DAY'S SALE

This morning's bidding was all over in a flash. Mr. Robert Duff, the chair- man, hadn't finished calling for offer- ings, when the five buyers, as with one voice, shouted out "22 1-4 for the board." The decision was given in favor of Mr. Tommy Thompson who had probably beaten the other bid- ders by an eyelash. It was the only price they had to offer, at least it was the top price, and with perfect precis- ion of attack, as the musicians might say, the quintette swung in togeth- er as a chorus with strange effect in the staid routine of the board.

The factories boarded their cheese as follows:

BEAUTIES OF THE LINDSAY WATER TRIP

'A feature of the lake trip to Lindsay on Monday, the 22nd July, is the Stoney Lakes, steaming through the magnificent summer scenery to be seen in eight of the lovely Kawartha Lakes. Still another is the call at Bobcaygeon and other points; the summer resorts, fishing haunts and other attractions. The sail always proves interesting. Extravagant pleas- ures are not to be encouraged in war time; but there is real economy in taking this kind of a trip if only that helps to keep ones efficiency above par. One dollar and twenty-five cents is all the tickets costs for the round trip—the sail to Lindsay and the rail trip home same evening via G.T.R.

Lakefield Pupils Were Successful

Results of County High Schoo Examinations.

LAKEFIELD, July 17.—The results of the County High School Entrance examinations have come out and Lakefield has as usual, made a splen- did record, Miss Duff is to be congrac ulated on the standing of her pupils. Though the county prize did not fali to the lot of any of the Lakefield class, Eva McIlmoyl was just 11 marks behind Charlie Doupe, the win- ner. The third and fourth places were also occupied by Lakefield pupils, Frank Erskine and Leonard Hayward.

The following Lakefield pupils took honors: Gordon Barrett, Frank Er- skine, Leonard Hayward, Eudora Junkin, Elsie Kidd, Fieda McIlmoyl, Eva McIlmoyl, Janet Quinn and Mina Young.

The following passed:— Malcolm Allen, Vera Bottrell, Helen Burgess, Helen Bygott, Ora Dunford, Jean Erskine, Willie Harvey, Eva Hill, Beatrice Johnston, Grattan Kemp, Sam Sherise, and Mollie Thomson.

To fry fish properly they should be put into boiling not fat.

DARKNESS WOUND UP TWILIGHT LEAGUE GAME

Riversides and DeLaval Play Ten Innings to a 5-5 Tie—Conquerors of the Thistles Came Close to Repeating the Dose for Manager Solomon's and Bad Base Running in the Ninth Spoiled Their Chance to Win.

The De Laval teams, who spilled the beans for the Thistles in unexpected fashion on Saturday, came near repeating the dose for the benefit of the Riversides in a Twilight League game at Riverside Park last night. The boys from the south end factory did not win the decision, but they held Riversides to a 5-5 tie in a ten innings battle and the teams will have to meet again to decide the issue, as it was too dark to continue after the tenth last night.

When De Laval went to bat in their half of the ninth, with the score 5 to 2 against them, the game looked on ice for Manager Solomon's outfit, but two hits, sandwiched in with three passed balls by Phelan, and a fumble by McCarney, gave them three runs and tied the score. They might have won out then and there, but Fitzgerald with only one out, tore for home on a pop fly, and an easy double play resulted.

Neither team scored until the fourth. With two out in Riversides' half, Connors shot the first hit of the game over third and took second on Legon's wild throw to the infield. Guerin lifted a fly to right centre, which Nellist dropped, the error being an excusable one, as Fitzgerald collided with him. Connors romped home on the play and Guerin went to second. Murray's single to right scored Guerin, and Fitzgerald's wild peg to first, and Taylor's equally bad heave to second, sent Murray around to third. He died there, however, when Cook fanned.

In the fifth the Riversides added another. Kirn opened with a single down the third base line and went to second, after Taylor had nailed Sheehy's foul fly. Taking advantage of the opening meant a run, for McCarney's smash down the first base line was too hot for McDonald to handle, and Kirn scored from second.

De Laval got their first counter in their half of the fifth. MacDonald opened with a single and went to second on Frost's out to Guerin. Fitzgerald hit to Sheehy, who threw wild to first, and MacDonald scored. Fitzgerald going to second. English sacrificed him to third, but Nellist died on a roller to the pitcher.

Riversides added two more to their run column in the sixth. With two out, Guerin singled through short and Murray followed with his second hit of the night, sending Guerin to third. Murray stole second. Cook pasted a single to left, scoring Guerin and Murray. Legon's perfect throw had Murray beat, but Taylor dropped the ball in tagging the runner. Lebarr ended the innings by striking out.

De Laval closed the gap a little by chasing a run over in the seventh. Taylor opened with a bounder over McCarney's head, but was forced at second by MacDonald. Frost hoisted one to McCarney, but Fitzgerald singled through short and MacDonald came home, aided by Connors' wild heave to third. English fanned for the third out.

Riversides lost a great chance in the eighth when they filled the bases with one out, but could not score, Phelan being thrown out at the plate on Cook's tap to English, and Lebarr fanning.

De Laval's big session came in the ninth. After Sharp had fanned, Taylor also missed three, but Phelan lost the third one and the runner was safe. He stole second and went to third on McDonald's roller to McCarney, which the latter fumbled. MacDonald stole second. A passed ball sent Taylor home and MacDonald to third. Frost came through with a single to score MacDonald, and Fitzgerald's safety sent Frost to third. One of Kirn's shoots got away from Phelan, and Frost galloped in with the tying run, while Fitzgerald reached third. English lifted a fly to Sheehy and Fitzgerald, who had started for home, was an easy out, retiring the side.

Neither team scored in the tenth and the game had to be called.

While it was not the best played battle of the season it was undoubtedly the most exciting, especially in the ninth. The fielding feature was supplied by Sheehy, Riverside's shortstop, who made a beautiful play on MacDonald's fast roller in the second. The box score:

RED FISHER A GOOD TARGET

The Toronto Globe says:—There is so much to Catcher "Red" Fisher of the Leafs—six feet four inches of height and over 200 pounds on the hoof—that if there is anything coming his way he has difficulty in moving soon enough and far enough to evade it.

In the first inning of the second game at the Island Stadium yesterday he was hit on the "Adam's apple" by a foul ball which bounded up from the plate. The big boy rolled his eyes, and although obviously in great pain endeavored pluckily to shake it off. He was unable to continue, however, and was taken out in favor of Howley.

It is recalled that while catching for Hamilton in the Canadian League against Peterboro' at the latter city on May 29, 1913, he was hit flush on the jaw by a pitched ball and knocked out as cleanly as ever was any boxer. Half a dozen fellow-players loaded him into an ambulance and he was taken to the team's hotel, where he recovered slowly. The pitcher who hit him was a big Swede named Knute Belting of Decatur, Ill. Two doctors were in attendance on Fisher for several hours, and it was feared that he might not recover. They say that he has been plate-shy ever since, but he was not half as scared as was Belting, who lost his nerve and control for several weeks.

NO COAL FAMINE SAYS OFFICIAL

Supply is Uncertain, But Last Year's Receipts Will Be Basis of Supply

"There never was such a demand for coal at the present time," said Fuel Administrator Harris, when asked why dealers were refusing orders even for delivery in sixty or ninety days.

"People are ordering their whole winter supply," he continued, "and the dealers cannot deliver it all immediately, or even promise delivery because all over the United States and Canada the supply is uncertain."

Mr. Harris intimated that the situation was one that could not be overcome, although Government officials were doing their best. Yesterday the Canadian Fuel Controller, Mr. C. A. Magrath, was in Washington attending an important conference on the situation.

Asked if it were true that Canadian cities and towns would only get coal on the basis of the amount consumed during the winter of 1916-17, he said that all Canadian places would receive coal on that basis, as that was all the United States would give, and that amount would be reduced by 6.59 per cent. In regard to the Toronto Hunt and other clubs receiving supplies while householders could not, Mr. Harris said that these clubs were not stocking up but merely getting their regular supply. They were not obliged to close last year, but had to observe the heatless days.

Harris Makes Statement.

As Ontario Fuel Administrator, Mr. Harris issued the following statement:

"At the present time there is no justification for the statement that Toronto householders face a serious coal famine. The uel Administrators of the United States and Canada are co-operating, and dealers are doing their best to provide an adequate supply of coal. We are entirely dependent on the United States in central Canada, and the Fuel Administrator of the United States is treating Canada as if it were a State of the Union, and giving us every consideration with their own people. We owe a lasting debt to the United States Fuel Administration, who appreciate the rigorous Canadian climate and the difficulties of winter transportation and all the obstacles which the Canadian Administration has to surmount, and with this in view they are co-operating to the utmost to insure the people of Canada receiving like treatment with the people of the United States.

Wood Form the North.

"On April 19, after my return from Ottawa, I issued a public statement through the press to the people of Ontario, advising them of the conference with Mr. Neal, representing the United States Administration, advising of the necessity of fuel conservation during the present coal year. I stated that people should not expect to heat their house to a comfortable degree, but should be content to so heat several rooms only. Sir William Hearst also urged the people of the Province to observe economy in coal consumption, and wherever possible to bend every effort to provide a substitute for coal. To this end the Government had advised the municipalities of Ontario that they may cut wood in Algonquin Park against next winter's needs. A comparatively few municipalities have availed themselves of this provision. The Fuel Administration of Canada is alive to the situation in a greater degree than anyone else in the Dominion, and is straining every effort to cope with the situation."

Conditions Bad in U. S. A.

A large Toronto coal importer, who just returned from the mines last week, speaking to a representative of The Globe last night, said: "Conditions are bad all over the United States, as well as Canada. New York is having the greatest difficulty in getting coal, and other parts of the United States are trying to locate a coal supply. Many of the younger miners have entered the army, or taken other positions, with the result that many of the miners this year are older men, without the energy and vim of the men who have left the coal fields."

The statement that coal is being held on tracks around Toronto, he said, was ridiculous. Mimico is a "break-up" yard, into which trains of coal are brought for consignment to various Ontario points both in the north, northeast and east. To a person passing along in a train or motor, the number of cars might seem large, but as a matter of fact there were very few cars of coal "running" from the mines to Ontario.

"We have had calls from the north, northeast and south, from Aurora, Gravenhurst, Parry Sound, Belleville, Stratford, Newmarket and other points and have been unable to sell them coal," he said.

"In most of these places it is also difficult to get wood, and when I was in Buffalo last week I was told that we should be cutting a great deal more wood than we are in Canada to meet the fuel situation."

Must Conserve Fuel.

Mr. H. A. Harrington, Secretary of the Coal Section of the Retail Merchants' Association, has just returned from the United States, where he has arranged for a further supply of coal. He expressed great appreciation of the way in which the United States was treating Canada, as though she were a State of the Union, but pointed out that this winter, it would be necessary to conserve fuel to a marked degree.

Situation Not Alarming.

"There is no doubt that the situation is serious, but not alarmingly so, and any effort to stir the people up on the matter is misdirected," said Mr. N. C. Marshall, of the Standard Fuel Company, yesterday.

"The reason that people are unable to secure coal at present is owing to the fact that we received orders in March, April and May, which are just being filled now," said Mr. Marshall.

"A large number of people gave us money for coal, subject to the time when we could deliver it, and they must be supplied first. We expect to get caught up by the first of August, but in the meantime we are compelled to accept very few orders."

German Advance.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, July 17.—German forces advanced three miles down the Marne Valley yesterday. This makes a total penetration of the French line of about six miles at Festigny, the most southerly point reached by the invaders.

Battle Continues.

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, July 17.—The battle is proceeding furiously on various sectors along the whole 50-mile battle front in the Champagne, the War Office reports to-day. The fighting is particularly violent south of the Marne, where Americans, after clearing their own sector of the Germans, are aiding the French to their right.

German Casualties.

LONDON, July 17.—German casualties in the new drive have reached nearly 100,000, according to authoritative estimates made here to-day. The Germans delivered five severe attacks on the 16 mile front between the Suippe Valley and Main De Massiges yesterday evening, but were repulsed with the heaviest losses, it was learned to-day from an authoritative source to-day. The French and Americans lost no guns and their casualties were extremely light. The German claims of 13,000 prisoners is declared to be grossly exaggerated.

Prisoners Are Discouraged.

Special to The Examiner:

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, July 17.—German prisoners taken in the Champagne fighting are fatigued and discouraged at the failure of their new drive. Some blame their officers for lack of success. The commander of one battalion, a former professor, harranged his subalterns and under officers at great length in a tirade against the professional officers of the army, declaring they remained in the rear and sent the citizen officers to their death, according to the prisoners.

German Attacks Fail.

Canadian Press:

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, July 17.—Forty-eight hours have sufficed for the holding of the German masses launched in the Crown Prince's great offensive on Monday. Enemy units which were turned back from the direction of Paris and are endeavouring to ascend the Marne are being held in check by French troops. The position of the German columns which had gained a footing on the south bank of the Marne has become perilous, while to the east of Rheims German efforts to advance have each time been foiled.

"Situation Good."

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 17.—(12.30 p.m.).—The situation on the Champagne front was authoritatively declared at this hour to be still good; if anything, even more satisfactory than last night."

WHY RIVERS OVERFLOW.

Some Streams Make Their Beds Too Small For Flood Tides.

"A river is not made to order. It is nothing more nor less than the accidental path made by water in following the line of least resistance," writes Arthur E. Morgan in an article on "Why Rivers Overflow," published in the Scientific American. Mr. Morgan goes on to show that the average river has found or made a channel that suffices for it in ordinary times, but that in flood tide is not large enough to carry off the water. Some of the figures he gives explain perfectly why certain rivers are in the habit of overflowing.

The Coldwater river, where it enters the flat lands from the hills in northern Mississippi, has a capacity of 900 cubic feet per second when full to the top of its banks. At maximum flood, however, 100,000 cubic feet per second pour down it, and it has to overflow.

The St. Francis river on the boundary between Arkansas and Missouri can take care of from 500 to 5,000 cubic feet per second, but in flood time it has 160,000, and the surplus must overflow. The Miami river in Ohio has a normal capacity, varying at different points from 6 per cent to 5 per cent of its maximum overflow. The Mississippi, near the mouth of the Red river, has a normal flow of 200,000 cubic feet a second; when full to the top of its banks it can carry about 1,000,000 cubic feet. When all its tributaries are in flood it has to carry 2,500,000 cubic feet a second. As its banks are higher than the surrounding plains, these inevitably receive the overflow.

We are always striving for things forbidden and coveting those denied us.—Ovid.

After Working Hard For a Few Years For the Girl's Father He Finally Wins Her In a Public Chase, In Which He Gets His Skin Well Tanned.

It gets too hot for the Siberian only once in a lifetime. The native Koryak of Kamchatka, far up in the peninsula that is washed by the Bering sea, can sleep comfortably in a room four feet high with six by eight feet of floor space and have a fire smoking near all night while the doors are tightly closed, and then does not object if three others share his apartment with him. Tomorrow he will have chance enough to breathe more cold, fresh air than he cares for. His picture of the happy hereafter is a snug, cozy place where every cell of his body can perpetually enjoy warmth and where neither ears, fingers nor toes shall be frozen.

Once in his life, however, things get a little hotter than he can honestly enjoy, and that once he cannot escape if he is to be a man of importance in the community, for it is his marriage ceremony. As soon as the youth falls in love in dead earnest he calls on the maiden's father to find out what dowry she can bring in case of eventual marriage. Since reindeer is the Koryak's medium of exchange, the dowry usually consists of reindeer. If the father consents to the engagement and the dowry pleases the young man he interviews the girl, and if she reciprocates his affection he enters her father's service. Chopping wood, tending the herds, cultivating the garden and all other kinds of farm work fall to his share. The period of service lasts from two to three years.

The marriage ceremony begins about 6 in the evening. There is a building in the village into which the villagers crowd at twilight. A large hall runs through the center of the building on either side of which are from ten to fifteen little rooms called pologs. Each polog is separated from the next by heavy reindeer curtains, and the entrance from each polog into the hall is closed by similar curtains. Nowhere in all that building except in the hall could a good sized man stand upright.

After considerable eating and some drinking a brass drum begins to beat. At the same time a solemn faced Koryak passes from one polog to another, dropping willow sprouts and alder branches in each inclosure. Presently the beater of the drum begins to sing, to accompany his slow performance on the drum. Gradually he accelerates his beats and his song. Faster and faster he smites his drum; louder and louder he sings, until within thirty minutes he has worked himself into a state of frenzy—a consummation that is not without its effect upon the villagers. The stolid calm with which they entered, suggestive of an impending funeral, gives place to smiles, to tossings of the head, until by and by the whole crowd is as excited as its leader.

At this point, the front curtain of each polog goes up, and two or three women appear inside. In their hands are willow sprouts and alder branches. In a moment the father of the bridegroom enters the building, leading the happy couple by the hand. The noise, the shouting and the whirling now become indescribable. At a signal from the groom's father the bride dashes into the first polog to the right. The women that are within lift the curtain for her, and she passes quickly from one compartment to the next.

Not so with the groom. He dashes after her, but no sooner has he entered the first polog than the women begin to beat him with the willow sprouts and alder branches. He seizes the curtain to enter the next polog, but one or two women hold it down, and if he finally succeeds there is a hot application of branches on that part of his anatomy that remains longest within the polog.

Meanwhile the women in the next polog are ready to receive him with equal warmth. They ply the switches energetically and do not hesitate to thrust out a foot also in order that the "happy groom" may stumble and afford a more enduring target for their blows.

There is no escape from this experience until the groom has entered and passed through every one of those twenty or thirty pologs. The front curtains are raised, so that the public has a clear chance to enjoy the spectacle.

Of course he never catches the bride. She has reached the last polog before he is halfway through. If she passes out of the last polog he must work another year at her father's house and pass through the same ordeal once more. But she usually awaits him in the last polog, and when they meet there the wedding ceremony is finished—and they are man and wife.—Youth's Companion.

Over the Telephone.

"Is this Mr. Jones?"

"It is."

"This is the Getemquick hospital. A woman who was taken ill on the street has been brought here and we think she is your wife."

"Does she say so?"

"No. The patient is unable to talk."

"Then it is not Mrs. Jones. Try somebody else."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A CURIOUS EXPLOSIVE.

More Powerful Than Guncotton, Yet Safe In Careless Hands.

One of the new high explosives is so mild under ordinary conditions that it is perfectly safe and entirely practical to make billiard balls of it and play a game with them. It can safely be compressed to a greater degree than any other explosive now in use, so blocks of it can be compressed hard enough for billiard balls. A compressed block can then be sawed into smaller blocks, using a steel handsaw. The small blocks may then be placed on a lathe and turned until perfectly round balls have been made.

On the billiard table any ordinary knocks will not rouse the latent power of the explosive. If a careless player happened to drop a lighted match on one of the balls after lighting his cigarette it might catch fire, when it would burn rather slowly. Yet it is much more powerful than guncotton and, unlike guncotton, it does not deteriorate. Rifle bullets have been fired into a block of it at a distance of about sixty-five feet without causing it to explode. Explosion is obtained by using a special form of detonator. The new explosive is made largely from coal tar derivatives treated with other chemicals.—Saturday Evening Post.

Keeping Children Still In School.

Sir John Cockburn, speaking to teachers at the London Day Training college, said speech was called into function by the movement of the hand.

"If you want to reach the brain you must do it through the hand, and if you disregard the use of the eyes and hands in education you are placing the brake on all mental development of the child. The command to 'keep still' in a school is the greatest cruelty you can possibly impose on children, for to make children keep still for any length of time very often produces deformity."

HOW PIONEERS MADE CHANGE

Silver Dollars Were Quartered and "Sharp Shins" Were Result—Pelts Once Currency.

We of today, with half-dollars, quarter-dollars, dimes, nickels and pennies, often find it difficult to "make change." Still more difficult was it for the early settlers to do so, Martha G. Purcell writes in "Stories of Old Kentucky."

As the Indians used wampum, so the pioneers of Kentucky used the skins of wild animals as their first currency. While immigrants continued to come to this region, Spanish silver dollars came gradually into circulation. Still there was no small change.

As "necessity is the mother of invention," our forefathers actually made change by cutting the dollar into four equal parts, each worth 25 cents. These were again divided, each part worth 12½ cents, called bits. People sometimes became careless in the work of making change, and often cut the dollar into five "quarters" or into ten "eighths." On account of the wedge shape of these pieces of cut money, they were called "sharp shins."

If change was needed for a smaller sum than 12½ cents, merchants gave pins, needles, writing paper and such things.

This cut silver gradually found its way back to the mint for recoinage, usually to the loss of the last owner. As late as 1806, a business house in Philadelphia received 100 pounds of cut silver, brought on by a Kentucky merchant, which was sent on a dray to the United States mint for recoinage.

REGISTRATION IN WEST PETERBORO IS COMPLIMENTED

Most Complete and in Better Form Than From Any Other Part of Canada.

Referring to the work of the registration, now just completed in the West Riding of Peterborough, the Superintendent, Mr. J. H. Godfrey, of Toronto, writes as follows to Mr. F. H. Dobbin, the Registrar:—

"Last night I saw M. C. M. Murray, one of the members of the Canada Registration Board, at Ottawa. He tells me that your report of registration is the most complete and in better form than any report received from any part of Canada."

The Secetary of the Registration Board, writing from Ottawa, is so good as to remark:—

"I wish to thank you for your very excellent report. At the time of its receipt, it was the most comprehensive report of all those that had come to hand. This is especially pleasing in view of the fact that at the time of your appointment (from some quarter) there was very decided opposition. I have placed your report before the chairman, who stated that he wished it to submit to the Council to show the work that was done by you."

The Registrar is most pleased to acknowledge the compliment, and says that the completeness of the report was facilitated by the fine work done by the organized staff of Deputies and Assistant Deputies throughout the Riding, who loyally took hold and made the work the success it has proved to be. The Registrar is further pleased to add that in the outlying section up in the townships of Galway and Cavendish, where one might at least expect that there would be some misconception of the requirements of the registration, that so earnestly and faithfully did those in the work endeavor to carry out the instructional provisions, that the work in those townships was absolutely perfect and without flaw. The returns balanced up exactly in every particular. This is most creditable. Largely, in other sections the same happy completeness prevailed, due to the thorough organization and to the same spirit of helpfulness and desire to do a share of a great patriotic work. The outcome proves that when the government wishes the people as a whole to do something to help themselves they can be relied on to do it.

"NO POLITICAL CRISIS."

(New York World.)

"Von Kuehlmann's resignation is not to be taken seriously, as indicating an unusual political crisis in Germany. No hidden or formidable meaning attaches to it. One puppet goes out, another puppet goes in, and the General Staff continues its plans for another offensive on the western front. There will be no political crisis in Germany worthy of the name until it is made by the German people themselves, and however eagerly we may look forward to it, there are no signs of its approach."

Mother's Car.

Father got a good streak on him this spring and bought mother a car. Poor mother! She was so moved at his generosity, that she leaned over on his shoulder and cried. Father said he'd teach mother to run the car, just as soon as he could get around to it. In the meantime, he ran it himself. Sister Sue, who already knew how to run a car, took it out frequently for the benefit of her friends, and brother Ben ran it a good deal. The car's been run about 3,000 miles. The first tires are getting thin, and the spick and span newness is wearing off the varnish, but mother hasn't yet had her first lesson at running her car.

Girls are illogical because they are too fond of begging the question.

Any man who boasts of having small feet has the same kind of brain.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 73 cars, with 653 cattle, 166 calves, 1,881 hogs, and 664 sheep.

There was a little more life to the trade yesterday, and the light offering of cattle was cleaned up at good steady prices, with a shade firmer feeling. Several lots of fair, choice butcher cattle sold from $13.75 to $14.25. The medium and common stuff averaged just about steady at this week's prices.

Calves were just a little firmer, the choicest selling at $17.

Lambs were easier, and 50c. to 75c. lower than Monday's market. Sheep steady.

Hogs are firmer, yesterday's receipts selling 25c. higher, except those at contract.

FARMERS BENEFIT AS RESULT OF THE CO-OPERATION SALES

Splendid Success Marks the Handling of the Wool Graded to Guelph—Opposition to Extension of Time for Use of Grade Stallions.

THE SHEEP-BREEDERS MEET

GUELPH, July 18.—The 38 representatives of the Agricultural Department from the majority of the counties of Old Ontario who are in annual convention here spent a busy session in attendance at lectures on soil fertility by Professor R. Harcourt of the O. A. C., drainage problems by H. Scott, of the College Drainage Department, and later visited the Winter Fair building, where they witnessed a demonstration of the work of receiving weighing and grading of wool sent in by farmers from all parts of the province. The amount of wool received for co-operation grading and sale has this year totalled 700,000 pounds to date, and consignments are still arriving, though the busiest part of the season is over. The main part of the clip has been sold to Canadian mills at prices that average 10 cents higher for all grades than was received last year for the wool graded and sold at Guelph.

Dr. G. C. Creelman, president of the Ontario Agricultural College and Commissioner of Agriculture for the province, acted as chairman at the meeting following the luncheon provided by the Ontario Sheep Breeders' Association, at which the agricultural district representatives were guests. He congratulated the sheep breeders on the success of their undertaking in co-operative wool-growing and complimented the officers in charge of the work on their faithful attention to the interests of the consignors, paying particular tribute to R. W. Wade, secretary of the Sheep Breeders' Association who is largely responsible for the success of the work.

John Newstead, Mayor of Guelph, welcomed the guests and members of the Sheep Breeders' Association present.

Dr. Creelman, in introducing the Hon. G. S. Henry, said that he was glad to be able to say that in the new Minister of Agriculture we have a man with a training in agriculture who cannot be equalled by any other in the province.

Advantages of Co-operation.

The Minister of Agriculture spoke particularly to the district representatives, whom he met yesterday as a body for the first time. He promised to be present at a session of their conference at the O.A.C. later in the week, when he would make it his business to get closely in touch with representatives and their work. He said that the work of co-operative gathering of wool is an example of what opportunities are possible for the farmers in disposing of their products, comparing the prices obtained at the co-operative sales with those paid to individual sellers of wool. He foretold a great future for co-operation, and added that the district representatives should make it their business to encourage co-operative selling. We know that our farmers of today are business men, and as high figures exist now for products of the farmer we can look with confidence to big production, in spite of the short age of labor and big expenses entailed in producing. He referred to the new dog law, which so favorably affects sheep breeders, as an evidence of the up-to-date legislation passed by the Ontario Government and pointed out that in addition to arranging for the interest of the farmers by such means, the Government is always prepared to lend active aid to any scheme for the advancement of agriculture through educational channels.

Mr. James Douglas, of Caledonia, president of the Ontario Sheep Breeders' Association, among other speakers, paid high tribute to the efforts of R. W. Wade, and gave the following account of the week accomplished. This season 3,450 growers have shipped their wool to Guelph for grading and sale, only one county of the province being unrepresented. Up to date 700,000 pounds of wool have been received Mr. Douglas expressed regret that of the amount received about 35,000 lbs., of the wool had been consigned to the rejected class owing, he said, to the presence of burrs, chaff and dirt in the fleece. This situation, he said, was improving year by year. He suggested to the district representation that they further improve the condition of the wool clip by informing the farmers in their districts of the exact requirements of the purchasers of wool for manufacture.

Horse Breeders Meet.

Following the sheep-breeders' meeting a conference of representatives of the Ontario Horse-Breeders' Association, stallion enrolment board and agricultural representatives was held to discuss the matter of the distribution of pure-bred stallions in the province. Wm. Smith, M.P., president of the Ontario Horse-Breeders' Association, presided and informed the district representatives that the association had decided to be present to meet them on the invitation of Secretary R. W. Wade, who had suggested that great benefit to the horse industry might result from the efforts of the representatives in encouraging the breeding of good horses in their several districts. This matter was discussed at length by the representatives and members of the Horse-Breeders Association. C. F. Bailey pointed out that from the secretary's figures it could be seen that about 600 grade stallions will exist in the province next year when the law against their use comes into effect. It would be unfortunate to antagonize the owners of these stallions, he said, and he expressed the hope that the district representatives would do all in their power to bring about the substitution of pure breds for these grades. It has been suggested to gather a number of pure-bred stallions at Ottawa or elsewhere for sale to stallion owners. Mr. Bailey suggested the encouragemen of horse-breeders' clubs. Good heavy horses are hard to get at present, he said, and the situation is largely due to the fact that the farmers are careless in their selection of a stallion. Nothing would be of greater benefit to a county district than the institution of a club for the purchase of a pure-bred stallion.

One Man Creates a Lot Of Excitement at Omemee

Arouses the Whole Neighbourhood In an Effort to Get a Few Cows Out of the Grain—Omemee News of Interest.

Great excitement was caused in this vicinity early last Sunday morning by what was thought to be the cries for help of a drowning man which seemed to come from the direction of Green Landing. One of our citizens north of the village heard cries and immediately ran towards the house and sent in an alarm to the telephone office where central called to Mr. Percy Parsons, who is an expert oarsman to go to the rescue.

A number of other citizens awakened by the shouting, ran down to render any possible assistance, even the village doctor was ready with the necessary equipment to revive the victim. After searching for some length of time and making inquiries of all who are accustomed to go up and down the river, and finding no trace of an accident the party was reluctant to give up the search. However after much wonder and anxiety the searchers were relieved to find that the excitement was all caused by a man with great lung power calling for help to get his cattle out of his grain.

LIFE WHAT WE MAKE IT

CHAPTER CXXXI.

More than ever, was I anxious to please my husband — to gain that poise and command of myself he considered so necessary. My little affair with Merton Gray had shown me, perhaps more plainly than anything else probably could, that I loved my husband too well to be happy with anyone else, or happy if I were merely away from him. Yet I knew I never should be really content and happy until he ceased finding fault with me, or, rather, until I had made myself over so that there would be no room for criticism.

I was not very well; that, too, made it harder to bear his caustic remarks. Recalling Julia Collins' talk on the piazza of the Narragansett Hotel, I had said nothing to George, but had gone to a doctor without letting him know my errand. What he told me frightened me. I was to become a mother. I burst into tears in his office, and he had all he could do to quiet me.

"Don't be frightened, you have some months yet before anything will happen," he told me, and I blurted out:

"I'm not frightened for myself, and I adore children. But my husband won't"—then I stopped. I had almost made this physician my confidant. Almost let him see that my fear of having children was my fear that by doing so I should lose my husband.

"He'll be fond of them, all right, when they are his own," the doctor gruffly answered. Then he patted my shoulder kindly. "You are nervous and upset. I'll give you something to steady you. Don't worry, stay out doors as much as possible, and—try not to get foolish notions into that little head."

Was ever a woman so distressed? I wondered, as I walked slowly home. I loved babies, longed for one of my own. But I loved my husband dearly, and would rather be childless forever than to lose his love—even the little I supposed belonged to me.

I stopped at the druggist's and had the prescription filled, then walked slowly home. I had thought of stopping to see Evelyn, but the thought of her happiness with my little namesake made me change my mind and go directly home.

I felt as if this were another new path I must walk; that it was going to be hard and stony. I felt convinced. But I would have to do my best.

Sorrow Tempered With Joy.

I wondered if I should tell George what the doctor had told me. I decided I would not. I would keep it to myself as long as possible. Then, in the midst of my fear, came a thrill of joy at the thought that I was to have a child of my own—a thrill that remained with me for hours. I should now make dainty, lovely things for my own baby as well as for Evelyn's.

I would not tell even Evelyn. I would keep my secret from everyone as long as I could.

As it came time for George to come home to dinner, the thought of what Julia Collins had said again was uppermost in my mind. George WAS fastidious to an extreme. He was most particular as to my looks; he always had said he admired my girlish slenderness and that it was the reason my clothes looked so well on me. All that it would mean to have him feel ashamed of me, rushed over me and I threw myself on the bed in a perfect agony of dread, all my joy gone in the thought that I should lose my husband's love.

Added Fear.

Then, too, came another thought. George went out a great deal without me now, went where other women were — women he had known and admired before he knew me. Now he would go all the more, probably; and he would also have an excuse not to take me even occasionally. I saw months of loneliness before me, months of neglect greater than ever yet had been my portion.

I did not cry. George would be cross if I did. But I sobbed my misery in dry tearless sobs that exhausted me. When I looked at myself in the glass I was shocked. Hurriedly I bathed and dressed, making myself as attractive as possible in a gown George had chosen for me. Then I rouged my cheeks, and just touched my lips with red. I must keep looking well as long as I could. Yet, in spite of all my preparations, I looked haggard and almost ill and Celeste begged me not to try to go down to dinner.

"Madame, please rest. You will be ill," she said as I sank back in my chair with a sigh, after she had dressed my hair.

"No, I shall dine with Mr. Howard."

"Madame is worried. She should not be; she is young —beautiful — has a lovely home."

"I know, Celeste," I replied wearily, too tired to rebuke her.

To-morrow—George Is Annoyed.

An Appeal to Vanity.

A Mussulman general gained a victory over the Greeks and captured their leader. Having summoned the prisoner into his tent, he asked him what treatment he expected from his conqueror. "If you make war like a king," replied the Greek, "release me; if you make it like a trader, sell me; if you make it like a butcher, slaughter me." The Mussulman general set him free.

Abram-man.

It was at one time the practice to allow the inmates of the Abraham ward of Bethlehem hospital, London, to go about begging for the benefit of the hospital. Certain vagrants imposed on the charitably inclined by pretending to be actual inmates and were therefore known as Abram-men; hence the term Abram-man, one who obtains money by shamming sickness.—London Express.

PRISONERS ARE TORTURED.

More Authentic Cases of German Atrocities.

The London Times gives prominence to further authenticated atrocities, systematic tortures and cold-blooded murders of British prisoners in Germany, in which the sum total of the evidence is incredibly inhuman.

There is the instance of the British soldier at Minden who was deliberately shot dead because a dozen Britishers did not want to draw the ration of filthy undrinkable wash served as coffee.

At Merseberg a number of seriously wounded and wholly unfit British soldiers were, after vain protests, forced to work 12 hours a day. Soon this did not satisfy the Germans, who ordered the British to commence at four in the morning. The men refused, but after brutal blows, all except two gave in. Sentries, with kicks and blows, drove the two recalcitrants over to the work. One of these British soldiers held up a badly wounded hand to show the sentries he was unfit for work. He was thereupon shot dead and the body thrown inside a dirty washhouse. A German officer on a visit of inspection shook hands with the murderer. The body was buried the following day in the presence of a crowd of jeering Germans.

At Schneidmuesl the British prisoners, without huts, had to live in holes in the ground, which the prisoners themselves scooped out. One morning at bread parade, a sentry gave an order to one of the Britishers which was not understood. The sentry rushed at the prisoner and struck him, the latter thereupon going to his hole in the ground. German officers then ordered that an example be made of this British prisoner, although he had committed no offence. He was captured and stripped to the waist and tied up to a barrel. Six Germans with thick wooden staves, which are used for holding up barbed wire, beat the prisoner for ten minutes over the head and bare back and the body of the prisoner, who was swooning, was tied up to a post and left there. Subsequently a German officer came up and struck the prisoner with his sword and spat at him, calling him "English swine." The British prisoner never recovered, a few weeks later dying, and neutral representatives visiting the camp were informed that his death was from typhus.

At Langensalza Camp 300 wounded British soldiers arrived in the nighttime and were herded into a large hut without bedding or blankets. By the next morning five had died. The remainder were taken out and left in the sun for three hours, when seven more died. Subsequently through neglect and ill-treatment 50 succumbed. The funerals at this camp for the summer of 1917 to the spring of 1918 were the grossest scandal and the details in the evidence are too revolting for publication.

"Literary Style."

A high school student writes this office inquiring what constitutes a "literary style." Without trying to answer this interesting and difficult question two remarks may be cited that throw light on it.

When Charles James Fox was told that his speech read well he retorted "Then it was a bad speech." "When one of my congregation would tell me at the end of a service that the sermon was fine," Dr. Lyman Abbott has said, "I knew I had made a failure."

In general the style is good when it fits the thought so well that the style itself does not attract attention. As soon as you begin to be conscious of the style—unless of course you are reading with that end in view—you may be pretty sure it's bad style. Style is something like clothes or furniture. The well dressed man is the man whose clothes do not attract attention. The well furnished room is the one you go out of satisfied, but unable to describe the furniture.—Kansas City Star.

Short and Sharp Justice.

It was short and sharp justice that was meted out to the communists in the Paris of the seventies. Sir William Butler in "An Autobiography" tells of a visit to the prison of La Roquette. "We were shown into a small court yard by a young naval lieutenant, who coolly explained to us the processes of the trial and execution of the communists. 'We strip their right shoulders,' he said. 'If the skin of the neck and shoulders shows the dark mark produced by the kick of the chassepot rifle the court pronounces the single word "classe;" if there is no mark of discoloration on the shoulder the president says "passe" and the man is released. Those to whom "classe" is said are shot. One hundred and fifty were shot at daybreak this morning in this courtyard.'"

Folks' Good Opinion.

Few persons do not value the good opinion of others. Pulling down the character of some one else is not the way to build up your own; the ruin of another does not mean your building up. There are some who appear to think another's possessions something taken from themselves. This is a mistake. To point out an error in another's character it is not to prove a corresponding virtue in one's own. Let your chief aim be to make yourself worthy of the good opinion of others. Belittling them is a plain acknowledgment of a conscious fault of your own. The way to win the good opinion of others is to be worthy of it. If you are you will not need to call attention to it.—Milwaukee Journal.

Racket or Raquette.

When you use the racket in playing tennis you do not stop to think what it means and how difficult it has been to trace the word. Some thought that it was so called because of the noise made by the ball striking it, but this is impossible. The real origin is from the French raquette, the palm of the hand, which was originally used in the game before the racket was invented. It's all very simple when you know.—Exchange.

Cured by Suggestion.

"And you say that Jorkins was cured of an extremely bad case of insomnia by suggestion?"

"Yes, purely by suggestion. His wife suggested that since he could not sleep he might as well sit up and amuse the baby. It worked like a charm."

All Through.

"Your friend appears to think that life has nothing more to teach him."

"Yes; he seems to imagine he is the only living alumnus of the school of experience."—Seattle Post Intelligencer.

MILLIONS ON LAKE'S BED.

Project to Drain Colombian Lake Has Been Abandoned.

For hundreds of years the belief has prevailed that gold dust and gems to the value of £1,120,000,000 lie buried at the bottom of the sacred lake of Guatavita, in Columbia, a territory once occupied by Indian tribes renowned for their fabulous wealth.

The aboriginal Indians of that locality had a custom of casting all their vessels and ornaments of precious metal into the waters of the lake as offerings to their gods, and the knowledge of this custom led to the belief that has been handed down through the ages that it was the burying place of fabulous wealth.

For centuries, almost ever since America was first discovered, travellers and explorers have engaged in various expeditions in search of this territory, and many unsuccessful attempts have been made to drain the lake. The Spaniards were just on the point of succeeding after years of hard work spent upon it, but when they were half way through the sides fell in, and years of work were wasted.

In 1900 an English company undertook the work. They proceeded to drain it by digging a tunnel through the adjacent mountains, bringing it below the level of the surface of the water. The lake was not emptied until 1903, but it kept refilling on account of the heavy rains and the presence of springs. A certain number of jewels and ornaments found in the mud of the lake bed seemed to indicate that the search for the hidden treasure was to prove successful. Then the mud dried hard and fresh difficulty was thus encountered. After an outlay of some £15,000 it has been decided to abandon the hunt. It remains to be seen whether anyone else will take up the search. —Tit-Bits.

Mastery of the Air.

We remember how when in our youth the first steam traction engine was brought into a certain rural district, the local farmers said that it would never be able to move itself, and when it did move itself, they declared that it would never be able to ascend a certain hill. When it did both these things, the local wisdom was that the engine would never plough. When, however, it succeeded in ploughing, the agricultural community was at once converted to a belief in the new power, and there is no district in England where traction engines have been more fully used. We are reminded of this experience by what has happened in the case of airplanes. At first the world doubted whether the airplane could be made to stay in the air. Now the airplane has shown an almost uncanny mastery over that element. Obviously, however, in spite of its wonderful performance, it is still far behind the bird in its achievements; but Prof. Bell, the well-known inventor of the telephone and a great student of aeronautics, has all kinds of hopes as to the future. He sees the day when the flying machine will fly so fast that wings will be unnecessary. It is even possible, he thinks, that the mystery of moving through the atmosphere may be so fully penetrated that locomotion may be found possible, not only without wings, but without an engine. It is certainly true, as he says, that "all other things that fly, fly without engines, the albatross without the movement of its wings easily overtaking a ship against the wind."

A Woman's Strategy.

"I once heard of a sadly henpecked man who made friends with a mouse, and by keeping the little animal always about him he contrived to get the upper hand."

"A strange story. How long did that state of affairs continue?"

"Only a short while. The man's wife introduced a cat, and the moment the cat pounced on the mouse she pounced on her husband." — Birmingham Age Herald.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigour and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and sold by most druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION.— Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE GIRL THAT HE KISSED BEFORE.

By JAMES C. HINES.

[Copyright, by American Press Association.]

Amy and I were putting together a picture puzzle. We had the parts on a table in a cozy nook in the garden. The hour was twilight. The moon was half full. There was a perfume of flowers.

"I wonder if we haven't it upside down," I remarked.

"No; that's sky on the top."

"Or water."

"Or rushes."

"They all look the same till combined in the picture. I have it. The boy's head goes in here."

"And the girl's in here."

"No," said Amy thoughtfully, "that would bring it too near the girls."

"You wouldn't have them sit at opposite ends of the boat, would you?" I objected.

Our own heads were quite near at the moment.

"You don't understand me. When the picture is finished you won't find the two heads so close together."

"And the old woman raking hay is spying on them. No; you are right; the artist wouldn't have drawn his picture that way."

"Why, what would the old woman be watching?"

"To see that the boy didn't steal a kiss."

"There's no harm in a kiss," Amy replied after a pause, "when they're engaged."

"I confess to have kissed a girl once to whom I was not engaged."

"You ought to have been ashamed of yourself?"

"How about the girl?"

"Oh, there was no excuse for her whatever. She must have been without any principle or modesty."

Why will one woman proceed to pass judgment on another without hearing anything of a defense. I was angered.

"The girl I kissed was as pure as an angel," I said with warmth.

"In your sight."

"In the sight of God and the saints."

"You didn't say you were in love with her."

This was a thrust I had not counted on. I warded it off by explaining that the affair occurred a long while ago, but since I was only twenty-two my position was weak.

"She was old enough to know better or you wouldn't have cared to kiss her."

I secretly resolved to punish Amy for this condemnation of one I had had tender regard for. But in my vocabulary a tender regard and love were not synonymous terms. I had never been in love and didn't know where the tender regard ended and love began.

"She was but fourteen," I replied.

"This piece forms the stern of the boat and this the bow, and this goes in between the boy and the girl."

"It's fortunate," I remarked, "that there's a piece to go in between them, since you're so prudish."

"I prudish?"

"Yes, if I should rest my arm on your waist you would be hopping mad."

She made no reply to this, and I dropped my hand on her waist. She might have been absorbed in the puzzle or bereft of a sense of feeling, for she did not notice the act. A slight motion of her head again drew the strands of her hair across my cheek. I now felt confident of paying her in her own coin for blaming the girl I had kissed.

"This piece," she said, putting it in a place where it fitted, "is the chimney to the cabin."

"And this is the boy's arm holding an oar," I added, trying to put a piece in a place where it didn't fit. I reached for another piece and in doing so brought my head still nearer Amy's. She drew away, but the movement was so faint that I did not consider it by any means a repulse. With the hand about her waist I drew her a bit nearer.

It's a dangerous thing for a young man to permit himself to work out a picture puzzle or any other kind of a puzzle in a garden with a girl, for the girl may be working out a puzzle of her own. I was bent on punishing Amy and forgot my caution. I did not realize that Love, with his bow and quiver and matrimony, with a wife and children, were perched on the limb of a tree behind me. I put my cheek so near Amy's that a sheet of paper wouldn't go between. Then, turning her face toward me, I kissed her.

I confess I was surprised that she should so meekly permit what a few minutes before she had condemned in another. I had intended to hold up to her the injustice, the inconsistency of her course, but there was something in her nonresistance that made me ashamed of myself. I thought I must say something, so I said something to make matters worse:

"I don't blame you."

"Do you blame yourself?" she asked by way of reply.

"Myself? No; yes. Why should I?"

"Do you consider it right to kiss a girl to whom you are not engaged?"

The moon shone, the flowers exhaled perfumes, the air was still. So was I. Finally I spoke:

"I'll make it right. I love you."

And so I was caught. After it was all over she confounded me by saying:

"Do you wish me to tell you who was the girl you kissed before? Well, she was I. You forgot the fourteen-year-old miss, but she didn't forget you."

Trains and Electric Waves.

It is announced from Nuremberg that Professor Wirth, who some time ago invented a system of steering boats from a distance, has now invented a method of controlling railway trains by electric waves. Toasts Caused Drunkenness.

The drunken dinner table habits of a century ago, referred to by the Bishop of Chelmsford, are not to be wondered at when one considers the iron etiquette of the time in relation to toasts. In this little matter Scotland seems to have set rather a bad example. According to Lord Cockburn, it was the rule in Edinburgh society to drink each guest's health individually. "Thus, where there were ten people there was ninety healths drunk!" And before the ladies retired came "rounds" of toasts, with "sentiments" such as "May the pleasure of the evening bear the reflection of the morning," or "Delicate pleasure to susceptible minds."—London Chronicle.

DIRECTING A BATTLE.

How the General Staff Keeps In Touch With the Firing Line.

In wartime the many threads leading from the long battle line at length reach a common point, which is the headquarters of the general staff. The activity of each officer attached to the general staff is therefore of the greatest importance for the success of every military enterprise.

During the action every officer of the staff is at the immediate disposal of the commanding general and assists him in the carrying out of orders.

Among the duties of the staff officer during action belong the gathering and compilation of reports which are constantly pouring in to headquarters and which give intimation of the progress of the battle. The staff officer must observe the needs of the troops in action. He must keep a close watch on their supply of ammunition. He must see that their commanders properly execute the orders of the commanding general. He must look after the wounded, see that they are properly treated and sent to lazarets. He must see to it that prisoners are properly cared for and that the commissariat is adequately provided for and the provisioning of the troops.

Sometimes the commanding general intrusts a staff officer with the observation of the action of the opposing forces which may be beyond the view of headquarters, or he may be sent to the firing line with important orders to commanders there, which, however, the staff officer has authority to alter if in his judgment this is necessary.

During defense movements it is of particular importance to observe closely the movements of the opposing forces in order to make preparation for counted moves, such as advances, retreats, the sending of re-enforcements and other movements of troops. The execution of these movements falls within the province of the staff officer.

The training of the staff officer is very thorough. A complete practical course in military science, extending over many years' of active service with various bodies of troops, is augmented by years of study at the war college, which embraces the last word in the theoretical science of modern warfare.—New York Tribune.

BEARD OF THE TURK.

It Is Sacred, For by It He Pledges His Word and Honor.

Some years ago the German Colonel von Schlichting, instructor to the Ottoman army, was shot dead on parade at Yildiz kiosk by a young Albanian soldier, Hadji Bairam, because the German in correcting the faulty pose of the soldier's head touched his chin with his riding whip.

Unfortunately the colonel did not know or did not remember that to touch a Mussulman's chin is a grave offense from a religious viewpoint. It is by the beard of the prophet or his own beard that he swears allegiance and makes his vows and promises. According to a Turkish general, an Albanian would kill his own father if he laid hands upon his son's head in so disrespectful a manner. A Mohammedan military service is simply a religious duty, and it implies a voluntary submission to discipline. But Turkish officers know better than to touch their men rudely or even to shout at them.

Of course it was a very regretable misunderstanding, and the sultan sent a telegram to the kaiser to express his sorrow, and an imperial Ottoman prince and three Turkish ministers followed the victim's hearse to the cemetery. But in the interests of discipline the murderer had to die despite an appeal for a reprieve from the colonel's widow.

The Albanian was shot by ten men of his own battalion, and when he was asked before the execution if he repented of the deed he replied twice in a firm voice, "No!"—Washington Star.

Some Forgotten Slang.

The cheese. It is the forgotten slang. But there were days when the proper man was not the Champagne Charlie or anything else but the "cheese." And the negative was "Oh, cheese it!" as a request to refrain from anything. And the origin was a song:

Ain't I the cheese,
Ain't I the cheese,
Walking the park
With my happy Louise?
—London Chronicle.

Cause of His Pessimism.

Orator — On the surface things are often right, but it is when we explore the depths of things that we see the deceptions of our fellow creatures. One of the Crowd — Guv'nor, you've been buying a barrel of apples, haven't you?—London Tit-Bits.

The Christening.

"And what is the name of this child?" asked the minister ready for the ceremony.

"Well, you see, parson," said the plain-speaking father, "we haven't just decided yet. Wife wants him named after her uncle and I want him named after mine. Just flip up a cent, parson, and see which it is to be—heads I win."

He Rode.

While walking along a dusty road in Illinois in his circuit days Lincoln was overtaken by a stranger driving to town. "Will you have the goodness to take my overcoat to town for me?" asked Lincoln.

"With pleasure. But how will you get it again?"

"Oh, very readily! I intend to remain in it," was Lincoln's prompt reply.

THE LATE JOHN FALLIS.

The death fo John Fallis, which occurred on Friday, July the 5th, removed one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Millbrook.

Deceased was born on the Fallis line, Cavan, 81 years ago.

He set a good example to his family and friends. He was diligent in his daily toil as a tiller of the soil, and prosperity attended him. As a layman of the Methodist church he held most of the offices at the disposal of the board, such as trustee, class leader, recording steward and treasurer, and filled them all most creditably.

He had the honour to be chosen as the Independent candidate for Durham and contested the riding against His Honour Judge Ward.

His first wife was Miss Gardner, and his secod wife was Miss Mary Whitfield. To the first union one son, Weston, and to the second, four sons, Howard, Austin, Fred and Arthur, and one daughter, Mrs. Herbert Ball, were born, all of whom survive their father.

The funeral on Monday, July 8th, to Gardner's cemetery, was one of the largest ever held in the community.

Rev. H. H. Higgs, ihs pastor, conducted the funeral services at the house, assisted by Rev. Joseph Wilkes, the latter conducting the services at the grave, as Mr. Higgs had to motor to Port Hope to catch a train for Belleville. Mr. Higgs spoke of the great loss the community and especially the Methodist church had sustained by the passing of Mr. Fallis who had nearly all his life taken an active interest in the church's welfare and was one of the most liberal donatos to its funds. He spoke sympathetically to the beeaved wife and family and commended them to live so as to be eunited with him in the better land when their life journey ends.

The pall bearers were the five sons and one nephew, William Kennedy.

A beautiful "pillow" from the family and a very pretty wreath from Mr. and Mrs. Weston Fallis, were placed upon the casket.

Mrs. Hawken and children and Mrs. Bennerwith and children, were visitors to Peterboro last week.

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

(Toilet Helps.)

You can keep your skin free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain delatone and in using it you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. A thick paste is made by mixing some of the powdered delatone with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. Be careful, however, to get real delatone.

CULLODEN MOOR.

The Last Battle Fought on the Soil of Great Britain.

The last battle fought on the soil of Great Britain took place in the middle of the eighteenth century.

While George II. of England was engaged in the war of the Austrian succession Charles Edward, who was called the Young Pretender, a grand son of King James II. of England, landed in Scotland and made two attempts to obtain the throne of his ancestors. He was victorious in the battle of Falkirk, but the Duke of Cumberland, son of George II., having been recalled from the continent to take command of the king's forces, the Pretender was entirely defeated at Culloden moor, a plain in Scotland, four miles from Inverness. This was the last battle fought on the island of Great Britain and took place April 16, 1746, and it was also the last attempt on the part of the Stuart family to recover the throne of Great Britain.

Charles Edward Stuart escaped to France after he had wandered for five months in the highlands, pursued by his enemies. He died in Rome Jan. 30, 1788. The Duke of Cumberland gave no quarter. The wounded were all slain, and the jails of England were filled with prisoners, many of whom were executed. Among the latter number were Lords Balmerino, Kilmarnock and Lovat—Lovat being the last person who was beheaded in England.—Philadelphia Press

Women Who Make Living Dearer.

Woman's abuse of a shopping privilege adds tremendously to the cost of operating department stores, and places a needless burden upon every buyer. One of the large merchants of New York city is authority for the statement that 25 per cent of the articles sent out to charge patrons are returned, not occasionally, but habitually. We are not thinking of the woman who returns garments that have been worn and declares they have never been used. She belongs in a class by herself and demands special treatment. But the woman who orders goods sent home without considering whether she needs them or not ought to be amenable to reason.—Francis Fraar in Leslie's.

Then how is one to get out of this vicious circle? By building up the nervous system with the aid of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

FALLING A MILE.

Curious Effect of Dropping Rocks Down a Deep Mine Shaft.

In reference to the deep mine shafts at Calumet some experiments conducted by members of the faculty of the Michigan College of Mines are interesting. It had been noticed that in the vertical shafts at the Tamarack mine if some ore or rock were spilled near the surface men working in the bottom of the shaft a mile below were not much bothered and sometimes only observed "a little dust." It is stated that a car of broken rock could be dumped into the shaft without injury to a man standing directly underneath a mile down.

The reason is that the rock would never reach the bottom, but would lodge in the sides of the shaft on the timbers that protrude a few inches at intervals—that is, the rock would not fall straight, since these shafts are exactly vertical

In the experiments conducted two round metal balls were dropped into the center of a shaft by burning threads by which they were suspended, so as to give them no lateral motion. It was tried to catch the balls in a box of clay in the bottom of the shaft. None of them was caught. One ball was never found afterward. The other was found in the east wall of the shaft only a few hundred feet below the surface.

The explanation is that the earth is revolving from west to east, which gave the ball an eastward component in its fall because a particle on the surface of the earth is traveling at a higher rate of speed than one nearer the center, although at the same angular velocity. Thus a ball or rock dropped in the shaft will strike the east wall a few hundred feet from the surface, possibly then rebounding several times in its drop until it lodges on a timber or on a level.—Engineering Magazine.

THE FREEZING OF LIGHT.

Radium Rays Congeal at a Temperature of Minus 312 Degrees.

The world stood with gaping mouth and baited breath when science announced the phenomenon of frozen air, but wonderment has probably reached its limit when one learns that such an intangible and weightless thing as light has been frozen.

It is customary to speak of the enormous generative power of heat, but more astounding still is the fact that by means of cold a force may be imprisoned and retained which when liberated traverses space at a velocity of 186,000 miles per second.

Like all great discoveries, the process is exceedingly simple and based upon formulas that one marvels at not having been employed long ago. Radium emits light which is called "emanation," and this "emanation" is nothing more or less than a gas. It is possible to freeze all gases, and when "emanation" is subjected to a temperature of 312 degrees below zero it becomes congealed.

The strangest feature of the phenomenon, however, is to be observed when the "emanation" commences to thaw, when from the surface of the surrounding liquid air brilliant spangles of light stream upward, producing a most beautiful and dazzling effect.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

To Make "Whale Fat" Oleo.

On account of the shortage of other materials, hardened whale fat is to be used in Norway for the manufacture of margarine. For this reason whale catching off the coast of Norway, which has been prohibited for a number of years, will be undertaken for Government account.

"In 1914 Denmark used 20,000 barrels of hardened whale fat in the margarine industry," says the weekly bulletin of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. "This product has proved to be well suited for making a margarine that keeps well and tastes well, and to be even better suited for making lard. For the latter purpose it is only necessary to add a smaller part of vegetable oil, such as cottonseed oil or soya oil, to make the lard thus produced fully as good as the imported American lard. In Denmark, where this fat has been used for nearly three years, no injurious effects on the human organism have been observed."

The Echo From Rheims.

The bombardment of the Cathedral of Rheims consolidated Mohammedans in India against Germany. This interesting statement is made by Bishop Warne of the American Methodist Church who has lived in India as a missionary for many years. He declares that in Lucknow the news of the first attack upon the cathedral was followed by the formation of an Indian National Mohammedan League. The leaders of this organization did everything possible to warn Turkey against joining Germany. When their efforts failed they announced that the war was political, not religious, and gave their support to recruiting for the British Indian army.

Bishop Warne mentions the respect that Mohammedans continually show towards shrines and places of worship, and contrasts the blundering vandalism of Germany with the sedulous efforts of the British to avoid hurting the sensibilities of Mohammedans. A special and shining instance of the British way was cited by Bishop Warne in an interview quoted by the Literary Digest. In Cawnpore one of the streets was to be straightened. If the plans had been followed, it would have been necessary to cut off a corner of a great prayer platform which stood before a celebrated mosque. The city authorities, rather than commit such a sacrilege, were preparing to construct a subway under the prayer platform. The Viceroy took the position that the street should be diverted slightly. Thus the expense of a subway was avoided, and the prayer-platform was undisturbed.

Since the capture of Jerusalem additional evidence has been offered to the Mohammedan world of the contrast between British and German methods. In the days of peace Wilhelm of Germany visited Palestine. A portion of the wall of Jerusalem was pulled down so that he could have the satisfaction of riding into the city. In war-time, Gen. Allenby left his horses outside the walls and entered the city on foot. If, as Bishop Warne testifies, the reverberations of the guns trained upon Rheims reached the bazaars of Lucknow, how much more, the story of the British advance on Jerusalem?

Cramps and Pains In The Stomach

QUICKLY CURED BY DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY.

Mrs. J. Fawcett, Hopewell Hill, N. B., writes: "I am writing you of my experience with Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Last summer I was taken so very sick with cramps and pains across my stomach that I sent for the doctor. He said I had summer complaint and gave me some medicine, but it did me very little good. As I was reading your B. B. B. Almanac, I saw Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry advertised, so I asked my sister to go to the store and get me a bottle, and before I had taken all of it I was a well woman, and have not had the slightest return of the trouble since. I cannot say enough for your valuable medicine, and always keep a bottle in the house."

You run absolutely no risk when you buy Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, as it has been a standard remedy on the market for the past 72 years. Ask for "Dr. Fowler's" and insist on getting it, as the cheap imitations are dangerous to your health. Price, 35c. Put up by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

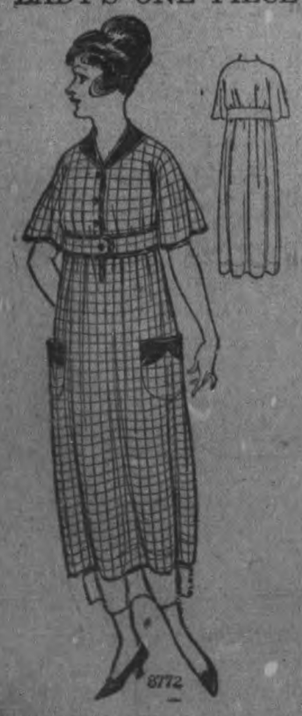
THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE PIECE BUNGALOW APRON.



The bungalow apron is one of the most practical garments which has ever been designed for wear in the kitchen, and it has the added advantage of being very easy to make. The one shown in 8772 is easy to put on, for it slips over the head and has a deep slash which extends below the belt at centre front, giving plenty of freedom. Another good feature of this apron is that there is a gusset inserted in each shoulder so that the apron will not bind the arms when they are raised. The short sleeves are convenient length for working. A belt of the material gives the apron a trim appearance. It may be placed at either high or normal waistline.

The lady's one piece bungalow apron, pattern No. 8772, is cut in three sizes—36, 40 and 44 inches bust measure. As on the figure, the 36 inch size requires 4⅝ yards 27 inch, 4⅝ yards 30 inch, or 3½ yards 36 inch material, with ½ yard 36 inch contrasting goods.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction. This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents

FRENCH ADVANCE AT NUMBER OF POINTS
ENEMY OFFENSIVE STILL BEING HELD IN CHECK

ONE TOWN CAPTURED IN FIFTEEN MINUTES

American and French Troops Are Sweeping Forward on a Twenty-five Mile Front—Over a Dozen Towns Captured, Together With a Large Quantity of War Material—Biggest Allied Drive Since 1917.

COUNTER ATTACK OPENED THIS MORNING

(By Fred S. Ferguson—United Press)

Special to The Examiner:

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN CHAMPAGNE, July 18.—(2.10 p.m.)—The Americans are advancing with the French on a 40 kilometre front (25 miles) between Soissons and Chateau Thierry. The Americans had captured more than a dozen towns and villages, taken numerous prisoners, and advanced more than three kilometres (nearly two miles) up to noon.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN THE CHAMPAGNE, July 18. — (4.20 p.m.)— American troops are still advancing everywhere along a 25 miles front, where they are co-operating with the French in to-day's great counter offensive, as this is cabled.

The greatest force of Americans which has yet participated in a single engagement, is advancing with the French in this offensive, which was launched at 4.30 o'clock this morning.

Eighteen cannon were captured by the French and Americans at Courchamps.

Latest reports say that the advance continues everywhere.

Towns Captured.

Up to the hour of cabling, the Americans have captured the following towns west of Chateau-Thierry: Viller Heldon, Dammard, Courchamps, Licy Clognon, Monthiers, Torcy, Belleau, Givray, St. Gengoulps, Hautesvenes, and other smaller villages, farms, heights and woods, including Givery Wood.

The advance reached a depth of three kilometres within three hours after it began. Many towns within that depth northward clear to Fonteney, were taken by the Americans and the French.

The American Commander at Giveray, reporting the capture of the town to Headquarters, sent the following message: "Met Boche on his line of resistance. Sharp fighting. Boche turned tail and ran like hell, pursued by our troops. Hope have more prisoners.

At Headquarters, messages were coming in from everywhere, asking permission to push on farther.

Troops Ordered Back.

It was essential that the line should be kept straight, and in some instances it was necessary to order the troops to hold back until adjoining units came up.

It is the greatest pursuit of the Boche the Americans have yet engaged in. Enormous numbers of prisoners have been taken. It is impossible to estimate how many.

American airplanes, flying over the lines, fought the Boches above, while the doughboys and machine gunners fought them below. Aerial observers dashed through the clouds and others carried back messages. The surprise not only was complete, but the concentration for the attack was unusually rapid. Field guns were loaded on trucks and these dashed up to the lines. The horses were carried up the same way.

Lines of trucks carrying six and eight horses apiece, have been hurried up for the past twenty-four hours. The German artillery resistance was feeble until 7 o'clock, then their guns opened up, but the Americans had advanced too far for the enemy guns to stop them.

Torcy was captured in 15 minutes. Belleau fell at 8.20, and Givray half an hour later.

The towns named in the despatch cover a front of more than seven miles. Belleau is five miles north-west of Chateau-Thierry. Torcy is half a mile west of Belleau. Licy Clignon is a mile north of Torcy. Vinly is three miles west of Torcy. Hautesvenes is two miles north-west. St. Gengoulph is three miles north-west. Courchamps is a mile and a half north, and Givray is a mile east. Dammard is two miles and a half north.

BIGGEST SINCE 1917

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, July 18—4:35 p.m.—The drive between the Aisne and the Marne is the biggest allied counter offensive since April 1917, it was learned authoritatively this afternoon. Many tanks are in action with the French and American troops.

TWELVE TOWNS CAPTURED

(Special to The Examiner.)

(By J. W. T. Mason, United Press War Expert.)

NEW YORK, July 18.—1:30 p.m.—The capture of twelve towns, together with a number of farms onrthwest of Chateau Thierry by the American troops, is the most brilliant counter stroke the allies have made since the beginning of Von Hindenburg's first offensive last March.

It is Americas' first offensive drive over an extended area. It is the first opportunity American military leadership has had to show its worth under offensive conditions resembling a major operation.

Complete successes have attended the initial effort. There is now every reason for placing full confidence in the ability of America's officers to rise to the difficulty attending a major drive.

COMPLETELY FRUSTRATED

First Time An Attack of Such Weight Has Collapsed So Quickly—A Hell of Shell Fire.

NEW FEATURES

(United Press Service.)
(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, July 18.—(6 a.m.)—Completely frustrated in their original design to reach the Marne on a wide front and smash toward Chalons, the Germans have switched to a secondary objective, attempting to encircle Rheims by pushing along the Marne Valley toward Epergnay with their backs toward Paris.

A high French military official thus summed up the situation for the United Press this morning.

"This is the first time an attack of such weight has collapsed so quickly," he declared.

Furious Fighting.

Reports received during the night placed the enemy within eight miles of Epergnay. Furious fighting was raging on the steep declivities and the banks of the Marne, along which huge masses of Germans were being thrown against the Allies in repeated assaults. In their advance toward Epergnay the Germans have the advantage of moving along a railway and a highway which run on almost parallel lines to the town. The French are meeting this thrust with incessant counter attacks which, at last reports, were causing many of Germany's most violent efforts to wilt without appreciable effect. The fighting was described in battle front despatches as the most furious of the offensive with the German shock troops meeting the French counter assaults in repeated clashes.

Using Reserves.

Yesterday the Germans began throwing in their reserves which had been massed in the rear. These were originally intended to be used only in developing any great initial success.

The fact that they are being thrown into the combat now is another indication that the Germans are hard hit.

French and American hammer blows have crashed into the enemy lines at every point since the drive began.

Despatches received during the night said the Germans had started an attack on the line from Fossoy to Oeuilly, a front of more than 16 miles along the Marne. This battle takes in some of the ground recaptured in American and French counter attacks earlier in the week.

Belt of Fire.

The Germans are across the Marne on a front of about 15 miles, but the strongest effort to develop this advantage is being made only along the roads to Epergnay. To the south they were not able to exploit their gain, inasmuch as the whole river valley is under a constant shower of French shells.

A new feature of this offensive is the development of fire over a great belt of terrain behind the lines. In many places this belt of shell fire is 20 miles deep. The American and French batteries are searching every inch of the enemy back areas with high explosives and Allied bombing raids in which scores of machines drop vast quantities of missiles, are frequent.

ARE MARCHING ON PETROGRAD

(Special to The Examiner.)

GENEVA, July 18.—Thirty-five thousand Lithuanians, after defeating Bolshevik forces and capturing Vitebsk, on Dvina, are marching on Petrograd, according to a despatch from Lausanne today. The Bolsheviki are said to be in disorderly retreat.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Associated Press war summary to-day says:

Strenuous efforts are being made by the Germans to enlarge their gains astride the Marne and southwest of Rheims in an apparent endeavour to outflank the Cathedral city on the south. Combats of the most violent character continue there. Elsewhere the enemy is being held well in check as he has been since Monday.

The fourth day of the offensive finds the Germans struggling desperately to develop the successes along the river and between the river and Rheims. Enemy progress has been slow and at an enormous cost in casualties. Attack after attack is being hurled against the Allied troops in these two important sectors. In many places the enemy has been repulsed completely while his gains have been made in the fact of strong resistance. South of the Marne, despite heavy bombardments and the use of fresh troops, the Germans have made no great gains. The situation there is rather uncertain as villages and heights are constantly changing changing hands in the desperate fighting.

STUBBORN FIGHTING

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE CHAMPAGNE, July 18.—After killing or capturing the crews of four machine guns and raking a Boche filled trench with his automatic rifle until the survivors surrendered, Sergt. J. F. Brown walked into American Headquarters late yesterday with 159 prisoners.

"I am sorry, Sir, that I was unable to bring in all I had," he said, in reporting, "but four of the wounded died on me."

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE CHAMPAGNE, July 18.—(8:05 a.m.)—The fourth day of the battle finds the Germans still halted in their attempt to envelop Rheims.

Stubbornness of the American and French resistance at the extremities of the fighting front—east of Chateau Thierry and east of Rheims—safely holds the Allies' flanks.

THE HABEAS CORPUS CASE

The Supreme Court Opened To-day to Deal With Case of Edward Grey.

CRIMINAL MATTER

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, July 18.— Before Chief Justice Fizpatrick and the full Supreme Court of Canada, argument opened this morning in the habeas corpus case of Private Charles Edward Grey, of Nipissing, to test the validity of the order-in-Council abolishing exemptions under the Military Service Act. Several members of the government were present. When the proceedings opened the Chief Justice announced that the court would hear two counsels for the petitioner and two for the government. Mr. Justice Brodeur, French Canadian member of Court, raised the question of the Court's jurisdiction in the matter. The majority of his colleagues agreed, however, that it was a criminal matter and subject to Supreme Court jurisdiction.

SUES OTTAWA DOCTOR FOR LOSS OF AN EYE

Dr. A. E. Mahood Defendant in $10,000 Action.

OTTAWA, July 18.—A writ has been issued by John Lance, of Renfrew, against Dr. A. E. Mahood, specialist here, for $10,000 damages for the alleged loss of the plaintiff's eye.

Dr. Mahood stated that he was not ware that the writ had been issued, but that he remembered having treated a John Lance, of Renfrew, whose eye had been penetrated by a piece of steel.

The doctor said that he had used a "big maget" in attempting to remove the piece of steel, but that he had not been able to get results. Besides having been injured by the piece of steel, the eye was covered by a severe cataract, and the doctor "needled" the optic. Dr. Mahood said that the eye was in a very serious condition, and that he had very little hope of saving it from the first. Later it had to removed. It was intimated that the affection in the eye, caused by the cataract, was such that the operation was imperative in order to save the man's sight.

FRENCH ATTACKING ON A LARGE SCALE

Considerable Progress Has Been Made—Defensive Battle Never Fought Under More Favourable Conditions.

GERMANS SUFFERED HEAVY LOSSES

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 18.—The Germans sustained fully 70,000 casualties in the first two days' fighting in Dormans pocket, south of the Marne, "The Matin" declared today.

OFFICIAL REPORTS

LONDON, July 18 — Advices received this morning indicate that the French attack between Chateau Thierry and Soissons is on a considerable scale and apparently is making considerable progress.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Canadian Press.

PARIS, July 18. — (Official) — The French this morning delivered an attack along the line from the River Aisne as far south as the region of Balleau, a front of about 25 miles and made progress at certain points of between a mile and a half and two miles, the war office announces today. The situation on the Marne and Champagne fronts is unchanged.

The Statement Reads

The northern point of the front of attack is the town of Fontency nearly a mile north of the Aisne. In the fighting on the front of German offensive, French last night stopped the Germans in face of violent attacks which the enemy launched, southwest of Nanteuil La Fosse, between the Marne and Rheims, east of the Vesle River an attack by German guards units was completely repulsed. Many prisoners are coming in.

The Slaughter.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, July 18.—"Kill them kill them in abundance until they have had enough." That was a portion of General Gourand's order of the day, to the French and American troops in the eve of the new German drive. A defensive battle was never engaged in under more favorable conditions, he declared.

"Strong, brave hearts of free men beat in your breasts. None will look behind. None wil give way."

Advices this afternoon stated that the Germans had made no further attacks east of Rheims and that the French at various points on the front had regained ground. French reports state, have recaptured Montvoisin, south of the Marne, at a point where the Germans had advanced furtherest toward Epernay and Chen-La-Reine, to the west, and took as well the heights west of those villages overlooking the Marne. Germans are reported to have made slight progress north of St. Agnan in the district to the southwest of Dormans, below the Marne, but their progress here has been slow. The maximum penetration of the French lines since July 15 is six miles, according to latest reports.

Strategic Move.

This morning's attack represents what apparently is an important strategic move by General Foch, Allied Commander-in-Chief to counter the blow further south along the Marne and on the line to Rheims. The stroke seems to have made important initial progress, and if further pushed, as it seems bound to be, the entire huge salient, created by the Germans in their previous drive south of the Aisne, and enlarged in their present offensive, will be seriously endangered.

BRITISH OFFICIALS

LONDON, July 18.—(Official)—Southeast of Villers - Bretonneux south of Somme, British line has been advanced on a front of more than one mile. The British positions east of Hebuterne also were improved somewhat. South of Bucquoy on a front southeast of Arras, German raiding party was driven off. The German artillery showed considerable activity during night on Flanders front north of Bailleuil.

THE STATEMENT READS:

Australian troops carried out successful local enterprise early last night in the neighbourhood of Villers-Bretonneux, advancing their line southwest of the village on a front of over a mile. Two forward field guns were captured in the course of the operation, together with a number of prisoners and some machine guns. We also improved our positions slightly during

Allies Are On The Defensive

The Enemy is Directing His Heaviest Blows in the Vicinity of Rheims.

(United Press Service.)
(By John Degandt.)

PARIS, July 18.—(1:30 a.m.)—The second phase of the new German drive in the Champagne region began to-day when the Allies again passed from the aggressive to the defensive, arcording to the latest battle front despatches.

The enemy is directing his heaviest blows eastward toward the forest of the mountain of Rheims, which he expects to penetrate through the main Rheims-Epernay highway, splitting the forest on the north and south side.

Moderate estimates to-day of the casualties inflicted by the Americans and French in the Marne fighting during the first two days placed them at 60,000.

FRUIT DEALER ADVISES CITIZENS TO GO AFTER OWN BLUEBERRIES

Scarcity of Labour Will Tend to Keep Price High—Canners Are Rounding Up Supplies in the Grimsby District—Reason For High Price of Raspberries.

BLACK CURRANTS SOAR

Canners are offering 24c a box for red raspberries in the Grimsby district, it was stated this morning by a local dealer, and this accounts for the local retail price of 35c. At that figure they take a place in the front rank of war luxuries, and many a citizen will hesitate a long time in search for a reasonable excuse for indulging in this bit of extravagance, while those with long purses will never feel the pinch, and some may not even come to know of the difference.

Locally, however, it is believed that the price must fall considerably below 35c. There are no canning factories in this district, and the price will be regulated only by the demand from local consumers.

Pick Blueberries.

"Tell the people to get busy and pick their own supplies of blueberries," said one dealer this morning. "There will be a scarcity in nearly all fruits, and the citizens needn't expect ordinarily moderate prices."

Black currants are selling for $3.00 a basket at the shipping points. This is nearly 300 per cent. increase on old prices, and is explained by the assertion that a few black currants go a long way in making jam. Their peculiar taste is so marked that it will permit a generous dilution of apple pulp. Other fruits do not offer this particular trade economy, it is stated, and hence there is a general scramble for black currants.

Blueberries will certainly not be cheap, although the crop is said to be a heavy one. Last Sunday, fifty-one automobiles were counted at Scott's Mills, near Burleigh, and eight miles further north there were others. Before starting on one of these picking expeditions, a tenderfoot in the rock country should acquaint himself of the most expeditious method of gathering the berries.

Local prices of blueberries will be high because of the scarcity of labour. The story is told that at Bobcaygeon a foreman on a lumber drive quit work to gather blueberries, which brought 18 cents a pound in 'Caygeon. And he was earning $3.50 a day on the drive.

The soaring prices of berries will doubtless encourage many citizens to go into the country after wild raspberries, which are beginning to ripen.

LABOURER HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

WAS STRUCK ON THE HEAD WITH A BRICK AT QUAKER OATS PLANT

Alf. Stinson, 131 Sutherland street, an Italian employed at the Quaker Oats, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon at about 5 o'clock. He was standing at the bottom of the lift which takes up brick to the top storey when a brick fell down upon him inflicting painful cuts about his head and neck and rendering him for the moment unconscious.

Dr. Baker was immediately called and Stinson was taken in Belleghem's Ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital where he is reported to be progressing satisfactorily.

Public Meeting to Discuss Housing

The Board of Trade is arranging for a public meeting in the Assembly Hall at the Public Library on Monday evening, July 22nd, at which Mr. Norman McEachern, of Toronto, a specialist in housing, will discuss the housing and transportation accommodation in Peterborough. He will arrive early in the day and make an extensive survey of the city, and will not only deal with the local problems as they appear to him, but will also answer questions citizens may put forward. It is generally recognized that this city has an insufficient supply of houses, and that the problem growing out of this condition is becoming more serious all the time. In the consideration of local transportation facilities, the service of the street railway and also of the C.P.R. will be dealt with.

The Board of Trade expects that there will be a large attendance at this meeting. The Merchants' Association are calling the attention of their members to its importance, and they specially urge all the merchants in the city to make a big effort to be present.

SWORN TO AND GUARANTEED

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, JULY 18TH, 1918.

TRANSFERRED TO LONDON.

The seat of government seems to have been transferred from Ottawa to London, where it was after the Seven Years' war, and those at home seem lothe to "carry on" and give decisions, and are postponing almost everything until the return of those in England. This is no way to hold up the country's business."

Such is the impression Mayor Church of Toronto has formed of the situation at Ottawa after a visit to the capital on official business, and he seems to have described the conditions accurately and convincingly. Throughout Canada the sentiment is growing steadily, judging from the press comments everywhere, that it is high time that Premier Borden and the members of his cabinet wound up their visit in England and got back in harness at Ottawa. They will find plenty of work awaiting them, especially in view of Mayor Church's charge that the rear guard who have been left in charge of affairs in Canada are putting everything off until the tourists come home.

A WELCOME CHANGE.

The new rates of pay for returned soldiers who wish to take a course of vocational training, are a step in the right direction, as they should tend to influence a larger number of soldiers to take advantage of the re-educational facilities provided, than has been the case under the old method. It has been decided that henceforth single men who are receiving vocational training, will be paid $50 a month during the course, while in the case of married men, there will be an allowance of $38 a month for the soldier and $35 for the wife, with the latter allowance increased according to the number of children, reaching as high as $56 for six children, so that in the latter case the total monthly income of the family while the soldier is being refitted for civilian life, would be $94.

Returned soldiers should note carefully the fact that pensions have nothing to do with the vocational training courses. They are entirely distinct, and are dealt with by a medical board, which does not take into consideration the question of whether or not the man whose case is being considered is going to receive a re-educational course. Quite properly there will be no cut in pensions because the soldier sees fit to take advantage of the opportunity that is being given him to earn a better living.

WOOD MAY BE NEEDED.

There is small comfort in the reply received by Alderman Edgar from the Fuel Controller of Ontario, as to the powers of the local Fuel Commissioner under the regulations. The information supplied shows that the local authorities have practically no power in the matter. The coal allotted to Canada is not being rationed to each municipality, so that the supply Peterboro will receive depends solely on the activity and enterprise of the dealers. And the coal coming to Peterboro may be distributed as the dealers see fit as long as the 70 per cent. regulation is not exceeded.

In view of these circumstances the value of a reserve store of fuel, in the form of wood, becomes increasingly apparent and the decision of the city of Stratford to spend $15,000 in the establishment of a municipal wood yard, is a safeguard that does not seem unnecessary in the face of the present outlook.

Across the line the United States Fuel Administration is carrying on a vigorous campaign to educate the people in the use as far as possible, of wood in place of coal. A recent official statement says:

"The war is making enormous additional demands for coal and fuel oil. The United States Fuel Administration will do its utmost to meet this demand; but to insure a full supply of fuel for next winter, the cutting and storage of wood is advised.

"There is an abundance of unmined coal; the problem is getting it out of the ground, transported and distributed.

"Labour is short and will get shorter as the war progresses. This makes mining and railroading difficult. As the number of troops across the water increases, the more will it be necessary to use the railroads for their maintenance and equipment. Munitions and supplies must be moved to the seaboard in ever increasing volume.

"There must be no let-up—nothing can be allowed to interfere with this movement. The successful prosecution of the war is the present big business.

"It is necessary to get fuel to the big cities and industrial plants in its most compact form. They are the coal-burners of America. The wood-burners are the farmers and the residents of the small towns and villages where wood is nearby and can be delivered by the wagon load.

"This appeal is directed to you. Restore the old wood-pile. Make it a part of the landscape as it was when you were a boy. Whet your axe—file your saw—cut wood—burn wood. SAW WOOD!!

STOPPING THE WASTE.

The current issue of the Canadian Food Bulletin issued by the Canadian Food Board, contains a striking article on the utilization of garbage that should be carefully read and considered by the members of the City Council. The matter has been neglected by the city legislators, although, as the Food Board points out, "of all the methods of waste the garbage of cities and towns is perhaps the biggest factor." The facts set forth by the Food Board are official, and authentic, and the question asked by the bulletin, "Why not utilize garbage to help us defeat Germany?" is a timely one that merits the consideration of the council. Thousands of tons of garbage are destroyed in Peterboro every year, and the city has to pay a contractor to collect something that should be a revenue.

Says the Bulletin:

One ton of garbage contains:

Sufficient glycerine for the explosive charge of fourteen 75-millimeter shells.

Sufficient "fatty acid" for the manufacture of one hundred 12-oz. cakes of soap.

Sufficient fertilizer elements to grow 8 bushels of wheat.

A score of other materials valuable in munition making.

It used as hog feed it will produce—

One hundred pounds of good, firm first quality pork.

In twenty-nine cities in the United States, with an aggregate population of 18,000,000 people, garbage utilization plants are in operation, and products to the value of more than $11,000,000 annually are being produced from garbage. A large percentage of this saving is being directly used by the government in munition making.

Plants are under way in several cities for the manufacture of alcohol, on a lage scale from garbage, and from experience it has been shown that the grade of alcohol produced equals a high grade grain product.

In 300 cities in the United States of over 10,000 population, all garbage is being used for feeding hogs. From these cities 50,000,000 pounds of garbage-fed pork with a value of $8,000,000, is marketed every year.

Of all the methods of waste the garbage of cities and towns is perhaps the biggest factor. Hundreds of tons of food that would produce pork are destroyed annually in the cities and towns of Canada. From investigations that have been made it is evident that the feeding of garbage is an eminently practical way of increasing pork production in Canada.

What is your municipality doing to utilize garbage in increasing food production?

What are you doing to encourage your municipality to utilize garbage?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Toronto man has been sent to jail for saying, "I am a German, and I am proud of it." The proper place for any one who says he is proud of being a German, would seem to be an asylum for the insane.

The Germans have named their new attack the peace offensive. From present indications the drive will end in peace, rather than peace.

The British Food Board reports the probability of a shortage in jam as a result of poor fruit crop prospects. Tommy will not mind so much if the shortage only applies to plum and apple jam.

The German airman who bombed the prison camp behind the French lines and killed 94 German prisoners, should be given an invitation to come back and finish his work.

The Dominion police who held up 5,000 Toronto fans in search of defaulters, should have used better judgment and picked a day when the Leafs had won a double header.

Canadians everywhere will sympathize with Theodore Roosevelt in the loss of his son, Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt of the American aviation corps, killed in action in France. Col. Roosevelt has been a friend of the allies since the commencement of the war, and in addition to the missing aviator, three other sons are on active service.

MARKETING GARDEN TRUCK

Nine out of ten war gardeners are able to use most of the vegetables they grow but among those who have gone in for vacant lot gardening there will be some who will want to market their produce. The community spirit pays in this as in most other things.

A case in point is a project put forward by the Women's Canadian Club of Ottawa. Last year they had a wayside market and through this medium $250 was made on the sale of vegetables. This year they are to have a motor truck which will bring the produce right into the city to be sold at street corners.

This is a novel scheme that might be adopted in other cities The wayside markets have proved lucrative as they have been well patronized by motorists and wayfarers of every kind.

A motor truck in a country community may be made the means of transporting to the city market produce of a score of war gardens Fresh, good-looking vegetables are always easy enough to sell. The biggest difficulty presented as a general rule is transportation. This may be overcome by team-work on the part of war gardeners.

Food Board Flashes

"The work is waiting for them if girls will take the dairying course and go in for it in earnest," says Professor Dean, Professor of Dairy Husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

The dairymaid is now one of the world's war workers Never again in sunbonnet and gingham frock, perhaps, but certainly in breeches and leggings.

Canada is only meeting about 1 1-2 per cent. of the British butter requirements—which is not good enough for such a country as this. Labor on dairy farms is scarce. There are approximately 3,500,000 cows in Canada at the present time and they are ready to do their share if they get human co-operation. The best use is not being made of them at the present time. Butter and cheese are needed by the Allies as they never were before.

Canadian girls have a rare opportunity here to help. There are colleges all over the Dominion where they can get instruction in dairying. The course is short and inexpensive. Think it over and see if you wouldn't like to be a dairymaid. You might end up by being a dairy farmer—ette!

Sporting Comment

"Bill" Crystall, the local, veteran left-hander, is about through. He has been given his release by the Bridgeport club of the Eastern League, and may now decide to put his glove on the shelf.

Thomas C. Bundy, the Napoleon of the tennis courts, and the partner who helped McLoughlin to fame, has turned to golf. He has become so proficient as to be a scratch competitor for the Brentwood championship in California.

Dr. Geogre Gaw, the former Toronto pitcher, has enlisted in the American Army Dental Corps. Gaw was an inconsistent chap, and although a good pitcher, was unreliable. He pitched for Buffalo for several seasons.

In all the gold-tinted history of sport there never has been a comeback as notable as that of horse-racing it the state of New York. Seriously threatened for a time by the thrusts of so-called reformers, the sport not only survived, but in recent years has been gradually growing stronger.

The Southern Association, which recently suspended operations for the duration of the war, has on hand a lare sinking fund, which will be used to start the league again when the funs have been properly and thoroghly licked.

Charles Peterson, owner of a billiard parlor in St. Louis, has engaged girl employes to take the place of men. Peterson claims his reasons for employing girls are primarily, because they can do the work better than men; and secondarily because men are hard to get.

Merito Acosta, the Cuban outfielder of Mackmen, has been hitting the ball hard for his new team.

Lefty Ross, the pitcher recently obtained from San Antonio by the Giants, has been released to Newark.

Huggins still leads on the big trade. His club is ahead of the Browns in the pennant chase, and has won six of the nine games played by the two clubs this season.

Catcher Joe Casey, who was traded to the Atlanta Club for Val Pichinich, has returned to the Senatore since the passing of the Southern League.

Sam Jones, of the Red Sox, was only a bench warmer until it was decided to make an outfielder of Babe Ruth. Then Sam got his chance and has been going along very well.

Slim Sallee seems to have succeeded Leon Ames as the Giants' hard luck pitched. Slim has lost a number of tough ones this season.

Howard Lohr, the new outfielder of the Pirates, has had previous trials with major league clubs. He has all that makes a good outfielder and may stick this time.

Guy Morton is on a fair way to establish a real comeback after all the trouble he has had with his arm. The member is showing no effects of the old injury.

Vic Saier, who was claimed b ythe Pirates when the Cubs "released" him last year, has dropped out of sight.

Clark Griffith, of the Washingtons has unearthed a young pitcher named Hausen.

$12,500,000 POTENTIAL LIVES LOST TO EUROPE AS RESULT OF THE WAR

LONDON, July 18.—The war has caused the belligerent countries of Europe the loss of not less than 12,500,000 potential lives, because of the decrease in the number of births resulting form the war, says Sir Bernard Mallet, registrar-general of Great Britain. This country, he asserts, has lost in these potential lives 650,000 children. He believes that other belligerent countries have suffered in this respect more than has Great Britain.

Sir Bernard estimated that every day of the war means the loss of 7,000 potential lives of children to the United Kingdom, France, Italy and the Central Powers. Dealing with the decline in the birth rate here, he said the births registered in England and Wales in 1913, numbered 881,800. In 1915, they fell to 814,614; in 1916 there was a further fall to 780,520; and in the 1917 to 668,346; a decline of 25 per cent. compared with 1913.

CANADIAN LEAGUE BALL PLAYER HAD A STRANGE CAREER

PETER J. LEIST HAD TWO WIVES LIVING IN APARTMENT UNKNOWN TO EACH OTHER.

A smash on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway at the 47h street elevated tracks, Chicago, on May 26, in which Peter J. Liest met his death, brought some curious facts to light.

Once a baseball player, Leist, under the name of Earl T. Wiltsie, held down the position of third base for London Tecumsehs in 1913.

Leist, who had many aliases, went through a form of marriage on April 21, 1918, with a young lady of Waukeegan, while he was still in jail at Lake County, Illinois. On Feb. 1 he was again married at Waukeegan, without having gone through the formality of divorce proceedings from his first wife. On the same day he is stated to have contemplated marriage with a third woman in Michigan.

For a long time Leist was in continual trouble, endeavoring to pass bogus checks, etc.

At the time of his death Leist had been living in a three-courned flat at 1306 West Madison street, Chicago, his two wives being in the same apartment, but totally unaware of the facts.

Letters from ladies in Guelph, London, Woodstock, and other towns were found among his effects, the deceased having been in communication with various matrimonal clubs during his varied career, and making many conquests in the cities he visited while playing ball.

Troops Demoralized.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 18.—German troops in some portions of trenches in Flanders have been so exhausted and demoralized by constant British raids, attacks and bombardments that many of them have fallen asleep at their posts, not caring whether they are killed or captured. Orders issued to Bavarian infantry regiment reveals condition of affairs which up to this time have been thought unbelievable in an army notorious for the strictness of its discipline. A good deal of activity continues behind the German front but the infantry has remained very quiet since the beginning of the present German offensive around Rheims. No attempt has been made to recover the ground lost at Ridgewood on Monday when the British captured a total of 31 men and seven officers. The Germans have remained passive under repeated British thrusts around Bailleuil and only the artillery indulged in retaliation.

CHILDREN WERE ENTERTAINED AT CHEMONG LAKE.

Mrs. Hopwood entertained the children of the Shelter at her cottage at Chemong yesterday afternoon. The kiddies thoroughly enjoyed the outing, and after tea entertained the ladies with songs and choruses.

The officers are deeply indebted to Mrs. Hopwood for her kindness to the children and to Mrs. Dr. King and Mrs. Scott, who lent their cars to take the children out. They are also indebted to the Salvation Army for the entertainment given to the children last week at Hiawatha.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

MUSIC STRENGTHENS THE WEAK.

Singers rarely or never contract tuberculosis, which is probably due to their proper method of breathing, thereby taking in plenty of oxygen—important and indispensable to good health. At the same time the chief neurotics that visit a physician's office are singers. This neurotic condition, common in singers, is mainly due, so some doctors believe, to extreme sensitiveness. Nervousness occupies a big place in the life of the average singer.

Music is very instrumental in producing a nervous condition. It causes a marked effect on the nervous system through its varied vibrations. It has been proven repeatedly by experimentation that music will cause stimulation, depression, make the weak strong, cowards brave, and aid many maladies of the nervous system.

Temperament in a singer is nothing but a tributary to nervousness. Temperament will cause an increased reaction, both mental and physical, to external impressions. Singers who possess an abundance of temperament, charfacterized by mental force and high strung sensibilities, manifest tenseness, vigour as an expression of style. In other words, temperament is nothing but a preponderance of the mental over the physical qualities. Temperament is affected by different conditions, as elevation of temperature, change of climate, high altitude and environment. If singers control this temperament of theirs their singing will be clear; but if they lack the power of adaptation, sudden nervousness may come in, thereby causing a straining, clouding, and muffling of the voice, and improper breathing.

The treatment of this neurosis requires the greatest care. The singer's food, sleep, exercise and work should all be systematically regulated. Personal hygiene is very important in such individuals. Their intelectual work especially should be judiciously limited and should alternate frequently with periods of repose. Excitement of all kinds should be avoided. Cold baths before going to bed and in the morning help to harden the nervous system. Exercises in the gymnasium, tennis, rowing, sailing, are all of value in maintaining the general nutrition, and help the nervous system a great deal.

A GOVERNMENT THAT WANTS ALL ITS PEOPLE TO HEAR GOOD MUSIC.

"I am convinced that many who think they have no taste for music would learn to appreciate it and partake of its blessings if they often listened to good instrumental music with earnestness and attention." The observation which was once made by a close student of human nature is seemingly accepted as true by the governments of the Latin-American republics. "Let me tell you," declared the Director-General of the Pan-American Union in a recent address, "the Latin-American nations love music and the governments of the larger ones see to it that the people have music. Buenos Aires possesses the second largest grand opera house in the world.

"The local authorities provide that at least one member of every family, financially unable to attend the opera, be given a free admission for at least one performance during the season. The government wishes that all its people should know, hear and appreciate the best in music. Caruso told me he never sang to a more appreciative audience nor had he ever received a greater inspiration from an audience than when he sang in the opera house at Buenos Aires filled from ceiling to pit with the poor of that city. Music has a wondrous appeal to the masses and it is the duty of every musician to appeal to the highest ideals of those about him with his music.

"There is no greater influence for law and order than music," continued the speaker. "It is the one element that will unite men of all stations of life and will divert attention from the affairs of life. I witnessed music frustrate the plans of a revolution in one of these republics, when I ordered a municipal band to play some native airs while waiting for the insurgents. By the time the leader came contentment had entered the hearts of the natives and the revolution was called off."

DOTTED NOTES.

A good piano out of tune is a poor piano.

The idea of cultivating music merely as a social enjoyment is becoming a thing of the past.

Singing on the march has already proved to be a great boon to tired backs and sore feet.

Composition is the greatest activity in the realm of music. Singers and players come and go and are forgotten; but great music is indestructible.

A mother teaches a child so he can play his role in life unaided. A good music teacher seeks to make his pupil independent of himself.

The heavy cost of private musical instruction makes a musical education prohibitive for the children of poor parents. A musical training is therefore justified in the schools because of the place music occupies in real life.

The most generous recognition of music's influence to-day comes from the socialogist. In recent years there is an increased contentment among all classes due to more music in our lives. Also it has caused a better use of leisure rours among the working classes.

At the age of ten, Lazzari, Grand Opera Contralto, asked her mother to buy their soap from a certain store where they gave out "coupons," a certain number of which entitled you to a guitar. Her mother consented and the future prima donna got her guitar.

In the high school of Oakland, California, music is on the curriculum but not compulsory. It is an interesting fact that one pupil out of every three elects voluntarily to study music. The music course includes band and orchestra classes.

Pablo Casals, the 'cellist, once played in a public cafe in Spain, but it must be remembered that the Spanish Cafe was no jazz or ragtime headquarters. It is a meeting place, available for almost everybody, for good music and sociability. Thus the masses hear the best music all the time so that it becomes an important part of their thought and lives.

What does the European of the lower middle-class do after his day's work is over? Marcia Van Dressler, the soprano, says that in nine cases out of ten he goes to hear some of the finest music well interpreted for him—not for the people who can pay the big prices. Miss Van Dressler adds: "When our operas are kept up by government subsidy and when the best music is considered only just good enough for the man on the street then musical advancement will come into our everyday life too."

HAVELOCK COUNCIL'S ACT WAS ABSOLUTELY ILLEGAL SAID JUDGE

Property Holders Appeal Against the Council's Order to the Court of Revision to Strike Off Income Assessment.

TOWN IN TWO CAMPS

The appeal entered by Havelock property owners to compel the Council to levy an income tax on the residents to whom by statute it applies was adjourned yesterday afternoon by His Honour Judge Huycke until next Monday. Mr. F. D. Kerr, solicitor for the council, objected to the C. P. R. statement of the salaries of their employees resident in Havelock, and demanded that the company produce the records of the wages paid to the railway men.

The appellant, Mr. Alex. Primrose, was partially successful yesterday. The names of Dr. Holdcroft, Dr. Watson and Mr. H. F. McNicholl, manager of the Bank of Toronto in Havelock, were ordered to be placed on the assessment list for income tax.

Altogether, there are nearly one hundred persons who will be affected by whatever decision is reached by Judge Huycke at the next hearing.

It was stated that the Havelock Council, by a majority of one, recently decided to suspend the income tax within the municipality. This action resulted in practically dividing the town into two camps, the one including citizens to whom the by-law would work an advantage, and the other comprising property holders who felt that the taxes lifted from income were unloaded on to their property.

Mr. Alex. Primrose became the leader and spokesman of the landowners in their determination to prevent, if possible, the accomplishment of the Council's designs and of the effectuation of the resolution that had been passed.

In his comment yesterday, Judge Huycke stated that the Council's course was absolutely illegal.

Mr. G. N. Gordon represented Mr. Primrose and the other property owners.

WAS WELL KNOWN IN PETERBOROUGH

TORONTO, July 18.—Rev. John Salmon, who for more than a quarter of a century was a well known clergyman in Toronto, is dead in California, according to news which has just reached Toronto. It is seven years since the Rev. Mr. Salmon left Toronto to take up work in California. While on the Pacific coast he has been most active in all religious work, and although he was in his 88th year, preached three times on the Sunday preceding his death. His presence was always noted at all gatherings connected with the religious welfare of Toronto when he was here, and he was also actively interested in foreign missions. He made several trips to foreign countries for missionary conference. One of such trips was taken about a year ago. Bethany church, of which he was the pastor in Toronto, stood where the present General Hospital is now located.

The deceased was well known in Peterborough, having preached here on many occasions. He frequently occupied the pulpit of Bethany Tabernacle in this city, and will be remembered by the older residents of Peterborough.

AUTO DELIVERIES PUT CHATHAM ON THE MAP.

FREIGHT CONGESTION BRINGS MANY PURCHASERS RIGHT TO GRAY-DORT FACTORY

In these days of freight congestion when deliveries may be delayed for weeks, it is becoming quite the custom for purchasers of new automobiles and also automobile agents to take delivery right at the factory and drive the new car home, hus gaining perhaps weeks of immediate use from the new car. Folks in Chatham where the Gray-Dort factory is located recently saw the novel spectacle of a fleet of thirty-seven new cars being driven away, roadsters, touring cars, specials, every model turned out by this immense factory. Many of these cars were for distant destinations, as far east as Napanee and north as far as Owen Sound.

This is no unusual sight in Chatham today. The procession of cars being driven from the factory is of very frequent occurrence, though of this particular "Delivery Day" the number was rather more than normal. Indeed with so many purchasers and automobile agents making the trip to the factory, the town of Chatham is finding its place on the map.

Of added interest is the fact that on this same day the regular daily shipmetn of thirty cars for the West and other points was also sent by freight. It speaks volumes for the organization and productive capacity of the Gray-Dort factory that this daily stream of new cars is maintained unbroken in these days when tremendous difficulties in the supply of materials and parts have to be overcome.

RE-EXAMINE MEN.

Many of Those in Hamilton in Low Categories Before Medical Board.

HAMILTON, July 17.—A busy scene was witnessed at the local Armouries this morning when many young men reported to the board for re-examination. These men had previously been placed in lower categories, but during the time since their examination the military authorities, considering they had plenty of time to improve in physical condition, ordered them up again. It is not thought very many will be placed in A category. The men reporting for re-examination to-day consisted of all the lower categories. More men from time to time will continue as usual to be re-examined.

A Toronto Opinion Of the Amendment To Municipal Act

TORONTO, July 17.—The amendment to the Municipal Act which occasioned all the excitement around the City Hall corridors yesterday it seems applies nowhere—not even to the Board of Health, where everybody agreed yesterday it did apply. Here is the joker. No member of Council shall be a commissioner or a member "of any commission or other body appointed by the Council of a municipal corporation."

The Board of Health isn't appointed by Council; it is appointed by statute which says Council shall elect three members only thereto. The Harbor Board is a body appointed by statute which says the Mayor shall be a member. The same with the Hydro Board. In any event, there will be legal opinion sought.

A. M. Dyment, law clerk of Ontario Legislative Assembly, says that Section 53A of the Act does not apply to cases quoted. The intention of the amendment was to prevent members of Council from accepting positions on outside bodies, and does not include Local Board of Health or the C.N.E. Board.

"There will be no drastic change in this direction, as so many seem to think," said Mr. Dyment. Regarding appointment of Works Commissioner Burns as Fuel Commissioner, and that of Mr. Bradshaw to the Arbitration Board, the section does not effect them in any way, as neither is a member of Council. Mayor Church's position on the Harbor Board, he explained, was ex-officio by virtue of the position as Chief Magistrate.

LOSES EYE WHEN TACK FLEW FROM PIECE OF HARNESS.

Young London Township Farmer Victim of Peculiar Accident.

LONDON, July 18.—Rufus McNaughton, aged 17, a farmer residing on Con. 8 of London Township, had his left eye removed at Victoria Hospital as a result of being struck by a tack. He had repaired the overcheck of his horse's harness by fastening it with a couple of tacks, and was driving into St. Johns when the horse stumbled. The jolt caused the overcheck to give way, and in swinging back quickly one of the tasks flew with great force, the head of the tack being embedded in Mr. McNaughton's eye. Dr. McNeill, of St. Johns, was called, and at once had the young man removed to Victoria Hospital. Everything was done to save the optic, but as complications were feared it was found necessary to remove it.

THE DOCTORS AND PATENT MEDICINES

Some would legislate Patent Medicines and Drug Stores off the Map and make an exclusive monopoly for themselves.

Elated by their success in getting a bill through the Ontario Legislature, whereby they have a monopoly in all the treatment of venereal diseases, the doctors have a vision of doing away with "patent medicines" and drug stores entirely, so as to make a monopoly of the treatment of disease.

This has been a fond dream of the doctors, who compose the American Medical Association, for a quarter of a century. But during this time the consumption of manufactured medicines has increased 214%, so the work is rather discouraging in the United States.

Because the people's rights in Ontario were not properly considered, the legislation on venereal diseases was allowed to go through, and now the American Medical Association looks upon Ontario as a place where they might make some headway with their propaganda for doing away with "patent medicines."

But where is there ground for any legitimate objection to a medicine because it is put up in a scientifically prepared package? Or because it bears an understandable English name instead of a Latin one? Or because its merits are made known by advertising?

"Use alone proves value."

Do you happen to know of many doctor's prescriptions which would warrant the expense and trouble of getting out trade marks and advertising?

A druggist may run across half a dozen in a life time out of the thousands which he fills.

It was from his experience in collecting and testing many thousands of prescriptions for his Receipt Book, that Dr. Chase was enabled to select a few which have since made him known far and wide, because of the success of his family medicines.

If you have been convinced by actual experience or through the evidence of a friend or neighbour that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills or Ointment or Nerve Food are suited to your needs, what right has any man to deny you the privilege of buying these medicines and using them?

Many doctors know the value of these medicines and do not hesitate to recommend their use. These are the big busy doctors—doctors who do not fail to recognize merit wherever it is found. But there are others who have plenty of time between the calls of patients to figure on how to get rid of "patent medicines" and make a monopoly for themselves. Monopoly has not a sweet name, and Canada has already had enough interference with the rights of every man and every woman to use their own common sense in the selection of medicines for the treatment of disease. Medicines of doubtful merit will soon disappear from the shelves of the drug store just as do the patients from the office of the incompetent physician, whereas medicines of proven value like capable physicians, will always be at a premium in the great work of relieving suffering humanity.

A C.P.R. MOGUL ENGINE WINS A WOUNDED STRIPE

Casualty During Recent Fighting—Went From Moose Jaw to Amiens—Crews Worked 36 Hours at Stretch During Crisis and Saved Much

MANY AT THE FRONT

OTTAWA, July 18.—Roland Hill writes from France as follows:

From Moose Jaw to Amiens is a far cry, yet during the German offensive there was an old Canadian Pacific engine which had done its duty in both places. It is still running along these new lines in France, and is entitled to a locomotive wounded stripe, for it was a casualty during the recent heavy fighting. Manned by a Canadian crew, this mogul from the prairies did consistently good work until a fragment of shell laid it out. Now it has been through the casualty clearing shop for engines, and is running steadily.

The Canadian railway operating companies did their own little share in frustrating the Hun attack. One Canadian engine was attached to a long ammunition train, which was caught when the enemy shelled and bombed a narrow funnel through which many trains had to pass at that time. The crew stayed with the train, and when morning and peace dawned found two dead engines and an empty train ahead of them on a track that even a construction train would not dare. These Canadians pushed the engines ahead of them and into a much bombed siding, then ran their own train along a skyline which the Huns had observation on, and into their appointed dumps in a little sheltered valley.

Another Canadian engine, with empty trucks, found itself in the maelstrom near Albert, took its chance of having the line behind it broken, and then came victoriously through with luck. One engine after clearing stations, bag, baggage, nurses and all. Some of the railway operating crews worked 36 hours at a stretch during the crisis, and took tremendous chances, but always came through with luck. On eengine after two solid days' work hauled fifty trucks and four dead engines back to safety, over a congested track, its crew having to be a brakesmen, signalman, despatcher, and everything.

How many of these Canadian engines are now running on the military lines in France cannot be told.

The Value of the British Navy

That distinguished American writer, Admiral Mahan wrote:

Why do English innate political conceptions of popular representative Government of the balance of law and liberty, prevail in North America from the Arctic Circle to the Gulf of Mexico, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Because the command of the sea at the decisive era belonged to Great Britain. In India and Egypt administrated efficiency has taken the place of a welter of tyranny, feudal struggle, and bloodshed, achieving thereby the comparative welfare of the once hurried populations. What underlies this administrative efficiency, the British navy, urging in the first place British control and hereafter communication with the home country, whence comes the local power without which administration everywhere is futile, what at the moment when the Munroe Doctrine was proclaimed, insured beyond peradventure, the immunity from foreign oppression of the Spanish-American colonies in their struggle for independence? The command of the sea by Britain backed by the feeble navy, but imposing strategic position of the United States, with her sworm of potential commerce-destroyers, which, a decade before had harassed the trade even of the Masters of the Seas.

CHIEF CONSTABLES OPPOSED TO POLICE JOINING TRADE UNIONS

Recognize Their Value for Other Workingmen — Law Against Loafing Regarded as An Advance in Public Efficiency.

CHIEF THOMPSON'S ADDRESS

HAMILTON, July 17.—In a resolution moved by Chief Inspector Kennedy of Toronto, and seconded by Chief Thompson of Peterboro, the Chief Constables Association in convention here expressed their opposition to the idea of policemen belonging to trade unions .By this motion the government will be asked to enacted legislation making it an offence for members of any police force or any other persons engaged in the administration of law and justice to belong to trade unions or to become affiliated with any kindred organization.

Mention was made of the value of trades unions in bettering and ameliorating the conditions of the people industrially and economically, but it was felt policemen should not be affiliated with them.

SHOULD TAKE FINGER PRINTS

Chief Burton of Regina, during the course of his address, asked for greater co-operation between police departments of various cities and towns throughout the Dominion. He also expressed himself as being strongly in favor of the general use of the finger print system and taking the photo of every prisoner charged with a criminal offence. These finger prints and photos, Chief Burton said, should be sent to the heads of the police departments throughout the country.

During the discussion which followed Chief Whatley of this city said he thought something should be done to prevent the granting of bail to pickpockets and others who were being held for trial, pending investigation as to their records.

NO USE FOR POLICE UNIONS

William Banks, editor of the Police Bulletin, Toronto, said he was still a member of a trade union in good standing, but thought it was decidedly wrong for police officers to organize unions.

THE LOAFING LAW

Inspector Gregory, Toronto, wound up the night session by reading a paper on matters in general. First he touched on the idlers' act which, he said, should not be repealed by any means, but should always be enforced with discretion. The measure was a good one and tended to obliterate society's parasites. Wastefulness of any kind during these times was a crime, he said, and should be eliminated by whatever means possible. He bitterly arraigned the drug habit which he characterized as one of society's greatest scourges. Happily he observed, the menace was rapidly waning. The menace in Toronto was well in hand, thanks to the attention the police authorities had given to it. The speaker also dealt with the O.T.A., also the venereal diseases measure. He said a Toronto magistrate had told him that the latter was one of Ontario's most drastic enactments.

CHIEF THOMPSON'S ADDRESS

In a brief address introducing a resolution requesting the Legislature to increase the fees of Crown witnesses Chief Thompson spoke as follows:—

Evidence is information which tends to refuse or establish the commission of a crime or a violation of the rights of another. It may be oral documentary or in the form of exhibits.

Oral testimony is given by word of mouth under oath or affirmation before any Court of Justice or Officer thereof appointed for the purpose of holding any trial, hearing, investigation, examination or other proceeding authorized by law. Documentary evidence consists of papers, books, etc., produced for the inspection of the court or officer presiding at a hearing or proceeding.

Exhibits are weapons, drugs, poisons, etc., or things directly relative to the matter under consideration.

All persons arrested for criminal offences are necessarily arraigned in a Police Magistrates Court or before two Justice's. In cases over which they have not absolute Judisdiction, the Magistrate holds what is known as a preliminary investigation for the purpose of determining whether or not there has been established a Prima-faci case supported by the evidence which would appear to show that a crime has been committed.

The object of this procedure is to give the prisoner an opportunity for an immediate hearing and to prevent the clogging of the higher Courts with cases in which the evidence could not possibly secure a conviction. In all preliminary examinations it is necessary for the Crown to summon witnesses for which the statutes provide no means of paying their expenses. It seems most unfair and unreasonable to ask any person to travel in some cases for miles, pay their own hotel expenses, lose their time and not receive any remuneration for it. But when the preliminary trial is concluded and the prisoner is committed for trial, the witnesses are told that the will be needed when the case comes up before a judge or jury. They go away realizing that they have been fairly treated and feeling that the administration of justice is a common farce. As you no doubt are an aware that those who give information to the officer or evidence for the crown usually create a feeling of enmity rather than one of good will. And I believe it is because of these facts which I have mentioned that the officer frequently finds it very hard to get the information which the citizen is in possesion of and very often the connecting link in the case. Whereas if the witnesses summoned to court were properly recompensed for their time and trouble while attending court, they would not withhold the necessary information.

It is the above mentioned facts which prompted me to prepare this short paper for the consideration of this convention.

In conclusion I would therefore move that this Association ask the Legislature to consider the advisability of increasing the present scale of crown witness fees, and that Crown witnesses summoned to attend at preliminary investigations for criminal offences be allowed the same fees as when attending at a trial when the prisoner is committed or elects to be tried before a judge or jury.

East Peterboro Registration

The returns for the registration of the man and woman power of Canada in the district of East Peterborough, have just been sent in to the Canada Registration Board at Ottawa.

While the report has been about completed, for some days a few minor details had to be obtained before the report could finally be submitted. The fact that the registration day was about the last day of the school term, many of the school teachers, who acted as deputy registrars, had dispersed for the holidays, so when further details were asked for a delay was caused in locating them, and this caused some delay in completing the returns. Naturally also, in a district of such wide area, being nearly sixty miles in length and thirty wide, and in most parts inaccessible except by stage or car, there has been some delay in obtaining many details necessary to make the report complete.

Few people have any conception of the immense amount of detail such a work as the registration of man and woman power of the country involves. If such a work is to be of any service it must be accurate and reliable. In compiling the necessary information, the registrar availed himself of the clerical help of the Nelson Typewriter Company, where it was done most efficiently.

The Registration.

The information secured by this registration will be of immense benefit to the government in shaping legislation and conditions for the future. Our arch enemy has had the benefit of such knowledge for many years, and it has enabled them to intelligently legislate for their country and bring it to such a degree of efficiency as we have to acknowledge they possess at the present time. If our Empire does not want to be handicapped in the world race in the future, as they undoubtedly have been in the past by German efficiency, they will have to take every advantage possible of the means at their disposal, not the least of which the knowledge they have obtained by the registration of man and woman power of the Dominion.

Too much praise cannot be given to the teachers of the schools, who acted as deputy registrars at the several booths, for the splendid and patriotic manner in which they carried out the work assigned to them. This is the first time they have ever been entrusted with such a public task and it stands to the credit of our educational system that they have such a splendid and patriotic body of teachers in charge of the education of the youth of our country.

Divided Into Districts.

The whole riding was divided into districts and a prominent resident was asked to have a general supervision over the locality in which he resided. These district deputy-registrars gave their time free, and in many cases supplied their own cars or modes of conveyance free of charge. Special mention should be made of the splendid work done in this respect by the Rev. R. McEachern of Keene, Mr Matthew Breckenridge of Westwood, Rev. Percy Robert of Indian River, Rev. W. H. Noble of Norwood, Mr. John Davidson of Havelock, Mr. Robert Duff of Lakefield, Rev. D. Clare of Warsaw.

The registrar was greatly assisted also by Public School Inspector Richard Lees, who took great pride from the fact that the teachers under his supervision were asked to take such a prominent part in such an important national undertaking and who did such credit to themselves.

A Big Rush.

Most of the registration was done prior to registration day, so there was no great rush at any of the registration booths on that day. Some surprises at the largeness of the totals at the more populous centres and the smallness of the totals in the less populous districts. This is partly accounted for by the fact that many of the female registrants were averse to letting it be known—especially to one of their own sex—as to their age and other personal matters.

In such a rural constituency it was rather surprising to find that so many men who had farming experience (over 400) offered their services to help on the farms during harvest. Especially was this so at Havelock, where there are so many railroad men, who offered almost to a man to assist on the farms if required.

The government in this time of stress called for voluntary workers to assist in this important work, and their appeal was not in vain. Those who have assisted and given their time and services free have the conciousness of knowing that they have done "their bit" to assist in "winning this war," and are entitled to the thanks of the people at large. That the country has been saved a very large expenditure at the present time, when our government have to resort to such stremous means to provide for the boys at the front, is a matter of mutual congratulation.

The total number of registrants was 9,246, of which 4,473 were males and 4,773 were females, making a majority of 300 females over males.

Over Two Hundred Registrars.

There were two hundred and thirty-nine persons acting as deputy registrars and assistants.

The names of the deputy registrars who had charge of districts, are as follows:

Rev. R. R. McEachern, Keene district.
Matthew Breckenridge, Westwood district.
Dr. Hess (Reeve), Hastings, S. E.
Asphodel district.
Rev. W. H. Noble, Norwood district.
Rev. Percy Robert, Indian River district.
Mark Burnham, North Otonabee district.
Charles Brown, Southwest Douro district.
Robert Duff, Lakefield district.
Rev. D. Clare, Warsaw district.
John Davidson, Havelock and Tp. of Belmont.
Wm. Stone, South-west Burleigh.
N. McLean (Reeve), Apsley and North Burleigh.
Miss Booth, Anstruther.
Mrs. M. F. Smith, South-west Chandos.
Fred Bullied (Reeve), North-east Chandos.
I. F. Woodbeck, South-east Chandos.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, registrar for the district of East Peterborough, desires to publicly thank all those who so patriotteally assisted in the successful carrying out of the work of registration.

JEWS LEAN TO THE ALLIES.

Fearful in Austria of the Central Powers' Course Toward Them.

WASHINGTON, July 18. — The Jews of Austria, according to an official dispatch from Amsterdam, are showing their sympathy for the Entente. In this connection, the following passage is quoted from the Lemberg Tageblatt:

"The difference in attitude between the two groups of belligerents is becoming more accentuated. The Entente is about to do more and more for us, whereas the Central Powers promise less and less. If we were to draw up a list of the shortcomings of our Government, the censor would leave nothing but blank spaces.

"We Austrian Israelites find ourselves more and more drawn toward the attempt of abandon our neutrality and forcibly renouncing our rights as citizens to declare ourselves on the side which upholds the interests of the Israelites."

TO-DAY WAS TO MARK END OF THE WAR

Germany Set July 18 as Date For the War to End.

According to statements made by enemy prisoners some time ago today was to mark the end of the war.

When the drive started in the spring the soldiers were stirred with promises that it would be the last push. When the leaders realized that the advance was halted a new story was circulated that Paris would be captured June 28, and that the Kaiser had already arranged to take his breakfast there. Now that this dream is impossible of realization, a new date has been fixed.

One development of this system of putting forward the date for the war to end is that the soldiers are beginning to realize the kind of a game that is being played on them. Prisoners declare that in many units of the German army there is a well-defined plan among the soldiers, in case the war does not end by July 18, to refuse to fight any longer. They say that the German war party is apprehensive of troubles in the army similar to those in the navy last year They claim that discontent is growing and desertions increasing.

CONFIRMATION OBTAINED

Prisoners' statements are always accepted with a grain of salt on account of their usual servility and their eagerness to please their captors. In this instance, the confirmation of the report of a new date for the end of the war seems to justify the belief that it is a part of the well-known German policy of encouraging the men.

Death of Three Cows From White Paint Should Be Warning

Farmers who use white lead in the painting of their stables should be warned by a recent experience of the Nicholls Hospital Board, in which three of the hospital's cows died after eating old paint that had been thrown into a remote part of their pasture with other rubbish. The pasture was rented from Mr. James Finnie, who after using the greater part of a pail of high grade white lead, threw the container into what seemed an out of the way part of the field with other rubbish. The cows wandered finally to this part of the field and in their foraging sampled the contents of the paint pail. They soon after became sick, and although a veterinary was called they died from the effects of the white lead. The experience proved a costly one in the loss of the three cows, but it should be heeded by the public especially by owners of cows to whom the moral will be obvious.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The Federal Food Board announced to-night that it had received a statement from the United States Food Administration showing that nearly 100,000,000 pounds of beef was sent aboard in May, principally to England, France, Italy and Belgium.

The shipments for the month surpassed any previous record in the history of the country. While pork exports were 231,335,000 pounds for the same month, they were slightly less than in April.

ALDERMEN OBJECT TO WOMAN'S APPOINTMENT

KITCHENER, July 17.—Because Fuel Commissioner John Lang dispensed with the services of one young lady, who only worked half of each day, and appointed another young lady to work full time, at a saving of $9 a week in wages, Alderman Ritz and Alderman Beam raised a storm in the council meeting here, on the grounds that the change was made without consulting the council.

Alderman Bowman, after remonstrating with the objecting aldermen, asked them if they desired to parade a modest young lady before the council to be looked over and sized up before being hired. He considered the objection an insult to Fuel Commissioner Lang.

Anglesey, Rubidge street, met with an uncommon mishap last night, when his automobile caught fire while he was driving it in Monaghan, and was extensively damaged before he could extinguish the flames. AMERICAN NEGRO TROOPS HELPING TO HOLD LINE

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE MARNE, July 18.—American negro troops are helping to hold the allied line against the fifth German offensive. They requested the favor of being permitted to take over a part of the line of attack, though they had been holding a piece of a French sector for the last three months without relief.

FOOT INJURED.

Rev. Father Gorman Sprained An Ankle on Church Steps.

Rev. Father Gorman, curate of the Church of the Sacred Heart, sprained an ankle on the steps at the church last night, and will probably be unable to attend to his duties for some days. O'Brien, has been ill for several weeks with a severe attack of tonsilitis.

COW AT LARGE.

Throw Back to Village Days in Police Court To-day.

A case in Police Court this morning seemed like a reversion to the village days, which Peterborough fancied it had long since outgrown. Fred. Palen was fined $5.60 for permitting his cow to graze on the street. In its search for a change of diet it strayed into Mr. Russell Copping's garden at 788 Aylmer St.

ONE TOWN CAPTURED

Guns Captured.

The Allies have captured several thousand prisoners and about 20 guns. The French move this morning appeared to have been a surprise to the Germans. The manner in which this surprise was accomplished may best be judged from the map, which shows a great area of forest covering behind the French line. Under cover of these forests General Foch has been preparing for some time for the present move.

LONDON, July 1[illegible]. — American troops were engaged with the French to a considerable extent in this morning's big victory on a 25-mile front. Advices say that the Americans went over the top with excellent spirit and discipline, and were responsible for the capture of twelve towns and villages, as well as many positions and guns. The important German railway centre is now menaced.

LONDON, July 18.—Reports this afternoon says that the French have gained from two to four miles everywhere on a 25-mile front of this morning's attack. Many prisoners and guns were taken. The advance continues.

CROP PROSPECTS GOOD.

Railway Official's Conclusions Following Western Tour.

"After an extended tour through the West, both over the C.P.R. and other lines, during which I looked carefully into crop prospects, I think it is safe to conclude that, with the increased acreage under cultivation, Western Canada this year will produce at least as many bushels of grain as last year, provided, of course, that conditions continue as favourable as they are at present." This was the statement made on July 15th by Mr. C. E. McPherson, assistant passenger traffic manager of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, while in Montreal on a business trip.

Mr. McPherson said that in some parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan drought and winds had cut into the possibilities of the harvest very seriously, while in larger districts recent rains had helped the growing grain along wonderfully, so that where a few weeks ago there was little in sight it now seemed likely there would be at least fair crops. In Manitoba, which province had during recent years fallen behind in wheat production, Mr. McPherson said the prospects were particularly good, with a largely increased area of wheat acreage, and every prospect of abundant yields.

So far as passenger business was concerned, Mr. McPherson said that the roads in the west had never done better than during the present year. As to American tourist business, particularly toward the far west, Mr. McPherson said it was too early to make any predictions, but the prospects pointed to at least as good a season as last year, while the number of visitors to the Rocky Mountain resorts was well up to the average.

Mr. McPherson will return to Winnipeg in a few days.

ALLIED FORCES ARE WITHIN A MILE OF SOISSONS

Maximum Penetration is Eight Miles—Allied Offensive Was Resumed This Morning.

CAVALRY IN ACTION

PARIS, July 19.—The drive was resumed this morning on a wide front. The maximum penetration made by the Allies is estimated at eight miles, bringing them at one point within a mile of Soissons. Cavalry is in action, and the Allies are pushing forward behind a rolling barrage.

Twenty-eight miles is the length of the front on which General Mangin made the attack yesterday. The enemy was totally surprised. The Allies now occupy the plateau dominating Soissons, and have recaptured twenty villages in all.

CAVALRY IN ACTION.

AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, July 19.—The Americans went so rapidly after getting over the top that the cavalry was put into action.

ROOSEVELT A PRISONER.

NEW YORK, July 19.—A cablegram received here says Quentin Roosevelt is thought to have landed safely, and is now a prisoner.

ENEMY LOSSES.

LONDON, July 19. — Evening papers agree that the German losses in the past two days are a hundred thousand, while the French and Americans will not reach over twenty-five thousand.

THURSDAY EVENING BULLETINS.

ADVANCED THREE MILES.

PARIS, July 18. — French troops have gained River Crise, running into Soissons, on a five-mile front, down to the east of Buzancy. American divisions, in counter-attacking, have captured the town of Bwierzy, six miles south of Soissons, and advanced three miles beyond the town. They captured four thousand prisoners, taking thirty guns and other war materials.

FLANK MENACED.

PARIS, July 18.—The afternoon official reports indicate that the Allied offensive continues with better success even than expected. Progress continues at all points. The Germans were repulsed in counter-attacks, while the German flank is menaced.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—General Pershing's report says the Americans have taken the offensive with dash and gallantry, and are still advancing. The towns of Torcy and Mivry and Givry Wood were taken by the Americans in their advance.

News from all sectors to-day is good. The Germans have made no progress, and all attacks were broken up with heavy loss to the enemy.

FIFTH IN A SERIES OF OFFENSIVES SINCE MARCH

First, Started March 21, Created a Salient Whose Sides Couldn't Be Widened—Germans on Defensive for Last Month, Barring the Assault on Rheims.

ATTEMPT TO BREAK LINES

The fifth in the German series of offensives begun since March 21 covers a front of sixty-five miles, extending from Chateau-Thierry, east up the Marne to beyond Dormans, then north-east with a semi-circle north of Rheims, then due east to the Main de Massiges. This last is a hill thirty-two miles from Rheims and six miles west of the Argonne Forest.

A year ago the Imperial Crown Prince, from April until nearly the end of July, attempted to break the French lines between Rheims and the Argonne Forest, alternating his attacks here with others on the Aisne, these last principally to recover the Chemin des Dames. He failed, using up seventy divisions in three months, with a total casualty list which is said to have approached half a million. Then the front became comparatively static until, on the first of the present month, the Germans attempted a rush from the semi-circle on Rheims with three divisions, supported by two others, and were either held or made to relinquish newly acquired positions by barrage and infantry counter-attacks.

The offensive begun on March 21, called the Battle of Picardy, was launched from a sixty-mile base and attained a forty-mile perpendicular, with its vertex on the Somme, six miles east of Amiens. Its objects were twofold: (1) To reach Abbeville and the sea, with the corollary of isolating the armies north of the river and investing the Channel ports, and (2) to annihilate the French Army or force it back on the defences of Paris, with whatever corollary that situation might produce on the French body politic.

But the flanks of the Picardy salient held—in the north from the ridges protecting Ypres and Arras; on the south by the French positions on the Chemin des Dames, and the watersheds of the Ailette, Oise and Aisne.

A series of attempts to force the southern barriers having failed, the Germans on April 9 attempted to force the northern ones. They thus developed between Ypres and Arras, from a base of twenty miles, with a perpendicular of fifteen, what is known as the Lys salient. This was nearer Ypres than it was Arras; and for twenty miles north of Arras the line, including the Lens sector, has remained static to this day.

The Lys salient being held on its flanks, just as the Picardy salient was held, the Germans' next move was to return to their failure at this salient's southern barriers.

The Third.

On Mar 27 they launched their third offensive from Noyon over a front of forty miles to Rheims. They crossed the Aisne on an eighteen-mile front and reached the Marne on a six-mile front, between Chateau-Thierry and Dormans. They managed to deploy to some extent on the east of the Marne front, but were held on the north bank of the river.

This third offensive was stopped and neutralized on May 31. On June 9 the enemy, on an extension of its base westward, between Noyon and Montdidier—twenty miles—launched the fourth offensive with Compiegne as its obvious objective. His maximum penetration was seven and a half miles, which immediate counter-attacks reduced to less than five. It was held almost from the first and died away on June 11.

Both the third and fourth offensives were rendered abortive by the Allied troops, instead of retreating before the enemy's advance, deploying right and left, thus strengthening the flanks—making them in these instances invulnerable—and depending on prepared positions to stop the enemy's centre.

From June 11 until yesterday the Germans, save for their assault on Rheims on July 1, have been practically on the defensive, while limited local offensive made by the Allies from Ypres down to Chateau-Thierry and almost daily air operations over the enemy's supply bases and lines of communication, have broken up his formations, delayed his concentrations, and robbed him of several valuable strategic positions—east of the Forest of Nieppe in the Lys salient, north and south of the Somme before Amiens, north-west and south-east of Montdidier, north-west and south-east of Soissons, and finally north-west of Chateau-Thierry, where the Americans, first, from June 6 to June 12, and then on July 3, gained ground, including the strategic position of Vaux, which measurably strengthened the French positions as far north as the Soissons sector and protected the Marne from an enemy crossing west of Chateau-Thierry.

Moth's wing brown is a new colour.

GRAIN MARKET

Bidding is strong for Ontario cash oats and barley, and quotations are nominally 10 cents higher on barley in the farmers' market, and oats 3 cents higher. There is very little left to come out, if any, though there may be a car here and there in some of the country elevators. The advances therefore are almost purely nominal. The option markets are again weak, under the influence of favourable conditions everywhere. Corn at Chicago went back 4 1-8 cents, July oats were 3-4 cents off in Chicago, but steady and unchanged at Winnipeg. Oats are already being cut in some of the Southern States.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2c. tax, in store, Fort William.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 87c. to 88c., nominal; No. 2 white, 86c. to 87c.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 42 cars, with 271 cattle, 158 cattle, 1,375 hogs, and 215 sheep.

Cattle market was steady, with a light run offering, and a moderately active demand sufficient to make a fairly good clean up at prices steady with Wednesday's market. The exception to the general run of the market was a bunch of fine choice heavy steers, over 1,300 pounds, sold by Dunn and Levack at $15, the top price for the past two weeks' markets. For the general run of the market, mostly poor quality stuff, the demand is none too active, and trade is inclined to drag.

There is a fair enquiry for choice quality stockers.

Calves steady to firm.

Lambs weak. Sheep steady.

Hogs firm at $18.50, fed and watered, a general advance of 25c. for the week.

LONDON, July 18.—It is learned from official Serbian sources that Austria-Hungary has confiscated the whole of this year's Serbian harvest, as well as the rations allowed the previous year. The Serbian people, therefore, are faced with starvation, besides which they are experiencing a further reign of terror and cruelty.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

GEORGE IS ANNOYED

CHAPTER CXXII.

"What in the world are you all painted up like that for?" George asked as I sat down to dinner. "For goodness' sake, go to your room and wash your face." He spoke as if I were a child.

"I haven't been feeling very well, George, and I looked so white I thought I had better fix up a little."

"A little! You know very well that I don't object to a woman's doing anything in her power to improve her looks, but to make yourself look like a caricature is another thing. Where was Celeste?"

"She urged me not to come down to dinner, but I insisted," I replied, anxious to save the maid a scolding.

George got up from the table and, taking his handkerchief, he rubbed it across both cheeks, then on my lips. Holding it up he showed me the pink stains.

"You have enough left on now," he said as he returned to his place and commenced to eat his dinner.

The incident, foolishly, made so much of an impression upon me, that I could not eat. I had tried to make myself look well for him—to hide the wearied, anxious look. I had received nothing but criticism for so doing. What was the use in attempting to make myself attractive to so critical a man?

Helen Refuses an Invitation.

After dinner George said:

"I feel inclined to see a show. Get ready and we will go.

"Oh, do let's stay at home to-night, George. I really do not feel very well."

"What's the matter? If you are really ill, why don't you say so and have a doctor? I've no patience with women who imagine they are ill. I hope you aren't going to develop into such a one."

The tears came into my eyes. I tried to hide them, but it was no use, I couldn't.

"Tears again! by gad, Helen! will you never grow old enough to learn not to cry over everything? It makes home a delightful place! Go to bed or anywhere you want to. I hope when I return you will be more agreeable," and without a kiss or another word he left the house.

Then I did cry. All the tears I had held back in the afternoon fell in torrents, and I did not try to hold them back. I just cried and cried. Perhaps I could wash away some of my unhappiness, some of my fears for the future. It was eleven o'clock when I bathed my swollen eyes and crawled into bed. I would pretend to be asleep when George came in; he must's see I had been crying so hard.

I need not have worried. It was two o'clock when he came in; and he did one of those kind acts I always found so unaccountable, especially after he had been angry with me. He went quietly to bed, undressing in the dark so not to waken me.

"Thank God, he didn't turn on the light," I whispered to myself. He had spoken, softly calling my name, asking if I were awake. But I had made no answer.

Weary as I was, I made myself rise at the usual time and take breakfast with George. He hated to eat alone, and I seldom failed to be down when he was.

An Uncomfortable Meal.

My eyes were still slightly swollen and my face showed traces of the storm through which I had passed, the night before. I had dabbed it with powder, but after what he had said the night before I did not dare to rouge for fear he would again find fault.

"What's the matter, Helen? What in the world have you been weeping about now? It surely wasn't because I went out, last night? You could have gone with me, had you cared enough about it to give up crying. If I were to get married again, the first thing I should do would be to find out if the girl I intended to ask to be my wife had outgrown the crying stage. It is absolutely disgusting in a woman grown, especially one who has nothing to cry about!"

"How do you know I have nothing to weep over?" I asked, thinking of my secret and somehow gaining courage to answer.

"It doesn't make any difference what you THINK you have to cry about, you have done enough weeping since I married you to account for all your imgainary woes. Gad, Helen! how many girls have anything like what you do? How many wives would be happy as the day is long if they had one third what you have to make you happy. No cares, no worries, everything you want; go where you please, no children to keep you tied up at home. What in the world you find to weep over, is absolutely beyond me. Do make up your mind to stop it. If you don't I shall hate to come home at all."

"I will stop crying from now on, George, no matter what cause I have, no matter how badly I feel." I meant it too. All suddenly, as he talked, I felt cold and hard. I would not let him see me cry again, as long as I lived.

"I'll believe that when it is proved, not before," he said as he rose from the table.

To-morrow—Working in Secret.

JAPANESE WAS MURDERED.

Act May Have Serious Consequences In Near Future.

To the Japanese Vladivostok is a potential Serajevo of the Far East. The Bolshevist shot which slew Gichi Ishido reverberates in their ears as potentously as did the assassin's revolver crack which precipitated this war. For Ishido's death meant the landing of troops from the Japanese Navy and the possibility of a military expedition into Siberia.

Photographs from Vladivostok and Japanese newspapers telling of the murder of Ishido have just reached America. The newspaper accounts supplement the meagre details cabled at the time, and add one incident almost melodramatic in quality.

Ishido, a prosperous merchant, was seated in his office the morning of April 4 last, when five Russian outlaws, one in the Bolshevist uniform, (according to the Japanese accounts), approached the shop. Three stood guard at the entrance. The others entered Ishido's office. They shot him thrice, and the last bullet, aimed at his heart, was deflected by a nickel cigarette case.

As Ishido lay there, he heard shots in the adjoining room, where two other men of the firm were being wounded, and apparently he supposed all of them would be murdered. The Osaka Mainichi, one of the two largest newspapers in Japan, thus describes the scene after the killing:

"On the floor where Ishido lay the quantity of blood was astounding, but the thing that amazed onlookers still more was the warning written there. Evidently dipping his finger in his own blood, Mr. Ishido had written as follows: 'Rossky, Zoku. Pistol. Kamiya! (Russian. Robber. Pistol. O God!')"

The Osaka Mainichi devoted five columns to a cabled "story" of the killing, which may be regarded as at once an illustration of journalistic enterprise in the Flowery Kingdom and an evidence of the importance of the event to the Oriental mind. It told how the funeral for Ishido was the "greatest international funeral in the history of Vladivostok." More than 1,000 persons attended. Among them were Admiral Knight, commanding the Asiatic fleet of the United States; Rear Admiral Kato, commanding the Japanese squadron which had landed to defend the life and property of their countrymen; the British commander, Consular officers of the allied nations stationed there, and leading citizens, both Russian and Japanese.

Ishido's death came at a crucial moment. The treaty of Brest-Litovsk had been signed, and Russia seemed all but given over to the German invader. Already there had been talk of a military expedition to protect the vast allied military stores at Vladivostok. The killing afforded the opportunity for the landing of the Japanese fighting force.

Willy Always Ruthless.

The death of James Gordon Bennett permits the release of the following story, which he told to a friend in January:

When the present Kaiser's father, Emperor Frederick III., was dying at Mentone, Bennett took Prince Bismarck, the German Chancellor, on his yacht from Beaulieu to Mentone. He waited aboard while Bismarck visited the Emperor.

Bismarck soon returned in great indignation and told Bennett that the Crown Prince (the present Kaiser) appeared in his father's residence, bringing a paper for the latter's signature. The paper was found to be an act of resignation, appointing the Crown Prince as his successor.

Bismarck and the others were so indignant they ousted the Crown Prince from the sick room by main force.

The present Kaiser's father died of cancer June 15, 1888, after a reign of less than four months.

The enmity between Bismarck and Wilhelm II. resulted in the prince, who had created the German empire, being deposed as Chancellor.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

Praying to God. Luke 11:1-13; Ps. 145:18, 19.

Golden Text: Let us therefore draw near with boldness unto the throne of grace that we may receive mercy, and find grace to help us in time of need. Heb. 4:16.

1. Verse 1. What would you consider was the nature of the prayers of Jesus?

2. What reason if any, is there to believe that Jesus would ever use a liturgical form of prayer in his approach to God?

3. Verse 2. Why would you say or not that Jesus meant what we call "the Lord's Prayer," to be used as a form of prayer, or to be suggestive only of the manner and matter of prayer? (See Matt. 6:9.)

4. Verse 2. What would you say is the predominant note in the prayers of all godly people?

5. How and when will it be brought about, when the will of God will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven

6. Verse 3. How many true Christians have you known who have lacked bread or any of the other necessaries of life?

7. What reason is there to justify all who are truly good in feeling absolutely certain that God will provide them with all the temporal things they need?

8. Verse 4. Why would you say or not, that God will never forgive those who will not forgive their fellows?

9. What practical difference is there whether God directly leads us into temptation, or permits the devil to do so?

10. See I Cor. 10:13, and give your opinion as to whether Jesus desires us to pray to be kept from temptation or to be kept from yielding to it?

11. Verses 5-8. Wherein does the disposition of the man in this parable differ from God's disposition?

12. What was it that finally inclined this man to loan his neighbour the loaves that he wanted, and what was it that inclines God to answer our persistent prayers?

13. What is the thought that Jesus wished to convey by this parable?

14. Verses 9, 10. Why may we be absolutely sure that God will, in due time answer every prayer of ours that is for our good?

15. If we pray for all we think we need, but omit a great many things that we do not think of, may we rest in confidence that we shall get all we do need? Why?

16. Verses 11, 12. If a true Christian asks for a stone, thinking it is the bread he needs, what will he get, and why?

17. Verse 13. If God is as willing to give the Holy Spirit to those who ask, as parents are to give good things to their children, how is it that so few claim to have the Holy Spirit? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

18. Ps. 145:18, 19. Why would you say or not that it is our privilege to realize the presence of God as fully as we do the presence of those whom we see?

19. Is it possible and practical for us to be perfectly restful, fully contented, and to have unshaken faith all the time. Give your reasons.

20. What is your conception of the future of the wicked who die in their sins?

A PLEA FOR IRISH RECRUITS

Recently Appointed Council Says This Is No Hour for Bargain.

LONDON, July 18.—The following appeal, signed by the four members of the recently appointed Recruiting Council, has been issued as "An appeal to all Irishmen."

Fellow Countrymen—At the request of His Excellency, the Viceroy of Ireland, we four Irishmen have undertaken to organize a campaign of voluntary enlistment to be carried on by our own people, by their own methods, in their own way.

Conscious of the difficulties that beset our path we nevertheless believe that we shall receive the willing support of all, even those who are suffering under mismanagement and disappointed hope, for all must realize that the first essential of peaceful settlement of our country's troubles must be the defeat of the traducer of honour and of our common Christianity.

The very darkness which broods upon our country urges each man of courage and true heart to seek some enterprise where forgetfulness of sorrow may be found in honourable duty bravely done. The steps are few that Ireland need retrace to find again the path of two short years ago when our sons and brothers marched shoulder to shoulder with the rest of the empire.

Our memories are not yet too dim to recall the scenes that augured the new birth of Irish nationality. Through the angry turmoil of our disappointment and distress our hearts can still remember the tramp of the thousands whom we cheered and blessed. They went in answer to Ireland's call. They left behind them the joy and promise of their youth, their homes, their plighted loved ones, or laughing children, and marched forth upon great adventure. As they pledged their lives our country pledged their lives our country not die in vain, nor should their ranks lack comrades while there was a soul in Erin. Remnants of the Irish brigades are reeling beneath the blow of a tyranny that would quench the lamp of freedom from Europe.

This island is but the cradle of the greater Ireland that lies beyond the seas. That greater Ireland, from Adelaide to Brisbane, from San Francisco to New York, is heart and soul behind the men in Flanders. Our countrymen the world over stand aghast at our inaction, and their friendship is growing cold.

This is no hour for truck or bargain. Whatever bitterness must be felt over the record of opportunites lost or promises unkept, we are confident that an answer to our appeal must come from the heart and conscience of a nation that never yet has sold herself to wrong or asked a price for doing right. We do firmly believe that response to the voice of duty will always prove the truest wisdom and most farsighted statesmanship.

Conscious of weakness in ourselves, but never doubting the power of justice and of right to move the hearts of Irishmen, we appeal to all to join us in this work of patriotism. If all who love liberty, truth and honour will range themselves by our side, our Irish heroes with new strength and hope, will quickly restore the name of Ireland to its honoured place among the nations of the world.

Signed.

A. M. SULLIVAN,
MAURICE DOCKROLL,
H. McLAUGHLIN,
STEPHEN GWYNN,
Irish Recruiting Council,
25 Stephens Green, Dublin.

The signatories to the appeal are Stephen Gwynn, a Nationalist member of Parliament for Galway, who fought in France, and is a member of the Legion of Honour. Sir H. McLaughlin did a great deal of recruiting work early in the war, and is the head of an important building and engineering firm in Dublin. Sergeant A. M. Sullivan, King's Counsel, is a distinguished Dublin lawyer, son of the late A. M. Sullivan, Irish member of Parliament, and nephew of T. D. Sullivan, Fenian poet, who wrote "God Save Ireland." Sir Maurice Dockroll is a Southern Unionist, and head of a big contracting firm in Dublin.

HULL WOMAN HAS GAINED 28 POUNDS

Improvement of Mrs. McCann is Talk of Entire Neighborhood.

"My wife has actually gained twenty-eight pounds by taking Tanlac and her wonderful improvement is the talk of all the neighborhood," was the remarkable statement made by John McCann of 197 Laval St., Hull, recently. Mr. McCann has lived in Hull all his life and is well known.

"Yes sir, I can say for a fact," he continued, "my wife hasn't been in such good health before in seven years. She had been in a badly run-down condition for about that long and gradually got worse in spite of all she could do. She had no appetite, seldom ate any breakfast, and very little at any time. She was so nervous she couldn't sleep well, and so weak she could hardly get about the house, much less do any of her work. It seemed like she would almost die at times with sick headaches. She often had dizzy spells and would get so sick and weak she would just have to give up and go to bed. She looked pale and sallow and had fallen off in weight from one hundred and twenty-eight pounds to one hundred and ten.

"I had seen Tanlac so highly recommended that I finally got a bottle for her and I have never seen such a wonderful improvement in anyone. Soon after she commenced taking it she began to pick up and look better. She has taken five bottles now, and she has not only gotten back to her old weight of one hundred and twenty-eight pounds, but she has actually gone ten pounds above that, as she now weighs one hundred and thirty-eight Her appetite is splendid and she's never bothered with nervous headaches or dizziness any more. She does all her housework besides taking care of five children and never complains of feeling tired. We are both simply delighted over the way Tanlac has built her up and we never miss a chance to boost it. Our neighbors have been astonished over the results and they all tell her she looks like a different person."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

"Botulism" has an unpleasant ring in the ears. In plain English it means poisoning from the eating of canned vegetables or fruits.

There is no reason why there should be one case of botulism in Canada this year provided the war garden produce is properly handled. No bacterial life exists, or can exist, in successfully canned products Bacillus botulinus will never be found in properly canned goods.

Cooking canned vegetables for ten minutes at the boiling point after opening the jar for use will remove any danger in cases where complete success has not rewarded the afforts of the amateur canner.

WANT CANADIAN FORESTERS.

Their Work Highly Appreciated By British Officials.

LONDON, July 18. — Minister Kemp has received from Lord Weir, Secretary of State for the Royal Air Force, a request for further assistance from the Canadian Forestry and in the construction of aerodromes in England and France. Lord Weir writes: "The Canadian Foresters are so well fitted and equipped for this class of work that a great economy of labour is effected by their employment. It has been estimated that one company of Canadians, 170 strong, with their labor-saving equipment, is equivalent at least to six hundred of the ordinary labour we can obtain at home."

A similar letter was previously received from Lord Derby.

SAVE YOUR ONIONS

The onion maggot differs from the cabbage-maggot in its habits in that it deposits its eggs mainly on the leaves and stem of the onions and the young maggots find their way down into the bulb, where they soon reduce the interior to a rotten condition. If you ntice that the the young onions are dropping and the leaves are wilted and discolored it will generally be found that the maggot is responsible for this condition. Bulbs thus affected should be destroyed by burning. If they are put in the compost heap the fly will be propagated.

One peculiarity of the onion maggot is that there are two or three broods of the fly in a year and the second crop of flies usually appears about the middle of July. Where trouble is anticipated it is a good thing to try the following poisoned bait: Sodium arsenate, ¼ oz; molasses, 1 quart; water, 1 gallon. Apply the mixture in strips across the plot with a watering can.

LEADS CZECH THOUGHT

PROF. MASARYK IS A CHAMPION OF LIBERTY.

Driven From Prague Because of His Influence Among Bohemians, the Famous Slav Thinker Has Done Great Work for the Allies and for Liberty of His Oppressed Fellow-Countrymen.

On his way from the Far West to Washington a hale and vigorous old professor stopped off at Chicago the other day and found himself the shy and unexpected object of a great popular demonstration. From all parts of the city his fellow-countrymen, and others from the oppressed nations of middle and eastern Europe — when they heard he was coming—rose up to do him honor. They greeted him with an acclaim which affected him deeply. He spoke a few words to them, then moved towards the capitol. What he has done there will be known all in good time. There is only one Prof. Masaryk in the whole work, and his visit to America at the present time holds deep and singular significance. Masaryk appears on this continent as the leading representative of all Slavs now struggling in Europe against the subjugation of free peoples. He is the greatest of Bohemians, the foe of Austro-Hungarian policy, the spokesman of Slav aspirations. Since the war began, he has become a figure of outstanding importance, not only to the peoples whose hopes he voices, but also to the Allies, to whom he and these peoples are friendly. Even if his past, before the war, had not been distinguished for great services in the cause of justice and popular rights, his services since would entitle him to our esteem. England and France recognized long ago the quality of this man when, owing to his relentless attacks upon Austro-Hungary at the commencement of the war, his teaching career at Prague was suddenly ended and he became an honored outcast from that country. It was England that then invited him to undertake a Slavonic professorship at the University College in London, and France that was glad to listen to his lectures at the University of Paris. What Prague has lost—and let us hope that Prague may some day regain it — London and Paris have gained.

Prof. Masaryk is now sixty-eight years of age, at the intellectual height of his career. What a long time ago it is since, as a poor boy in the Moravian town of Hodonin, the future Czech teacher began his schooling. What a long time since that famous essay of his on "Suicide as a Social Phenomenon"—in which, dealing with one of the saddest pathological symptoms of the then contemporary Europe, he ascribed the chief cause to a decay of religious sentiment—drew the attention of European thinkers, and assured the young professor at Vienna University a firm place in European thought. He was then just short of thirty. How long ago, too, it is since, after years of pleading by the Bohemians for a university of their own, Taafe granted the request, and the Czech University was founded at Prague. That was in 1882, and it was Masaryk who became the new University's professor of philosophy. In this capacity, as an interpreter of modern movements of thought and of the great philosophers of the past —particularly the English school— Masaryk promptly made his mark upon the intellectual life of Bohemia. No one who has followed the course of European learning fails to appreciate the value of Masaryk's work in the '80's, and no one who now looks back upon it fails to see that, in the influence which he exerted on his students, he was building for a great future for his country—a future that all freedom-loving peoples hope may be realized when the present war is past.

Yes, it was a long time ago — so long, indeed, that one almost forgets that in those 80's Masaryk made himself a well-hated man. The story is worth telling, because it brings out a point about Masaryk's character which must be emphasized—namely, that he always believes in the truth —and tells truth—at all costs. The story concerns itself with the famous "Battle of the Manuscripts" which for many years had been waged between German and Bohemian men of learning regarding the authenticity of the famous Grunberg and Koniginhof treasures. These manuscripts, on which Bohemia prided itself, as dating Bohemian literature back to the tenth and eleventh centuries, had been discovered at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and, notwithstanding attacks upon them by German scholars, had been held in veneration by Bohemia. It will be realized, therefore, that when Masaryk took sides with the German scholars and began a pitiless attack on the Koniginhof manuscript, the opposition against him personally became violent. He was accused of unpatriotism and bad scholarship. But he kept up his attack until it was absolutely proved that this MS. was a forgery, and thereby vindicated his scholarship. "It was not," he remarked later, "merely a matter of the genuine or false character of the manuscript, but of vindicating the liberty of every man to give expression at all times and places to his scientific convictions."

Two years of Parliament proved to Masaryk that the Czechs possessed no real national policy. Most of Bohemia was living in its past. Its political life was weak and barren of ideas. The mere assertion of Czech rights in Parliament appeared to gain meagre results. So he resigned his seat. As one of his biographers has said: "Already the problem of small nations had begun to haunt him. He held that a small nation in so difficult a position as Bohemia could maintain its individuality only by hard and persistent effort, alike in the intellectual, the moral and material fields. Above all, he opposed the wornout method of combating German influence merely by the glorification of Bohemia's past. He never hesitated to tell his people unpalatable truths and to oppose false forms of patriotism."

So the professor left his seat in Parliament, went back to his university, and began to teach the virtues of self-reliance and a more practical kind of patriotism. At this time, he was a strong anti-Prussian and a firm believer in Russia as the high champion of Slav hopes. To his students he expounded the gospel of studying conditions as they actually existed politically and of trying to gauge the results of those conditions on the Bohemia of the future. These students went out into the world of political thought carrying with them a new conception of their individual duties to the nation. Thus the power of Masarky increased in a way that would never have been accomplished had he remained a deputy. Yet he was never unready to risk his growing popularity as a leader when truth demanded his support of an unpopular cause. In the Ritual Murder trial, for example, he ran directly counter to a strong public opinion when, "by an array of historical, philosophical and even criminological arguments he proved the rank absurdity of the popular belief."

The "Realist" party, famous for its activities in Bohemian political affairs in the years just before the war, was founded by Prof. Masaryk in 1900. Its avowed aim was philosophical and docile, as well as political. Its centre was the university which its founder had served so long—its branches in every part where his most progressive pupils had carried his teachings. When a strong party had been formed behind him, Masaryk went back to Parliament in 1907.

These were the wild days of the Bosnian troubles, and the Serbs were existing in a state of terror. Shortly followed many opportunities for Masaryk to show that he was not only a real political leader, but also a true fighting Czech.—J. W. Smith, in Boston Transcript.

ARCHIMEDES AND HIS LEVER.

The Feat of Raising the Earth From a Scientific Viewpoint.

"Give me a fulcrum and a place on which to stand and I will raise the earth from its place!" That is a saying popularly attributed to Archimedes. If the required conditions were possible the feat might be performed, but in addition to providing a fulcrum and a place on which to stand Archimedes would also have to be furnished an indefinite lease of life.

To raise the earth a height of one inch by the force which Archimedes would have been capable of exerting would take not only an extremely long lever, but an extremely long time, as can be readily shown.

We shall assume the following data in our calculation: That the earth is a sphere 7,926 miles in diameter and that 5.5 is its mean density; also that the lever has no weight. Should we design a real lever it would be of such enormous size and weight that Archimedes' weight would be a negligible quantity.

If the earth is 7,926 miles in diameter the volume is about 261,000,000,000 cubic miles, or 38,400,000,000,000,000,000,000 cubic feet, and if the density is 5.5 the weight per cubic foot would be about 344 pounds, which multiplied by the volume would give as the weight of the earth 13,209,600,000,000,000,000,000,000 pounds. We shall assume, further, that Archimedes weighed 150 pounds and that "the place on which to stand" was some distant star; then, if the fulcrum is one mile from the point of application of the lever to the earth the length of the power arm of the lever, or the distance of Archimedes' "standing place," would have to be 88,064,000,000,000,000,000 miles.

To move the earth a distance of one inch Archimedes' end of the lever would have to move through a distance of 1,388,000,000,000,000,000 miles. Now, if Archimedes should take hold of the end of the lever and apply his weight of 150 pounds to it and should move off into space with the velocity of light, or 186,000 miles a second, it would take him 237,000 years to finish the job he proposed, so that now, nearly 2,200 years after making the famous dictum, he would barely have started the undertaking.—C. O. Sandstrom in Scientific American.

NOTHING CAN COMPARE WITH IT

Mr. Fred Adams, New Rose N.S., writes—"I have tried many medicines for coughs and colds but never found anything to compare to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We have had the greatest satisfaction with this medicine for it never fails to relieve a cough and loosen it up."

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE PIECE KIMONO WAIST.

Absolute simplicity is the rule where this one piece kimono blouse is concerned, but the result is very artistic. As there are no visible seams to break the charm, there is a splendid opportunity to use one of the new patterned silks to good effect. The waist closes at the back, and the only trimming consists of rows of trimming set very close together. The neck is cut round and two outlines are given in the pattern, so that it may be cut high or low. The sleeves are short, but they may have deep cuffs added to them if desired.

The lady's one piece kimono waist pattern No. 8788 is cut in four sizes—36 to 42 inches bust measure. In the 36 inch size the waist on a lengthwise fold requires 2 yards 30 inch, 1¾ yards 36 inch or 1½ yards 40 inch material. All widths require piecing.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction. This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

Kaiser Bribed Greedy Merchants

WHAT the American Manufacturers' Record calls the most damning and damnable record of German wickedness ever discovered is the confession of August Thyssen, a German steel manufacturer of international renown, which has been reprinted by the Record in pamphlet form. It shows that in 1912 the Kaiser's plans for a world war had been so far advanced that he took into his confidence some of the great financial and industrial magnates of the Fatherland, explained to them his purpose and asked if they were prepared to finance the war. He promised them that the war would be over in 1915, and in return for the loans he required he was willing to give them great tracts of territory and business opportunities in various parts of the British Empire. According to Thyssen his promises were specific. Certain famous English estates were definitely allotted to various German millionaires. Thyssen himself was promised 30,000 acres of land in Australia and a loan of $750,000 from the Deutsche Bank at 3 per cent. to develop the property. A syndicate was formed for the exploitation of Canada with a capital of $100,000,000, half of which was to be supplied by the Government.

This story of Thyssen's is in many respects the most remarkable that the war has produced. In the United States, Senator Owen observed that it had been printed in England, in the United States, in Switzerland and Japan, and not a word of denial had come from Thyssen. This may be due to the fact that the author is either in another world or in jail. The Record does not mention the circumstances in which the document was prepared, whether it was published in Germany or whether Herr Thyssen went to Switzerland or some other neutral country in order to ease himself of so much perilous stuff. He says in beginning his confession that he writes for the purpose of opening the eyes of Germans, "especially of the business community," to facts. In another part of his document he says that his own plant has been taken over by the Government at a price that means confiscation, because he refuses any longer to subscribe to the war loans.

He says that the Hohenzollerns had come to the conclusion in 1912 that unless there were a great war the German military system would be broken up, and that with its collapse would have come the downfall of Hohenzollern authority. It was, then, to save the power of the Kaiser and perhaps of the Crown Prince, that the war was planned. This, of course, is Herr Thyssen's guess. He knows, because he was present at several of the conferences, that Bethmann-Hollwegg had meetings with a large number of the leading German business men in which he explained to them that a war had been decided on, and that it would profit Germans to support it. To his own knowledge specific promises were made by the ex-Chancellor to 80 German business men. Some were to have concessions in India; others special rights in Canada; others tracts in Australia, and others, again, mansions in England. It is curious that the plunder was all to be found in the British Empire. The famous saying, "We have one foe, and one alone, England," now takes on new significance.

The Chancellor's promises were later on confirmed by the Kaiser. On three occasions he addressed large private gatherings in 1912 and 1913. He was even more profuse in what he promised than his agent. He said that he was pledging nothing that could not be redeemed, and most of his hearers agreed that the investment was most inviting. So, instead of hurling again at the head of the War Lord the imprecations that rise naturally to the lips, let us remember that the business kings and captains of industry of Germany willingly entered the conspiracy with him. His goal was an increase of his power. Theirs was an increase in their fortunes. The idea of patriotism did not enter the heads of any of them. They could make money by the war, out of dead German soldiers, as out of dead British and French and American and Belgian soldiers. So why should they hesitate?

Having secured the approval of the Germans who controlled the money for the enterprise, the machinery was set in motion which led finally to the war — and the events that led up to the assassination of the Austrian archduke, when they are brought to light, will make another great story — and Germany was launched on her adventure to make war and to make war pay. The magnates who had acquiesced in the Kaiser's plans contributed cheerfully to the first few billion war-marks. Then some of them contracted the habit of looking out of the window when they were asked for further assistance, especially after the war continued over 1916. Herr Thyssen refused to keep up his payments. With moving sympathy for himself he mentions that he was blackmailed by the Government. He resisted, for as a business man he had come to the conclusion that he had put his money on the wrong horse, and how he has been ruined. However, like Samson, he has brought down with him a mighty house. The Hohenzollerns share his fate.

How the Mother Knew.

A Welsh soldier wrote at the head of his letter, "Braich yn dagrau," and the censor, evidently assuming this to be a Welsh motto, allowed it to pass. The man's mother, however, was able to read the phrase as "arm in tears," and from it she gathered that her son was somewhere near Armentieres.

"Junker."

Junker — pronounced yoonk-er— is a term applied to a member of the noble Prussian family. As used commonly to-day, the word indicates a narrow-minded and arrogant member of the aristocracy. It acquired its political significance in 1862, when the aristocratic party, under the leadership of Bismarck, came into power, and designated those who desired to hold intact their exclusive social, military and political privileges.

Blue Chevrons for Women.

Mr. Macpherson stated in the Imperial House of Commons that all women who have served on any of the war fronts, either in hospital or any other units, have the right to wear blue chevrons, in order that the public may know they have served in overseas forces during this war.

German Burglaries.

How the Germans, making war for their pockets, used to jeer at England with the stale Napoleonic jeer, "a nation of shopkeepers"! Here is the Kaiser talking about "a strong peace, which will open new roads to German commerce and give us complete freedom for the development of our industries." "Our sacrifices of blood and treasure shall not be made in vain." That is, we shall have stolen enough of other people's property and territory and raw material to pay us for a few million dead or disabled Germans.

As ornamental trees the Japanese and Chinese persimmons are entitled to high rank. When the trees are in full leaf they are handsome without other adornment. The trees loaded with orange and orange-red fruit are among the most striking objects in the garden.

Ignorance of the Bible.

One thing is undeniable—knowledge of the Bible is far less general now than it was in the days of my childhood. That amazing familiarity with the sacred book with which John Richard Green credits the people of England in the days of the commonwealth had persisted until my boyhood among the sons of the Puritans and the Scotch Irish in New England and in New York state. It was not universal, but it was general. The kind of tests by which college students and students in secondary schools are frequently in these days made to display an ignorance of the Bible which is astounding could have been passed with credit by the majority of country boys and girls sixty or seventy years ago. But this thorough acquaintance of earlier generations with the Bible was not due to any considerable extent to the public school. All that we learned about the Bible in school would have added very little to our store of religious knowledge. It was in our churches and our Sunday schools, but chiefly in our homes, that most of us learned what we knew about the Bible.—Washington Gladden in Atlantic.

Health and comfort in old age depends largely on keeping the liver and kidneys in healthful action.

Pains and aches, stiffness of the joints, lumbago and rheumatism tell of poisons left in the blood by sluggishness of the liver and kidneys.

People in advanced years hold Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in high esteem because of the promptness and certainty with which they awaken the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Wanted: A Wife

By OSBORN JONES

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

As Paul Bolton glanced at the dozen or so freshly typed letters on his desk toward five in the afternoon on New Year's eve he reflected that they were the last letters dated 1917 that he would ever sign. Therefore the mechanical act of affixing his signature would be somewhat more momentous than that performance usually was—it would be in some slight measure epochal, because it registered the passing of another year. Therefore he took the pen from the pen tray with rather more than usual care and dipped it in the heavy glass ink bottle that lay before him on his monster mahogany desk. Drawing the top letter on the pile to him he started to sign, but the pen made no mark. Irritation immediately supplanted any interest that he may have felt in the signing. It was intensely exasperating. The ink bottle had been allowed to go dry and only a gummy mass of metallic black showed in the bottom of the inkwell. It was really almost pathetic, he reflected, that he, the president of the great concern of Blank & Bridges—he whose time was worth to that concern some twenty thousand dollars a year—should have to waste that precious time fretting over empty ink wells. Every modern convenience of efficiency in business methods had been installed in his office—there were silent typewriters and automatic letter openers and a girls' lunch room and employers' insurance and annual bonuses—all the result of his desire to show consideration for his employees—and yet he—Paul Bolton—had to fret himself day after day about such things as empty ink bottles, undusted desks and chairs, unwashed drinking glasses and unfilled water bottles. He was tired from an extremely trying week and so instead of rising in wrath and storming at office boys, secretaries, stenographers and every one else within reach of his voice—and Paul Bolton was quite capable of having expressed his feelings in that way—he was filled with self-pity. No one really cared enough for him to spare him those annoyances. He went to a stenographer's desk, found an inkwell that happened to be filled and signed the letters dejectedly.

Then he went to his nearby apartments where he reigned in bachelor supremacy and his experience there showed him again that no one really cared. There were no fresh flowers. Bolton especially liked to have yellow daffodils and jonquils in his rooms on cold, raw winter nights and he had told his Jap so on more than one occasion. The grate fire was not lighted. The Jap explained that no coal could be got. Well, the Jap ought to have got a skuttleful somewhere. If he had cared for him as much as he seemed he would have got a skuttleful somewhere. And dinner wasn't exactly what he wanted, and his slippers hadn't been warmed and the water was too cold. The Jap ought to have known by that time that he didn't like ice water.

So it was that the next day, when Bolton began to think about New Year's resolutions, he registered two resolves, brief yet important. To get a really efficient private secretary—a young woman who would care enough to see that the inkwells were filled, and to get a wife. A wife would see to the jonquils and the slippers he was sure.

Before a month had passed Bolton had achieved one of his resolutions. He had obtained from an exclusive agency a young woman of unusual merit—Alice Blair—who had proved herself to be worth considerably more than the forty dollars a week that she had demanded. So Bolton's days were passed with an absence of confusion and irritation. Miss Blair seemed to get inside his mind and find out just what he wanted done before he had time to formulate it even to his own knowledge and she always did things with perfect ease. She didn't have to fill the inkwells or dust the desk, but—what showed her forty-dollars-a-week value—she saw to it that the office boys did. It was always that way with her. She never seemed to be especially busy and yet everything was done.

But Bolton still had no wife and the Jap did not improve. Another Jap would have been no better. Bolton was sure it was only a wife who could make his cup of happiness complete. And yet there were wives and wives. The wife he wanted was not like those of any of his men friends. In the first place she would have to be companionable and sympathetic and stimulating when he was weary from the office grind and then she would have to regard her task of being his wife and home maker as seriously as he regarded his business of being president of Blank and Bridges. Bolton began accepting invitations to dinners and dances in the hope of finding his paragon but he was always unsuccessful. He was discouraged in the accomplishment of his second resolution, so, revelling in the achievement of the first, he got into the habit of spending more and more time in his office, going home to his apartment and his Jap only for hurried meals and short sleep. As time went on he sometimes imagined he was completely happy, so rejoiced was he in Alice Blair. But in time the extra hours at the office began to tell on his health. He really needed the home life if he was to keep up his mental vigor and good health. He sometimes wondered whether the extra hours that Miss Blair had to work—for she always stayed at her post whenever he was at the office—were not telling on her, too. But she never murmured and she seemed always in the pink of condition.

One day Bolton began wondering about Alice Blair. He wondered why she did all this for him—whether it was just the result of her training plus a keen mind—was it induced entirely by the forty dollars a week that she had demanded? Perhaps it was. But the effect it produced was the same—it really did seem as if some one cared now and that, after all, Bolton concluded, was what made the big difference. Still he kept asking himself, did Miss Blair care? How did she keep up her strength and courage for the long hours? There were a hundred petty home and social duties that usually distracted his women employees—had Miss Blair none of those?

Mr. Bolton's last question was answered one day when he chanced to look through the carbons for the outgoing mail of the day, when he had returned unknown to her, after dinner at night. He came upon the duplicate of a letter of a personal nature, yet before he had realized what he was doing he read it. It was simply an order to one of the morning papers for the insertion of a "help wanted" advertisement. This was the advertisement:

"Wanted: A young business woman wants to get in touch with a young woman whose duties will be similar to those of a wife to a busy man. That is, she must be an educated, agreeable young woman with the willingness to take seriously the task of making a small apartment a real home. She need not do the actual housework but she must see that it is done without confusion and without complaint. She must have the instinctive knack of attending to the little things, combined with the ability to be interested in the really big things. For such a young woman a good home and a fair remuneration will be given."

Mr. Bolton read then re-read the paragraph. What occurred to him first was that it contained a perfect description of his own ideal of what a wife should be—and it was Alice Blair's ideal. Only it was Alice Blair's idea of the companion she wanted, not the companion she wanted to be. Still, she understood. She at least realized that with such an ideal woman at home a man or woman either might endure the strain of business worries that would otherwise be unendurable. Apparently the letter advertising for such a companion had gone out. Bolton wondered what results would come of it. He almost wished that he, too, might secure the wife he was looking for in some such quick-courtship manner. Then he decided to speak to Alice about it—perhaps, perhaps, she cared enough—

Bolton came to the point rather abruptly.

"I had thought the most important thing in the world was to have a perfect secretary," he told her the next day when he had called her to his office. "Now I have decided that a perfect wife is much more important. Pardon me for reading your advertisement—I see you understand part of my own ideal for such a companion—she must be a real companion, Alice," he said, changing from his abrupt business manner to a boyish, pleading tone that Alice had never observed before.

Alice blushed and the blush seemed to tell Bolton that she really did care for something beside the forty dollars a week.

"Is it only because I would be a congenial companion, and a good housewife—only because I'd keep the wheels running smoothly in your home as I have in your office, is that all?"

Then suddenly Bolton wondered how it had ever seemed as though those things could really have been paramount. All he could see was the shadow that lurked beneath Alice's downcast eye, the delicious curve of her lips, and the graceful lines of the small, determined little chin.

"Alice," he said a little huskily, "I'd want you to marry me if you were the worst housewife in the world. Somehow I see now why so many men do marry the women they do—I suppose they love them as I love you."

And so in spite of the first developments of the year Bolton filled the second half of his resolution instead of the first.

Mole Always Hungry.

The little mole has recently been recommended for membership in the society of big eaters. It is so very voracious, even in captivity, that it will sometimes eat more than its own weight of earthworms in 24 hours. One little glutton, weighing four ounces, devoured 7½ pounds of worms in one month. When the diet changed to raw beef, mutton, chicken heads and rabbit liver, its appetite was unchanged Cheese, when mixed with either worms or beef, was the most toothsome bit of all.—Popular Science Monthly.

Marines Have Proud Record.

The records of the marine corps show that it took part in practically all the operations of the Mexican war; and in the great assault at Chapultepec the storming party was led by Majors Twiggs and Reynolds of the marine corps. Later we find these same marines which fought in Mexico marching through the capital of Japan under Commodore Perry when he opened up that ancient empire to modern civilization.

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA

Mrs. J. B. Horth, Paspebiac, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

Can You Answer?

"Do you know what happens to your skin when you bathe?" If a person asked us this impudent question, we would reply, "No, and we don't care." But the fact of the matter is that you could not give him an answer. There are a lot of other things that you take for granted and cannot explain. Here are a few simple tests:

Do you know why your foot goes to sleep?

Do you know what science has to say about eating cooked and uncooked breakfast foods alternately?

Do you know how many cubic inches there should be between the top of your head and the crown of your hat?

Do you know what happens when the furnace goes out?

Have you ever thought about the psychology of general house work?

What would you do if you found yourself alone in the dark?

Do you swing your arms when you walk?

Do you read the right-hand columns of your newspaper first, or those at the left?

Could you draw a diagram of the plumbing in your apartment?

Adam's Skull.

The myth of Adam's skull has its origin in the ancient tradition according to which the first man is buried at Golgotha, beneath the very spot on which later the cross of Christ was erected. It is for this reason that, in the presentations of the crucifixion, painters and sculptors were wont to place a skull at the foot of the cross. The fact that a skull embedded on a natural rock could be seen behind the iron gate of the Church of the Holy Cross at Jerusalem, was calculated to give credence to the tradition. It has, however, been discovered that the skull in question was artificial, made of brass and painted over with gray color to give it the appearance of a natural skull.—N. Y. Tribune.

The Open Ballot In Prussia.

The landlord in the eastern provinces replaces his Social Democratic laborers with Poles; or if Poles are unavailable, he may raise their rent or foreclose a mortgage. Official candidature is encouraged by the fact that functionaries are eligible from the district where they hold office. Von Buelow, as Chancellor, declared that no official could occupy himself with Social Democratic politics; and it is well understood that, as votes the Landrath, so vote the minor officials, since he controls the local patronage. Through various channels strong pressure is exerted in favor of landed and bureaucratic interests.

Whether Prussia is a pariah on account of this manipulation of the suffrage depends largely on the point of view. It is not clear what connection either open or secret voting may have with political peonage. Even if a landlord does not learn his peasant's vote at the open poll, there is a reluctance to lie if the question is asked him point-blank. Denying one's political faith under pressure carries with it somewhat the stigma of declining to recognize one's parents in a superior social gathering. Die echte Buergertukend itself keeps down the number of Peters. The idea that when a man takes a voting paper in his hand, he suddenly becomes a detached political animal, is pure fantasy; for isolation is unattainable even in a polling booth. It is enough to say that it makes easier the independence of the voter from circumstances of employment and social affiliations. In Prussia, where both these ties are strong, public voting neutralizes universal suffrage by destroying the freedom of the common voter.

More significant than the practical effect of the open ballot is its psychological effect. The small voter knows the dispute which an independent vote would entail, and rather than face the music, he stays away from the polls. One may concede the apathy of the farming classes; but the abstention of 90 per cent. of the third class in one district in East Prussia, and of 92 per cent. in Koeslin betrays an unwholesome state in the body politic. The poorer classes would rather forego the suffrage than enjoy it under the patronage of the first class.—Donald Paige Frary in Review of Reviews.

Must Vary Work.

Officials in the French army do not believe that the most efficient service is obtained from members of the military clerical force when the latter sit at their desks practically all day without interruption, says Popular Mechanics. Accordingly the French Government is said to have installed, for the use of army clerks, typewriter stands so made that each machine is alternately raised and lowered each half hour. Under this arrangement the most sedentary individuals are compelled to stand while doing a part of each day's work. The innovation is reported to have proved very beneficial.

Food For Gossip.

"Where are you going?"

"To call on Mrs. Wallaby-Wombat. Better come along. I understand there are some very interesting things to be heard."

"How so?"

"She has just quarreled with her best friend."—Pittsburgh Post.

His Choice.

A minister tells this story. He says his youngest son was taken to church for the first time, and on his return remarked: "Father, I am going to be a preacher!"

"Why so, my son?" asked the father.

"Because it is a lot harder to listen than to talk," said the boy.

Modern China.

In a prize essay written for the Chinese Joint Council on Public Health Education, Mr. Yang [illegible] pau, of one of the Shanghai Universities, throws some interesting light on the physical phases of the citizens of the new republic. Naturally endowed with strong constitutions, Mr. [illegible] says, the Chinese should have a much lower death rate than the records show. Their simple diet, their hygienic dress, and their well-ventilated houses all contribute to a sturdy and abiding race vitality, and it is unfortunate that these conditions are not supplemented by adequate sanitation systems and a wider knowledge of disease prevention. Mr. [illegible] goes on to treat of the influences that have kept China in the past from physical development. He points out the dangers suffered from the Chinese practice of early marriage, foot-binding, opium-smoking, and from superstition, all of which now either totally or in part have died. He cites the growing interest in out-of-door sports and the introduction of western methods of education with their latitude for natural development as hopeful signs of interest in the health of Chinese young people.—Family Herald.

Mechanical Perfection

There are many reasons why the AutoStrop is the ideal aviator's razor, but one stands out more prominently than the others and will instantly appeal to every "Knight of the Air", that is, its mechanical perfection.

Every aviator knows and appreciates what mechanical perfection means—his plane must be perfect in every detail to avoid accidents.

ARRESTED AS LOAFER

BOSTON BLACKSMITH HAD JUST ARRIVED IN NEW YORK FOR A HOLIDAY.

NEW YORK, July 18.—William W. Lawlor, who, so far as he knows, is one of the most honest blacksmiths in Boston, arrived in New York yesterday for his first vacation in fourteen years. He had an active period in Brooklyn extending over four hours, after which he left for Boston with the avowed intention of waiting at least twenty-eight years for his next vacation.

It appears William knew persons in Brooklyn and went there in an effort to find them. He was standing at Gates avenue and Broadway when a policeman asked him what he was doing. William said he was doing nothing and hoped that he would not find it necessary to do anything for many a day. So he was arrested for violating the anti-loafing law.

When indignation, which fouteen years of hard labor engenders had subsided the blacksmith found it possible to tell his story to Magistrate Folwell in the Gates Avenue Court. He exhibited a baggage check and other proofs and went direct from court to the Grand Central Station. He made it clear that far from considering New York a large and beautiful city

WHITE SOLDIER IS HANGED FOR ATTACKING SCHOOL GIRL

WOCA, Texas. — Nat Hoffman, a white soldier, was hanged early yesterday at Camp MacArthur. He was convicted of attacking an eleven-year-old school girl last April.

The court martial sentence was affirmed by Washington. Hoffman was twenty-five years old, and his mother in Pittsburg, Pa., has been notified.

Last April Hoffman met the girl in company with a boy about her age in a lonely wooded spot near Camp McArthur. The affair was reported by the boy to the military police, who soon captured Hoffman. His only utterance was said to be that he reserved his fate.

RIGID PROHIBITION IN FORCE ON P.E.I.

IRON-CLAD RULES OPERATIVE ON JULY 15—NO LOOPHOLES

CHARLOTTETOWN, July 18.—What is known as the most drastic Prohibition Act in Canada, passed at the last session of the Provincial Legislature, went into effect Monday.

The measure was framed at the request of the Commission appointed by the Government last year to enforce the Act, in whose hands the enforcement will still remain. The object of the farmers was to make an Act nearly perfect as possible, and they have taken as their basis the most advanced temperance registration in Canada and the United States.

The main change in the new Act over the old is the appointment of vendors, whereby the handling of liquor is taken entirely out of the hands of the druggists. The latter are not allowed to keep it on hand for any purpose whatever, except as alcohol in the manufacture of essences, tinctures, etc.

Provision was made for importation by the appointment of one wholesale vendor, who is a recognized licensee under the Dominion Act, which prohibits the importation into prohibited territory, except as provided under the recent Dominion Act. This wholesale vendor will sell to the retail vendors under control exercised over the granting of prescriptions by doctors. Formerly the latter were allowed to prescribe practically "on sight and unseen," but now a doctor must first officially have visited the patient before he can grant a prescription. He is also provided with numbered prescription blanks.

The Commissioners have realized that the quantity under the old Act wrought hardship in certain cases, and have revised the schedule in the new Act, so that a person living within ten miles or under, of a vendor can obtain twenty-four ounces and anyone beyond ten miles forty-eight ounces.

They have guarded, however, the use of liquor prescribed for sickness by a clause which states that if it is consumed as a beverage it constitutes a violation of the Act.

Right of search has been enlarged so that any premises where liquor is reputed to be sold may be searched by the inspector without a warrant.

The penalties are practically the same as the old act, with the addition of penalties for minor offences.

There are a number of sections bearing out patent medicines, tinctures and perfumes. These sections bearing upon patent medicines, tinctures and perfumes. These sections will not be put into operation until an order-in-council has been passed. It is a notorious fact that such an apparently harmless commodity as essence of peppermint, which has been sold in grocery stores, has been sought after by quite a number of "habituals" as a beverage, for the sake of the alcohol which it contains.

Provision is also made for the restrictions of the so-called tonics, and the Act requires that these be sufficiently medicated to prevent their being used as a beverage.

ALCOHOL FOR BATHING.

To meet the requirements of invalids who require alcohol for bathing purposes (external not internal,) the Commissioners have inserted a clause by which upon the certificate of a clergyman or a graduate nurse of any recognized institution, who has registered with the commissioners, alcohol for this purpose may be obtained from any licensed vendor.

A rather stringent clause is found in the Act, by which any person who has illegally sold liquor to a person, who meets death as a result of intoxication from that liquor, may be prosecuted and penalized heavily. The Act also allows the police to arrest a man who is intoxicated and compel him to divulge the source of his supply. Provision is made for this under the old Act, but the clause has proved unworkable. The new Act leaves little room for the drinker to escape telling who gave him his drink.

An added provision is that any person driving any kind of a vehicle—motor or horse—under the influence of liquor, is subject to a heavy penalty.

TIGHTEN GRIP ON LORRAINE.

Germany Attempting to Colonize the Country With Prussians.

The German Government appears to be planning to strengthen the German elemnt in Alsace Lorraine by extending its system of colonization there. Copies of German newspapers received in London a short while ago contained the following report sent out from Strassburg by the semi-official Wolff Telegraph Bureau:

"In Strassburg there exists under the style of the Western March Lands Company a limited liability company for the purchase, sale, division, and conjunction of plots of land, and for the improvement of the soil, especially in the Lorraine frontier region. The company will further make it its business to settle peasants, labourers, and workmen —preference being given to war veterans—and to ameliorate farming and housing conditions. The work of the company, which is a social welfare organization and aims at promoting the economic and national interests of the German people, stands, nevertheless, upon a business footing. The foundation capital amounts to 7,500,000 marks, ($1,785,000 at normal exchange), and has for the most part been contributed by the large provincial settlement organizations, with the participation of industrial enterprises. The Chairman of the managing committee is the former Government President of Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, Herr von Schwerin, and the present managing director is rD. Meydenbauer of the Prussian Ministry of Finance.

"The company will also acquire the landed property of French citizens, and will strive to set independent and efficient German farmers in the place of tenants with little capital of their own who depend upon foreign support. It is hoped by this means to improve agricultural conditions, especially in Lorraine.

"A recent rumor, according to which it was proposed to transfer 15,000 East Prussians to Lorraine, has provoked mirth among those who are acquainted with local conditions. Any one who has even a working knowledge of East Prussia must be well aware that the East Prussian authorities are most apprehensively concerned to keep all East Prussians in the country, and that nowhere in East Prussia is there any desire to emigrate to the west of the empire. As a natter of fact, there is no lack of applications by would-be settlers in the Western March. The attractions of this region have induced in many farmers who have got to know Lorraine during the war a desire to settle there. It will, therefore, not be necessary to canvass for settlers from the east of the Fatherland."

ALLIES ARE MAKING SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS IN NEW DRIVE

The Allied Drive Was Resumed Early This Morning

GERMANS ARE POURING RESERVES INTO THE BREACH CREATED BY ALLIED ADVANCE

The Battle is Increasing in Intensity on the Whole Front From the Aisne to the Marne—Americans and French Are Driving Forward in An Extended Advance—Cavalry is Playing An Important Part.

THE REMARKABLE TRANSPORT SYSTEM

THE ALLIES ARE ADVANCING BEHIND A ROLLING BARRAGE DRIVING THE GERMANS BEFORE THEM

(Special to The Examiner.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN THE CHAMPAGNE, July 19 — (8.25 a.m.)—American and French troops, after organizing yesterday's gains during the night, resumed their offensive between the Aisne and the Marne at 4 o'clock this morning.

The Allies pushed forward behi nd a rolling barrage on the whole front from Soissons to Chateau Thierry, driving the Germans before them. The hour of cabling finds no reports of the extent of the new gains.

Airmen report huge explosions and fires in Soissons evidently the destruction of ammunition dumps and supplies by the enemy, preparatory to evacuation of the city.

One American unit pressed forward so rapidly yesterday afternoon, it was learned today, that they overtook a party of captured French men who were working on the roads under German guards. They captured the Boches and released the French,, who seized the arms of their former captors and pressed forward with their rescuers.

THE DRIVE IS SERIOUSLY THREATENING THE GERMAN RIGHT FLANK IN THE MARNE FIGHTING SECTOR

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN THE CHAMPAGNE, July 19. — (1.45 a.m.)—American troops cooperating with the French in the drive between the Marne and the Aisne, already are within sight of Soissons.

Latest reports received at headquarters indicated that the Franco-American attack is progressing satisfactorily along the whole front. French cavalry is said to have passed the main highway from Soissons to Chateau Thierry.

The number of German prisoners is not yet known. One American unit alone has taken 3,300. Many more have been counted. More than 50 enemy cannon have been captured.

The advance has been so rapid that various regimental headquarters have been moved forward as many as three times and couriers have had great difficulty in keeping in touch with the commanders migrations.

The drive already is seriously threatening the German right flank in the Marne salient, and holds possibilities of forcing a great enemy withdrawal. Success of the present operations has been the means of averting any immediate danger to Paris. The attack is rapidly exposing a great concentration of enemy reserves and artillery which were held in readiness to be thrown into the battle to the Southeastward. It is a question whether the Germans will be able to organize these, or will have to withdraw them.

AMERICANS HAD BREAKFAST THE NIGHT BEFORE AND WERE WITHOUT HANDICAP OF OBSERVING MEAL TIME

The American reserves received orders to move to the battle line at five p.m., pushed forward in trucks and camions, they arrived within marching distance about midnight. They began then hike without delay nd reached the front only a short time before the zero hour, yet when hey advanced and started chasing the Boches, the were apparently as resh as ever.

There was no artillery preparation. The artillery suddenly began a olling barrage and the tanks and infantry moved farward. That was ll. A heavy thunderstorm had helped to conceal the troop movements, ut the day broke bright and clean. It was great fighting weather.

Many of the German soldiers were at breakfast," or were seeking helter from the rain when the Allies went forward. The American had 3reakfasted" the night before and were without the handicap of obrving meal time.

The advance was maintained without interruption up to noon, when e French and Americans halted briefly to rest and re-organize. Then ey swept ahead again, advancing farther than in their first rush. French valry swung ahead with the infantry in the afternoon and aided the nericans in cleaning up the captured villages.

MERICANS AND FRENCH SURROUNDED AND CAPTURED THE ARTILLERY OF AN ENTIRE GERMAN DIVISION

Americans and French surrounded and captured entire German baties, including artillery of an entire division. The Americans carried eir full pack of 30 lbs., on their backs. Most of our units did not ther with machine guns. It was a straight job or rifles, bayonets and nades.

The Americans worked their way through fields and woods and into ages driving the Boches before them. They took prisoners so rapidthat the latter became a hindrance.

Later, when other infantry was sent forward in support, they carl up machine guns. These were quickly followed by field guns, and n heavy artillery. It was of the quickest examples or organization he whole war.

The fighting unity of France and America was illustrated by the fact t repeatedly French and American wounded were carried to the rear the same ambulances. Americans drove French motor trucks and nchmen drove American trucks. Doughboys constituting the reserves forward on trucks and ammunition wagons, eating beans and slum they bounced over the uneven ground. They hadn't halted to eat he last 24 hours, but they were grinning and satisfied at the prospect eating up a few heinies."

The little French fly tanks were remarkably effective, the Americans ed behind them like veterans as they reeled around the field and up streets of the villages.

When the attack was bein planned Wednesday night, a certain amition general suggested his troops should advance to a certain point. ear it would be inadvisable" haid his superior. "You can't go that he objective required was granted, and the general and his boys right there last night.

"The hell we cant." Exploded the general. "Any place I ask my to go, they'll go."

he attack northwest of Chateau Thierry imperils the Germans holdhe nearest point to Paris. They will be forced to use up their re- here if the Allied advance is to be checked. The attack also ens the enemy east of the Rheims. The Americans and French have not given an inch of ground of any importance, while the ring goes on west of Rheims.

Soissons" is on every Americans lips. The attack in that region has essed with such speed that the situation is most favorable.

FRENCH AND AMERICANS ARE WITHIN A MILE OF SOISSONS, IT WAS LEARNED AUTHORITATIVELY TODAY

(Special to The Examiner.)

ONDON, July 19.—The French and Americans are within a mile of ns, it was learned authoritatively.

ey have moved forward all along the line between the Aisne and arne, their greatest penetration, at last reports, being eight miles. e American division took Vircy and is reported to have advanced miles beyond.

Pola Harbour Was Bombed

Italians Made a Successful Raid on Austrian Military Establishments

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, July 19.— Fifty-four Italian planes, which were accompanied by speedy hydro aeroplanes, all under the command of the famous poet, Gabriel D'Annunzio, made a successful raid on the Austrian harbour of Pola at dawn Wednesday, it was announced here to-day.

Five tons of bombs were dropped on military establishments as workers arrived to begin their day's labour. Italian warships were standing out to sea ready to dash to the assistance of the bombing forces.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, July 19.— The Associated Press war summary says today, moving swiftly and powerfully, the allied fronts between the Aisne and the Marne, the first offensive in which the Americans have taken part, is rolling eastward, gathering in its path thousands of prisoners, hundreds of machine guns and large quantities of supplies. From the heights west of Soissons the Allies now command the base and the railway lines to it. Cannon brought up elsewhere aided important communication and transport lines in the triangle formed by Chateau-Thierry and Soissons.

Roosevelt Is Not Interested

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 19. — "There is only one thought in my heart and you know what that is", Col Roosevelt said heretoday when asked if he had anything to say regarding the unofficial convention fo republicans at Saratoga. He referred to the news regarding in his son, Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt, reported in an aerial combat in France.

"I have had no conference with any living man on the subject of politics. I want none. I am not interested in politics at this time. It is farthest from my thoughts."

Col. Roosevelt returned to Oyster Bay with Mrs. Roosevelt and their daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby. He asked that he not be disturbed again today.

Will Discuss New Plans for Securing Supplies of Wood

The Fire, Water and Light Committee have several fuel proposals to discuss at a meeting which has been called for to-night. Both of them offer quantities of wood the city may buy, and the details will be fully considered this evening. During the past week several members of the Council have made excursions into nearby townships, and have several plans to lay before the committee.

It is believed that there are between 2,000 and 3,000 cords of wood brought into the city since March 1st, and that the supply is satisfactory, but the committee desires to avoid a local shortage by extending their own plans for more wood importations for the municipal fuel yard.

OPINION IN LONDON

It Looks As If the Allies Had Hit Their Victory Stride.

NAVAL ACTIVITY

(United Press.)

(By Ed. L. Keen.)

LONDON, July 19.— The Germans facing the Franco-Americans in the Soissons district must move fast if it wants to escape a disastrous pocketing.

Opinion was united here to-day that the onward smash of the French and American troops marks the first stage of the tide now moving to engulf Germany. The nation and its allies are everywhere on the down grade, and losing the initiative. The Allied upper hand grows more noticeable as Americans continue to pour in.

On all fronts to-day the Allies' activities are victorious and significant. With the failure of the German drive toward Rheims, the victorious Franco-American counter blow toward Soissons, the Italians' activity in Albania and at Pola, there is a possibility that there soon will be more important developments along the west front. The Allied armies everywhere are straining at the least, eager to take a smash at the Germans.

Victory Stride.

Reports reaching here from the point where the Franco-Americans opened their attack Thursday, bring the news that 5,000 Germans had been captured up to 3 p.m. Thursday.

It looks here as if the Allies had hit their victory stride.

The navy isn't sleeping while the Allies are steadily smashing at the Germans on land and in the air. The ships are filled with men who are aching for a chance to help stage the final smash. In this connection, advices are coming from a neutral country that eyewitnesses report great activity in the German fleet, which is said to be mobilizing at Kiel.

BRITISH STEAMER TORPEDOED

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, July 19. — The British steamer "Carpathia" of 13,000 tons, has been torpedoed and sunk, it was officially announced today. Her passengers and crew were landed.

The Carpathia was lost off the Irish coast while outward sailing from a British port. No lives are reported lost.

POTATO BLIGHT IN PETERBORO

OWNERS SHOULD IMMEDIATELY APPLY PREVENTIVE TO PLOTS NOT AFFECTED.

Potato blight has made its appearance in several Peterboro gardens, and the owners are much concerned as to the extent of its ravages. It will be some days before the full extent is known and in the meantime the owners should take advantage of every precautionary measure known to preserve the crops.

The blight is due to a germ which attacks the potato near the ground, and gradually spreads through the stalks killing the leaves and stem. Warm weather following rains is very conducive to the growth of the blight and at such times it is very likely to be noticed.

Bordeaux mixture is used as a preventive and with it is mixed arsenate of lead, and this mixture has been used for years, and if applied in time is said to be a good preventive. While its success in preventing the spread of the disease once the plot has been affected is not great, its chief value lies in its preventive qualities.

Consequently plot owners whose plots have not yet shown signs of being affected should immediately apply the mixture, which also serves as a poison for the potato bugs.

FRENCH OFFICIAL

PARIS, July 19.—(Official)—Along the whole front between the Aisne and the Marne, the battle continues with good results. South of the Marne by vigorous attacks, the French have ejected the enemy from the outskirts of Ceuilly.

Between Rheims and Marne, Italian troops have taken Moulin D'Ardre, south of Manerfrux and northwest of Pourcy.

Between Aisne and the Marne in spite of new arrivals of German reinforcement the Allies are making substantial progress and are capturing large numbers of prisoners. On the front between Rheims and Marne, French have recaptured Montvoisin and made progress in Roy Wood and the Courto Wood capturing four cannon and four hundred prisoners.

CITY'S BEHAVIOUR GOOD IN ABSENCE OF CHIEF THOMPSON

On the general experience that when the cat's away the mice cut loose and run all over the house, the police may have expected that in the absence of Chief Thompson things would begin to break around town. But this one trip that has been uneventful at home. If the force, bright eyed and elated like little Jack Horner, hoped to hold up a prize or two to show the Chief on his return, they have been greatly disappointed, for the beats have been gratefully unproductive. There doubtless have been some misdeamours beyond the orbit through which the police swing, but that is an everyday condition without remedy.

Reserves Are Coming Up

Battle on the Marne Front is Increasing in Intensity.

Two O'clock Despatch:

(United Press.)

(By F. S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN THE CHAMPAGNE, July 19.— The battle is increasing in intensity on the whole front from the Aisne to the Marne, as this cable is despatched.

The Americans and French are driving forward in an extended advance toward the main highway from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry, which lies from three to ten miles east of the original line.

The Germans, aided by a great number of reserves, made a heavy counter attack on the plateau south-west of Soissons. It was bloodily repulsed.

HOLDING THE LINE.

Americans and French in that region are continuing to hold the line they established yesterday evening, or are advancing eastward.

Cavalary already has pushed across the Soissons, Chateau-Thierry road and the infantry is driving forward to join them.

Unaccounted prisoners, guns and material are still accumulating.

The remarkable transport system of the Allies is enabling them to maintain a constant flow of men and supplies to the front. As the line advances, solid miles of motor trucks carrying ammunitions and other matthe rear with slightly wounded men. rfear with slightly wounded men. Men and guns, rushed up on trucks, are dumped off and are in the thick of the fighting a few minutes later.

Enemy Has Used 276,000 Men in An Effort to Stem the Allies—Reserves Pouring in.

THE BRITISH FRONT

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, July 19.—(4 p.m.)—The Allies have taken the initiative, and the Germans are on the defensive everywhere, an official statement issued by the Allied High Command declared this afternoon.

LONDON, July 19.—(3.23 p.m.) — That the Franco-American offensive may force the Germans to retire on the entire Rheims front, where the enemy has used 23 reinforcement divisions (276,000 men) or half their total of reserve, was the belief expressed in military circles here this afternoon.

It was also stated that Crown Prince Rupprecht probably will start an immediate offensive on the British front in an effort to retrieve the Rheims disaster.

REINFORCEMENTS.

(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, July 19.—The Germans are pouring reserves into stem the Franco-American advance toward Soissons.

All present plans of the German General Staff looking toward Paris have been thrown out of gear by the Allies rapid stroke.

The fighting at some places was furious all night long. Despatches to Paris from the front say to-day that the Americans were able to gaze on Soissons from a plateau when dawn came to-day.

Two American units and one French unit have sent back 3,000 prisoners from their sectors of fighting.

Important Results.

Among the most important results of the drive are:

First, it interferes seriously with the German use of the railways toward Laon, Chateau Thierry, Rheims and the Aisne.

Second, it is a direct threat to the pivot of German operations along the Marne.

Third, it has had the effect of drawing off the pressure against the French on the Marne.

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 19.—The French fighting along the Chateau Thierry-Soissons front have taken more than 10,000 prisoners, The Gaulois declares.

Fifty thousand bottles of champaigne were sent to the Poilus defending Rheims by the grateful inhabitants of that city, despatches from the French front to-day said.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA.

The extent of the German propaganda programme in the United States has been strikingly revealed by America's secret service officials who have been investigating the activities of Teuton agents. It is stated that fully $90,000,000 went into a corruption fund by which it was hoped not only to gain control of American newspapers and magazines, but also to foster pacificism in a number of American colleges, and to carry on financial and commercial enterprises for the benefit of the Germans. Ambassador Bernstorff and Dr. Heinrich Albert, the German financial agent in the United States, were at the head of the campaign.

This propaganda was of course commenced early in the conflict, and is a characteristic example of how Germany makes war. Any method, however cowardly or dishonourable, no matter what laws of neutrality are violated, is justified in German eyes if it helps the dishonourable cause of the Teutons. This insidious backdoor intriguing was used in accomplishing the downfall of Russia, and was chiefly responsible for the disaster that overtook the Italians last year. It did not succeed in the United States as far as keeping America out of the war was concerned, but it did produce results in the hundreds of cases of munition plants, ships and railway properties that were damaged.

The latest revelation of Germany's treachery in the United States will surprise no one now—the world at large is ready to and is justified in believing any charge that may be brought against the Kaiser and his agents.

THE TARRINGTON CASE

On several occasions reference has been made in these columns to the case of the late Pte. James Tarrington of the 21st Battalion, whose death in Toronto after having seen considerable service overseas resulted in his widow and family of eight children being left destitute. It was claimed that he had been gassed in France and for that reason, there was a strong feeling that there should be a pension for the bereaved family, but the Board of Pension Commissioners refused to award any allowance after an investigation of the case. Naturally this decision caused considerable comment in the press throughout Canada and the Pension Board officials were rather harshly criticized in diffefent quarters.

However a letter received by the Examiner from the Board accompanied by the medical history of the dead soldier as revealed by the findings of the differ nt medical boards shows that criticism in this case should be directed not at the Board of Pension Commissioners but rather at the regulations by which they have to carry on their work. There is no doubt that the Pensions Board could not have done anything else but refuse to grant a pension under the circumstances. The rules which they are given for their guidance are rigid and clear: It must be shown that death has resulted from injuries received or disease contracted or aggravated on active service before a pension can be awarded and in the case of Pte. Tarrington, the medical reports of all the board which examined him have shown no evidence of gas poisoning. The trouble which resulted in his being discharged from the army was myalgia and there does not seem to be any possible connection between this complaint and the attack of pneumonia which resulted in his death.

The secretary of the Pensions Board writes as follows:—

OTTAWA, July 15, 1918.

To the Editor, The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Sir,—

No. 59957 Pte. Jas. Tarrington,

1.—I have the honour, by direction, to refer to an article which appeared in your paper relative to the marginally noted man. This case has received careful attention and consideration by the Commissioners, and I am instructed to hand you herewith copy of a Precis prepared on Pte. Tarrington's case, which Precis was submitted to Sgt. Maj. Gustar, Secretary of The Great War Veterans' Association, Toonto, who discussed the case thoroughly with Major E. L. Buchanan, Traveling Representative of this Board.

2.—After a careful examination of all the evidence on file, Sgt.-Maj. Gustar was satisfied that the Board of Pension Commissioners could not grant a pension to the widow of Pte. Tarrington under the existing Pension Regulations, as there is no evidence to show that Pte. Tarrington's death could have been attributed to the disability for which he was invalided from France, viz: Myalgia.

3.—The powers of the Board of Pension Commissioners are administrative only, and not legislative and it has no alternative other than to enforce and carry out the instructions contained in the Pension Regulations, as laid down by Parliament.

4.—A copy of the Pension Regulations, as amended to October 22nd 1917, is enclosed herewith., and your attention is particularly directed to Section 16, under which section this case comes.

5.—The Board of Pension Commissioners is always willing to reopen and consider an case, if evidence can be adduced to show that the complaintant was incapacitated through active service. In this particular case if evidence is submitted that Pte. Tarrington was gassed in France, and that, as a result of of this gassing he succumbed to an attack of pneumonia two and a half years after leaving France, the case will be reopened and reconsidered by the Commissioners.

6—Should you desire any further information pertaining to the case under discussion, this Board will be pleased to submit same to you.

7.—Copies of this communication with copy of Precis and Pension Regulations attached, have been forwarded to Mr. Donald Sutherland, M.P., of Woodstock, Ont., and The Great War Veterans' Association of Peterborough, Ont.

The Board of Pension Commissioner have undoubtedly carried out the letter of the law and under the present system there was nothing that they could do that has not been done. The Government however, might well consider the circumstances of such a case as this and determine whether or not provision could be made to meet such a situation.

RISING PRICES.

That staunch supporter of the government, the Toronto Mail and Empire, throws its hat into the ring in the high cost of living discussion, and reads the powers-that-ought-to-be at Ottawa, but who just now are overseas, a lesson as to their duty under the circumstances. The Mail's point is well taken. The profiteer still has plenty of scope for his activity, and there is nothing to show that he is failing to rise to the opportunities that are being allowed him. Our Toronto contemporary says the present condition of affairs is one which even if it would the government cannot ignore. Hitherto any reference to the need of government action has drawn from Ottawa the announcement that the government is unable to control prices, but in the opinion of the Mail no formula of this kind will avail to conjure the problem away. "It will have to be grappled with and disposed of," remarks the article, and then goes on to say:

There are price increments against which the consumer can be protected by legislation, but the legislation must be enforced. Acts of Parliament, Orders-in-Council, the prescription of penalties and the declarations of ministers, will fail unless there is an efficient force of government agencies to see that the law is carried out. Has the Government full information as to changes in prices that followed the imposition of the war imposts provided for in the last budget? Is it not a fact that on some of the articles upon which new taxes were then laid prices have advanced by far more than a compensating increase? On many articles prices are going up without any appearance of justification. In these times when the waste or the destruction of food ought to be considered a crime savouring of enemy sympathy, the Government is expected to see that profiteering is not attended by a great wiping out of the supply of perishable foods. Keep down the profiteering and keep up the food supply. There must be no dumping, no rotting on the shrubs and trees. The people look to the Government to keep a sharp eye, for example, on the fruit trade that is now opening up in this province. There will be abundance of raspberries and other small fruits, every pound of which ought to be conserved. It is likely to be bought at low prices from the producers and sold at very high prices to the consumers, unless the Government steps in and makes such plundering impossible. It is of the utmost importance that action to forestall the forestallers, be taken at Ottawa without delay. There ought to be Government inspectors and supervisors of the most trustworthy character employed to see that the public get a square deal.

The time has come for a more systematic and thoroughgoing policy of price control to be applied as widely as possible by the Government. There are elements in price-making that may be as uncontrollable by political authority as are the tides, but there are other elements, notably the leaven of profiteering, that can be kept from pushing off the Government lid.

In this connection it may be noted that the Labour Department's report on food prices for the month of June shows an advance over the preceding month.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"THE YANKS ARE COMING."

Toronto seems likely to lose its classic nickname, "Hogtown." Only thirty-five people have applied for permits to keep hogs in their back yards.

Quebec is apparently not the only district to provide work for the Dominion police. There are 3,250 defaulters and absentees in the Toronto Military District.

Onslow, the Toronto's first baseman, has been engaged in a pugilistic encounter with an umpire. He evidently takes that "Fight or work" order seriously.

British troops have helped in the capture of Berat, in Albania. The soldiers fro mthe Mother Land seem to bob up everywhere they are needed.

Austria-Hungary has confiscated the whole of this year's Serbian harvest. The Dual Monarchy had better hurry up or the allies will be back in Serbia before the enemy can remove the spoils.

What has happened to the Lemieux Act? In years past this Act made Canada freer from industrial strife than most countries; and it was regarded as model labour legislation for the world. Why is it not invoked in the labour difficulties at present threatening the nation? If the parties to the dispute think they have a good case why should they object to arbitration?

Strikes under any circumstances are bad. Resorted to without arbitration during war, they must not be tolerated.

Innocents Abroad.

(Ottawa Citizen).

In Montreal the ambulance was summoned for a man supposed to be dead, but who turned out merely to be asleep. These Toronto folk should always carry their registration cards about with them.

The Sea Murder.

(Buffalo Commercial).

The sinking by a German submarine of the British hospital ship Llandovery Castle was as dirty a piece of business as has soiled the hands of the Germans in this war. That is saying a lot, too.

Some Money!

(Wall Street Journal).

Six billion dollars, the amount of the next Liberty Loan, is a lot of money, but how much, few people can realize. This sum, converted into one-dollar bills and laid end to end, would make a strip of green-backs 699,000 miles long or enough to belt the earth at the equator just 28 times.

Why Explain the Obvious?

(Christian Science Monitor).

The First Battle of the Marne, the Battle of the Somme, the defence of Verdun, Ypres, Amiens, Rheims, and the approaches to Compiegne simply mean one thing, that the German Army's reputation as an invincible war machine is gone, never to return. "The belief in our famous training has become superfluous and false," says a German general wisely. "I shall explain," he continues. But why explain the obvious?

ANXIETY NOT OVER RE FOOD SUPPLY

Food Controller in Britain Battling with Unforseen Checks.

OTTAWA, July 19.—The season of anxiety with regard to the food supply of the United Kingdom and the Allied nations is not yet over. A conference of the food controllers of Great Britain, France and Italy, with Mr. Herbert Hoover, United States Food Administrator, will be held n July 22 in London, when the situation will be fully discussed. Unfavorable weather has been causing serious concern about the British home-grown crops, and early estimates will have to be modified. The labor shortage overseas is also acute.

Some of the difficulties and problems are indicated in the following cable received last night by the Canada Food Board from Mr. John R. Clynes, the new British Food Controller:

"British agriculturists have been seriously concerned about drought which has checked the growth of wheat here for six weeks, particularly on light soils. Barley and oats have also suffered as well as root crops and even potatoes have been retarded by cold weather and lack of rain. Luckily the spell of unfavorable weather now has broken, and rain is plentiful, but nevertheless, it looks as if the early optimism about possibilities of the wheat crop in the United Kingdom will have to be modified, owing to the difficulties of newly broken ground and lack of labor.

"It is true that women and children are being rapidly recruited for the forthcoming harvest, but even with the help of urban holiday workers and German prisoners, farmers here are sceptical whether they will be able to get in that which they have raised.

"Owing to early frosts and insects atacks on fruit, the food controller is now also battling with an utterly unforseen shortage of jam for our armies and civilian population.

"There is still a shortage of cheese, and lard has just been formally rationed.

"Hogs too, have not been raised as rapidly on this side of the Atlantic as was hoped, owing to the abnormally high prices demanded for breeding sows and weanling pigs. Such is the situation despite the great outburst of municipal enterprise in connection with hog raising.

"Generally, the food situation in the United Kingdom is improved, but the season of anxiety is not yet over. The food controllers of all the Allied countries will meet Mr. Hoover in conference here, on the situation on July 22."

Making Hole in One Shot is Rare

New York, July 19. — When Pierre A. Proal made a hole in one at the old Seabright golf course some seventeen years ago he felt that he had accomplished the feat of a lifetime. Since then Proal, playing regularly season after season, has made thousands of strokes, but not until the other day at Rumson did he manage to coax another tee shot into the hole.

This happened at the short second hole, only a mashie shot. Proal played hole after hole with little deliberation, but oddly enough he gathered in two 2's during the course of the same round.

Every time that a one is recorded the question of odds is brought up. On one occasion the problem was put to Lloyd's in London, the decision being that the chances were 20,000 to 1 against the feat being accomplished. Had Charles L. Fletcher, who keeps track of practically every round he has ever played, made the sixteenth hole in one at Seabright, nearly a score of years ago, and duplicated the performance at the second hole on the Rumson course the other day, it would only have required a question of minutes to glance back over the cards to tell how many chances at possible ones he had had.

How many rounds of golf Proal has had during the last seventeen years is of course purely a matter of conjecture. The former Harvard man does not know himself. However he plays quite regularly and it is reasonable to assume he has averaged a couple of rounds a week; a good deal more than that in the summer; less in the off season. So to carry the analysis further, 100 rounds a year for 17 years would make 1,700 rounds. Granting that courses over which he played had three short or possible one-shot holes, which would be a fair proportion, Proal would have had 5,100 chances, since he made his first one-spot when a "kid" at Seabright.

All of which may not be a very cheerful outlook for the thousands who have not been admitted to the army of "oners," though it should not be forgotten that there is no hard and fast rule, and that history records an instance where a man made two ones in two successive rounds.

OAK DINNER GONG.

IT EMITS A SOUND THAT CARRIES AT LEAST TWO MILES.

A camp cook whose only means of calling the members of his party was pounding on a pan with a knife handle was unable to make them hear when they were fishing or hunting at any considerable distance from the camp. One of the party to whom he complained thereupon made what he called a "klepalo."

The "klepalo' was merely a piece of well-seasoned oak plank two inches thick, six inches wide, and four feet long. Through the centre he bored a hole, passed a rope through it and suspended the plank from the branch of a tree. The cook "rang" the instrument by striking it with a mallet, first on one side and then on the other.

The man who made the "klepalo" had seen similar contrivances in small Bulgarian villages, where they are used instead of church bells to call the people to worship. A test of the instrument used by the campers showed that in ordinary weather conditions it could be heard two miles.—Manchester Union.

FARMS DEPLETED OF LIVE STOCK

Shortage of Feed Is Given As the Cause.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 19.—Farmers, fearing a shortage of feed, are shipping cattle to Winnipeg stock yards in unprecedented numbers, flooding the market with the result that farms are being depleted of live stock and the market is being demoralized.

FORMER MILL HAND NOW GUIDES DESTINIES OF BRITAIN'S SUPPLIES.

New Food Controller's Appointment Striking Mark of British Democracy.

OTTAWA, July 19.—Another striking example of the democratic growth in British public life since the outbreak of the war, is the appointment of W. R. Clines to the office of Food Controller of Great Britain, in succession to the late Lord Rhondda.

In the weekly official review of food conditions in the British Isles cabled to the Director of Public Information here by the Imperial Ministry of Information, it is stated that the new Food Controller started life as a mill hand, and is comparatively a new man in public life, having been first elected to Parliament in 1916.

The Germany Army May Be Forced Out of Present Salient

The Enemy Has Been Thrown Into Disorganization Inside the Aisne-Marne Salient.

ALLIES ADVANCING

Special to the Examiner:
(By J. W. T. Mason).

NEW YORK, July 19.—The renewal of the American and French offensive to-day means that the Germans have been thrown into disorganization inside the Aisne-Marne salient, and Von Hindenburg is in danger of suffering the most serious disaster since he became Chief of Staff of the Kaiser's armies.

The Aisne-Marne wedge forms for the Germans a pocket, within which Von Hindenburg has placed probably 350,000 troops. This pocket swings southward from Soissons to the Marne, and then north to Rheims, forming a line of about sixty miles. The Franco-Americans are now driving the western side of this pocket inward, while the southern and eastern sides are being firmly held by the Americans, French and Italians. If the driving process continues a little longer, the pocket may be squeezed flat.

ONLY WAY OF ESCAPE.

The only way of escape for the Germans caught within the pocket then will be northward along the 35-mile opening between Soissons and Rheims. If the Germans wait too long before effecting their escape, the largest single capture of prisoners yet made by the Allies may fall to the Americans and French. The accomplishment of this possibility is not the main objective of the Franco-American drive. To prevent it, Von Hindenburg will be compelled to discard his own offensive plans and use up his reserves for defensive fighting.

Important Changes Predicted In the Pension Branch

Mr. J. K. L. Ross Prefers to Have Free Hand in Selection of Staff.

LABATT'S POSITION

OTTAWA, July 19. — Important changes in the administration of the pensions branch are predicted at Ottawa. The speech delivered by J. K. L. Ross at Vancouver the other evening is regarded as having considerable significance in this regard.

The point at issue between the government and Mr. Ross appears to be that under the new Civil Service Act passed last session, all appointments must be made through the Civil Service Commission. In the past, heads of such new departments as that of pensions, were permitted to handpick their employees and it is claimed that far greater efficiency was thus obtained. Now the Commission does the choosing, though it is contended that politics have been eliminated and it is not the intention of the government apparently to revert to the old system.

Wants Free Hand.

Mr. Ross has intimated that unless he is given a free hand his resignation will be handed in. As a matter of fact their entire time and energy to the session recommended that the heads of the boards be men who could give their entire time and energy to the work. Chairman Ross has given splendid service free, but is a man with wide business interests and is not able to give undivided attention to the work.

Government Members.

Lt.-Col. Labatt's position on the Board is still to be filled. The name of Major W. Purney, Shelburne, N.S., has been mentioned, but the Great War Veterans appear to be divided on the subject. G. B. T. Caron, ex-M.P. P. for Ottawa, has also been strongly mooted for the post. Mr. Caron was a lieutenant in the 22nd French-Canadian regiment and saw 2 years' service in France. He is a successful lawyer and is at present attached to the staff of Mr. Justice Duff on the Central Appeal Tribunal.

Government members here state that there is no issue between them and the Pensions Board save that of whether the Board shall conform to the Civil Service Act as do all other branches of the public service.

ANNA GOULD'S SON CITED.

George de Castellane Again Mentioned for Bravery in Action.

PARIS, July 19.— Second Lieutenant George de Castellane, son of the Marquis Boni de Castellane and Anna Gould, (now the Duchess of Talleyrand and of Segan), earned his second citation in the French attack of June 11 for "making a perilous reconnaissance and bringing back exact information of the enemy's position."

NEW YORK, July 19.—Throughout the day sentiment was cheerful, mainly based on wonderful achievements of the American army in France. Stocks opened higher and were able to advance considerably. There was particular demand for Steel, Equipments, Railroad and Tobacco stocks.

There is no doubt that the recent declines created a very strong technical position, and the advance in today's market confirms this opinion.

U. S. Steel, from a market standpoint, appears attractive, but we believe a trading position on both sides advisable at the present moment. It is easily possible that the stock will advance further.

Tobacco products and Cigar Stores have been strong throughout the session on reports of favourable developments in the companies. We have been told that there are possibilities that Cigar Stores will declare an extra dividend in some form.

Opinion as to the general trend of affairs remains divided. On continued favourable news the market will show further improvement, but in view of the present money conditions and the fact that wider publicity will soon be given to the enactment of the new revenue bill we feel that commitments should be on conservative lines and a trading position for the present is advisable. Steels, Coppers, Tobaccos and Rails should be favoured.—Bryant, Dunn & Co.

GLOBE TAILORING MID-SUMMER OFFER

Mr. L. Green, of the Globe tailoring Co., Toronto, is in town on a business visit to his local branch store, corner George and Brock Streets. Mr. Greene confirms the general reports regarding the scarcity of woolens for suitings and the inflated prices for such as can be secured. He advises men to take time by the forelock and book their fall orders now for suits and overcoats. It may be mentioned in this connection, that the Globe store of this city, has a remarkable offer to men to make to order a limited number of worsted and other suits for the surprising price of $17.50, while these particular suit lengths last. —Read the adv't on another page.

PROVINCE MAY TAX HUDSON BAY CO.

REGINA, July 17.—The right of the Provincial Government to legislate in connection with imposing a surtax on the Hudson Bay Company was upheld by Mr. Justice Lamont in the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan today when judgment was rendered in the case of Bratts Lake Rural Municipality vs. the Hudson Bay Company. An appeal will be taken to the Privy Council. About $1,000,000 of taxes annually are at stake as almost every municipality in the province contains more or less land of the Hudson Bay Company.

MR. F. . KERR DISQUALIFIED FOR THE FAT MAN'S RACE

The Masons of Peterboro Had A Good Outing Yesterday Afternoon

THE PRIZEWINNERS

The Masons, Corinthian, Royal Arthur and Peterborough lodges, had a big day yesterday when they got away down the river on the Stoney Lake. Starting from the wharf at 1.30 they took in all the sights as far as Idyl Wyld, when the events were gone through with some startling revelations of what the members can do. Mr. Stratton, Mr. Morris and Mr. Fraser acting as judges, made the following decisions:

300 yard lodge relay race—Corinthian Lodge.

Sack race—1 F. D. Kerr, 2 W. Stocker.

3-legged race—Ira Moore and A. W. Archibald.

Fat man's race—1 Fred Roy, 2 G. A. Gillespie.

Mr. F. D. Kerr was disqualified for tripping an opponent, otherwise would probably have carried off the honours.

Tug of war—Royal Arthur Lodge.

The prizes in these events were original and useful, consisting of dolls, toy waggons, etc.

After the event had been ended a splendid fish dinner was served at Harwood.

A Policeman.

The return journey was the big event, when many of the members had ample opportunity to display talents as yet kept hidden. Mr. Chris. Graham as an officer of the law, arrested different picnickers, and upon being brought before the magistrate, each was sentenced to contribute a number to the lively programme.

The Raffle.

With an eye to publicity a toy auto was raffled, which realized $11.75, to be devoted to the Playgrounds Association. The men sold tickets for the Business Girls Association entertainment, realizing $7.00, which will be turned over.

Feminine Labour Tripled In Ontario In Past Few Months

The Demand is Growing Steadily and Number Will Increase During Next Few Months.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 19.—During the past sixteen months, feminine labour has tripled in Ontario, according to the statistics submitted by the department of trades and labor. 11,984 women were placed in the first six months of this year as compared with 6,091 during the first ten months of the employment bureau's existence in 1917. Out of the number placed this year fully 800 have been employed as farm labor, 300 in miscellaneous work, in canning factories, etc. 1,249 in factories, 1,776 permanent domestic and 7,621 casual workers.

Demand Growing.

According to Miss Marlin, director of Women's work, the demand is growing steadily. Through her department alone, 11,000 women have been placed and it is anticipated that this number will grow considerably during the next months as the season advances and the need of fruit pickers increases.

"We need girls, girls and more girls," declared Miss Martin. "Orders are piling daily and we not only need girls to pick raspberries, but for the canneries". In the opinion of the farmers the educated girl has proved the most reliable and capable worker on the farm.

THE SPIRIT OF THE AMERICAN BOYS

Letter From Nephew of Mrs. T. Sandercock of Peterboro.

Some idea of the spirit of the American boys may be gained by the following letter received recently by Mrs. Thomas Sandercock, 12 Inverlea street, from her nephew, Rollin Livick who went overseas with the Sammies recently.

June 1, 1918.

I am having a few days rest after being in the trenches again. There was lots doing this time. Sure gave the Boche H——. There kamerad stuff doesn't go with the boys in khaki.

Would like to have been photographed when I got back. I don't think I was ever so dirty in my life. The trenches were chalk and lime, My clothes were almost white, but have been outfitted with a new suit since my return so am spick and span.

There are to be no more packages from home. Not even if you send a request and it is O. K'd by the censor. Wish I could get an auto strap razor, as I lost mine in the trenches. Haven't one toilet article left as I lost them all in the excitement.

See by the papers Germany is hitting the allied line again along the Aisne and Somme. She seems determined to break the line at all cost—a thing which she will never do. When the time comes the Allies will strike so hard she'll never come to.

According to reports, U. S. is waking up. Well, its about time. They may as well stare the facts in the face for the war is past the jawbone stage.

I heard from Frank Devine. He tells me they are on the move, but I don't know where to——undoubtedly the front.

Yours truly,
Rollie Livick.

Some Raspberries Are Down to 30 Cents

The small fruit outlook for this year is poor and prices are exceptionally high due not only to the limited crop but to the scarcity of help.

Cherries, $1.75 to $1.90 a basket.
Raspberries, 30c to 35c. a box.
Black currants, 25c. to 40c. a quart.
Red currants, 15c. to 25c a quart.
Tomatoes, 20c. to 25c. a pound.

All the prices quoted are for home grown fruit. The prospects for a bumper apple and pear crop are said to be good but the peach crop is not promising. Huckleberries which are unusually plentiful are off the market on account of the labor shortage.

FIELD MARSHAL IS RELIEVED OF POST.

Emperor Charles Grants Request of Von Hoetzendorff.

AMSTERDAM, July 18.—Emperor Charles, says a Vienna telegram, has granted the request of Field Marshal Von Hoetzendorff that he be relieved of his command.

General Archduke Joseph has been appointed commander of an army group and Cavalry General Prince Alois Schoenberg-Hartenstein commander of an army.

It was reported through Zurich, July 3, that important changes had been made in the Austro-Hungarian command. Field Marshal Conrad Von Hoetzendorff was said to have been replaced by Field Marshal Von Koevess. General Otta Von Buelow, of the German Army, was reported appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Austrian Army in the Italian theatre, but there never has been any confirmation of this from official Austrian sources.

EMPEY MADE A CAPTAIN

WILL BE ASSIGNED TO THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

WASHINGTON,—Arthur Guy Empey, who, while serving with the Canadian overseas forces, took part in several important battles in the first years of the war, was commissioned a Captain in the National Army today. He will be assigned to the Adjutant General's Department.

Captain Empey was made a Sergeant in the Canadian Army before he was invalided home on account of wounds.

THE WHEELER IN A BATTERY

(By Lieut. K. N. Colville.)

There were three wheelers in the battery, which, being a Heavy Battery, R. G. A., included an ammunition column, but only one Staff-Sergeant Wheeler. It was not only his exalted title that made him unique. He must have been so even when he was only plain Wheeler H——

He was an Irishman, with nearly twenty years service in the 'Old Contemptibles and that is a combination that makes for a sturdy and racy personality. To his two assistants—who, like all the battery "tradesmen", were less in awe than any ordinary gunner of such dignitaries as the Battery Sergeant Major his word was law; for though one—a regular—was a competent wheeler, and the other—a new army soldier—was an expert cabinet-maker and a Welshman, they bowed before the superior knowledge and experience of the Staff." Even as a manual worker he was the best man of the three.

As the names implies, the Wheeler's primary duty is the care of wheels. He must see that, by the aid of the spare "first line" gunners, lumber and wagon wheels are kept well greased, and properl painted to keep the wood sound, and that the spokes are banded with hay or straw in summer to keep them from shrinkng and [illegible] Battery, comes within his province; the battery carpenter [illegible] the wagons' [illegible] boards, perches, poles and the rest; and if huts are to be served out—Eisen Englieh Armstrong or what not it's his job to set them up, keep them repaired and fit them out with tables, benches, shelves for the B. Q. M. S. to store his stuff, wire bedsteads perhaps, for a few favoured persons—and whatsoever else time and circumstances may render destrable Where dug-outs are in use he will superintend any timber-work that may be required and add bunks and other fitments for the battery office, the telephone dug-out and perhaps the officers' quarters and mess. For all these purposes and a hundred others, from a latrine to a stable, H—knew the most approved and economic design and would produce the finished articles in an incredibly short time. When the battery was once ordered to send a wheeler for instruction in stable-erecting (in order to qualify for an issue of timber wherewith to put up a winter shelter for the poor hairies) nobody dreamed of suggesting that Staff-Sergeant H—should go.

Nor did these multifarious jobs exhaust H—'s resources. He and his friend Saddler-Sergeant S— were the expert packers of the battery. A great art there is in packing wagons; so that the weights are evenly distributed; so that the sections can be split without having to rearrange loads; so that if a wagon has to be abandoned not the whole stock of anything indispensible shall be on it; and so that anything needed on the march shall be easy of access. The hand book of the gun and the mobilization table do indeed lay down precisely what you are to carry and where to stow it, but there was never an old battery yet that rested content with the letter of the regulations. Staff-Sergeant H—— had campaigned in South Africa and Staff-Seargeant H—— had fought at Mons and le Cateau and a great many other places since, and Staff-Sergeant H—— had learned from experience what a battery must have and what it can do without, and he and his assistants, the Saddler, the Fitter and the Farrier, did not hesitate to apply their knowledge while the S.M. and B. Q. M. S. and Captain and Column Officer alike bowed to their wisdom; for these distinguished persons are for ever changing whereas the "tradesmen" are the most stable element in the battery. A red and three blue chevrons had they all, and in one grade or another, had been on their own special jobs ever since the war started. There are few men who come to such ripeness of experience as Staff-Sergeant H—— and those who do speak with an authority unknown to statesmen or to kings.

AMERICAN LOSSES IN PRESENT BATTLE WILL BE SPLIT UP

If Published at One Time the Enemy Would Get Data on Number at the Front.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Up to date no names of men killed or wounded in the present drive have been received by the War Department, and it is doubtful if any will arrive for the next few days at least. Whenever they reach Washington they will be made public as rapidly as possible.

War Department officers are of the opinion that the Americans, naturally, because of the magnitude of the present operations, have lost a great many men in killed and wounded in the present drive. The country, they feel, therefore should be prepared to see very soon casualty lists much longer than those which have been made public to date.

The work of cabling the names and checking them up will require much time and will be a heavy tax on the cable lines. The probability is that it will be two or three weeks before all the names can be transmitted through the regular channels in France, and then to the United States.

The War Department, therefore, will not be able to make all the names public at once, but even if the names were on this side of the Atlantic it is doubtful if they would be given out on a single day. Four years of war have established a very good ratio in casualties to the number of troops engaged. The publication of the entire list consequently might give valuable information to the enemy.

PROFITEERS WILL BE HOUNDED OUT

NEW REVIEW BILL BEING FRAMED IN THE UNITED STATES

U. S. HOUSE COMMITTEE GOING AFTER THEM STRONG

WASHINGTON, July 19—The House Ways and Means Committee is going after the ill-gotten wealth of the war contractor profiteer in framing the new $8,000,000,000 revenue bill.

A retroactive tax bill, which will amount to the practical seizure of super-profits resulting from fat Government contracts—particularly as they touch cantonment building and other "cost plus" arrangements—has the almost unanimous backing of the committee, a poll of members revealed today.

Several members made the additional suggestion that as each individual case of profiteering is developed, it be called to the attention of the public and the Government department involved.

The first step in the committee's profiteer hunt will be an inquiry. With six weeks in which to frame a bill, the committee is willing to spend half the time, if necessary, at this, and every facility of the Treasury Department has been offered them.

That profiteering exists, sufficient to warrant such an inquiry, is shown by the President's utterance that the "profiteer is with us" by the recent federal trade commission report and treasury department data, committee members hold.

This proof has been clinched by additional data in the hands of the House Committee. This includes the case of a coal company which made 2,000 per cent, and the case of an individual whose income jumped from $6,500 to $600,000 in a single year.

The determination of the committee to go the limit in taking war profits is based on the belief that normal business and the country at large should not be asked to bear additional tax burdens until the gains of a few conscienceless individuals and firms are turned back into the federal treasury.

The committee's course also means that they have rejected the argument that there must be large profits if the treasury is to realize any considerable amount on excess profits and income taxes.

RAISING REINDEER FOR DRAFT USAGE

Dr. Grenfell Switches Experiments to Labrador Coast.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 19.—Dr. W. T. Grenfell, the eminent Labrador medical missionary, left here at the end of June in his hospital yacht, the Strathcona, to take up his summer's work, his departure having been delayed by ice on the northeast coast of Newfoundland. Apart from the regular service, which he will carry on this summer as previous years, namely, the operating of several hospitals and auxiliary stations on land, while cruising with the fishing fleets himself, he will make arrangements for the transfer during the summer of his herd of reindeer from northern Newfoundland to a new station on Canadian Labrador. This step has been rendered necessary by various circumstances, notably by the difficulties in working the reindeer experiment satisfactorily in a region so populous as that section of Newfoundland where the deer are now located, in the vicinity of St. Anthony, his chief hospital station.

Now the herd is diminished to about its original number. It is hoped, however, that with the transfer to Canadian Labrador it will be possible, on new feeding grounds, remote from settled areas, to build up the herd again and to introduce a strain of native caribou blood therein which will be very beneficial.

Dr. Grenfell is convinced that the domestication of the caribou is quite feasible, and that within a comparatively brief period the animals can be made as useful as the reindeer, which are only the Lapland caribou of former times domesticated and kept so by constant use, generation after generation. He expects to have a Canadian revenue steamer visit the coast later in the season and make the transfer, which will only be a matter of about a day's voyage, and he expects this process to be carried out promptly and successfully. He has made arrangements with the Government of the province of Quebec, under whose jurisdiction the herd will be in future, whereby any excess over 300 shall be at his disposal for transfer back to Newfoundland and territory again whenever he so desires, for he has still faith in the feasibility of his scheme for replacing the vicious Labrador dog with the inefficient caribou as a draft animal on the northern coast.

BERRIES ARE COING TO WASTE IN THE NORTH COUNTRY

Mr. Charles Gladman Has Just Returned From a Trip.

Mr. Charles Gladman returned today from the north country. In speaking of conditions up north, Mr. Gladman said that the wastage this year in blue berries will, if the government or some organization does not take the matter up and send some help to pick them, be a serious oversight. Between Schwanigan and Sudbury there are enough blue and black berries growing wild to feed all Canada and if these could be gathered and dried they would aid materially in the situation.

QUESTIONNAIRES FOR 19-20 MEN

Special Series Will Be Sent Out Soon — Full Information Sought.

TORONTO, July 19.—Special questionnaires are now under preparation, which will be sent out to the young men who are nineteen and twenty years of age. This special series of questionnaires will go out to the young men who were ordered to report by a proclamation in April, but their sending does not necessarily indicate that the men of those ages are to be ordered to report for duty. The date of issue of these questionnaires is uncertain. The idea of the proposed move is much similar to that in the cases of the older men, a desire to secure information about the men in question. There will be somewhat of a difference in these, as they will be asked to supply more particulars as to their identifications and more information as to their family and dependents, also of the occupations which they follow.

SPECIAL CERTIFICATES

There will also shortly be issued by the Registrar's Department a special series of certificates to certain men to show they have been properly registered under the Medical Service Act, and that they were placed in Category—. These certificates will take the place of exemption papers, which hitherto were worded "until services are required." The certificates will be issued to men in Category "B" whose exemption was disallowed except on medical grounds and who are subject to a call when "B" men are required. Men in lower categories who have appeared on other grounds and had their claims disallowed, except on medical grounds, will also receive these certificates, and also men between the ages of twenty and twenty-two who are in low categories. The men who receive these certificates will be subject to a call without any furher hearing when ever they may be placed in an available category by re-examination, or whenever the category in which they are placed is ordered out.

CHIEF THOMPSON ON EXECUTIVE OF CONSTABLES ASSOC.

Chief Thompson was elected as Ontario's representative on the executive of the Chief Constables' Association. Chief Slemin, of Brantford, is the new president. The executive consists of one member from each province. The Chief Constables are the guests of Toronto to-day. They arrived there this morning from Hamilton, where their convention was held, and were welcomed by Mayor Church at the City Hall. The programme of their entertainment included a motor drive around the city, and civic luncheon at the Carls-Rite at 1 p.m.

In the afternoon the police chiefs will be the guests of Mr. L. Solman of the Toronto Ferry Company, and will visit the Island. In the evening a theatre party has been arranged, at which the visitors will be the guests of Mr. E. H. Robins at the Royal Alexandra.

HER SILVER JUBILEE.

Mother Superior of Convent at Cobourg Felicitated by Friends.

Mother Loyola, of St. Joseph's Convent, Cobourg, yesterday celebrated the twenty-fifth aniversary of her reception into the sisterhood of St. Joseph. The occasion was happily marked by the Sisters and friends last night.

We are promised two coat silhouettes for fall—one the severely straight and military, the other inclining to the circular

BUSINESS GIRLS' GARDEN PARTY

Perfect weather favoured the Business Girls in their garden party given yesterday afternoon and evening at Holmwood Hall, the beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Holmes, and the affai rmay be counted as one of the big successes in the history of Peterborough's entertainments. From early in the afternoon, crowded cars, splendidly regulated, brought practically the whole town down to participate in one or other of the events, and to enjoy the splendid hospitality offered by Mrs. Holmes and her mother, Mrs. Newell, who most graciously welcomed the guests and gave them the freedom of their nam

On the lawns, which roll to the river, the girls had spared neither time nor ingenuity to make the most of the glorious grounds by adding dainty and charming booths, in all of which the the colour scheme of the afternoon, yellow and white, the club colours, was cleverly carried out, both in costume and decorations. At the gate a pretty arch shaded the door keeper, at which position the girls took turns.

The Booths.

From the gate the visitors were immediately attracted to the "line of mystery," a rustic bridge leading to the river and gaily festooned with tiny paper canaries. Here the Misses Muriel Gladman, L. Hamilton, E. Wood, J. Waddell and Lynda Hall were in charge.

At the vegetable garden, where remarkably good vegetables from the girls' own arden were sold by Misses Byers, M. Eassqn, L. Davidson and Walkey.

At the fancy work booth, Misses English, E. Poole and B. Ross were in charge.

The well was a pretty idea, carried out by the girls, and here soft drinks were served by Misses L. Crowe, J. Richardson, E. Distin, E. Rae and E. Johnston. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Drummond, convenor, and the Misses E. Hall, A. Peters, H. Burgess, B. Latimer, M. Laurie, Mrs. Walter Briegel and Mrs. Barrett.

In the card room Misses A Horsefield, H. Mowatt, N. Shevlin, M. Morrison and J. Sherlock were in charge.

Miss E. Miller, convenor, and the Misses Irene Knapman, C. Dunsford, C. Ross and J. Layfield had charge of the ice cream. Miss M. Rae and Miss G. Saunders were in charge of the flower booth, while Misses M. Hall, G. Evans, H. Stanger and Dorrie Westfall foretold the future of sundreds in a gypsy tent. Mrs. Duncan Drummond had charge of the cash.

The Programme.

(In the evening a feature of the entertainment was the dancing of Miss Caroline Littlefield, who in costume on the green gave a most graceful interpretation of the martial spirit of France, and of the life of the Russian peasant. The rose ring dance by Misses Esme Aylmer and Edith Price was a charming item in the splendid programme.

A continual programme of the latest popular music by the 57th band delighted the hundreds who thronged the grounds. Other delightful items on the programme were Miss Lynn, Mr. Asa Huycke and Miss Laura Logan.

The dance attracted scores of the young people to enjoy the splendid music provided by Mrs. Foster and Miss Florence Gladman.

The Conclusion.

At the conclusion of the affair most satisfactory accommodation was given by the Street Railway to return all who had not cars, to their homes in the city. Before leaving the girls presented Mrs. Holmes with a beautiful silver vase and sang, "She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

1,500 ATTENDED

A broad estimate of the attendance drawn from by the return of tickets and receipts at the gate is made at 1,500. The figures of the net profits have not been made up as yet.

In the raffle of the canary bird Miss Aileen Wade held the lucky number Miss Stratton took the prize for bridge in the afternoon.

POSTMEN EXPECT TO GET THEIR BONUS

OTTAWA, July 18.— No announcement was forthcoming to-night from the Cabinet Council regarding the bonus of the letter carriers, porters and sorters. Believing that the Government will immediately take favourable action, however, Local Branch No. 2 of the Federation have asked the Toronto branch to defer a strike for a few days. At a meeting to-night J. E. Fauteux, president of the local branch, said that his impression from the interview with Col. Blondin, Postmaster-General, in the afternoon was that the Minister would see that the men got their rights.

"NO NEW DRESSES," WOMEN'S SLOGAN FOR FOURTH LOAN

Preparations Made to Enrol Million Workers and Sell Half of Issue.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 19.—The work of enrolling one million women of the United States pledged to sell one-half of the fourth Liberty Loan of $6,000,000,000 was begun at a conference of representatives from all parts of the country under the auspices of the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee.

"No new dresses," was a slogan offered by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, who, in in absence of Mrs. W. G. McAdoo, chairman of the National Committee, presided. "I haven't had a new dress for the last three years."

"No new hat ornaments," said Mrs. A. E. Baldwin, of San Francisco.

"No new clothes for the children or as few as possible," said Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, member of the National Committee, who explained that her own children are dressed in the blue denim French peasants' smocks.

The women leaders of the nation emphasized that thrift must become fashionable to aid the new loan so that they might better the record made in the lsat loan, when forty per cent of the total sales were handled by women.

MUST ADVANCE 40 P.C. COST OF WATER MAINS

STRATFORD, July 18.— Forty per cent. of the cost paid in advance will be necessary in future before the Public Utilities Commission will consider any new water mains. This decision was reached at a special meeting of that body to-day, when the question of formulating some policy in regard to extensions came up. It was felt that in view of the request of the Dominion Finance Department that only necesary improvements be undertaken in view of the increased cost of mterials and the labour market, that the 40 per cent. revenue which had previously been required as forthcoming, was not sufficient. The regular meeting was chanzed from the third to the fourth Thursday.

Who Gets the Profits on Strawberries? Three Cents to Pick Them, Yet Sold for 28c

Who Gets the Profits on Strawberries?—"Not I," Answers Grower, Picker, Canner, Wholesaler, Commission Man and Retailer, All of Whom Do Their Bit to Make Poor Consumer's Bill Big

CONSUMER—"Fruit prices are prohibitive! Someone must be making money. Imagine strawberries 28c cents a box!"

RETAILER—"We handle the goods as much to oblige our customers as anything. A couple of cents on the box, or a round ten per cent., is all we make."

WHOLESALER—"Ours isn't the gain. We get but 12½c on gross sales, and accept all liability of debts, fruit spoiling, etc. From 75 to 80 per cent. goes to the grower."

CANNER—"Labour, containers, sugar and coal have gone up to such an extent that, added to the scarcity of fruit and its consequent high price, we're selling at a loss in keeping our prices within reach of the people at all."

PICKER—"Well, we're certainly not overpaid. Even three cents a box for berries wouldn't equal $3 a day, and that means expert picking."

GROWER—"We are getting more for our products than we used to, but we pay more for labour, for horse and cattle feed, for spray, fertilizer, boxes and crates. No; don't think the grower is waxing rich. He isn't!"

WINONA, July 18.—Profit! profit! Who gets the profit on fruit? As in the children's game of "Pussy Wants a Corner," the answer always is "Next-door neighbour." In times gone by, strawberries, for instance, could be bought at three, four, five, and even six boxes for a quarter. Now they range from 25 to 28 cents per box. Raspberries, cherries, black currants and all fruits are alike. What is the reason?

Fruit was, and is, scarce and dear, and no one acknowledges being any the better off for the increased prices.

Black Currants Fail.

"Fresh fruits are dear, and jams, jellies and preserves will be still dearer," declared the factory foreman over at the E. D. Smith preserving plant and fruit farm in Winona. "We raise our own fruit, and we buy it, too, both from neighbouring farmers and from the United States. As an example, a six-quart basket of cherries, wholesale, costs us $1.40. To sell that as fresh fruit means that we must sell it at a gain, the freight, commission and wholesaler's charges must come out of it. The retailer makes a cent or two, and the consumer does well to get it at $1.75 or $1.80.

"Red currants cost us 8 cents a pound; then the picker is paid 25 cents for picking a 17-pound basket. The black currant crop is almost a failure this year, so we are paying 14 cents a pound for them, and the picker gets 3 cents.

Cost Twenty Cents to Start.

"Naturally, people will wonder at the increased cost of jams, for instance. Take, for example, strawberry jam. From our own gardens we do not get enough to supply our entire output, but had to buy 37 carloads, or 10,000 crates of 36 quarts to a crate, from fruit yards in Maryland and Virginia.

"By taking the lot we got them at a flat rate of 14 cents a box, but when the freight, custom, and packing charges were added they cost at an average of 20 cents per box.

"Arrived in our factory they are sorted over and hulled, for which the girls get two cents a box. Then there is the fuel needed to boil them, sugar at a wholesale price of 9 cents per pound constitutes from 62 to 64 per cent. of the finished product; fruit jars, which used to cost 80c a dozen, are now $1; and the little 4-lb. tins are just doubled in price, now 10c each. For filling the jars with the fruit and labelling them from 15 to 17 cents per hour is paid."

Plums Not in Demand.

When the housewife then comes to buy jam next winter she may ponder over the thought that she is paying high because of the following cost to the canner:

Having fruit picked or buying it wholesale from growers. Increase of 50 per cent. in cost of containers (glass and tin). Sugar, fuel and labour's increased cost. Paper labels cost more, as does the printing.

"Where we used to get a 24-box crate of raspberries last year for $4 we are now paying $6," continued the foreman. "Plums are fairly plentiful this year and are always cheaper than berries because there is not the demand for them. The demand is 60 per cent. greater for strawberries and raspberries or black currants than it is for plums."

Sell at Cost and Below.

At the Wagstaffe preserving plant in Hamilton the manager said that for the first time in their history they were going to sell their goods this year at cost, and in many cases below.

"The cheapest berries we got this year were 18 and the dearest 23 cents per box," he said. "Our cost to the consumer has to include the cost of canning, the containers, cases, labour, labels, fuel and overhead expenses. The cost of glass this year is 25 per cent. more than it was last year, and 75 per cent. more than it was at the outbreak of war. Tin is double the price, labour has jumped 75 per cent., and wooden crates, boxes, baskets, etc., doubled since 1914.

"It is not as easy for us to get American fruits this year as the American Government had ordered one billion pounds of jam for their troops. Our firm alone is supplying two and a half million pounds of jam for the Canadian boys and much of the Canadian output of jams, jellies and preserves will go to the troops. That great demand in itself is going to keep the prices high, especially when the supply is small. Black currants, for which we paid 8c per lb. last year, are costing us 14c this year."

Grower is Not Gainer.

"The grower is not the man who is making all the profit," was the emphatic declaration of every fruit grower and farmer interviewed throughout the district. A typical reply to queries was that of Farmer Smith, who has a large fruit section near Vinelands, Ont.

"Yes, I am getting more for my fruit than I ever did before. On the other hand, I am paying out more than I ever did before. Peaches this year are bad. Instead of having 500 bushels, anyway, I'll do well if I get 50. My grapes last year were splendid until an early frost spoiled every one. Plums are good, but there's not the market for them. You see, the fruit farmer has to make a big profit on some things to barely cover the cost of others, so that in that way the grower is not 'getting it all.'

Expenses Much Greater.

"Our expenses are much greater this year than last, and the last two, than say three or four years ago. For instance I pay

$8.50 for spray which was $5; $650 hired man, was $400; $2.40 and $2.50 shorts, were $1.20; $16-$20 ton hay, was $8; $90-$1 bus. oats, were 35c-40c; $86 per M. crates, were $35.

"Implements are 50 per cent. dearer than two years ago, and our own food cost is, of course, just as high and at just as much of an increase as anyone else's. We growers and farmers find clothes and furniture and everything else just as much dearer as does the wholesaler or the canner or any other person. No, the grower is not the one who is waxing fat on the increased prices."

Commission Men Don't.

Back in Toronto, the wholesalers and commission men disclaim all knowledge of any gain on their side.

"There's 87 per cent. between the wholesaler and the grower," said the McWilliam and Everist, fruit commissioners, representatives. "We get a wholesale commission of 12½ per cent. of the gross sales, but we take all risks with that. Fruit may spoil or freeze or be lost in some way. Out of that we have to pay 30 cents a hundred for express charges, that is, 5 cents per 11-quart basket, 3 cents 6-quart basket, or ten cents a 27-quart crate.

"For cartage we are allowed but 2 cents for a 27-quart crate, 1 cent for 11-quart basket and ½ cent for a 6-quart basket. By that you can see that our gain is not very much. The same price holds good whether the fruit is berries, cherries or whatever it may be."

Gain Often Offset.

Of various retail fruit men spoken to, such as Medlands, Swan Bros., Thompson's, etc., none claimed a gain in the handling of fruit to them.

"Fruit is not a profitable commodity," said Mr. Medland. "We carry fruit in our store as an obligement to our customers, rather than as a gain to ourselves. If we make a ten per cent. gain on the wholesale price, we do well. Sometimes this is possible, but on the other hand, that gain is often offset by having to sell a shipment of over-ripe fruit at cost or below."

Make But Two Cents.

Thompson's fruit buyer was of the same opinion. "We try to make two cents on a box of berries and say ten cents on a 12-quart basket, above the wholesale price. When you consider that such a little gain to us is to cover the cost of our delivering that parcel and paying the salary of the clerk who served the customer and whatever paper and string used to do it up, you'll see our gain is not great."

Even if fruit is scarce and dear, it was a treat to see the rows upon rows of fruit trees and the clusters of berry and currant bushes which grow so profusely just across the lake and in the peninsula. One thousand or more acres at Smith's factory alone, near Winona, is one of the beauty spots of the country.

Boils Away to Water.

One man who is but a small canner, but who has a great knowledge of the subject, added a bit of information which is of interest. "Canners and housewives alike find that sometimes the fruit seems to 'boil away,' and become between two-thirds and three-quarters liquid, while at other times it 'boils up' or thickens. It has been noticed that in dry seasons nature supplies the fruit with more water and the canner has to stand the loss of his fruit 'boiling away' and has to use more to make his jam. In wet seasons the fruit is a greater per cent. solid and consequently more profitable to the jam-maker."

THISTLES TAKE LEAD IN LEAGUE STRUGGLE

Beat Orientals Last Night by 5 Runs to 1 in a Pitcher's Battle Between Neary and McNeely—Orientals Fielding Misplays Cost Them the Game.

The Orientals' weakness with the willow and their fielding misplays at critical moments, gave the Thistles an easy win over Manager Johnston's youngsters last night in a City Twilight League fixture at Riverside Park. The Thistles won by 5 to 1 and as a result are now out in front again in the League race, Louis Yeates' team having won one more game than Manager Solomon's Riversides.

Last night's battle was a light hitting affair, Neary for the winners and McNeely for the Orientals having a decided edge on the batters. Neary only allowed four singles, while the Thistles' best off McNeely was six safeties. Errors played a big part in the Thistle win and they managed to interject their bingles with the misplays of the losers.

The two centre fielders, Thorndyke for the Orientals and Bartley for the Thistles, each contributed a fine running catch, while the work of McLeod, who handled eight chances without a slip at second, for the Thistles, was a feature. First baseman Tudhope of the Orientals, accepted the unusually large number of nineteen chances, his only misplay being a poor throw to McNeely, which allow Shaw to advance a base. The game was played in the remarkably fast time of one hour and fifteen minutes. Thistles started the scoring in the second. Jackson, first up, was safe on Foley's miss, and Mahood sacrificed him to second. Bartley hit to McNeely, whose throw beat Jackson to third, but Collins dropped the ball and the runner was safe. Ahearne's single to right scored Jackson and sent Bartley to third. Neary's scratch hit on a pop fly back of of the box, which the Orientals' infield got mixed up on allowed Bartley to score. Cherrett died on a smash to Hagerman and Thorndyke pulled down McLeod's drive to centre.

In the Orientals' half, Hagerman was walked to start with, and stole second. Long's infield out advanced him to third and he crossed the rubber on Collins' timely single to right. Collins purloined second. Tudhope drove one over second which McLeod nearly nailed. Collins, thinking the ball would be caught, hesitated, and when he finally tore for third, McLeod's good throw nailed him sliding into the bag. Tudhope stole second, but was an easy out when he tried to purloin the third corner.

The Thistles put the game on ice in the fifth. With one gone, Cherrett went to second when Foley missed his grounder. McLeod singled, sending Cherrett to third and promptly stealing second. With Shaw at the bat the squeeze play was attempted, but the batter failed to hit and Cherrett was an easy out at the plate. Shaw hit safely to short, scoring McLeod. A wild throw to McNeely allowed Shaw to reach second and he then stole third. Cupoli's pass and steal put him on second, and both runners scored on Jackson's double down the third base line. Mahood was safe on Foley's wide throw, but Bartley grounded to Hagerman.

There was no further scoring. Orientals had a chance in the sixth when Foley was hit, but Johnston struck out and Foley was doubled at second by Cupoli's perfect throw. Then Bergoine singled to right and Thorndyke was safe on Jackson's fumble, but McNeely hoisted to the pitcher.

The losers had another opportunity in the eighth when Tudhope led off with a single and Foley was safe on Jackson's error, but Johnston fanned, Bergoine flew out to Bartley and Tudhope was nailed trying to steal third. The box score:

Sporting Comment

Morley Jennings, shortstop on the Minneapolis American Association team for several seasons, will leave the club to enter an eastern officer's training camp.

Herbert Hester, first baseman for the Aberdeen club, of the Pacific Coast International League, has been accepted for athletic work among the soldiers in France.

Manager Mike Kelley, of the St. Paul club, is trimming his roster to get within the player limit of sixteen men. Bobby Byrne, infielder, has been unconditionally released. Pitcher Bill Piercey, Catcher Lester Cook and Outfielder Robert McMenemy are to be disposed of.

Umpire Harry Wagner, of the Bethlehem Steel League, has declined an offer to act as substitute umpire in the National League. Wagner, who has made a hit in the steel circuit, likes his post so much that he does not care to leave it. In a recently protested game Wagner was sustained by the league.

Outfielder Tom Quinlan, formerly with the Chicago Americans, who has been playing around Philadelphia, has been certified for service in the National Army by the local Exemption Board, and on July 22 will be sent to a training camp.

Marlin Kopp, Philadelphia Americans' outfielder, has again been ordered by his local draft board to report July 25 to go to Camp Jackson South Carolina.

Shortstop "Billy" Patterson, of the Dallas team of the Texas League has been purchased by Minneapolis of the American Association.

Buddy Napier, star right hander of the Shreveport team of the disbanded Texas League, has gone to Chicago to join the Cubs.

English Sportsmen In the Casualties

LONDON.—Many famous British sportsmen have fallen in the recent severe fighting on the Western front, all branches of sport being represented in the latest casualty list issued. Lieut. A. D. Stafford, died of wounds, had the remarkable experience of going to Germany in the year before the war to play Rugby football, the side also including A. L. Harrison, the famous international forward, who was killed in the Zeebrugge fight.

Lieut. Stafford was an old Pauline and made a big name for himself as a member of the Rosslyn Park Football Club.

Lieut.-Col. C. K. James, killed, was an old Cheltenham boy, who took part in the Cambridge University trials and played for Richmond at Rugby.

Captain H. L. N. Dundas, wounded, is the well-known Eton Rugby footballer. Lieut.-Col. Thin, wounded, was a speedy three-quarter back at Fettes College and also played in Merseyside Rugger.

Second Lieut. H. A. Reppmann, killed, was a well known forward of the old Alleynians.

Second Lieut. E. M. K. Paul, killed, was in the Rugby, cricket and hockey teams at Marlborough College.

One of the most popular players in Northern Union Rugby circles—Sergt. James Flanagan—of the St. Helen's F. C., has also made the big sacrifice. He was a great scorer from either the centre or wing three-quarter back position, and many times played for Lancashire in the county matches. He and the New Zealander, Sergt. H. S. Turtill, who was killed some time ago, were bulwarks of strength in the ranks of St. Helen's, and both are deeply mourned.

Capt. R. G. Rice, wounded, is the famous Reading athlete, who was a member of the Surrey Athletic Club before the war and a frequent competitor in the North of England. He won a heat in the Olympic 100 metres, but was not at his best at Stockholm. He was also a great Rugby football enthusiast.

Joe C. English, twice two miles steeplechase champion of England, and the holder of the new A. A. A. quarter-mile hurdles championship, has been awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal for bravery on the battlefield.

MAHONEY WINS CASE ON APPEAL

IS AWARDED $1100 DAMAGES IN SUIT AGAINST CITY OF GUELPH

TORONTO, July 19.—Chief Justice Sir William Meredith, in the Appellate Cour gave judgment for $1,000 in favor of ex-Mayor H. Mahoney agains the city of Guelph ,for damages following injuries received in the blowing up of a dam in the River Speed. This reverses the judgment of Mr. Justice Clute, who dismissed the case in the lower court. Mr Mahoney sued for $4,000, and the Appellate Division holds that there was negligence in not properly covering the explosive.

The Chief Justice comments in giving judgment:

"I know of no reason why a member of a municipal council who has directed work to be done by its engineers and who from curiosity or from any other motive is present when the work is being done and is injured owing to the negligence or want of skill of the engineer in doing it may not recover from the corporation damages for the injuries he has sustained."

Application For Habeas Corpus Writ Dismissed by Court

Validity of Order-In-Council Established—Finding is Contrary to the Ruling of the Alberta Supreme Court—The Military Service Act is Upheld.

Canadian Press:

OTTAWA, July 19.— The Supreme Court at two-fifteen this afternoon dismissed the application for habeas corpus writ on behalf of Private Grey, Justice Iddington and Brodeuer dissenting. The judgment established the validity of the order-in-Council in April twentieth cancelling certain exemptions under the Military Service Act. It is contrary to the finding of the Alberta Supreme Court. It will not now be necessary to summon parliament in a special session to deal with the matter.

LABOUR DISPUTE IN ENGLAND

The Production of Munitions May Be Affected.

LONDON, July 19.—A labour dispute which may lead to a labour disturbance has been begun in Coventry and other centres, says an announcement issued by the Minister of Munitions to-day. A larger number of skilled munition workers, it is stated, have handed in notices which take effect next week. Cessation of work by these workers, it is added, would stop the production of some of the most vital and urgently needed appliances and munitions. The Ministry explains that the strike did not arise out of any difference between the employers, but was due to the action of the Government in seeing that skilled labour was fairly divided amongst the munition firms. This had brought about a great deal of misunderstanding, which every effort was being made to remove.

OBITUARY

ALEXANDER GILLESPIE.

Alexander Gillespie, one of the city's best known residents, died yesterday at noon. One week ago, while at his desk at the Peter Hamilton foundry, he had a stroke spell, which later developed into paralysis and ended in his death.

Deceased was born in Edinburgh, Scotland 76 years ago, and came to Peterborough when ten years of age, where he has lived ever since. Fifty-three years ago he joined the staff of the Peter Hamilton Company and was associated with the firm ever since, acting for many years as superintendent of the company.

Of a very quiet and retiring disposition he took little active part in public life, but was always interested in the welfare and growth of the city in which he was so well known and dearly loved. In religion he was a member of the Bethany Tabernacle and was a founder of the local church. In politics he was a staunch Reformer.

There are left of the immediate family, his wife, residing in Vancouver, and four sons, Richard A. of New Westminster, Dr. James A. of Vancouver, Walter G. Atlantic city, and Charles H. of Kitchener, and one daughter, Mrs. E. R. Wilson, with whom he made his home. One brother, Thomas of Lock street, also survives him. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., is a cousin of the late Mr. Gillespie.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon. Service at the house conducted by Rev. Mr. Downer, at 2 o'clock. Interment at the Little Lake cemetery at 2.30.

He started off to work this morning in his usual good health, but was compelled to return, passing away some time later in his son's arms.

The late Mr. Bain has resided in Peterborough for upwards of forty years. His wife pre-deceased him about five years ago. One brother, David, resides near Kingston, and a sister, Mrs. J. Lawson, resides at Middleville, Ontario. The deceased was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO RECEIVE $5,000,000 CHEQUE

NEW YORK, July 18.—A cheque for $5,000,000 will be presented to the Knights of Columbus at the Victory Convention of the order at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel August 6 and 7, James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the order, will receive a cheque from a church dignitary as yet unnamed. The cheque will represent the result of the great Catholic war drive recently made in the arch-diocese of New York, which started out to raise $2,500,000.

From all parts of the United States delegates will come to the convention. It will be caller the "Victory Convention" because of the "help win the war" slogan of the order. The purpose is to raise at least $5,000,000 within the next twelve months for war work and to send at least two thousand additional secretaries to Europe before the end of this year:

Soissons is Recaptured By the Allied Forces

Spectacular Cavalry Charges Aid in Glorious Success—Teuton Reserves Poured Into Battle, But to No Avail—German Hopes Crushed.

30,000 PRISONERS ARE TAKEN IN BIG ADVANCE

WASHINGTON, July 20. — Soissons has fallen to the Americans and French. This fact reached here officially late last night along with tidings that 30,000 Germans have been captured.

While no details of the fall of Soissons were made, Secretary of War Baker indicated previously that his messages showed the fall of the city to be imminent.

This bag of prisoners is the greatest made in one drive since the beginning of the war.

A Glorious Advance.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, July 20.—With one wide, sweeping smash the French and Americans undid practically all that had been accomplished by the latest German offensive.

In fact, they brought that effort to a standstill while advancing themselves — tearing through the enemy lines at some points to the depth of eight miles. Some of the most spectacular cavalry charges in history have contributed to the allied movement.

The Franco-American success is so complete that it foreshadows the time—now regarded as inevitably approaching — when the Germans must give ground everywhere.

The Germans are reported rushing up reserves, but the damage appears to have been done. Their offensive aimed at Epernay and thence toward Paris, now seems hopeless of realization.

SATURDAY MORNING BULLETINS

Saturday Morning Bulletins:

NEW YORK, July 20. — A United States cruiser was sunk by a German submarine off Fire Island, the Navy Department reports.

16,000 PRISONERS.

BASEBALL HARD HIT.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—War Secretary Baker has decided that baseball is not an essential occupation under the work or fight order.

TROOP SHIP TORPEDOED.

LONDON, July 20.— British troop ship, outward bound with unfit Australians on board, was torpedoed and sunk Monday. There were no casualties.

BRINGING UP RESERVES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN FRANCE, July 20.—The battle along the Franco-American front between the Aisne and the Marne is raging fiercer. The Germans are bringing up reserves.

METEREN CAPTURED.

BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, July 20.—Meteren was captured by the British yesterday morning. Eighty prisoners were taken and ten machine guns. Three hundred prisoners were taken in the Bailleul operation.

POSTMEN WILL STRIKE.

LONDON, July 20.— Five hundred postmen voted last night to strike on Monday morning next.

GRAIN MARKET

Both corn and oats markets were weaker yesterday, as was inevitable in view of the great war news, which of course gave rise to the unusual crop of peace rumours. In addition to the war news, other bearish factors were the favourable weather and a report that the Food Administration Board of the U. S. had ordered that elevator interests holding corn and oats and other substitute grains must sell out and in order to make room for new wheat. With these adverse influences to contend against, the bulls had their troubles, corn at Chicago closing 3 1-2c. lower than Thursday and 1 5-8c. Winnipeg was also weaker on oats, going off 1-2c. at the close.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-2, including 2 1-2c. tax, in store, Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 91 5-8c.; No. 3 C.W., 88 1-2c.; extra No. 1 feed, 88 1-2c.; No. 1 feed, 85 1-2c., in store, Fort William.

American corn not quoted.

LIEUTENANT IS DISMISSED FOR USING MARKED CARDS.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Dismissal of Second Lieutenant Thomas M. Lynch, of the 360th Infantry, for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman was announced by the War Department. Lieutenant Lynch was convicted by court martial at Camp Travis, Texas, of having used a marked deck of cards in a game with brother officers.

Charged with having contributed to and accelerated the death of a soldier through gross neglect of duty, Lieut. Joseph C. Robinson, of the Medical Reserve Corps has been dismissed from the army and to serve one year imprisonment at hard labour.

Munitions

In the year 1917 Canada produced:

55% of all the Shrapnel;
42% of all the 4.5's;
27% of all the 6 inch Shells used by the British Army.

This is a proud achievement!

The record can only be maintained by uninterrupted co-operation between Employer and Employee.

The Manufacturer of Munitions who refuses, in this crisis, to submit Labour differences to independent judgment, meanwhile continuing production, commits a crime against the State.

This is equally true of the Employee.

FOR "A YEAR OR TWO" MORE

Sir Eric Geddess Tells Tribunal Chairmen of War Preparations.

Describing an interview he had the previous day, Alderman Swaish, chairman of Bristol, England, Tribunal, said that Sir Auckland Geddess told him he had settled down to try to meet the urgent need for men for a year or two longer and he expected the tribunals to do the same.

Sir Auckland also said he was aware of the public feeling about calling up the older men while the younger men remained, but some younger men were essential to the provision of munitions and could not be removed to the fighting forces until the older men could do their work. Parallel to the call to the older men would be the call to the younger ones.

There were, he added, about 60,000 fewer men in Government departments than three years ago. No industry had been more denuded of Grade 1 men.

"Sir Auckland appears to think that our work as a tribunal is by no means near completion," the speaker added.

SAFE PEOPLE MAKE A SAFE DEMOCRACY

A Mere Democratic Form Does Not Insure Freedom and Right Government—Selfish, Dishonest and Immoral Individual Lives Will Ruin Any Nation.

MUST HAVE GOOD CITIZENS

Of all the illusions that have possessed mankind none has a longer or more consistent record of disappointment than the notion that peace and happiness are to be found in a form of government. From Euphrates, 2,500 years before Christ, to the present congress the ingenuity of man has has been exercised to discover some formal way by which his conduct in regard to his fellow-man could be regulated to common satisfaction. Democracy, pure- selected delegated; autocracy, theocracy, all have been tried and retried with new hopes ever leading to new failure. For man has always striven to blame his own shortcomings of his form of government neglecting the simple truth that only in himself lies the secret. Democracy as a form of government is no cure-all for social ills, though democracy as a rule of individual conduct would go far toward removing those vexations of existence which so far have defied the skill of the wisest lawgivers.

2,000 Years Ago.

If this seems to be an impossible task, one that was undertaken some two thousand years ago and is yet so far from completed, we can take another view of the effort for democracy. We can see our efforts turned to the prevention of the military, political, and economic growth of Germany which would give that nation eventual domination over the earth, including ourselves. We can look upon this war as one of self-preservation pure and simple. But that is a selfish war in which several democracies have joined for the protection of their own interests, political and economic. In this case the safety of democracy depends on how thoroughly we win the war, how powerless we leave Germany to resume it either by force of arms or economic force. There is nothing altruistic in this view; it is purely self-interest, and it guarantees nothing for the future in the way of peace on earth beyond that which we are able to impose by the methods we are new using.—T. J. Dillon in Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

CATTLE MARKET

Reports continue to be received, particularly from the West, of a serious shortage in the hay crops and of fodder feed generally, which is resulting in the too early marketing of large numbers of ill-fed and poor quality cattle. In the Western Provinces it is alleged that the cattle markets are being flooded with cattle which the farmers are afraid would have been left on their hands with no feed in sight for the fall and winter months. The consequence is congested cattle markets at the present time and a sharp shrinkage in prices. The cattle thus prematurely marketed are necessarily only half-finished and poor in quality, and, therefore, dear cattle from the packers' point of view, even though prices are nominally lower. The probability is that many of these Western cattle will be sent east, thus tending to increase the present demoralization of cattle prices here. While prices in the local markets this week have generally held steady, the trade has on the whole been dull and draggy, excepting for anything with quality. Calves have firmed up a little the latter end of the week.

Lambs have weakened.

Hogs have been firmer, making a general advance for the week of 25c. to 35c. over the previous week.

DROPS OF MAGIC! LIFT OUT CORNS

Sore, touchy corns stop hurting, then lift right out with fingers

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn or callus and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

WORKING IN SECRET

CHAPTER CXXIII.

I had one joy no one could take from me. In secret, behind my locked door, I worked several hours each day on the tiny garments I should need for my baby. I did the most wonderful embroidery, worked dainty patterns upon the sheerest lawn and linen, and was happy as could be, doing it. But when I laid it way and took up my life with others, the thought of what was coming of what it meant to me because of George, almost sickened me.

I suppose many who read will wonder why I accepted so utterly Julia Collins' speech about children; and why I should have applied it so literally to George. But Julia Collins had not only been held up to me as a pattern, ever since I had been carried; I knew positively that I often had been neglected, left alone, while George spent his time with her. I knew that he considered her most attractive, and very much worth while. That her opinion of men was based upon her knowledge of my husband's likes and dislikes, I took for granted. Remember, I was still very young, my environment very different from that to which I had been accustomed at home; my desire to be like those women whom George admired intense; and then perhaps you will the more readily understand how I felt.

I thought of writing mother. Then I knew she would worry about me—that if I wrote her honestly, telling her the conditions—how I felt about things, and the attitude I believed would be my husband's when he knew — it would make her most unhappy. So I decided to wait. Later, I would write and beg her to come to me.

So I continued to carry my secret alone. I never again refused to go out with George when he asked me. I was only too anxious to be with him when, and while, I could.

Helen Keeps Her Vow.

I had not cried again. Not when George was at home, or enough so that it could be noticed. Occasionally, when I was sewing, a few tears would drop upon my work; tears of self-pity that I, instead of happily telling those I loved how matters were with me, as Evelyn Reeves had done, must hide it as long as I could. I think I grew a bit morbid over myself, and that made things harder to bear.

We were quite gay, and often I felt physically unable to do so much—to be quite so constantly on the go. But never, since the night when, after my refusal to go out with George, when he had been so annoyed with me, had I objected to anything he proposed—or that others proposed—if it seemed agreeable to him.

I danced, I sang, I entertained, and went everywhere. Then, one night, I fainted. It was at a dinner dance at Julia Collins', I felt ill before I went. But I said nothing, though Celeste, who, I knew, suspected my condition, urged me to remain at home, telling me I looked terribly ill. But I refused and after I was dressed, and more deftly rouged than I usually was, I looked almost as usual. Even George said nothing except to compliment me on my dress—a lovely, misty tulle I had ordered especially for the occasion.

They told me afterward that George was dreadfully frightened when I fainted—that he was as white as I was, and that he insisted upon taking me home the moment I recovered.

Helen Is Ill.

When we reached home, he at once called Celeste and Annie to take care of me, and wanted to call the doctor. But I assured him I was all right and he left me with them.

"I will be in the library. Call me if you need me," he told the maids.

I urged them to put out the lights and leave me as soon as I was in bed.

"Stop in the library and tell Mr. Howard I am going right to sleep," I told them. I did not wish to be questioned. I was feeling faint and very ill, and feared I might be tempted to confide in George.

After the maids left me, I grew steadily worse; once or twice I felt as if I were dying, slipping away, down, down some terrible incline and that I could not stop myself. I must have fainted again. But when George came up I was better, and told him so.

"We have been going it too hard," he said as he prepared for bed. We'll cut out a few invitations, hereafter."

"That will be nice," I agreed. I knew he expected an answer.

George was soon asleep, but I again commenced to feel ill. I said nothing for a long time, then, fearing I was going to faint again, a bit frightened also, I called him.

"I feel very badly, George."

He was out of bed in a minute.

"Shall I get a doctor now, Helen? I should have had one as soon as we reached home. You objected so strenuously, I gave in—foolishly."

"Yes, get the doctor."

SHAM BATTLE IN THE AIR.

J. B. CLARKSON TELLS HOW BRITISH AVIATORS ARE TRAINED

NEW YORK, July 18.—J. B. Clarkson of New Zealand, Managing Director of Hope Gibbon's Sons and J. B. Clarkson, Ld., motor firms, who has just returned from a visit to France and England, said that England was turning out airplanes at the rate of several thousands weekly and losing only about 200 machines during the same period from accident, fire, and shooting down by the enemy in France. Machines are being supplied under contract both to the American and French Governments.

Hundreds of young Englishmen between 18 and 25 years old are volunteering for the Air Service, Mr. Clarkson said, and training schools have been established all over England and Scotland. Fatal accidents occur in these, as they do here. At one school ten pilots were killed in nine days. Continuous recruiting and training, however, keep up the thousands of aviators needed in active service.

"One of the most interesting sights I witnessed on the other side," Mr. Clarkson said, "was in visiting one of the big aviation schools where they train the pilots in fighting and aerial manoeuvring. This is the last stage before they leave for France. There were ten machines up, presumed to be German raiders. Ten other airplanes rose to attack them in a sham battle, which lasted nearly an hour and ended in a victory for the defenders. In the last big raid over London which I witnessed at 1:30 o'clock in the morning in bright moonlight the British flyng men brought down ten German machines out of the twenty-eight that took part in the raid."

Mr. Clarkson remarked that the English people were enthusiastic in their admiration of the physique of the American soldiers who had passed through their country and were surprised at the numbers, which were far beyond their expectation for this year. The English are determined he said, to carry on the war until the military spirit in Germany has been crushed, no matter how long it lasts.

TEN-DOLLAR BILLS AS BOOK-MARKS

Search in Toronto Archdeacon's Library Recovers over $2,000.

TORONTO, July 18.—Theological libraries do not usually repay the close study that has been devoted to the library of the late Archdeacon Samuel Boddy, M.A., for forty years rector of St. Peter's Church, Carlton street. It appears that the Archdeacon was in the habit of slipping bills inside the volumes that he was reading, perhaps as bookmarks, as well as uncashed cheques and after his heirs had found five and ten dollars bills in a set of John Leech cartoons it seemed worth while to study the volumes with some care. The result of the study was the discovery, all told, of $950 in bills and cheques, making a total of $2,100.

4,538,000 WOMEN IN TRADE

Official Announcement Points Out Number Employed in Britain.

In England there are at present 4,538,000 women and girls employed in classified trades that are under the juridiction of the British Board of Trade. These figures, according to an official announcement, as reported by The Monetary Times of Toronto, are exclusive of women employed in small trades and on the land. Domestic servants are also excluded. All hospital helpers, Red Cross, and other nurses are not counted. Taking all classes of British women war workers, the total is said to be considerably in excess of 5,000,000.

Less than 200,000 wmen were employed in Great Britain before the war began, and these were mostly in textile mills. The report for 1917 gives 198,000 in Government offices, exclusive of civil service and local government. The latter two employed 146,000. Munition workers numbered more than 800,000 workers in chemical and engineering establishments, 200,000; land workers, 100,000, (with an additional 30,000 called for this Summer.) and thousands as mechanics, motor drivers, ambulance drivers, street car and omnibus operators, cab drivers and every sort of railway work, letter carriers, bank clerks, and office workers of every kind. Recruiting is going on steadily in all these lines and the response has been to the extent of approximately 15,000 a week.

War times are teaching us that there is no economy in buying the cheapest goods nor the fancy high priced ones. We are depending on the solid values of the good standard brands—the brands that were good in peace time and have doubly proved their worth in war time.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HIS ILLUSTRATION.

By ELIZA WHITFIELD.

(Copyright, by American Press Association.)

"The reason," said the old bachelor to his fiancee, the old maid, "why you women never rise to the management of a big business concern is because you haven't mental discrimination between correct and incorrect methods."

"Nonsense!" retorted the old maid. "A woman can discriminate between correct and incorrect methods as well as a man. And she's as capable of managing a big business as men generally are. Of course, so long as men keep making typewriters and petty clerks of women, giving the important positions to their own sex, she'll never learn the business and can never rise to a head position."

"Why do men keep women in the subordinate positions?"

"Because they can get them to work cheaper."

"And why will they work cheaper?"

"Why, because they have to, I suppose."

"The reductio ad absurdum."

"What do you mean by that gibberish?"

"Your argument is reduced to an absurdity. But I'll not agree with you; a woman, not having a logical mind, can't"—

"I wish you to understand that I have just as logical a mind as you."

"Your own words prove that you have not. I would never use an assertion in place of an argument. I'll illustrate rather than argue with you. Not long ago a certain lady received from a certain firm, who were large importers, a handsome rug with a bill for it of $150. A polite note accompanied the goods, requesting that if the rug was not accepted she would return it."

The old maid looked surprised, and the old bachelor proceeded.

"The lady wrote indignantly to the firm that had sent her the rug, asking to know what right they had to expect her to return a rug she had not ordered. She would be obliged to call in a cartman and pay him for taking it back. She was a very busy woman besides."

The old maid drew away haughtily.

"How did you come to know of this matter?" she asked.

"That hasn't anything to do with the illustration."

"I don't wish the illustration."

"You haven't heard the whole of it."

"I know all I care to know. The head of the firm sent for the rug and took it away, at the same time writing me an impertinent note saying that he would be obliged if I would send for the dozen tickets I had sent him for our charity ball."

"What else?"

"That he had not asked for them."

"What else?"

"He must pay a messenger. That wasn't necessary at all. Hadn't he plenty of stamps?"

"Stamps cost money."

"A man must be very mean to grudge a few stamps in a matter of charity."

"It is his right to dispense every cent of his charitable fund as he pleases. Besides, he was called upon to return other tickets."

"There was some game in the matter. I didn't send the man any tickets. I sent some to you."

"And I sent you the money."

"How did this—this esteemed friend of yours get the tickets?"

"They were mine."

"I see it all. It was a mean, contemptible trick."

"But a good illustration of the absence in common of that power of discrimination."

"I shall not trouble you again in my charitable work. I'll confine myself to men more"—

"Liberal? Didn't I send you the money for the tickets?"

"But you took it upon yourself to"—

"Teach you a lesson. Was that unkind? How many men do you suppose muttered curses upon you for your method of procedure?"

"I can stand their curses so long as I got their money for the poor."

"In that one statement of your's is involved a question which no brain, masculine or feminine, is capable of solving; that is what is excusable in providing for suffering people. Only one thing I ask of you: When you send out charity tickets again consider yourself a merchant soliciting trade."

"And do what?"

"First raise the money to send stamped envelopes for the return of the tickets."

"That's not so easy."

"It's very simple, indeed. Call on me."

There was silence between the couple, during which the old maid was evidently absorbed in thought. The old bachelor looked for a surrender. He had not shown her her fault by argument; he had taken the pains to give her a practical illustration. He believed that when they were married he would always by such means convince her of any error she might fall into. At last the old maid said:

"It's very kind of you to offer to furnish me with stamped envelopes which the tickets that are not accepted may be returned, but I don't want them. If I gave every man to whom I send tickets an envelope in which he could easily slip them, seal it and drop it in the mail I would not sell nearly so many tickets. You men are impracticable creatures."

There was another pause. This time the old bachelor did the thinking. At last he said:

"The air is chilly. I think it is going to rain."

AMERICA'S EFFORT TO FEED ALLIES

$1,400,000,000 WORTH OF FOOD SHIPPED IN LAST FISCAL YEAR.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Food valued at approximately $1,400,000,000 was sent to the Allied countries from the United States during the fiscal year which ended June 30, Food Administrator Hoover wrote President Wilson in a letter made public to-day reviewing the work of the food administration. The shipments represent those made to the Allied armies and civil population, Belgian relief Red Cross and the American military forces. The figures indicate, Mr. Hoover told the President, the measure of effort of the American people to provide the Allies with food supplies.

The American women had a dominant part in the sacrifices necessary to accomplish these results, Mr. Hoover wrote.

DIVING RECORD IS MADE BY A SOUTH SEA ISLANDER

MADE A DIVE OF 205 FEET AT SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, LAST MARCH.

A new world's record for high diving was made at Sydney, Australia, late in March, during a water carnival for the purpose of raising war relief funds. A Solomom Islander named Aick Wickman dove 205 feet, which easily surpasses any existing figures for such a feat. Wickham, a swimmer and diver of note, who is employed by the Sydney trolley service, was persuaded to attempt the dive as part of a lengthy program of acquatic events held at the Deep Rock swimming pool. A high platform was erected near the top of the cliff-like side of the pool and at the announced hour for the dive there were thousands of spectators present to witness the perilous feat.

The Solomon Islander admitted that when he reached the top of the tower and looked down at the pool he was badly rattled, and desired to quit, but the fear of being accused of cowardice forced him to go through the performance. He leaped off, and was able to retain both consciousnese and equilibrium for the first 150 feet, after which all became blank. Wickham struck the water in a semi-prone position with such force that he was completely knocked out for more than ten minutes. When taken from the water he was bleeding from a dozen places about the body.

Beware of Poison Ivy; Danger Season Now

THREE LEAFLETS WITH WHITE BERRIES IDENTIFY PLANT THAT PRODUCES SERIOUS AND PAINFUL EFFECTS.

Berries red—have no dread;
Berries white—poisonous sight;
Leaves three—quickly flee.

This "jingle of the jungle" is perhaps more practical than poetical, as it will help the memory in distinguishing between the poison ivy and the non-poisonous plants it resembles. At this season people are continually asking: "What is poison ivy? What does it look like? What is the cure?"

Poison ivy has three leaflets and white berries. The Virginia creeper, which it resembles closely, has five leaflets, and purple berries.

However, it has been said that the small greenish flower of the poison ivy in early spring is followed by purplish berries in the fall; so the surest test at all seasons is the difference between the leaves of the poisonous and harmless plants.

Another member of the poison ivy family is the poison elder. It is a short or small tree, usually about 12 feet in height, although sometimes it grows to a height of 30 feet. It is found in swamps and low marshy places. The berries are white.

HAMILTON, July 18.—Although no effort has been made to form a police officer's union here, there is much indignation being expressed by some members of the local force regarding the action taken by police chiefs of the Dominion at their convention here, in passing a resolution condemning the formation of any police union. "The chiefs already have a union of their own, for their association is really a union. Why shouldn't what is sauce for them be sauce for us, too?" exclaimed the local policeman. "If we got only half the salaries that those chiefs get, we wouldn't need a union," observed another.

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S WAIST.

The distinction which seems a part of this blouse makes one feel well equipped for any occasion. It is the type of waist which may be successfully worn with a separate skirt, or it may be combined with a suitable skirt to make an afternoon dress. There is an inset vest which produces a square neck effect, and it may be of white georgette to match the collar or of the waist material. The fronts are gathered at the shoulders to the back, which extend over in yoke effect. The long sleeves are so cleverly cut that the tight sections at the wrists may be rolled back to form cuffs if shorter sleeves are prefered. The waist is finished with a peplum.

The lady's waist pattern No. 8801 is cut in four sizes—36 to 42 inches bust measure. The 36 inch size requires 2 yards 36 inch, or 1¾ yards 40 inch material.

The Patterns Are Guaranteed to Give Excellent Satisfaction.
This Pattern Can Be Obtained From the Examiner Office on Payment of 15 Cents.

50 PER CENT. CARRIED IN BRITISH SHIPS

LONDON, July 17.—Of the 637,929 American troops brought to Europe in the months of April, May and June 350,956 were carried in British ships according to a statement made in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Leo Money, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Shipping. He added: "Arrangements are being made whereby we hope to carry larger numbers in the future."

THE SHRINKING TEUT

Fat Necks and Big "Tummies" Now Rare in the Hun Country.

It has required some little time to dent the Teuts; but finally it has been accomplished. The average German collar has been scaled down from 18 inches to 14¼, and on top of that, the Cologne Gazette announces that, "the age of fat tummies in Germany is over, and the intellectual appreciation of fat stomachs no longer exists." In other words the Teut is returning to human forn.

Fritz and his compatriots are thus in shape to take such restricted place shape to take such restricted place in the sun as they are likely to get, but they must be careful of their diet when they get back to regular feeding. They have simply got to cut down on the kartoffein and wienerwurst, the bier must come in schnitts, there must be no more of this leberwurst and kalbsbraten stuff, and they have got to cut out the pleasant habit of having family parties at the sarsaparilla on smelting innocuous. If the Teut is going to continue to wear a straight front and a 14½ inch collar he must hold down on the calories and the carbohobrades and eat more fish and soda crackers.

However, after the vicissitudes of diet, he has already suffered, this should be no hardship. What he probably dreads more than anything else is that somebody will take his suspender away from him.—Seattle Post-Intelligence.

GAS MADE FROM STRAW

Machine Devised for Utilizing Product That Now Goes to Waste.

The production of fuel and lighting gas from straw is now made possible by a Canadian inventor. This producer, which is designed for individual farm use, offers a practical means for utilizing the vast quantities of straw that new go to waste on the Western plains.

The gas is made in a retort equipped with three cylinders, each of which holds a bale of straw, 7 feet long, 2 feet wide, and 6 inches thick.

After filling and closing these chambers, a straw or gas fire is lighted under them and allowed to burn 30 or 40 minutes. One firing with wheat, oat, barley, or flax straw in this manner produces 1,200 cubic feet of gas having fuel value of 400 B. t. u. About 12,600 cubic feet of gas usually be generated from one-ton of straw, and in addition six to eight gallons of tar and 640 pounds of carbon, from which lampblack can be obtained.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

FRENCH AND AMERICAN TROOPS CONTINUE THEIR ADVANCE

MYSTERY SURROUNDS THE LOSS OF UNITED STATES CRUISER

GERMANS HAVE BEEN STRONGLY REINFORCED

The Fighting is Now Man to Man and Gun to Gun—Terrible Shell Fire Concentrated on Enemy

LOCAL FIGHTING

(Special to The Examiner.)
(By Frank Taylor.)
(United Press Service.)

WITH THE AMERICANS BETWEEN THE AISNE AND THE MARNE, July 20.—The French-American offensive is divided into a separate battle for the possession of all important positions from Soissons to Chateau Thierry. Some Allied units have already crossed the road, especially French cavalry. The Germans have been strongly reinforced by reserve divisions.

The element of surprise has long since been lost to the French and Americans. The fighting is now man to man and gun to gun. The battle is particularly sanguinary south of Soissons where it is raging through villages, woods and fields of France. One American unit captured more than 2,800 Boches in this region. The Germans are attempting to rush in artillery supplies along the west.

Heavy Shell Fire.

The whole front is under a terrible shell fire concentrated on their lines of communication by the Allied guns.

At the south end of the battle line American units, in conjunction with the French, advanced northwest of Chateau Thierry. Latest reports declared the fighting was increasing in intensity east of Courchamps.

Between Chateau Thierry and Rheims, especially in the vicinity of Dormans, American units are helping to hold back the waning efforts of the Germans to push ahead. According to the latest reports, the fighting there is now purely local in character, on a scale hardly larger than raiding. The enemy efforts there have been growing lighter and lighter in the last four days.

Prisoners report the withdrawal of German artillery and infantry concentrations north and northwest of Chateau Thierry to meet the Franco-American threat northwest of the city.

RAPID PROMOTION FOR PETERBORO BOY

Left Peterboro as a Private And is Now Second in Command of Battery

Early in 1915 a boy of 18 years of age J. H. Cobb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, 223 London street gave up his position as elevator boy in the Dressman's store and joined the 21st Battalion as Private J. H. Cobb. After training in Kingston he went overseas with that battalion and on completing short training went to France this was in the early stages of the war when bombing had not as yet developed to a fine art but was beginning to take its place in the fight. In to this branch young Cobb who seemed to be possessed of iron nerve and absolute fearlessness of danger entered with heart and soul obtaining such proficiency that his work attracted attention and he was promoted to Corporal and Sergeant and chosen as leader of bombing raids.

OFFERED COMMISSION

In July 1917 on the strength of his work he was offered a commission and went to England. Returning to France the young lieutenant pursued his eventful course and in due time won his Military Cross. Before long he was promoted to a captaincy and this was but a milestone in his career as information indirectly received states he has now received his majority. Pursuing his course Pte. Cobb of 1915 is now second in command of the 4th French mortar battery according to a casual reference in a letter received lately.

PARENTS UNAWARE

Quite unaware of their son's prowess his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cobb were surprised to learn from Revd J. C. Davidson that his address had been changed from lieutenant to his present rank. Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, members of St. John's Church, have been residents of Peterboro for 10 years.

The public are reminded of an enjoyable, cool trip to Gore's Landing, Thursday afternoon next, July 25th, per Steamer Geneva, under the auspices of Mark street choir. Keep this date open. Fuller announcement later.

The Official War Reports

French and American Troops Are Continuing Their Advance—Positions Consolidated.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS (Official), July 20. — French and American troops are to-day continuing their advance between the Aisne and the Marne. South of the Marne the French have thrown back the enemy between Fossoy and Reuilly and have retaken ground towards the Marne. The Allied advance has reached the line of Vierzy beyond the wood of Mauloy, east of Villers-Helon, and the Neuilly front.

POSITIONS CONSOLIDATED.

The Germans have been forced to bring up one hundred thousand reserves to the army of the German Crown Prince, as a result of yesterday's fighting, and the French and Americans after fluctuations, have been enabled to strongly fortify the newly gained positions southwest of Soissons, says "Marcel Hutin," in the Echo De Paris.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, July 20. — British troops last night advanced their line on a mile front south of the town of Hebuterne.

A successful raid was carried out by the British near Beaumont Hamel.

A German airplane crossed the Kentish coast this morning and was driven back by the fire of anti-aircraft guns, according to an official announcement.

As a result of yesterday's operation on the Flanders front, the British line was advanced along a breadth of 4,000 yards in the Meteren sector .The village of Meteren and group of buildings southwest of the village known as Lewaton, are now held by British troops. Prisoners taken aggregate 436.

LACK CONFIRMATION.

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, July 20. — The War Department to-day expected news that American and French troops have entered Soissons.

Official word received late yesterday that the city had been rendered untenable to the Germans was followed by despatches that the Allies could enter Soissons, almost at will. Although the capture of the town was announced in official diplomatic circles, these despatches still, lacked the War Department's confirmation early to-day.

Inflicted a Sharp Blow

On the Bolsheviki—Leader Has Again Taken the Field—Few Details.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, July 20.—General Semenoff, the anti-Bolsheviki leader in Eastern Siberia, says a Tien Tsin despatch to the Daily Mail, dated Thursday, has inflicted a sharp blow with heavy losses in men, stores and ammunition. The correspondent does not specify his opponents or date or place of the action. An Associated Press despatch from Peking dated Monday, reported that General Semenoff again had taken the field and had occupied Sharasun. It was not reported that there was any fighting.

Provincial Government Will Create a Loan Fund for Erection of Workers' Houses

Municipalities Will Add Twenty-five Per Cent. to the Loan—Two Million Dollars Will Be Provided.

MAXIMUM RENT

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 20.—Sir William Hearst announces that the Ontario Cabinet has approved a generous scheme by which a loan fund of $2,000,000 will be created to enable municipalities and building institutions to construct workmen's houses and offer them to working men and women on easy terms of payment. Legislation is being drawn up for presentation to the next session of the legislature to carry the proposals into effect and to ratify any by-laws or proceedings properly taken by municipalities in the meantime, with a view of taking advantage of the proposed scheme.

Municipalities Must Aid.

Under the proposal any municipality desiring to take advantage of the fund must agree to add at least 25 per cent. on the loan obtained so that for every $1,000 received from the Government $1,250 shall be expended for home construction. The rate of interest on the loans payable by the municipalities shall be five per cent. per annum, and no house constructed from the proceeds shall exceed $2,500. While the intention of the Government is to give workingmen and families an opportunity to become owners of their homes, it does not preclude the renting of the houses. If rented the maximum monthly rental shall be $25.00. When the legislation has received the approval of the legislature the scheme will be conducted through the operation of the Housing Committee recently appointed by the Government, with Sir John Willison as chairman.

Housing Problem Is Acute.

Through replies to a circular letter the Ontario Housing Committee has learned that a housing situation exists in most of the cities of the province, and in a great many of the towns. So far the condition has been found to be very acute in Sault Ste. Marie, Guelph, Galt, Brantford, Paris, Midland, Sarnia, Sudbury and other places.

Many of the mayors are of the opinion that the problem cannot be solved by local enterprise, and believe that outside assistance should be secured. Some places are using the Housing Accommodation Act as a means of securing money with which to build.

Taxation of Homes.

While quite a few mayors favour the partial or total exemption of workmen's houses from taxation for a period of years in order to stimulate building, others are definitely opposed.

The extensive influx of people from the villages and rural sections to the cities and towns is demonstrated by the fact that many villages have reported that they have no housing problem, adding that they wish they had.

Guelph's Activity.

An interesting activity is in progress at Guelph. Thirty-one citizens have undertaken to be responsible for the construction of as many workmen's homes. They are co-operating in the preparing of plans, the purchase of material and the financing of the undertaking. These will receive no remuneration for their services. The houses will be sold to workmen on payments.

GERMANY'S LAST HOPE

London Press Comment on the Allied Victory—The Signal Is Awaited to Resume the Drive Against the Boche.

METERAN CAPTURED

Special to The Examiner:
(By Ed. L. Keen.)

LONDON, July 20.—Germany's lone chance of retrieving the initiative and renewing her offensive is to strike soon with full force working like lightning.

Failure to do this means that Von Hindenburg's 1918 offensive dreams, with Paris and the coast ports as objectives, are shattered.

Already the French and Americans have begun the looping movement designed to trap the Huns located in the pocket between Soissons and Rheims.

Keeping in Trim.

Along the whole front, the signal is awaited from Foch to begin the drive against the Boche. Tommies and Colonials on the British front are thrusting here and there to keep in trim.

The Germans' position is growing more desperate each day. The passing of time witnesses a constant increase in air raids on German territory. Every now and then the Allied aviators go a bit further. Talk is growing regarding the possibilities of raiding Berlin and Vienna.

Several Punches Left.

Germany undoubtedly has several punches left, but the freshened Allies art of the "duck and hit" game is down to science.

Morning newspapers, recalling the over-confidence at Cambrai, cautiously advise the public to await developments.

"It is still within Ludendorff's grasp to concentrate his strength for a thrust that will tax every resource of the Allied defence," declared the Daily News, but the day is past when the Germans can hope to reach the ultimate objectives of their offensive.

"Foch has forced the enemy's hand and has deprived him of the initiative," the Mail said. "Ludendorff has no time to lose, but until his 40 reserve divisions (480,000 men) are used up and beaten we must not let down our suspense."

Taste of Victory.

"The taste of victory is so good it will tempt the people to think the turning point of the war has arrived," said the Graphic.

The latest French communique reported the capture of 17,000 prisoners and 360 cannon in the Aisne-Marne drive. Opposed to this was the German claim of more than 20,000 prisoners. It is known positively, however, that the enemy's claims have been extravagant throughout the present operations.

Scotch and Australian troops, in a minor operation astride Meteren in Flanders, captured that city yesterday morning, taking nearly four hundred prisoners and a great number of machine guns.

SCRAP ON GEORGE ST. AFTERMATH OF MOTOR TRIP TO LINDSAY

A "bunch" of youths rented an automobile last Sunday, a common practice, and gave Lindsay the pleasure of their company for the greater part of the Sabbath. During the day one of the group persuaded his companians to let him take the car for a short time, but his minutes stretched into hours. So incensed were the others that they contrived to leave him stranded in Lindsay that night, having started for home without him. Last night this youth met one of his Sunday pals at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, and without any ado knocked him down with a vicious swing and repeated the blow a moment later. Then they clinched, and P. C. McIntosh arrived in time to pull them apart. The aggressor was fined $8.75 in police court this morning.

Mystery Surrounds Loss Of An American Cruiser

ROOSEVELT'S DEATH CONFIRMED BY A GERMAN AVIATOR.

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, July 20.—Confirmation of Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt's death during an aerial battle on Sunday near Chateau Thierry, was contained in a note dropped by a German aviator in the aviation camp to which Roosevelt was attached, the 'Journal' announced to-day.

Submarine, Mine or Internal Explosion Are Among the Causes Suggested by the Survivors.

DETAILS LACKING

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, July 20. — The navy department had been striving since yesterday to clear up the mystery surrounding the destruction of the United States cruiser "San Diega" off Fire Island and seeking to learn whether a submarine was responsible.

Many naval officers have had the idea Germans would resume her U-boat warfare off the American coast. Rumors say a submarine was responsible, but that theory is unconfirmed. The last information made public was an announcement that 1,156 officers and men had been landed from the vessel in addition to thirty previously reported.

If a U-boat was responsible the fact is particularly significant because Fire Island light is at the very gateway to New York. Hence it would mean operations are directed against traffic out of that port. As against the submarine, theory there were theories that either a mine or an internal explosioon caused the disaster.

Opinions Vary.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, July 20. — Positive information as the cause of the sinking of United States armored cruiser San Diego off Fire Island yesterday, as well as to loss of life if any, was lacking here early today. Thirty-one sailors who were landed at Point O'Woods on Long Island yesterday, said that a torpedo had struck the warship amidships, following which two other explosions occurred. Other survivors among 300 arrived at this port on a tanker last night were reported to have said that either a coast defense mine or an internal explosion caused the disaster. Other steamships, with survivors aboard were expected to arrive at New York or other nearby ports during the day.

The Backwash From Battle

Wounded Soldiers Are Being Rushed From Field Dressing Stations to Paris—Hospitals Taxed

(United Press Despatch.)
(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, July 20.—The backwash from the battle on the American front is flowing into Paris.

American Red Cross hospitals are filling up as cases which can be transported are rushed from the dressing stations at the front direct to Paris. All the American hospitals are scenes of intense activity. The staffs are putting up cots on every available spot.

CASUALTIES LIGHT.

While this preparation is going on, however, hospital officials declare the number of casualties, considering the extent of the America noperations, is wonderfully small. But this is the first time our men have participated on such a large scale, and the hospital facilities are being taxed.

At twilight yesterday, long lines of American ambulances crawled slowly along a boulevard in the eastern part of the city toward the hospitals. Crowds of promenaders halted and walked to the edge of the sidewalk. Silently and reverently, military men saluted each ambulance. Old men raised their hats, while women waved handkerchiefs and children their own nosegays into the ambulances, bandaged Americans—those lightly wounded—waved back. Others smiled wanly at the demonstration of affection.

THE RED CROSS

As the news of the Franco-American successes spread through the city it was a frequent sight to see the French halt Americans and shake their hands—sometimes kissing them before the abashed Yankees could retreat.

The American Red Cross is meeting the emergency in a wonderful manner. Doctors and nurses are working day and night. Twenty thousand pounds of surgical dressing and five tons of special food have been rushed to the front. Two new hospitals of nearly a thousand beds have been opened in the environs. Another will be ready Monday.

SITUATION IMPROVED

The Franco American sweep between the Aisne and the Marne has greatly improved the general war situation.

The Germans are pouring in their reserves which had been held back for the supreme effort. Half the campaigning season of the year has passed. The threat toward Epernay has been warded off. Villers Cotterets Forest has been cleared of the enemy The German divisions south of the Marne are in a perilous position. The most important phrase however, is that the Allies have taken the initiative.

During the past thirty hours, the Germans are reported to have brought up 96,000 of their precious reserves. In the same period the French and Americans have captured more than a thousand machine guns.

FINISH THE JOB.

During the past few days employees of the city Board of Works have removed the many stumps which have long been an eyesore, as well as a prolific cause of accidents, at the Inverlea Park bathing beach. The work has resulted in a much improved appearance, and more comfort for the bathers, but in the opinion of the hundreds of citizens who have visited the park this week, and got a glimpse of the condition of the river bottom as revealed in low water, there is much that could be done to still further improve the bathing facilities at this point, one of the most frequented breathing spaces in the city. The bottom where the children and their elders who cannot swim, have to stand, is far from being in proper condition. The river bed is composed of countless roots, stones, and black muck, making a most disagreeable footing for the bathers, and there is an ever-present danger of serious cuts being sustained.

A small appropriation by the city could convert the Inverlea beach into a most comfortable bathing place. If the river bottom was to be scraped thoroughly and levelled, and a quantity of fine gravel dumped in the conditions would be ideal for the youngsters. And it is hoped that it may be possible to undertake this work. Some of the aldermen should make it a point to visit the park some evening when the bathing rush is at its height, and get some first hand information as to the number of people who patronize Inverlea, and as to the need for improvement in the conditions.

The improvements suggested could be carried out at small expense. The Nicholls Park Board have provided a bathing house and a caretaker—the city might reasonably be expected to undertake the finishing of the work.

THE END SOON.

"The fate of the world will be decided before this year's leaves turn brown on the trees, and perhaps before the harvest is gathered in. I believe it will be decided in our favour."

This is the most impressive portion of an article written by one of the world's greatest war correspondents, Philip Gibbs, the English journalist, whose despatches from France have been among the most thrilling word pictures of the war. Mr. Gibbs, who has been at the front since the beginning of the war has always been known as a conservative, sane writer, and his opinion that the issue on the western front will be decided this year, is, therefore, more than unusually important. Mr. Gibbs calls attention to a fact that many people are inclined to overlook and that is, that in spite of the heavy masses of German troops used in the attacks on the Aisne-Marne front, there is still opposed to the British forces a huge concentration of men. "The enemy is still immensely strong," says, "and one's mind is staggered by the number of men he has crowded on to this western front. The war correspondent regards the situation between the Aisne and Marne as most momentous. Opposite the British, he says the German commanders, Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, General Sixt Von Arnim, and other noted leaders, have been preparing for months for another blow at the coast. A vast amount of preliminary work has been carried out and the enemy is ready to strike.

The developments of the next day or two may alter the whole complexion of the war. An extension of General Mangin's sucess in the Soisson's district, menacing the Crown Prince's armies, would compel the enemy opposing the British to send divisions to the Champagne, and instead of a huge offensive aimed at the Channel ports, Rupricht and his leaders may have to be content to remain inactive.

Mr. Gibbs points out that the enemy must do whatever they do within the next two months or so, and after that they will be forever on the defensive, because their reserve powers cannot maintain the same level as ours, with America's legions behind us."

A CENSORED STORY.

The Toronto Telegram has been responsible for an amusing story during the past few days. The Canada Food Board keeps the newspapers supplied with a large amount of educational and news matter in regard to food problems, and a story was sent out recently, which was published in a Toronto paper, and which described Canada's soldiers at the front as tightening their belts to the last notch to lessen the craving of their hungry stomachs for food. The Telegram had the Food Board's story condensed, and re-written, and it was submitted to Chief Press Censor Chambers for inspection. The censor immediately notified the Telegram that the article was unfit for publication and should not be used.

It is no wonder that the Toronto Telegram, after this experience, should remark:

"When a story issued by the Canada Food Board can be re-written without the addition of a single incident and call for its suppression by the chief censor, it is final evidence that Mr. H. B. Thomson, chairman of the Food Board, would add to his services to the public and the press if he created a few vacancies in the staff of writers who look after his propaganda work."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The citizens of Rheims have sent 50,000 bottles of champagne to the French soldiers defending that city. The Poilus have earned the refreshments.

It is reported that the Kaiser watched the beginning of the new German offensive from an "advanced position." Perhaps Karl Rosver will supply a description of how Wilhelm went "right away from there" when the counter offensive began.

The Germans will not find any comfort in the thought that while the French and Americans are smashing their plans to pieces, there is a British army standing at the leash and anxiously waiting for the moment to attack.

German troops were taking shelter from a thunderstorm when the allied counter attack caught them. German "efficiency" might have been expected to provide umbrellas for a contingency like this.

German commanders have been telling their men that they would be in Paris within a week. Well, a few thousand of them who were bagged by Foch's blow will likely reach Paris within the time limit.

Another triumph for the temperance forces. A press despatch says, "Numbers of the Germans were taken while harvesing rye."

The Egyptian who started out with a passport marked Paris via Bordeaux, and arrived instead in Canada, resembles the German army. It was labelled "Paris" when it started out, but has failed to reach its destination.

THE ALIEN PROBLEM.

There will be pretty general agreement throughout Canada with the vigorously expressed opinion of the Toronto Saturday Night that it is about time the alien problem was receiving the attention of the authorities at Ottawa.

Saturday Night says:

It is quite clear that the outcry which has been raised at Halifax against alien spies, based on the belief that a secret message from a German agent was responsible for the sinking of the "Llandovery Castle," has a great deal more circumstantial evidence to back it than ordinary spy scares. It is our belief that the U-boat commander would have sunk the ship anyway if it had crossed his path; but his interview with Major Lyon, chief medical officer of the hospital ship, showed that he had been the recipient of special information, the inaccuracy of which does not alter the probability that a spy was at work in Halifax, the port from which the hospital ship embarked.

When the U-boat commander had the captain of the ship and Major Lyon roughly dragged from their lifeboat for an interview, he immediately demanded to know the whereabouts of eight American aviation officers he was certain had been on board. Major Lyon correctly informed him that they had no American aviation officers on the "Llandovery Castle," but seven Canadian medical officers. Singularly enough eight Canadian medical officers had intended to embark, but at the very last moment the passage of one of them was cancelled. That was why there was seven.

Now, the Canadian Army Medical Corps have as their device a rod with a serpent entwined about it, which at a superficial glance bears a close resemblance to the caduceus of two entwined serpents, which is the emblem of the French Aviation Corps, and which also happens to be precisely similar to the device worn by the American Army Medical Corps. So close is the resemblance that members of the American hospital staffs which first went to France, were mistaken for aviators by the French airmen themselves. An ignorant German spy in Halifax, knowing the French aviation emblem, might well have jumped to the conclusion that it was also the device of the American aviation service, and been further misled by its close resemblance to the device of Canada's A.M.C. Assuming that such a mistake was sent out, it would explain the very positive belief of the German U-boat officer that eight American aviation officers were on board of the "Llandovery Castle."

The demand of the Halifax City Council that more drastic measures be taken for dealing with enemy aliens, is therefore well grounded. It will be remembered that from the very early stages of the war secret wireless instalments gave the military authorities at Halifax a good deal of worry, though under the censorship regulations little was said about it. Halifax is one of the most important of the Entente war ports, and the Germans certainly must have made very extreme efforts to maintain a continuous spy organization there. There is a very strong belief in Halifax that these efforts are still effective, and the only sane course is to intern every suspect who could conceivably be engaged in the work.

If the war teaches us nothing else, it has shown us the necessity of revamping our immigration laws together with a complete overhauling of our regulations respecting citizenship. Broadly speaking no man or woman should be allowed to reside permanently in Canada without becoming citizens of the country, thus assuming all the responsibilities which citizenship brings with it. Heretofore we have welcomed to our shores anybody and everybody who could pass a health officer, and who appeared to be in such shape, both mentally and physically, that they would not necessarily become a care on the State. The ignorant and the unwashed from all over the earth, and more particularly from Russia, have ranged over the entire North American Continent irrespective of the fact that a goodly portion are and always have been undesirables, though it took a war to make us realize the fact. Right under our noses the Bolshevik element has organized a Soviet and has the supreme nerve to ask the Canadian Government to aid in securing recognition of the present Russian Government, if one may call it by such a polite name. These are the same type of men who, well treated in the United States for a great many years, returned to Russia after the war started, and there began a campaign of "hate" against the only country that has ever given them decent treatment.

A nest of these traitorous rascals has been unearthed at Windsor, Ont. In that instance, they were caught red-handed promoting anarchism and communism. Without doubt there are thousands of these fellows in Canada, and they should, to the last one, be taken by the scruff of the neck, and kicked out of the country. Let this breed of hound go back to the country of his birth. If he likes anarchy so well he may get his fill in his home town on the Continent of Europe. We want none of it here.

These fellows all escape military service on the plea of being aliens. Well, there should be no aliens in this country. If Canada is good enough to live in it is good enough for citizenship. There should be no half way measures. And the government should see to it that there is no time wasted in readjusting our law respecting citizenship to fit these cases. All our centres of population are teeming with smug-faced young slackers who are laughing in their sleeves over the fact that the Canadians must war while they remain here with whole skins and pockets full of money.

Y. M. C. A. MAKES BATS FOR SAMMIES OVER THERE

Builds Factory to Supply Soldiers With their Baseball Cudgels.

New York, July 19.—There is a baseball bat shortage in France, but the Sammies over there but nobody to blame but themselves. The trouble is that they have developed such wallops that the bats are splintered faster than they can be shipped from America.

A bat shortage is a serious thing for the fighting man back from the trenches for a breathing, finds nothing so restful as a good fast game of ball. To solve the problem the Y.M.C.A. has erected a factory in France and is turning out a bat which while not as good as the made in America brand, is helping to fill the bill. The difficulty has been to get a proper kind of wood but the head of the factory is experimenting with different varieties and expects to find the right thing.

Quilted designs continue to please the dressmakers, and women are being persuaded to wear them. Elaborate bits of quilting done on chiffon taffeta are used for collars and cuffs, patches on the hips, girdles and hems on skirts.

WAR TRAINS IN FRANCE

By CANADIAN OVERSEAS.

Hommes 40; Chevaux (en long) 8.

These are familiar words to the British soldiers in France. When he travels by train it is in box trucks bearing the words. If the truck has its full number of forty live men and equipment it is a very tight squeeze or as the Tommy puts it — in comparison a sardine tin offers room to turn round and kick.

A journey usually runs into days, for French trains never hurry. Sometimes they take three days and three nights to go a hundred miles. The train rattles along merrily at ten miles an hour. Then miles away from anywhere it stands for hours on end and on one knows why. All of a sudden it is off again for another half hour and then another half. . . . No one even questions the train concerning its peculiar actions in case it may refuse to go at all. . . . Sleeping in one of these trains has its difficulties. Packs are placed equal distances distances along each side of the truck. The end man on one side his down first followed by the end man opposite whose feet overlap those of the former, and so on. In this way a full length stretch is possible without having a pair of boots on one's head.

During the day it is not so crowded If the day is fine, the sliding doors are open and you see men sitting on the floor with their legs dangling over the line enjoying the scenery—calling to everyone they see, or singing. Some climb on to the roof.

On these journeys the food is bully and biscuits with tea. Often when a train stops by the way for any length of time the men get out and build camp fires and make their tea. Once in a while they are caught in the middle of it, and have to run for their train. All this relieves the monotony.

In spite of all its inconveniences, a journey by train is regarded as a pleasant relief after months of trench duty, for whenever it becomes too cramped, they can always get out and run by the side of the trains for a while.

Yes, I Intend To But Not Now

Have YOU any idea what that decision is costing you—even if you live? Of course if you die the cost is much GREATER.

Read the following facts and then decide for yourself:

The premium you would pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 60 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $4,000 of insurance at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 50 WOULD BUY YOU nearly $2,500 at age 21.

The premium you pay for $1,000 of insurance at age 35 WOULD BUY YOU $1,440 at age 21.

Besides while you may be insurable at age 21 you may not be insurable, AT ANY PRICE, at the other ages mentioned.

The Struggle For Amiens

By CANADIAN OVERSEAS

AMIENS.

The great battle in France is at a standstill for the moment.

It is a struggle for Amiens; a struggle for Ypres and Arras—any place that gives an opening to the sea.

For some time past all our thoughts have concentrated on Amiens. Up to this battle the town retained much of its old life, a gay place full of life and enthusiasm; all through the war it has kept its sprightly civilian life as has perhaps no other town in the British war zone.

In 1914 the Germans reached the city, stayed there little more than a week and then hastily departed—put to flight at the battle of the Marne.

Soon Amiens came into the British war zone, but with this peculiarity it has been left to this day under the French sentinelship. On entering or leaving you have to slow up at the challenge and you salute the French blue as well as the British khaki.

In the early days the city was bombed, but the cathedral was not touched. The cathedral, as every reader of Ruskin knows, is the most beautiful and the most wonderful thing ever made of stone. Like many cathedrals here it is badly placed—hemmed in by a mass of poor architecture, but the thing itself is matchless. To-day it is in grest peril, for if the Hun finds he cannot take the town he will leave few buildings standing.

A glance at the map will reveal the importance of Amiens. The Somme here navigable feeds Amiens, as well as do four valuable railway lines. Then, too, its position in relation to Abbeville is important. The value of the town is strategically basic. The eight or ten miles which now part the enemy from it gradually drop down a steep switchback into a plain. All these factors urge the Hun to his supreme effort and to-day the old cathedral city has become the symbol of our hopes. If they capture Amiens they have seized one of the most important centres of traffic in Northern France—a place where many railways and roads converge, and they will imperil our contact with the main French force and open up other grave possibilities.

It has aroused the British nation once more. There has been no such stirring up of the spirit of our people since the first months of the war—the soul of the country is again aflame; the wild enthusiasm of the early days is replaced by the sputest resolution. It is a fight to the death, and there is no blenching. When all is said the great struggle is an infantry battle and it is as true to-day as ever that the infantry arm is the queen of the battlefield.

The infantry with the aid of machine guns will probably decide the issue in spite of the many innovations the war has produced.

This battle cannot be compared with the battle of the Marne or the first battle of Ypres. Both of these were miracles, and we have no right to count on a third at this stage. The truest parallel is the battle of Verdun. Both sides are putting forth their fullest strength and making their supreme effort. What has happened has partially transformed the character of the war on the western front.

The Germans have restored the war of movement over the greater part of the front—a thing they have tried to accomplish ever since they forced trench warfare upon us. It is now open warfare and at a time when it is most advantageous to them, on account of the thousands of troops released from Russia. It is unpleasant to be forced out of land which we thought we had forever—such is the hypnotic effect of trench warfare—but with trench warfare on an elaborate scale the war might go on for years.

In a war of movement rapid changes take place. We may even lose Amiens, but the loss of Amiens, valuable though it is, would be insignificant, and the daily shifting of the line which seems so much to us after the intensive trench fighting, is rendered unimportant compared with the general issue.

In the end our armies should benefit greatly by open fighting and finally gain the hoped for victory.

ARRAS.

After Amiens, Arras is probably the most observed town in Northern France to-day. Like Verdun in 1916 so Arras to-day is the mighty hinge on which the battle line swings.

Arras illustrates how difficult it is even for years of shell fire from heavy artillery, to get a large town. In 1914 the French and Germans had a tremendous fight for Arras. Our armies were busy in Ypres so we did not observe it. The town was shelled heavily, and finally the Germans sat down in one of the suburbs and stayed there until they had to go at the battle of Arras in 1917.

At some points only eight or twelve yards separated our trenches from the enemy's, but the two sides saw nothing of each other for the trenches were in the thick of buildings. Before the battle of the spring of 1917 a system of tunnels was built linking up underground quarries and cellars in Arras and suburbs which provided safe quarters for a great number of troops and long subways led to the trenches. All these underground billets were electrically lit.

Despite years of shelling, Arras is rebuildable. The civic buildings and the cathedral are in ruins, a few houses have not yet been touched, but the majority are in ruins. In a way the ruins of Arras are different from those of Ypres, Bapaume and Peronne. Bapaume is only a heap of rubbish. In March, 1917, the enemy mined it to pieces before he left, leaving only the town hall, but under that he had left a slow trap which took eleven days to work and killed all who settled in it. So Bapaume, like Ypres, is mere rubbish, and Peronne is about as dead; but Arras shows houses here and there where one or two walls are carried away, and within everything is as the family left it. Clothes still on the wall, children's toys still in the cupboards, endless little signs of family care and pride, a testimony of the French wife's neatness and frugality.

BETHUNE.

Bethune until the war was a busy thriving town in which the remains of an old Artois fortress blended picturesquely with the brick buildings. But is is not this that attracts the Hun and makes his efforts for it so persistent. His reason is that important canals join there and the town itself lies on the Pas-de-Calais coal fields.

For months he has tried to bomb it out of existence, and it was no uncommon thing for the inhabitants to be driven into their cellars half a dozen times a night by Hun aircraft. Some streets are more or less intact, others have big gaps blown in them. Corner premises stand tottering, with the lower stories ripped away, supported by shattered beams. They lean over in the most fantastic manner, giving the impression that they must fall at any moment.

In the half destroyed building the people do a thriving business. All the timid and those who had nothing to keep them there fled long ago. Others remained and carried on, a contemptuous shrug and a malediction were all they vouchsafed the Bosche. Such is the brave French spirit that has helped Bethune and many another town through long dark hours.

BAILLEUL.

Each place has its own special importance, often made important by the war. Such is Bailleul, or the civilians this place dropped into oblivion early in the war. He may remember of reading of fighting near there in 1914. But for the soldier is it different.

It was the mecca to which he would willingly walk ten miles or ride twenty to visit, even with the restricted meals, for it stood unharmed by shell fire and life was so quiet there and full of the little commonplace gossip which took you away from the war.

So, for the men from the trenches of Ypres, Hill 60, Hooge or Sanctuary Wood, it held pleasant memories.

Behind lay the level miles of Flanders, the burning ruins of Ypres, the church tower of Poperinghe, Dixmude and occasionally the faint trails of smoke from the steamers from Dunkirk. Before lay France with the slag heaps of the mining district near Bethune in the distance, and Bailleul lying among the hop fields in the valley beneath.

And now the smoke curls up from the ruins of the town, and it is only a place in the memory.

DRY YOUR VEGETABLES.

Try drying your vegetables this year. It's a profitable business any way you look at it. The advantages over cannings are the economy in space, the lower cost of jars and diminished risk of injury from frost or heat. There is the old-fashioned method of "sun drying" which is inexpensive, simple and satisfactory where there is enough sun. The most modern and the quickest method is that of using an electric fan either with or without artificial heat. Vegetables dried by this method are not so likely to discolour. The third method, known as "artificial heat," consists of utilizing the heat of the stove or of the oven. For the majority of town and farm homes this method is the most practicable.

Germany has made a fine art of drying. Indeed, at the present time, the total capacity of the potato-drying factories in the enemy country is 37,000,000 hundredweight. There are about 700 potato drying plants, 150 corn-drying plants and 250 vegetable-drying factories.

The war gardeners of Canada might give the Hun a little of his own medicine by pitting their vegetable forces against his.

INCREASED ACREAGE IN QUEBEC IN WHEAT

CONDITIONS ARE NOW MORE PROMISING THAN AT THIS PERIOD LAST YEAR.

QUEBEC, July 17.—Official figures issued to-day by the Quebec Provincial Bureau of Statistics indicates that, while in 1917, 277,400 acres were seeded with wheat, this year the acreage in wheat runs up to 338,000 acres, a raise of 22 per cent.

There was a raise of 2per cent. in the oat acreage, of which 1,582,000 acres are under cultivation this year.

There is less hay cultivated this year, but more products of every kind are cultivated: 240,000 acres have been sown in potatoes; beans show a raise of 22 per cent. in the acreage, 67,300 having been sown this year.

The weather conditions have been rather hard on the farmers, but, according to the Bureau of Statistics, the condition of the crops at present has a more promising outlook than at the some time last year.

PAINT CONCERN BRANCHES OUT

Brandram-Henderson Limited Purchase Plant at Medicine Hat

Will Produce Their Own Linseed Oil in the West, Bring It East in Their Own Tank Cars

An important evolution of the large paint industry controlled by Brandram-Henderson Limited has just been announced. This concern has acquired the plant of the Alberta Linseed Oil Mills at Medicine Hat, Alberta.

This information was given out on the return of Mr. George Henderson, President and General Manager of Brandram-Henderson Limited, on his return from a five weeks' trip in the Western Provinces.

It is announced that Brandram-Henderson Limited will control and operate the big Medicine Hat plant for the production of linseed oil — which is one of the most important raw materials entering into the manufacture of white lead, paints and varnishes.

"The purchase of the mills," said Mr. Henderson, "places our Company in a position of independence, in the matter of an essential raw material. Until the present time, although we operated our own lead-corroding and dry-colour plants, it was necessary for us to buy our Linseed Oil in the open market — frequently from competitors. This was something in our practice which we were anxious to eliminate, and the action we have now taken will eliminate it."

"This matter of independence as regards raw materials," added Mr. Henderson, "gives emphasis to another fact that I am anxious to have generally known, namely, that Brandram-Henderson Limited is in every sense an independent Company. It has come to my knowledge that statements have been made by irresponsible people to the effect that our Company is closely allied with other interests in the paint and varnish business. In some cases, our name has been linked up specifically with one of our leading competitors, possibly to their annoyance as well as to ours."

Not Connected With Other Paint Concerns.

It was emphatically stated by Mr. Henderson that these rumours have absolutely no foundation in fact, "Brandram-Henderson Limited are not," he stated, "in any way associated with any competing organization—our only desire is to continue our development as an independent and strictly Canadian Company."

New Plant An Important Acquisition.

It was explained by Mr. Henderson that in taking over the Alberta Linseed Oil Mills, they had made a move that would be of the greatest value to the Company, in the East as well as in the West. It will afford an uninterrupted supply of Linseed Oil to the B. H. factories in the East where the Company has been so well known for so many years, and will also give the concern greater prominence in the West.

"Some time ago," said Mr. Henderson, "we made up our minds that a Linseed Oil plant was essential to our continued development. A question then arose as to where this plant should be located. Should it be in the West, in close proximity to the flax supply, or in the East where it would be convenient to our factories in Montreal, Halifax and Toronto?

"The transportation problem was the crux of the whole question. After careful investigation we satisfied ourselves that it would very often be a simpler and more expeditious matter to transport the oil, in our own tank cars, than to bring down the flax in the usual way. This would be particularly true in the winter and spring months, when our manufacturing requirements are heavy.

"For a time we thought of building our own plant, but when the opportunity presented itself of acquiring the Alberta Linseed Oil Mills, we took advantage of it, especially as investigation proved that this plant was one of the most modern and efficient in Canada."

THE RAISING OF MR. GILBERT THOMPSON'S BARN IN OTON ABEE.

It was "bees" of this kind that added a picturesque touch to rural life in the days when they were common. Mr. Thompson is a city man living on Aylmer street, and the farmers have evidently found him as jovial and kindly as did his neighbours in the city. This barn is 100 x 40 feet. Mr. George Sloan is the carpenter in charge of the work. Mr. Thompson purchased this farm last winter and stripped many acres of wood for city fuel.—Photo by Roy.

PAY FOR SOLDIERS UNDER TREATMENT IN THE HOSPITALS

Pay and allowances for discharged sailors and soldiers undergoing treatment in the sanitoria and hospitals of the Department of Soldiers' Re-establishment have been fixed by order-in-council. The scale will be the same as each individual man was in receipt of from either army or the navy before his discharge, with one or two slight variations. Dependents will receive militia or naval scale of separation allowance, but a special scale in lieu of any allowances paid from the Patriotic Fund has been fixed.

The order-in-council also contains a confirmation of the scale which has been paid to discharged men granted courses of industrial re-education.

Approximately 2,500 men are affected at the present time by the scale for treatment cases. The number of current industrial re-education cases at the last compilation was slightly over 2,000, making a total of nearly 5,000 who are being paid by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

The new scale for dependents, which is to be in lieu of the Patriotic Fund, is as follows:

Wife only, $10 per month.

Wife and one child, $19 per month.

Wife and two children, $26 per month.

Wife and three children, $31 per month.

For each child in excess of three children, $5 per month, with a maximum allowance fo $45 per month for wife and children.

A man with dependents will be required to assign at least $20 per month to his dependents, who will also receive the amount of separation allowance to which, but for his discharge, they would have been entitled under the pay and allowance regulations of the Department of Militia and Defence or the Department of Naval Service. In the event of a man being granted out-patient treatment, provided that his disability is such as to prevent him from obtaining or continuing employment, he shall receive an equivalent to the subsistence allowance to which, but for his discharge, he would have been entitled to on active service. It is provided, however, that no member of the forces who is undergoing in-patient treatment, and is entitled to the allowance payable under these clauses, shall be paid for his personal use a larger sum than $8 per month unless special authorization is given. The balance of his allowance shall be retained by the department or be deposited by the department in a bank, or in the post office savings bank to his credit, and paid to him at the conclusion of his treatment.

It is provided that payment of pension and allowance shall be suspended during the man's receipt of treatment or training allowances, except that when a man is undergoing treatment by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment of such a nature as not to prevent him from obtaining or continuing employment, his pension and allowance, if any, shall be continued during such treatment, and he shall be entitled to receive from the department a discretionary amount, not exceeding $1 for each attendance for treatment, plus reasonable travelling expenses.

Men refusing treatment which a military medical board or a medical officer reports they require may, in the discretion of the Board of Pension Commissioners, have their pensions reduced by not more than 50 per cent., and post discharge pay may be withheld until such discharged men have undergone and completed the treatment they require to the satisfaction of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

An important clause provides that allowances authorized by the order-in-council may be continued for one month after the completion of treatment or training, provided that the man's treatment or training has occupied a longer period than two months, that the man is not entitled to receive post discharge pay at the completion of such treatment or training and that such continuation of payment is necessary to assist him in obtaining employment. The payment is also contingent upon good conduct during treatment or training.

The allowance for dependents shall not be paid in respect of any boy over 16 or girl over 17 years of age. The privileges extended by the order-in-council are not receivable by men who have been cashiered or dismissed from the service, deprived of commission or warrant for misconduct, or discharged from the service for misconduct, unless the Department otherwise directs. Regulations have also also been promulgated by the Department whereby men undergoing treatment may receive civilian clothing.

PETERBORO SOCKS WERE APPRECIATED

The following letter is addressed to Mrs. Frances, 498 Bolivar street, a member of the Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club:

June 20, 1918.

Dear Mrs. Frances,—Just a few lines to thank you for the splendid pair of socks I got from the bales of socks that were sent to me from the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club. I kept two pair myself and gave the others to different men of this company. 45405b, Sapper G. Barrett, 12th Platoon, C. Co. 5, Canadian Railway Troops, B.E.F., France.

I am sure it is very kind of you all and the boys all appreciate it. It is nice to show that some one is thinking of us out here. We are in a very nice part of the country and getting splendid weather, but shall be glad when it is all over and back in Peterborough, when I hope to have the pleasure of meeting you and thank you personally. No doubt you know my wife. I think things are looking very favourably for us, and before long we shall make a good job out here and victory will be ours. I think this is all for now, so will close, wishing you and the club every success, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

U.S. Plans for Putting System Under Government Control.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—It is understood that plans of the Government contemplate consolidation of the telegraph and telephone systems, so that telephone trunk lines may be used simultaneously for messages and conversations. Another feature of the programme is the acceptance of telegrams at post offices and the elimination of book-keeping by the use of stamps to pay for messages.

WHEN YOUR COLOURS FADE

When a girl—or a woman—finds her color fading, when her cheeks and lips grow pale, and she gets short of breath easily and her heart palpitates after slight exertion, or under the least excitement, it means that she is suffering from anaemia—thin, watery blood. Headache and backache frequently accompany this condition and nervousness is often present.

The remedy for this condition is to build up the blood, and for this purpose there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They build up and renew the blood, bring brightness to the eyes, colour to the cheeks, and a general feeling of renewed health and energy. The only other treatment needed is plenty of sunlight, moderate exercise and good, plain food. The girl or the woman who gives this treatment a fair trial will soon find herself enjoying perfect health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New Matresses Are Needed at Fire Hall

Three or four new mattresses are needed for the dormitory at the Fire Hall, according to Chief Grange's report to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and enquiries for prices brought out the fact that mattresses have not escaped the trend of war-time prices.

Fifteen dollars it was found would buy an average mattress, but no Ostermoor.

Mayor Duncan, Ald. Dobbin and Ald. M. McIntyre were appointed a committee with authority to make the purchase.

"I want to see the old ones first," said Ald. McIntyre, who is giving Ald. Langford a battle for the somewhat ineffectual post of "watchdog of the treasury."

A Naughty Judge.

In a case of a slander a lady had gone into the witness-box on behalf of the plaintiff, whose counsel was examining her.

"Now, madam," the lawyer began, "please repeat the slanderous statements made by the defendant on this occasion just as you heard them."

"Oh, they are unfit for any respectable person to hear," was the emphatic answer.

"Then," said the examiner, coaxingly, "suppose you just whisper the m to the judge."

TRINITY AND ST. ANDREWS UNION SERVICES

The union services in which St. Andrew's and Trinity church are uniting, are proving a success. Large audiences in vacation time are a new thing, and the officials of the co-operating churches are much pleased. Mrs. G. H. King will sing at both the morning and evening services tomorrow, and the Rev. W. L. H. Rowand will preach. In the evening the subject will be: "The Handful of Corn and the Abundant Harvest," and ought to be of special interest to Christian workers. In the evening the subject will be: "How Righteousness, Love and Truth Are Wrought Into a Man's Life."

Strangers will be heartily welcomed to these services.

PETERBORO SIXTY YEARS AGO

As already observed, this emigration was conducted under the auspices and at the expense of the British government. The expenses attending it amounted to £21 5 4 sterling per head. Each head of a family was located upon 100 acres of land. He had a small log house built for him, and was furnished with 15 months provisions. In addition to these he received 1 cow, 1 American axe, 1 anger, 1 handsaw, 1 pickaxe, 1 spade, 2 gimlets, 100 nails, 1 hammer, 1 iron wedge, 3 hoes, 1 kettle, 1 frying pan, 1 iron pot, 5 bushels seed potatoes, 8 quarts of Indian corn; and, if they were very poor, blankets in the proportion of one to each grown person and one among three children. The number of persons actually located by Mr. Robinson in 1825 in this district, was 1,878; 621 men, 512 women, and 745 children. The result of the first year's labour, given by Mr. Robinson in his evidence before the Parliamentary Committee, was as follows:

1386½ acres of land cleared and fenced, at £4 per acre	£5,548
87,799 bushels of potatoes, at 1s.	3,389 10 0
25,623 bushels of turnips, at 6d.	640 11 6
10,438 bushels of Indian corn, at 2s. 6d.	1,395 16 3
363½ acres of wheat, sown in the autumn of 1826. 2 pounds per acre	828 0 0
9,067 lbs. of maple sugar, at 4d	151 2 4
40 oxen purchased by their labour, at £7 each	280 0 0
80 cows, ditto, ditto, at £4 10s each	360 0 0
166 hogs, ditto, ditto, at 15s each	124 10 0
Halifax Currency	£12,524 19 0

It has been said of this emigration, or more properly of the plan upon which it was conducted, that it proved abortive; that the Emigrants contented themselves with living upon the produce given them by the government, trusting to Providence, rather than in their own well directed labours, for the future. But the above statement of the result of their first year's labours in the wilds of America, furnishes an effective refutation of this statement, and justifies to the fullest extent the character for industry which their chief on every occasion gave them. Among the tabular statements will be found a detailed account of the emigration under the auspices of the Hon. Peter Robinson, to which, as being the first settlement upon an extensive scale in these counties, considerable interest naturally attaches.

In the year 1826, His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, then Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, who had taken a deep interest in the emigrations of 1823 and 1825, visited the new settlements in this district. Addresses, breathing a spirit of deep gratitude to the government for their removal to this country, a high appreciation of the kindness and constant solicitude for their welfare evinced by Mr. Robinson, and a warm attachment to the British throne, were presented by the emigrants settled in the townships. One address, a verbal one, from the English settlers on the Communication Road of Smith, pointed out in unmistakable terms the great advantage that would accrue to the settlement, if a good mill were erected instead of the apology already alluded to. His Excellency appears to have taken the hint, for immediately afterwards the mill, now known as Martyn's, was erected under the superintendence of Mr. McDonell, and at the government expense. So important an acquisition to the comforts of the settlers was duly appreciated by them, as the address to the Earl of Bathurst, then Colonial Secretary, in the following year, amply testified. This mill was afterwards sold to Messrs. Hall and Lee who continued to work it for many years.

During the same year a number of gentlemen, settlers in this district, met together for the purpose of deciding upon a name for the new town, the reservation for which had been made as early as 1818, and the survey of which had been completed in 1825. The choice was not difficult to make. The eminent services of the Hon. Peter Robinson in the settlement of the country, and the high estimation in which he was held by all who had come in contact with him, suggested the propriety of a more lasting tribute being paid to his name. Hence the choice of the name "Peterborough," a name which continually calls to mind the services of one, who though laying no claim to being the founder of this little colony, was justly entitled to be considered as among the most active promoters of its settlement.

WHY A CHEESE BOARD

The Weekly Sun made a pertinent enquiry last week, when it asked, "Why hold Cheese Boards?" The Sun claims that all over Ontario the same price is being paid for cheese on the different Boards, and that it must necessarily be due to the fact that there is a common understanding among the buyers that a certain price should be paid. Therefore the Sun argues. "Why should the salesmen on the boards put through the deals directly with the Dairy Produce Commission themselves, instead of allowing the 3-4c per lb to go to the dealers and transportation companies?"

THE FAITH OF HARRY LAUDER

The book entitled "A Minstrel in France," by Harry Lauder is an unfolding of the inmost soul of the Scotch singer and humorest. When he lost his only son at the front the comforting influences of the gospel came to him with power that he never knew before. One of the great things about the gospel of Christ is that it meets the deepest needs of all classes of people.

A brief consideration of Harry Lauder's faith as revealed in this book will be included in the gospel hour at Murray St. Church on Sunday evening.

FENELON FALLS FLOUR MILL WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

The Building Was the Property of Of the Town.

Fenelon Falls, July 20. — Fire broke out at an early hour yesterday morning in the large stone building near the lock, which has been leased and operated by Mr. J. H. Brandon as a grist mill for many years. The alarm was sounded shortly after four o'clock, the fire spreading rapidly through the interior of the building. Everything in the main building was destroyed, including a quantity of grain. The flour which was in the annex, was saved by the efforts of a number of the citizens who carried a large number of sacks containing it to a place of safety. The fire brigade worked manfully to save the building, machinery and contents of the mill, which are a total loss. The stone walls, which for a great number of years have been a landmark for miles around the village are still left standing, the wooden annex also escaped. A great loss of revenue to the community will be felt as a result of the fire as the building was the property of the town. Some insurance was carried.

Grandmother Gave It To Mother, Mother To Me, I To My Baby.

Read what Mrs. Wm. Gray, Jacquet River, N. B., has to say about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. She writes: "There is no medicine I know of that can come up with Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. It has been in our house for forty years. My grandmother gave it to my mother, she to me, and I to my baby. For summer complaint it has no equal. I never miss a chance of telling my neighbours about it. I would not think it safe to go to the country without a bottle of it. It has saved us many a doctor's bill."

For the past 72 years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been recognized by both the people and the medical profession as the greatest remedy known for all cases of diarrhoea, dysentery, cramps, colic, pains in the stomach, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, seasickness and all bowel complaints.

Wood Used as Substitute For Coal Will Help West Threatened Fuel Shortage

Fuel Controller Urges People to Buy Wood Supplies Now—Dealer Suggests That No Coal be Burned Until December 1st as An Economic Measure—United Action by Citizens Would Help Thwart the Scarcity.

SAVING OF COAL SHOULD BEGIN NOW

NOW IS THE TIME TO SECURE YOUR COAL AND WOOD

DON'T DELAY

Householders are earnestly urged to prepare for the future by ordering NOW the coal needed for next winter, and by getting in supplies of wood during the summertime.

WARNING

Every additional day of war aggravates coal mining and transportation problems. No one can give any guarantees regarding Canada's future coal supply.

BE PREPARED

Where coal is obtainable it should be gathered in, so that it may
Where wood is obtainable it should be gathered in, so that it may take the place of coal and thus relieve any fuel shortage next winter.

Overhaul your heating equipment and make it efficient.

Use Coal Sparingly and Substitute With Wood.

C. A. MAGRATH, Fuel Controller for Canada.

The above bulletin has been given wide publicity, and while there is a tantalizing irony in the exhortation of the Fuel Controller, for the reason that many householders have tried in vain to place their orders, yet the general advice it certains should be followed as closely as possible.

The opinions of several of the leading retail fuel dealers of Peterboro encourage the hope that there will be no home in this city without fuel next winter. But these same dealers declare that the time to economise in fuel is now, and not during the winter months, when heat is so necessary.

Orders for coal for summer burning have been refused when dealers were aware that it was for present use. By this step they believed they would force thoughtless citizens to burn wood throughout the summer, and thereby futher the husbanding of supplies for the season in which it will be an absolute necessity. The City Council last night adopted a similar course in deciding indefinitely to withhold sales of hardwood thereby compelling householders to purchase lighter mill wood for the present.

In other words, there is a timely and growing realization that wood should be extensively used as a substitute for coal, which hould be conserved for winter.

BURN NO COAL UNTIL DECEMBER 1st.

"If the people will agree not to burn coal until the first of December at the earliest, there will be a big saving wihout any actual discomfort," said a local dealer.

An exception would be excusable in homes where there is sickness. Otherwise, the idea involves no hardship. Wood fires could be lighted in heaters and furnaces, and need not be burned continuously. If lighted early in the evening, they would quickly dispel the chill of late autumn. Later, when severe weather sets in, the fuel that would be saved by this plan could be used freely, and without disturbing thoughts of serious shortage. In brief, the economy would have been accomplished before the first snow fall.

A movement to popularize this suggestion would work a decided benefit to the community, and should be given the serious consideration it deserves. The co-operation of the citizens must necessarily be entirely voluntarily, but it would be none the less advantageous, with the incidental grace that come of self-discipline.

OIL A PRESENT SUBSTITUTE.

Most families are relying largely upon oil burners which should be kept in use as long as possible. Others are urged to buy light wood, and save the harder varieties for winter. An example in economy was recently related. Mindful of the shortage of cannel coal last winter, one woman soaks in water all the newspapers she can get, presses them through a clothes wringer, and sets the small slabs, of what is practically wood pulp, to dry in the sun. Already she has a considerable pile of this material which is said to be an excellent fuel for hearht fires.

BUY WINTER WOOD NOW

In anticipation of a shortage of coal, as a protective measure householders should buy their supplies of hardwood as soon as it is convenient to them. A subsidiary quantity should be secured for the fall months, to be used as a substitute for coal. There is no shortage of wood. It can be and should be purchased now. When the war gardens have delivered up their crops, there will be more yard space throughout the city, and it may be in many instances that until then, there will be available room for a wood pile, but as soon as possible this matter should be attended to.

Many citizens found last winter that wood mixed with coal gave every satisfaction in addition to ekeing out the coal supply. Quebec heaters for the use of "run of mine" coal have been suggested, and there are doubtless many good practical ideas that could be published in a fuel saving campaign if it were properly launched, and these ideas would have the merit of satisfying the citizens even in the cold weather.

APPEAL APPLIES TO EVERYBODY

The Fuel Controller's advice applies to those who have obtained their seventy per cent. of coal as urgently as to others, who are still on the waiting list. If they can save a considerable part of their normal consumption by using wood during the first cold months, they may not need to apply for the remaining thirty per cent., and it might be that when they do apply the market conditions may have turned against them. A change in the regulations is promised after October 1st., and the amendments are not likely to consult the conditions of persons with 70 per cent. of their requirements, if there are others who have, are without supplies.

Hence, the present is the hour to begin the economy that will be otherwise forced upon the people by sheer necessity. The wisest course is surely to go out and meet the enemy by substituing wood in the summer and fall. The local fuel commissioner will have a record of sales, and persons who refuse to co-operate in this emergency suggestion should receive scant consideration when their seventy-percent dwindles to an uncomfortable remnant.

Food Board Flashes

There are still women in Canada who do not seem to be aware that it is against the law to make icing from cane sugar. It is surely apparent to anyone who is in the habit of buying cakes that substitutes, and chiefly maple syrup, are now being used by all the bakers.

Here is a simple recipe for maple icing which should serve for special occasions, although there is very little excuse now for any kind of icing on cakes:

2 cups maple or corn syrup, 2 teaspoons shortening, 1 egg white.

Boil syrup until it spins a thread. Add shortening. Pour slowly over beaten white of eggs. Beat until stiff enough to spread on cake.

A Poor Excuse.

A big darky was being registered. "Ah can't go to wah," he answered in re-exemption, "foh they ain't nobody to look after my wife."

A dapper little undersized coloured brother stepped briskly up and inquired, "What kind of a lookin' lady is yoh wife?"

The Bilious Habit

Some people have bilious spells about ever so often until they get to be a habit.

The liver is at fault. Get the liver right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the bile will not collect in the blood until it poisons you.

There is no one organ in the human body which has so great a control of health as the liver. Hence the far-reaching effect of this treatment.

MAY SAVE SEED WHEAT.

(Simcoe Reformer.)

Messrs. Quance Bros., of Delhi, wrote the Food Board of Ottawa to get a ruling upon the yarn in circulation to the effect that it was illegal to save wheat for seed. The answer they received was as follows:

"Replying to your letter of June 18th, there is no regulation either on the part of the Canada Food Board or the Board of Grain Supervisors to prevent or discourage anyone from retaining necessary adequate supplies of seed wheat. Special regulations of the Board of Grain Supervisors issued from their office, Grain Exchange, Winnipeg, Man., stipulate that anyone may sell wheat for any price which the purchaser is willing to pay for it for use for seed purposes."

Thirteen More Big Newspapers Revealed Under Hun Control Through New "Slush Fund"

One Publication in Middle West With 500,000 Circulation Declared to Have Been Dominated by German Influence—Thirty Cities Were to Have Been Linked In Plot.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Definite information regaring another newspaper, which German propagandists bought at the time Dr. Edward A. Rumely obtained possession of the New York Evening Mail, reached the city recently. It was learned that the newspaper is published in a large Western city and has a circulation of upward of half a million copies.

It was further stated that a trail had been discovered leading to thirteen large newspapers of the country believed to be under the contral of German influences and to have erceived German money.

Government officials, under whose direction agents of the Department of Justice, having been running down various leads to the identity of the persons who actually manipulated the transfer of the large Middle West newspaper to the German government, yesterday refused to discuss the matter. They even refused to reveal the name of this newspaper or the city in which it is published.

It was learned, however, that this newspaper was purchased with money obtained from another "slush fund" which is in no way connected with the fund which paid for the purchase of the Evening Mail. It is understood that while both funds were under the actual control of Heinrich F. Albert, Count Von Bernstorff's "paymaster" they were run under separate managements, in order to confuse as much as possible government investigation.

Second Fund Smaller Than First.

Agents for the government have discovered, nevertheless, that the total of the latest fund discovered is not up to that of fund with which the German government got control of the Mail. In fact, it is believed by government officials in charge of the investigation that the fund which brought about control of the Western newspaper was totalled as a lower figure, because it was felt by the Kaiser's representatives that the purchase or control of papers in that part of the country could be obtained at a much lower figure than obtained in cities in the East.

In connection with the discovery of the new "slush fund" it was definitely established by agents of the Department of Justice that at least thirty newspapers throughout the country were included in the scheme of Ambassador von Bernstorff and his propaganda advisers for the dissemination of war news favourable to the German cause, as well as for the spreading of peace propaganda at the close of the war.

Thirteen Newspapers in Hun Grip.

It is known that Alfred L. Besker, Deputy Attorney General of the State, who is conducting the investigation of the purchase of the Mail for the government, is in possession of information that shows that the German government had acquired the ownership or control of at least thirteen newspapers in the country. Mr. Becker admitted that these newspapers were controlled from Ambassador von Bernstorff's office in Washington, but he refused to state whether they were all controlled through the fund which purchased Dr. Rumely's newspaper.

Government officials are in possession of secret correspondence between German officials in Berlin and in this country which goes to show that as far back as 1915 the Kaiser's diplomatists were figuring on the amount of advantage they could obtain in the peace conference at the close of the war, and it is now known that the strongest weapon Potsdam expected to use in this country were the newspapers which his representatives here were expected to control.

It was larned that in line with suggestions made by certain American literary men, Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, creator of the Hun propaganda work here, endeavoured to obtain inside-information from an employee in the office of one of President Wilson's Cabinet officers in 1915.

Correspondence seized some time ago reveals that Dr. Dernburg succeeded in placing this employee on the payroll of the "slush fund," although the $50 weekly salary he is alleged to have received leads the government officials to believe Dernburg got little in return for his money.

Sought "Colour" for Propaganda.

It is believed that it was the intention of Count Von Bernstorff, Dr. Dernburg and his successor, Dr. Albert, to obtain any information reaching the office of the Cabinet officer that would tend to place Germany in a favourable light in the conduct of the war, and that that information was to be turned to good account by the American literary men in their employ by the subtle "colouring" of newspaper articles that would be sent out to newspapers all over the country in addition to the publications the German government expected to get in its control.

The reports of agents at work on this feature of the investigation indicate that the leaders of the Hun propaganda here were not as successful in the undertaking as they expected. It is known that the money from German sympathizers here did not total that which was expected. It is also known that as a result the German government was not able to get control of thirty newspapers throughout the country.

But that did not stop the American literary men in the employ of Von Bernstorff, Dr. Dernburg and Dr. Albert from resorting to the "colouring" of news articles which they sold to certain newspapers in this country. Whether any of these articles emanated from the office of the Cabinet officer could not be learned, but it is known definitely that the American literary men profited handsomely through the propaganda, because they were paid both by Germany and the newspaper which they served as well.

Interest in Rumely Case Grows.

Interest in the charge against Dr. Rumely that he made a false statement of the ownership of the Mail to the Alien Enemy Property Custodian, and for which he is now under $35,000 bail, was renewed with the appearance in the office of Harold Harper, Assistant United States Attorney, of George von Skal, one-time managing editor of the New York Staats Zeitung.

Von Skal's letter to Maximilian Harden, noted German journalist, and which revealed his connection with Hun activities here as an adviser, was seized by British officials off Falmouth, England, when Captain von Papen, Military Attache, was trying to sneak them into Germany while returning with Von Bernstorff's Ambassadorial party in 1915.

Frank Parker Stockbridge, one-time managing editor, and John B. Cullen, who also was connected with the editorial staff of the Mail when Dr. Rumely purchased it, were closeted with the federal Grand Jury during the day. Mr. Harper again questioned C. A. Lewis, whom Dr. Rumely brought on from his home, in La Porte, Ind., to act as treasurer of the newspaper.

Grant of a Million Dollars to Avert Stock Demoralization

Western Authorities Will Take Steps To Prevent Exportation of Young Cattle.

SITUATION IS ACUTE

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, July 20.— An emergency grant of a million dollars will be made by Manitoba, to avert the demoralization of stock raising in the province it was gleaned from statements made by cabinet ministers at a conference with K. McGregor, of the Canada Food Board.

An immediate special session is within the possibility if the grant cannot be obtained by order-in-Council, so acute is the situation. It was believed the Provincial government was urged to prevent the exportation of young female cattle from Manitoba.

Market Flooded.

Thursday morning 4,000 cattle were in the stock yards. Wholesale dumping being due to the larger prospective fodder shortage. The big supply has the tendency to lower prices, attracting United States buyers, who will snap bargains, sending the stock into the United States, where it will find a ready market.

Female cattle would thus be cleared out of Manitoba and Saskatchewan to a large degree, creating a situation in stock raising which would not be fought down for 15 or 20 years.

Miss Doris Pilling, of Peterborough, is visiting Miss Florence Hamilton at McCracken's Landing.

Gray-Dort Distributors

Duffus Garage Has Taken the Local Agency for This High-grade Car

The Duffus' new and larger quarters will now have double duty to form. The firm has now taken over the distributing agency for the Gray-Automobiles, and have already made arrangements to commence distributing cars. Up to now the Duffus Garage has made a speciality of the Ford car, and made a splendid success of them, but they will now be prepared to cater to those who require a car of the quality and price of a Gray-Dort, which has such a splendid reputation.

Those interested in the highest grade car, will be pleased to know that they can now be looked after by the Duffus Garage, and have its splendid continuous service at their disposal.

When the new Garage is completed, this greatly appreciated service will be much improved and, and will, no doubt be ample to give their customers every convenience, attention, and accommodation.

Cars that are left for repairs will not have to stand out in all kinds of weather, but will be under cover, also have cover for customers' cars, who are transacting business in town.

This accommodation, coupled with the handling of the two famous cars, the business Ford and the splendid Gray-Dort, will make the Duffus Garage a more popular place than ever.

DOG CATCHER AT WORK.

Mr. Gates Has Not Quit, Nor Has He Been Asked To.

Mr. Jimmy Gates this morning asked the Examiner to remind dog owners that he is still on the job. Evidently he does not want to take an unfair advantage of those who may have gained the impression that he had turned in the official shield and badge of authority. For the present he has a roving commission, and may swoop down a dog frequented side street at any time.

Splendid music was provided by Miss Florence Gladman. When the dance broke up forty-five cars brought the young people back to the city.

The coffee bag skirt will hardly last through the summer. It is not an admirable model for thin materials and is likely to be gradually displaced by the pleated skirt, which may be much more gracefully worn.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

The Fight Was a Slaughter For the First Fifteen Rounds

One of the Most Remarkable Fights Ever Staged, Between Will Curle and Jack Roberts.

One of the most remarkable fights ever staged was that between Will Curley of Newcastle and Jack Roberts of Drury Lane, London, England, at the National Sporting club, some twenty years ago.

Roberts, while not a clever boxer, had a great knowledge of the game and was reckoned a good trial horse for the best of them.
